The monthly family newspaper loved by grandparents

A very merry Christmas to your family!

In our house we celebrate Solstice, or Yule, as well as Christmas – even more opportunities for gift giving. My daughter and I have been making candles and chutneys, tonics and treasures for the last month or so, in the lead up to the holiday season. I feel a little like a mouse in the store stump in Bramley Hedge! I love making and sourcing ethical, handmade goodies for the people I love – it brings me a lot of pleasure. I scour charity shops, craft markets and ethical stores for presents. So you can imagine the fun that I've had putting together this selection of wonderful gifts for everyone in your family. There's soft snuggly things for babes in arms, toys for toddlers, fun things for kids and ethical treasures for teenagers too. My main aim is to highlight products that you might not find on the high street or be able to order next day delivery from a big name warehouse retailer! I've chosen unusual, ethical items that I love. The Green Parent Christmas Gift Guide is always about family values and having a positive impact in the world.

Wishing you and yours a very happy, green festive season, however you celebrate! - Melissa - Editor, The Green Parent
PS: To find out what my family and I are making, come over to thegreenparent.co.uk where I share all our news in a weekly newsletter
