FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Sydney Zulich wins District 6 nomination in Democratic Caucus

Bloomington, IN – Sydney Zulich, a dedicated community advocate and recent graduate of Indiana University Bloomington, boldly announces her candidacy for Bloomington City Council District 6. With no other candidates in the running, Zulich is poised to bring fresh ideas, a strong commitment to public service, and a vision for a thriving District 6.

Zulich's decision to run for City Council stems from her deep love for Bloomington, her unwavering dedication to democracy, and her desire to amplify young voices. As the only candidate in the race so far, Zulich's campaign will focus on encouraging more student involvement in local democracy and addressing the specific needs and concerns of District 6 residents.

Drawing from her extensive experience in community organizing and her in-depth knowledge of local issues, Zulich aims to champion several key initiatives, including:

1. Community Engagement: Zulich believes that participation is a key pillar of democracy; increasing involvement in local elections is part of her strategy to preserve civic engagement. As her campaign will be reflective of her civic tenure, Zulich will actively work to provide students with exposure to local government and political procedures.
2. Government Availability: From personal experience, Zulich is aware that many people struggle with getting access to the government legislation process. Zulich plans on collaborating with the next council administration to increase accessibility and elevate voices across Bloomington.
3. Personal safety: Zulich understands that safety is an important concern for many vulnerable populations in Bloomington. One of her goals is to elevate awareness of existing programs while working to develop solutions for emerging safety concerns.

Sydney Zulich's campaign is driven by her deep-rooted belief in transparent and accountable governance. She aims to be a strong voice for the people of District 6, actively listening to their concerns and advocating for their interests.

Zulich invites District 6 residents to actively participate in the democratic process and engage in a constructive dialogue about their needs and aspirations. Together, we can build a local government that equitably serves all of Bloomington's communities.
