FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) employees.

FDLE OEI Inspector David Snowden was assigned to lead the investigation.

Attorney Bobi J. Frank contacted FDLE advising she represented current and prior members of ACSO. These indviduals voiced their concerns of alleged criminal, ethical, and statutory violations that had been and were continuing to occur by Sheriff Watson and members of his command staff.

A meeting was scheduled for February 24, 2023, to meet with Attorney Frank and the individuals she represented.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) employees.

On February 24, 2023, at approximately 1053 hours, FDLE OEI Inspector David Snowden conducted a sworn, voluntary, and recorded interview with ACSO Captain Brandon Kutner (retired) at the Office of Attorney Bobi J. Frank, located at 14839 Main St, Alachua, Florida. Attorney Frank, Special Agent Supervisor (SAS) Luis Negrete, and Inspector Keith Riddick were present during the interview.

Eighth Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer authored and provided a letter to Captain Kutner granting prosecutorial immunity for his testimony.

The interview was transcribed by American High-Tech Transcription and Reporting, Inc. Due to the length of the interview, a break was taken during the process resulting in two separate transcriptions.

The information in this Investigative Report is summarized; the full transcripts are available and included for review.

Captain Kutner was employed with the ACSO from September 2005 until May 2022.

While at ACSO Captain Kutner became familiar with the Police Benevolent Association (PBA), having served as the North Central Chapter president from 2007 until 2014. During that time, he represented many deputies facing disciplinary issues. As a result, Captain Kutner had an intimate knowledge of Chapter 112, Florida Statutes, known as the Police Officers' Bill of Rights.

In June of 2022, Captain Kutner was a lieutenant in the Patrol Division. He was again running to be the PBA president when he was contacted by ACSO Major George Corwine, who was also a previous PBA president. Major Corwine informed Captain Kutner that Sheriff Watson wanted to see him. Captain Kutner was in the process of the PBA election in Tallahassee, but returned to

Description:Interview of Captain Brandon Kutner (Retired)

THIS REPORT IS INTENDED ONLY FOR THE USE OF THE AGENCY TO WHICH IT WAS DISSEMINATED AND MAY CONTAIN INFORMATION THAT IS EITHER PRIVILEGED OR CONFIDENTIAL AND EXEMPT FROM DISCLOSURE UNDER APPLICABLE LAW. ITS CONTENTS ARE NOT TO BE DISTRIBUTED OUTSIDE YOUR AGENCY.

ACSO later that day and met with Sheriff Watson.

It was during that meeting that Captain Kutner learned he was being interviewed. The next morning, he was promoted to the Chief Inspector position over the Office of Professional Standards (OPS), effective July 4, 2021. As a result of the promotion and contractual obligations, Captain Kutner was ineligible to become PBA president. Captain Kutner said, "That was a purposeful act." Captain Kutner learned had he not been promoted and remained in the race, he would have won the PBA presidential position.

When Sheriff Watson took office, he had the directive rewritten, making the OPS chief inspector report to the undersheriff instead of the sheriff as required by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA) standards. CALEA is the accrediting agency for ACSO. Before Sheriff Watson took office, the chief inspector was a direct report to the sheriff.

After being appointed as the chief inspector, Captain Kutner notified Undersheriff DeCoursey of the accreditation issue by presenting him with documents that stated OPS had to be a direct report to the sheriff. Undersheriff DeCoursey granted Captain Kutner a meeting with Sheriff Watson, where the same information was provided to Sheriff Watson. This resulted in Captain Kutner reporting directly to the sheriff and the directive being rewritten.

Even though Captain Kutner was a direct report to the sheriff, he still had to go through the undersheriff and take direction from Undersheriff DeCoursey. Captain Kutner advised he would always ask Undersheriff DeCoursey, "Is this coming from you or is this coming from the sheriff? Because I don't work for you. And he unequivocally stated to me every time that, 'this is the sheriff's desire.'" So, even though the physical order was coming from the undersheriff, I made it very clear that I wanted to know who was instructing me to do that. And every time he told me what I tell you is coming directly from the sheriff."

One of the first things Captain Kutner did upon taking over OPS was to conduct an internal audit. During the audit, he made several discoveries that were concerning to him. These included missing administrative files, failure to notify the Criminal Justice Standards and Training Commission (CJSTC) of moral character violations that ACSO was mandatorily required and files that had been purged by Administrative Assistant Kris Allfrey. It was also discovered Allfrey recorded 12 hours of work that she had not worked. These findings occurred during the previous administration and under Sheriff Watson's administration.

On August 18th of 2021, Captain Kutner authored an inter-office correspondence (IOC) detailing these concerns along with his lack of confidence in Allfrey. Captain Kutner requested Allfrey be transferred and an internal investigation be initiated into the hours she reported that she worked.

In September or October of 2021, Undersheriff Joel DeCoursey met with Captain Kutner for breakfast. Undersheriff DeCoursey referred to these meetings as "Chew and Chats." The meeting came after the PBA filed a lawsuit against ACSO, which caused some difficulties for the administration.

During the meeting, Captain Kutner was informed that Allfrey would not be moved; instead she would get retrained, and there would be no investigation into her alleged falsified work hours.

Captain Kutner later discovered there was a history with Undersheriff DeCoursey and Allfrey. Allfrey was an administrative assistant at the Juvenile Relations Bureau where she worked with Undersheriff DeCoursey earlier in his career. Captain Kutner believed their working relationship prevented him from his investigative request.

Undersheriff DeCoursey told Captain Kutner there was stuff going on with the PBA, and the administration needed to ensure he was on Team Watson. Undersheriff DeCoursey indicated he heard a rumor that Captain Kutner's promotion was to take him out of the running for being PBA president so that he could not use his knowledge to oppose the administration with disciplinary issues. Captain Kutner indicated he later learned from Major Corwine that this was factual. Sheriff Watson, Undersheriff DeCoursey, Major Robert Stafford, and Major Corwine met prior to selecting the Chief Inspector and chose Captain Kutner for that reason.

According to Captain Kutner, Undersheriff DeCoursey instructed him to "…utilize equipment that we have available to us within the Office of Professional Standards to monitor conversations between subject employees accused of administrative misconduct and their representatives, whether it be PBA representative or attorneys," and, "You need to use the resources that are available, specifically the equipment in OPS, to keep us apprised of any developments that may be detrimental to the administration." Captain Kutner stated, "To me, it was very clear that he was asking me to monitor conversations. He said, 'You need to inform us immediately if you become aware of anything that is discussed prior to your investigation commencing that has a negative effect on the administration or our ability to move forward with any case, we need to be made aware of immediately.'"

Captain Kutner identified the equipment as the iRecord system, which consists of an audio/video monitoring platform. Cameras are in a room allowing users outside of the room to monitor in real-time or record what is occurring. The system must be turned on and the user must access the system before monitoring or recording. There is no indication within the room that would alert individuals they were being monitored, nor are there signs inside or outside of the room indicating it is monitored. Captain Kutner said, "…the undersheriff and the sheriff became intimately familiar with what the capabilities of those systems were because we discussed it."

During the Chew and Chat meeting, Undersheriff DeCoursey told Captain Kutner, "Brandon, you have to understand that the sheriff was elected to make the sheriff's office look more like him. And if you're not on board with that or if anybody's not on board with that, they need to get gone. So, we need to know that you as a chief inspector are on board Team Watson."

Captain Kutner indicated similar statements were made by Sheriff Watson during a closed-door meeting. During that meeting, "… [Sheriff Watson] didn't necessarily promise me anything, but made it very clear that if I was on Team Watson that he could make sure that anything I ever needed help with in the future, whether it was running for political office, whether it was applying for jobs as an agency head somewhere, that he could pull strings and would be happy to do so. But he needed to make sure that I had his back."

Captain Kutner monitored conversations from his office where he had access to the iRecord system. He would close his door during the times of monitoring.

One of the investigations Captain Kutner monitored occurred when Deputy James Hardy met with Attorney Bobi Frank and her assistant. Captain Kutner heard Attorney Frank mention a 112 violation. Unbeknownst to Deputy Hardy, Captain Kutner relayed the information to the "Sheriff's Suite" and to Lead Inspector Lieutenant Brett Rhodenizer to allow him to prepare for Deputy Hardy's FSS 112 defense.

NOTE: The Sheriff's Suite was identified as the area that houses the sheriff, the sheriff's executive assistant, the undersheriff, the undersheriff's executive assistant, the general counsel, and the chief of staff.

NOTE: Attorney Frank provided a notarized affidavit from Deputy Hardy indicating he was unaware the room where he met Attorney Frank was wired with the iRecord system. Deputy Hardy heard Attorney Frank confirm that the conversation between them would be private and not be recorded or intercepted. Deputy Hardy had a private/confidential conversation with Attorney Frank during their meeting.

Captain Kutner said he monitored conversations on "several occasions" and listed other monitored OPS investigations, including cases against Captain Latrell Simmons, Captain Corey Warren, and Deputy Mykael Morris-Brown. The privileged conversations were only monitored, not recorded. The monitored individuals were not told they were observed. The monitored conversations happened during scheduled meetings where the subject deputy reviewed the evidence with or without representation.

Captain Kutner was told by Sheriff Watson not to put anything in writing, or to put as little as possible in writing; therefore, Captain Kutner called the sheriff's executive assistant when he learned anything important from monitoring the conversations. He was always told the sheriff was "not available" resulting in Captain Kutner providing the information to Undersheriff DeCoursey, who told Captain Kutner the information would be relayed to the sheriff.

Sheriff Watson, according to Captain Kutner, was so cautious about documentation that he refused to have his text messages memorialized on his agency-issued cell phone. Each ACSO employee with an issued phone is required to opt into a program on their phone, which captures and saves all text messages.

Because other OPS inspectors knew that Captain Kutner had illegally monitored conversations, they began to disconnect the camera to prevent his actions from continuing. Captain Kutner's inspectors told him they felt that OPS was being weaponized. Captain Kutner felt the same, saying OPS was being used to retaliate against ACSO employees.

Captain Kutner first noticed retaliatory conduct during the OPS investigation of Lieutenant Howard Adams, who made disparaging remarks against the ACSO on social media. Lieutenant Adams was investigated for insubordination, conduct unbecoming, and knowledge of policy; the first two being terminable offenses. Lieutenant Adams was on FMLA and was not interviewed during the investigation. Lieutenant Kyle Salman was the inspector who lead the investigation and sustained the insubordination and knowledge of policy violations but did not sustain the conduct unbecoming allegation.

On October 1, 2021, the findings were sent to Lieutenant Adams' supervisors - Captain Latrell Simmons, Major Stafford, and Undersheriff DeCoursey for their recommendations. On October 5, 2021, Captain Simmons wrote, "no findings given," and recommended to toll the investigation due to Lieutenant Adams being on FMLA. On October 6 Major Stafford recommended termination and on October 7 Undersheriff DeCoursey did the same.

That same day Captain Kutner was called to the Sheriff's Suite to meet with Undersheriff DeCoursey and General Counsel Jacob Rush. He was told they were unhappy with Lieutenant Salman's findings and with Captain Kutner's concurrence. Captain Kutner was provided with case law and was ordered to amend the findings to sustain the conduct unbecoming charge. According to Captain Kutner, Lieutenant Salman was retaliated against and transferred to the jail due to his investigation. 12 other ACSO employees that reacted to Lieutenant Adams' social media post were given corrective counseling.

Captain Kutner complied and submitted the report to the Sheriff's Suite on October 11. Two days later, Major Stafford was listed as the complainant against Captain Simmons for "performance of duty." The complaint indicated "…several instances where Captain Simmons either made a questionable decision or did not make a decision at all," including that Captain Simmons recommended tolling the Lieutenant Adams' investigation.

Lieutenant Sherry French led the investigation into Captain Simmons, sustaining the performance of duty allegation. The findings were based upon violations discovered through the course of the investigation where Captain Simmons did not acknowledge receipt of agency directives, and his failure to follow up on an email to ensure it was properly handled. The report was sent to the Sheriff's Suite where Captain Kutner was again told to amend the investigation, where he was ordered to add that Captain Simmons recommended that Lieutenant Adams' investigation be tolled while he was on FMLA. Captain Kutner again complied and did as he was directed. Captain Kutner's belief was, "They did not want to demote [Captain Simmons] to a lieutenant based on the chicken-shit allegations that were uncovered during the investigation. They wanted something more meaty and I was ordered to provide it for them."

Captain Kutner described this by saying, " This is a pattern of practice of interference with official misconduct investigations. Telling us, telling the Office of Professional Standards, what we should find, what we should not find. What we should report to FDLE, what we shouldn't report to FDLE."

On November 18, 2021, another investigation was initiated by Major Stafford on Jail Captain Corey Warren resulting in formal discipline.

Captain Kutner believed each of the referenced OPS investigations was "personal", and done in an "effort to replace them with individuals that were more sympathetic to the Watson administration." He further iterated, " They wanted to make sure that they wanted to be rock solid and that there wasn't going to be any other issues that were going to be brought up later with regard to 112 violations or anything that would prevent the agency from being able to carry out their desire to demote and replace those individuals."

According to Captain Kutner, many of the investigations were race-based. One specific incident involved Detention Deputy Gary Wolf who is white. Deputy Wolf was caught on camera accidentally spraying a black inmate with a cleaning solution. An internal investigation was conducted not involving OPS that determined Deputy Wolf failed to report the incident immediately, although there was no malicious intent. The report was sent to the Sheriff's Suite who ordered Captain Kutner to re-open the case because the deputy was white and the inmate was black.

OPS Inspector Lieutenant Matt Beck reviewed the case and re-interviewed everyone except Deputy Wolf. The inmate verified the incident was accidental and the findings were the same. The information was provided to the Sheriff's Suite and Captain Kutner was ordered to re-open the case and interview every inmate that witnessed the incident. He was told, "It's the perception of the inmates; if they think it was on purpose, then we can discipline him that way." Captain Kutner said he would not re-open the investigation because there was no new evidence.

Captain Kutner was asked to expound upon the cases he mentioned regarding cases being purged. He indicated Detention Officer Camille Rowe was investigated for allegations of Untruthfulness and Performance of Duty just prior to Captain Kutner's assignment in OPS. Both allegations were sustained, however, instead of following the recommendations made by the chain of command (10-day suspension and 12 months probation), Jail Director Robert Woody and Undersheriff DeCoursey unfounded the Untruthfulness and administered a written reprimand on June 22, 2021. When Captain Kutner arrived in OPS he tried to review the investigation only to learn the records had been purged by Allfrey.

Captain Kutner indicated Officer Rowe's investigation is one of many that should have been sent to CJSTC for review, although it was not. In the IOC he authored on August 18, 2021, and provided to Sheriff Watson, Captain Kutner identified 12 cases, including Officer Rowe's, that should have been CJSTC. During their in-person meeting with Undersheriff DeCoursey, Sheriff Watson "lambasted" Captain Kutner, asking him who he thought he was by telling the sheriff who needs or does not need to be sent to FDLE. Some of the cases occurred during the previous administration while the remainder happened under Sheriff Watson's time in office. Sheriff Watson told Captain Kutner he was only concerned about what happened under his regime. Captain Kutner informed Sheriff Watson that since he [Sheriff Watson] was now aware of the cases, his willful failure to send them was a moral character violation in and of itself. Captain Kutner provided the FDLE Compliance Bulletin to Sheriff Watson verifying his statement. Sheriff Watson agreed to send Officer Rowe's investigation and signed the FDLE Form 78 to allow that to happen. Captain Kutner said he was "specifically ordered" not to send the remaining 11 cases. Captain Kutner later clarified that Sheriff Watson told him he could send two other cases that happened since he took office (James Lemmon and Bradley Preventure), although Sheriff Watson failed to sign them to have them sent.

One of the final issues that occurred prior to Captain Kutner retiring from ASCO involved an incident with Deputy Annie Waller. Deputy Waller was terminated from the department and sought to get her leave payout, but Sheriff Watson denied her from receiving it. This caused the PBA to sue ACSO on behalf of Deputy Waller. As a result, General Counsel Rush came to Captain Kutner saying Sheriff Watson wanted Deputy Waller's file sent to CJSTC for decertification. Captain Kutner explained to General Counsel Rush that Deputy Waller was terminated for untruthfulness, but she told the truth and did not lie in the official investigation and that was not a decertifying offense; therefore, he was not going to send her file to CJSTC.

Captain Kutner told General Counsel Rush that Sheriff Watson had a vendetta against the PBA and anyone, like Deputy Waller that went against him. He continued by telling General Counsel Rush that Sergeant John Hoover had a case similar to Deputy Waller's case, although Sergeant Hoover lied in an official investigation and was allowed to resign in lieu of termination. Sergeant Hoover's case was one that Captain Kutner presented to Sheriff Watson who refused to act on it and send it to CJSTC. Since Sheriff Watson took office, John Hoover was hired back as a deputy and is now a captain at the jail. Captain Kutner revealed that Captain Hoover is the son-in-law of prominent political figure Stafford Jones who was a staunch advocate and supporter, along with Captain Hoover of Sheriff Watson's campaign.

Captain Kutner was asked if he knew monitoring privileged conversations was illegal. He replied, "…it was just an order that I got from my chain of command to do. Um, I knew that there -- it was -- I knew that it was outside the scope of, um, ethics. And obviously, I knew that interviewing or intercepting the communication between a client and his attorney, regardless of whether it's criminal or administrative, was illegal because that's specifically why we don't have recording devices in the attorney -- in the attorney offices at the jail. Specifically, for that reason. There are video monitors but no audio. So, I -- I knew that it was, yes, a crime."

He was then asked why he chose to do it if he knew it was illegal. Captain Kutner stated, " I was ordered to do so under duress. It was very, very clear. So, let me -- let me explain something. My wife is the director of the 911 Communications Center. She's been working for the Sheriff's Office since February of 2004. She supervises 84 employees and made almost as much money as I did at the Sheriff's Office. My son is a detention officer at the jail. My son is number one on the sergeants' list waiting for a promotion, and it was at the time I retired, as well. And it was very clear that if I was not on Team Watson as was put to me by both the sheriff and the undersheriff, that retaliation against me would be forthcoming, either by demotion myself 'cause I was still on probation, or by transfer/demotion of my family members. That was made very, very clear to me. So much so in the words that, 'I would hate to see such a family with such a bright future at the Sheriff's Office be derailed because they're not on board with their administration.' It was very clear to me that I had no option."

Captain Kutner continued by saying, " I've been in public safety for 30 years. I'm an adjunct instructor for the University of Louisville Southern Police Institute (SPI). I teach the Internal Affairs course for SPI. I teach Officer Misconduct for the CODC (Command Officer's Development Course). I know what I'm talking about. I had been interviewed for multiple chief of police jobs. I was one of six finalists interviewed by the Governor's panel for the state of Washington for the new Office of Independent Investigations that they're spinning up in Washington to take a look at officer-involved shootings and deadly uses of force across the entire state. I was one of six finalists that interviewed for that position. There is no way that I walk away from a career that I have poured my blood and tears and sweat and effort into since day one unless I knew that there was no other option for me. And it was very clear that they were going to hold my personal relationship obviously with my wife who's an employee there and my son who's an employee there, and they were going to hold me hostage and dangle that over my head if I didn't do their bidding so I chose to leave."

Captain Kutner reiterated his belief that Sheriff Watson and other members of the administration were using OPS to their benefit and to punish certain members of ACSO, saying there have been six chief inspectors (captains) in OPS since Sheriff Watson took office and, "That should be a red flag." The current Chief Inspector of OPS, Kelvin Jenkins, was reportedly previously removed from OPS for untruthfulness.

NOTE: The remainder of this investigative report documents the second portion of the interview after a break was taken. The second transcription should be referenced relevant to the remaining information.

Prior to his promotion, Captain Kutner was the Watch Commander (Lieutenant) on the day shift when a pursuit occurred. The pursuit was authorized by Captain Kutner due to the information that was provided over the radio, which fit within the guidelines of ACSO policy. A review of the pursuit was completed by Captain Kutner afterward and several policy violations were noted including acts constituting deadly force according to ACSO policy.

Captain Kutner wrote an IOC lodging a complaint against the deputies involved in the pursuit and sent it to the administration via his chain of command. No action was taken on the complaint.

When Captain Kutner was promoted to take over the OPS supervisor position, he spoke to the other inspectors about the complaint. They advised him it could give the illusion of impropriety if the complaint was investigated once Captain Kutner took the position since he was the author of the complaint. Therefore, he did not invest any more time on the issue.

When Captain Kutner had his exit interview with Sheriff Watson, he asked what happened to the complaint. Sheriff Watson told him they decided not to do anything about it.

Captain Kutner also reported improper budget disbursements during his time in OPS. He indicated OPS is staffed with two inspectors from law enforcement and two inspectors from corrections. Each department funds its respective inspectors. However, once Lieutenant Salman (corrections) was transferred out of OPS, he was replaced by Sergeant Peter King (law enforcement), resulting in three law enforcement and one correction personnel. The corrections budget continued to fund the law enforcement position even though Captain Kutner brought the matter to the attention of Chief of Staff Danielle Judd. Captain Kutner advised Chief of Staff Judd this was in violation of the Florida Supreme Court ruling issued on January 27, 2022.

Before Sheriff Watson took office, the Chief Financial Officer was Patty Justice who had been with the agency for almost 30 years. CFO Justice was very knowledgeable on what could and could not be done budgetarily. Sheriff Watson made it so that CFO Justice had to report to Chief of Staff Judd. This caused CFO Justice to relinquish all financial authorizations to Chief of Staff Judd and the Sheriff's Suite.

Captain Kutner indicated James Troiano was another individual reportedly being compensated from the corrections budget as a law enforcement officer. Captain Kutner elaborated by saying Troiano was terminated from ACSO during the previous administration. He was brought back to be the special projects manager at the jail when Sheriff Watson was elected.

Captain Kutner's wife (Communications Director) verified a new cell phone was obtained for Troiano. Later, Captain Kutner ran into Troiano in the ACSO parking lot where they shook hands and Troiano said he looked forward to working together. Troiano was driving an ACSOissued vehicle. This scared Captain Kutner because he was the PBA President when a vote of no confidence was made against Troiano as the Police Chief of High Springs. Now, Troiano could potentially be Captain Kutner's supervisor.

When the county commission discovered Troiano was being paid out of the corrections budget, all records of his new employment reportedly disappeared. Captain Kutner was in Undersheriff DeCoursey's office and saw a clear box of law enforcement equipment labeled "J. Troiano." Undersheriff DeCoursey commented that was the stuff that was taken back from Troiano.

ACSO uses an employee system called SmartCop, which catalogs their employment date, promotion date, and so forth. Captain Kutner advised there was no record of Troiano working at ACSO after being terminated before Sheriff Watson came into office.

Copies of the transcripts are attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-1 and INV-2. The recordings are attached as INV-3. Captain Kutner provided various items (IOCs, OPS investigations, emails) during his interview, which are attached as INV-4. The immunity letter is attached as INV-5. The affidavit from Deputy Hardy is attached as INV-6.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) employees.

On February 24, 2023, at approximately 1342 hours, FDLE OEI Inspector David Snowden conducted a sworn and recorded interview with ACSO Lieutenant Sherry French at the Office of Attorney Bobi J. Frank, located at 14839 Main St, Alachua, Florida. The interview was obtained under a subpoena issued by Eighth Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer. Attorney Frank, Special Agent Supervisor (SAS) Luis Negrete, and Inspector Keith Riddick were present during the interview.

State Attorney Kramer authored and provided a letter to Lieutenant French granting prosecutorial immunity for her testimony.

A follow-up interview was conducted with Lieutenant French at the same location on March 9, 2023. Inspector Snowden, Inspector Riddick, and Attorney Frank were present for the follow-up interview.

The interviews were transcribed by American High-Tech Transcription and Reporting, Inc.

The information in this Investigative Report is summarized; the full transcripts are available and included for review.

Lieutenant French is employed with the ACSO where she has worked for the previous 27 years. She is currently assigned to the Civil Bureau. Lieutenant French indicated she had information regarding the potential criminal actions of Sheriff Watson, Undersheriff Joel DeCoursey, and possibly other members of the ACSO command staff.

In July of 2021, Lieutenant French was working in the Office of Professional Standards (OPS) when Lieutenant Brandon Kutner was promoted to captain and assigned as the Chief Inspector in charge of OPS. Lieutenant French described Captain Kutner as “gung ho” when he arrived, saying that he was going to “fix things” and, “make things happen.”

Description:Interview of Lieutenant Sherry French

THIS REPORT IS INTENDED ONLY FOR THE USE OF THE AGENCY TO WHICH IT WAS DISSEMINATED AND MAY CONTAIN INFORMATION THAT IS EITHER PRIVILEGED OR CONFIDENTIAL AND EXEMPT FROM DISCLOSURE UNDER APPLICABLE LAW. ITS CONTENTS ARE NOT TO BE DISTRIBUTED OUTSIDE YOUR AGENCY.

Lieutenant French noticed that Captain Kutner's attitude began to change around October of 2021. He assigned Lieutenant French to conduct an OPS investigation on Captain Latrell Simmons, who was a law enforcement captain assigned to work at the jail.

Captain Simmons was a major under Sheriff Sadie Darnell but was demoted to captain when Sheriff Watson took office and was reassigned to the jail. Lieutenant French advised that Captain Simmons had no jail experience before that.

Major Robert Stafford was the director of the jail. He reported concerns about Captain Simmons' work performance, which triggered the investigation.

Lieutenant French worked for about one month on the investigation and told Captain Kutner that she did not have anything to substantiate the allegations against Captain Simmons. Captain Kutner told her, " You're going find something. And you're going to sustain it or they're going to sustain every single allegation and they're going to terminate him." According to Lieutenant French, "It was very clear he [Captain Kutner] had been given an order." Captain Kutner later disclosed to her that Sheriff Watson and Undersheriff Joel DeCoursey said they were going to demote Captain Simmons and put him on night shift before the investigation ever commenced.

Captain Kutner would meet with the undersheriff or sheriff to discuss the investigation and would return to OPS. His meetings were with the undersheriff more often than with the sheriff. When Captain Kutner returned from his meetings, Lieutenant French described him as appearing "very defeated," saying, "He just sat, like, slumped over."

Captain Kutner told Lieutenant French the sheriff and undersheriff did not like the direction the investigation was going. They directed Captain Kutner to expedite the investigation, however; there was an issue with Captain Simmons' PBA representation not being available by the time they wanted his interview done. According to Lieutenant French's statement, if the PBA had not adjusted their schedule, Captain Simmons would have been forced to interview without representation.

Lieutenant French found some minor violations – one where Captain Simmons did not acknowledge reading several directives, and another where he only answered one part of a two-part email. Lieutenant French sustained the two violations, which resulted in Captain Simmons' demotion and transfer to the night shift.

Lieutenant French voiced her disagreement with the process, saying, "This is not right. This is not how this is supposed to go. These things can't be predetermined. You can't already know what you're going to do. You've got to look at the facts."

Another issue brought up by Lieutenant French was the monitoring of privileged conversations done by Captain Kutner during his time in OPS. Lieutenant French was at her desk when Captain Kutner called her into his office. When she went in, she observed Captain Kutner watching his computer monitor and monitoring the conversation between Deputy James Hardy and his attorney, Bobi Frank. Captain Kutner informed Lieutenant French that Attorney Frank was going to file a 112 violation. Lieutenant French questioned Captain Kutner about what he was doing. Captain Kutner told Lieutenant French to find Lieutenant Brett Rhodenizer (the inspector assigned to the case) and have him come to Captain Kutner's office.

Lieutenant French did as she was asked and sent Lieutenant Rhodenizer to the captain's office. A few minutes later, Lieutenant Rhodenizer came back with a "wide-eyed" look on his face saying, "I should not know that." Lieutenants Rhodenizer and French discussed what they had observed and how it should be addressed. Lieutenant Rhodenizer indicated he would take care of the matter. Lieutenant French asked Lieutenant Rhodenizer several times after that if he took any actions about privileged conversations being monitored but she does not know if he did.

As she thought back upon Captain Simmons' investigation, Lieutenant French recalled a conversation between her and PBA Representative David Tuck. During the (privileged) evidentiary review process, Tuck commented about the room being hot. A short time later, Captain Kutner entered the room and provided Representative Tuck and Captain Simmons with a bottle of water.

NOTE: Captain Kutner verified in his interview that he monitored the conversation between Captain Simmons and Representative Tuck.

Representative Tuck worked for ACSO as a detective before leaving to work for the PBA. He was aware of the iRecord system used by OPS and its capabilities. As such, both Representative Tuck and Attorney Frank asked if the room was confidential to allow them to freely talk to their clients. Both were told it was confidential.

On a later case (Lieutenant French could not recall which case), Captain Kutner went into his office. Soon thereafter, he called Lieutenant Rhodenizer and asked what was wrong with the iRecord system because it was not working for him. Both Lieutenant Rhodenizer and Lieutenant French knew the iRecord computer needed to be restarted in order to watch the live view, but they did not want to do that to prevent Captain Kutner from listening and watching the conversations that were legally protected.

Lieutenant French began to realize that Captain Kutner was being told to monitor conversations and that the sheriff and undersheriff were telling him how the investigations were to come out. She confronted Captain Kutner and told him, "If you think that you want to be a head of an agency or a police chief at some point, where are your balls to stand up for what's wrong and what's happening right here in this agency?" Captain Kutner replied that his family works at ACSO and that he was worried about repercussions. He then told Lieutenant French about a conversation Sheriff Watson had with him where Sheriff Watson told Captain Kutner if he ever aspired of being the head of an agency or a police chief, he [Sheriff Watson] could make that happen. Captain Kutner told Lieutenant French, "That's corrupt as fuck."

Other problems that Lieutenant French discussed included Captain Kutner creating an access drive for OPS investigations that the sheriff and undersheriff could access. Captain Kutner told Lieutenant French that the sheriff wanted to know these things and did not like to get caught off guard.

Another incident involved Deputy Andrew Martin's use of force during an arrest. Captain Kutner told Lieutenant French that the sheriff had watched the videos of the incident and that OPS was going to investigate the incident and suspend him for the use of force. Lieutenant French argued that the investigation was biased by showing the videos and providing everything to the sheriff before the investigation had been started. Again, Captain Kutner told her the sheriff does not want to be caught off guard.

Lieutenant French told Captain Kutner she felt that he was not telling her (or the other inspectors) how he was being directed by the sheriff and undersheriff in order to protect them. However, it was obvious to them Captain Kutner was doing what he was being directed to do.

Captain Kutner confided to Lieutenant French that he was physically sick on a daily basis from the stress of what he was dealing with at work. He later retired from ACSO vacating his position as Chief Inspector. Captain Jon Schabruch took Captain Kutner's place.

Lieutenant French reported there were two OPS investigations that were directed to be closed. The first involved Jail Sergeant Pam James for insubordination. OPS Lieutenant Kyle Salman assisted Jail Lieutenant Jamie Scott with the investigation of Sergeant James. It had been completed but had not been submitted for a discipline determination. It was reported the sheriff directed the undersheriff to have the OPS tracking number canceled, although the OPS inspectors knew that could not be done. Captain Schabruch kept the tracking number but the investigation concluded without anything else happening. Captain Schabruch indicated that Major Stafford was told by the administration that Sergeant James' case should not have been opened at all.

Lieutenant French believed the investigation was closed partly because Sergeant James was a black female. Sergeant James had a history of getting things under Sheriff Watson's administration that other officers could not. Lieutenant French gave the example of when the other personnel were told to work 8-hour shifts, Sergeant James went directly to the sheriff requesting to work 10-hour shifts and was permitted to do so.

The other OPS investigation that was directed to be closed involved Detention Officer Corey Short. Officer Short had an issue with Jail Sergeant James Lemmon. Sergeant Lemmon was demoted and the case against him was closed. However; Officer Short obtained the interview videos and posted them on social media. They revealed security issues of the inner-working of the jail and identified inmates that were in custody. Officer Short failed to take the videos down when he was ordered, resulting in an insubordination investigation. Lieutenant French said that Officer Short began "liking" all of the ACSO Facebook posts during this time, which resulted in Major Stafford telling Captain Schabruch to end the investigation. Captain Schabruch got Major Stafford to provide an email verifying the investigation was to be closed and to cancel the tracking number.

NOTE: Tracking numbers were originally maintained in an Excel spreadsheet. While Captain Kutner was the Chief Inspector, OPS began using IAPro to manage their tracking numbers and cases. The Excel records were not merged into IAPro.

Lieutenant French said there were other tracking numbers that were ordered to be canceled during an investigation into Lieutenant Howard Adams' posting on social media. Several other employees "liked" Lieutenant Adams' post. Each employee had a tracking number pulled, however, they ended up receiving corrective counseling, which did not fall under the requirement of having a tracking number assigned.

Lieutenant Chuck McCray was another inspector in OPS with Lieutenant French. He is cousins with Undersheriff DeCoursey. Lieutenant French voiced some of her frustrations about what was occurring in OPS to Lieutenant McCray, asking him about the fairness of investigations and who was directing the outcomes. Lieutenant McCray replied that Sheriff Watson, Undersheriff DeCoursey, and Colonel Chad Scott talked all of the time. If they were not discussing matters in person, they were talking on the phone. However, according to Lieutenant McCray, Sheriff Watson was the person that "is giving all the orders and pulling all these strings."

Lieutenant French was asked if she or anyone else ever documented or reported any of the allegations in writing or by email. She indicated the administration did not want anything in writing because they did not want a record of it. Prior to his leaving, Captain Kutner made this known to his inspectors.

During Captain Schabruch's time in OPS, an investigation was conducted on Detention Officer Erica Hollingsworth. Captain Schabruch notified the sheriff of the preliminary findings. This resulted in Sheriff Watson getting angry and reportedly saying, "This is not what I expect from my OPS," before hanging up the phone. Captain Schabruch realized he would soon be replaced as the chief inspector because he was not going to do the investigations the way the sheriff wanted them done.

While still under Captain Schabruch's leadership in OPS, Lieutenant French was asked to look at a complaint against Sergeant Kevin Davis regarding a verbal exchange he had with Lieutenant Simms. Lieutenant French was able to conclude the complaint with an administrative inquiry. The results of the administrative inquiry were sent up the chain of command and the sheriff signed off concurring with her findings. A short time later, Lieutenant French was transferred out of OPS, although she was not informed why. She later learned through a conversation with Lieutenant McCray that she, along with several other members of OPS, was transferred because she was not consistent enough. All of the OPS personnel were replaced with the exception of Lieutenant McCray. Lieutenant McCray ended up getting transferred out of OPS after completing his first investigation, reportedly because the sheriff was not happy with his performance.

Captain Schabruch's replacement was Captain Kelvin Jenkins. Lieutenant French reported that Captain Jenkins was previously in OPS for a short time under the previous administration. Captain Jenkins was removed from the position because he lied in an investigation. Lieutenant French believes Sheriff Watson put him back into OPS because Captain Jenkins is a black male, and he would do whatever he was directed to do by the sheriff.

Once Captain Jenkins took over OPS, it was reported that he was asked to re-open the case against Sergeant Davis. Lieutenant French did not know if that occurred or not due to how recent the events were.

In another incident, Captain Jenkins was contacted by ACSO General Counsel Jacob Rush. Attorney Rush reported that Sergeant Davis and Sergeant Frank Williams separately made social media posts that were reportedly against policy. Attorney Rush told Captain Jenkins to put his name down as the complainant. Captain Jenkins refused saying that Attorney Rush was the actual complainant. When Sergeant Davis and Sergeant Williams were individually served and suspended, their documents listed Attorney Rush as the complainant. Captain Jenkins was called by the administration and told to put his name down as the complainant. Even though Captain Jenkins advised he did not have a social media account and was not the one who filed the complaint, he acquiesced and created new documents listing himself as the complainant.

NOTE: This was later verified during interviews with Sergeant Davis and Sergeant Williams.

Lieutenant French referenced other concerning issues without providing detailed information, including how race affected discipline within the agency since Sheriff Watson came in. She reported an instance where both a black female and a white male employee were investigated for policy violations. The black female's violation was worse than the white male's violation, yet she received a written reprimand while the male received a 10-day suspension.

Lieutenant French referenced how Bureau Chief Michelle Klement was publicly belittled by Sheriff Watson over something she had no control over. Chief Klement was later demoted and sent to a position she had no experience with, causing her to leave ACSO.

NOTE: This was later verified during interviews with Chief Klement and Major Arabella Blizzard.

Lieutenant French referenced IT Director John Moorehouse telling Sheriff Watson several times to allow an app, which preserved all text messages (public record) on Sheriff Watson's agency-issued cell phone, only to be ignored.

NOTE: This was later verified during the interview with ACSO Phone Specialist Scott Shelpman.

Lieutenant French indicated the number of employees (302) that have left ACSO since Sheriff Watson has assumed control is a bellwether of the morale and direction the agency is going. Some employees who had left or were close to leaving, advised they would assist by staying longer or worknig in a part time status. Lieutenant French said in every circumstance the offer was rejected by Sheriff Watson, even though he was aware of critical staffing shortages.

Lieutenant French provided various documents during her interview, which are attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-7. The first recorded interview is attached as INV-8, the subpoena is attached as INV-9, the letter of immunity is attached as INV-10, the second interview as INV-11, and the transcripts as INV-12 and INV-13 respectively.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, Attorney Bobi J. Frank requested the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) employees.

On June 7, 2024, Inspector David Snowden received an e-mail from Amy Christmas, Executive Assistant to State Attorney (SA) Brian Kramer for the Eighth Judicial District. Attached to the e-mail was Executive Order 24-105 from the Office of the Governor transferring the assignment of the investigation from SA Kramer in the Eighth Judicial Circuit to SA John Durrett in the Third Judicial Circuit.

The Order indicated SA Kramer notified the Office of the Governor that the FDLE was investigating the Alachua Sheriff's Office and that SA Kramer had publicly endorsed ASO Sheriff Emory Gainey for reelection. To avoid any conflict of interest or appearance of impropriety, SA Kramer voluntarily disqualified himself and requested the Governor assign another State Attorney to handle the investigation and prosecution of the case.

An electronic copy of the order is attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-74.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

On March 9, 2023, OEI Inspectors David Snowden and Keith Riddick obtained a sworn, recorded interview from ASO Sergeant William "Frank" Williams at the office of his attorney, Bobi Frank. Sergeant Williams was subpoenaed to provide his testimony. The interview was later transcribed by American High-Tech Transcription and Reporting, Inc.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the recordings or the transcripts for the entire interview.

Sergeant Williams has worked for ASO for 13 years in various capacities. At the time of the interview, Sergeant Williams was the subject of an active ASO internal investigation (Office of Professional Standards (OPS) 2023-00011). Sergeant Williams indicated there were ambiguities surrounding the complaint which precipitated the investigation, one of which was identifying who generated the complaint. Sergeant Williams had received two notices of investigation. One notice identified ASO General Counsel (GC) Jacob Rush as the complainant with one set of violations alleged; the other identified ASO Chief Inspector Captain Kelvin Jenkins as the complainant and naming different policy violations.

On March 1, 2023, Attorney Frank and Sergeant Williams were at ASO reviewing the evidence obtained against him in his investigation. During the review process, Sergeant Williams noted that his complainant was not definitively identified, the body-worn camera (BWC) recordings of him being served with his notice of investigation were missing, and an email from HR Bureau Chief Reshone Flanders was not included in the evidence.

At the conclusion of the evidence review, Attorney Frank alleged several violations of the Officers' Bill of Rights, FSS 112.532 against Sergeant Williams. Attorney Frank and Sergeant Williams left without providing an interview. A notice of the FSS 112.532 violations was provided to OPS and to the Sheriff.

Attorney Frank was notified later by GC Rush that the violations of FSS 112.532 were unfounded and ASO would continue with discipline without conducting a compliance review hearing.

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

On March 9, 2023, OEI Inspectors David Snowden and Keith Riddick obtained a sworn, recorded, and subpoenaed interview with ASO Captain Rebecca Butscher at the Law Office of Attorney Bobi Frank. The interview was later transcribed by American High-Tech Transcription and Reporting, Inc.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the recordings or the transcripts for the entire interview.

Captain Butscher has worked for the ASO in several capacities for the past 30 years. At the time of the interview, Captain Butscher was the subject of an active administrative investigation number 2023-00036. She was represented by Attorney Frank.

In her recorded statement to FDLE, Captain Butscher revealed 12 contentious incidents between herself and ASO Major Lance Yeager from the time he was promoted to Chief Detective (equal to her rank) until he was promoted to the rank of Major on January 15, 2023. Captain Butscher reported that she notified Colonel Chad Scott on at least two different occasions of the issues she was having with Major Yaeger.

Many of the incidents involved then-Captain Yaeger reaching out to Captain Butscher's subordinates or circumventing her authority. Once Major Yaeger outranked Captain Butscher, he began to issue discipline to her.

The same day Captain Yeager was promoted to Major, Captain Butscher was transferred to the position of Public Information Officer. Three weeks later, Captain Butscher was notified by her administrative assistant that Major Yaeger " made a request for documents maintained by the Public Information Office." Captain Butscher responded by sending the following email to Major Yaeger.

" Major Yaeger, when making requests for awards or any information that is maintained or managed within the Public Information Office, I expect to be copied and/or notified of such request so that I do not receive notification such as this after the fact when copied by my administrative assistant. Your consideration will be greatly appreciated."

After sending the email she contacted the Sheriff's executive assistant to meet with Sheriff Watson about her issues with Major Yaeger. She was told Sheriff Watson was with someone and she would be notified when he was available. Sheriff Watson did not speak to Captain Butscher regarding her request. On February 13, 2023, Major Yaeger gave a corrective counseling to Captain Butscher because of the email. Captain Jason Levy was requested by Captain Butscher to serve as a witness to the corrective counseling incident. Captain Levy was present, along with Captain Kaley Behl when Major Yaeger served it.

Captain Butscher had taken off February 14 – February 19 and returned to work on February 20. On February 22, she was notified to be at a mandatory meeting in Major Yaeger's office at 3:00PM. She arrived and waited outside of the office. Before the meeting commenced, Captain Steve Maynard arrived. Soon they were both called into Major Yaeger's office where Captain Butscher was notified that Major Yaeger had opened an administrative investigation on her resulting from her reaction to the corrective counseling.

In the Administrative Investigation Report, Major Yaeger listed himself as both the complainant and the person taking the complaint. Major Yeager also referenced statements from Captain Behl, which were "grossly different" between what Captain Behl wrote and what Major Yaeger put in the investigation. Attorney Frank noted several issues, which violated Captain Butscher's Officers' Bill of Rights. Major Yaeger was noticed in writing by Attorney Frank of the violations. The investigation concluded without the administration rectifying or acting upon the 112 violations brought forth by Attorney Frank, and without providing the statutorily mandated Compliance Review Hearing.

The recommended discipline against Captain Butscher by Major Yaeger was termination; Undersheriff DeCoursey recommended 80-hours suspension, and Sheriff Watson administered two days of suspension followed with 12 months of probation.

Captain Butscher also referred to an incident involving her son, ASO Deputy Carlton Litzkow. Deputy Litzkow was involved in a deputy-involved shooting on March 25, 2022, which resulted in him being placed on administrative duties. The case was delivered to the State Attorney's Office (SAO) and ASO by FDLE on October 11, 2022. The shooting was determined to be lawful by the SAO on October 21, 2022, but Deputy Litzkow remained on administrative duties until December 5, 2022.

Captain Butscher testified, "[W]e all came back to the station. FDLE came. PBA and Attorney Frank were contacted. Everybody was in place and my son pled the Fifth. Lance [Yaeger] was irate. He was raising hell. He was mad. He demanded to speak to my son that night, even after pleading the Fifth and was not going to be told he wasn't going to speak to him."

After Deputy Litzkow remained on administrative duties after the shooting had been deemed lawful, Captain Butscher met with Colonel Chad Scott to ask why there was a delay. According to Captain Butscher, Colonel Scott told her, " The sheriff is not going to clear [Deputy Litzkow].

He didn't cooperate with the investigation…I can just tell you the sheriff's not going to release him. He's not going to release him back … to full duty until he talks to FDLE".

Captain Butscher opined that Major Yaeger was the driving force behind Deputy Litzkow remaining on administrative duties after the shooting incident was justified.

Captain Butscher advised that since Sheriff Watson had assumed control of the agency, none of the newly hired deputies had been sworn in or received an oath-of-office ceremony.

Captain Butscher was asked about the issue of how social media violations were to be handled as the topic was brought forth during the interview with Sergeant Kevin Davis. Captain Butscher said, " [I] have documentation from a meeting…social media violations would be dealt with. …First offense would be a corrective counseling and progressive from there."

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the recordings or the transcripts for the entire interview.

Sergeant Davis had received two notices of investigation. One notice identified ASO General Counsel (GC) Jacob Rush as the complainant; the other identified ASO Chief Inspector Captain Kelvin Jenkins as the complainant.

Sergeant Davis advised the investigation originated due to a social media post he made. About "two to three weeks" before Sergeant Davis was notified of the investigation, Sergeant Davis met with Colonel Chad Scott. Two days prior to the meeting with Colonel Scott, Sergeant Davis's supervisor told him that GC Counsel Rush had "complained" to Colonel Scott about the social media post. Colonel Scott did not bring up the topic of the social media post when he met with Sergeant Davis.

During his interview, Sergeant Davis indicated where the uncertainty originated, " *Kelvin Jenkins... said [to GC Rush], 'I cannot be listed as the complainant…I'm over OPS. You're [GC Rush] the complainant. You're the one bringing the complaint to us.' That's how the initial paperwork was completed. sheriff, they became upset and said, 'You're not supposed to be listed as the complainant.' So, they called Kelvin Jenkins in to have a meeting and then directed him, 'You're going to be the complainant.'"

On March 2, 2023, Attorney Frank and Sergeant Davis were at ASO reviewing the evidence obtained against him in his investigation. They were presented with a phone call made by OPS Sergeant Nancy Marzouk to Attorney Frank. The phone call was recorded without Attorney Frank's knowledge. Sergeant Davis and Attorney Frank both listened to the recorded call provided to them as evidence in the investigation. The recorded conversation involved establishing a time for the review of the evidence and to schedule an interview with Sergeant Davis and Attorney Frank.

At the conclusion of the evidence review, Attorney Frank noted several violations of the Officers' Bill of Rights, FSS 112.532 against Sergeant Davis. Attorney Frank also noted the illegally recorded phone call. Attorney Frank and Sergeant Davis left without providing an interview.

Sergeant Davis indicated the ASO has a double standard when delivering discipline. He provided an example indicating, " I'm aware that Undersheriff Joel DeCoursey specifically stated in a command staff meeting that any time there's a social media violation, if it's a first offense from the employee, that's a corrective counseling… You don't take somebody's equipment, their access for a two-day suspension." Sergeant Davis continued, "I filed a complaint through Internal Affairs against…Michelle Sherfield. She was brought in by Sheriff Clovis Watson…she previously worked with him... Her Facebook page identifies her as an employee of the sheriff's office. She specifically identifies herself, and then there was multiple posts that are racists, anti-White posts. So, I presented that to OPS in a complaint with the screenshots. It's the same kind of allegation. It's a social media violation. But it went to her direct supervisor, which is Sheriff Clovis Watson. The conclusion of that investigation was a corrective counseling on a sticky note."

Note: A review of Sherfield's disciplinary history by FDLE did not show any discipline.

Sergeant Davis indicated he had " *filed a complaint federally and at the state leve*l", which Sheriff Watson was aware of. This was later verified by FDLE through subpoena. Sergeant Davis first filed an Ethics Complaint against Sheriff Watson and the ASO on April 15, 2022. Sergeant Davis authored an EEOC complaint, which was received at the Tampa District Office on February 13, 2023. A civil discrimination suit (Case 2023-CA-0607) was additionally verified as being filed by Sergeant Davis on February 15, 2023, in the 8th Judicial Circuit against Sheriff Watson.

The complaint by Sergeant Davis against Sherfield is attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-59. The disciplinary file of Sherfield is attached as INV-49, "Subpoena 40", "Email regarding No Records for Michelle".

The Ethics Complaint, the EEOC complaint, and the civil suit by Sergeant Davis are attached as INV-53, "#14 Davis Case 2023-00010", "incident-397_files", "1st Amendment Protected", "EEOC Packet". Sergeant Davis's transcripts are attached as INV-14 and INV-15. The audio is attached as INV-65.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

Captain Jonathan Shabruch was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide his knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 19, 2023, and April 26, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Captain Shabruch. The interview was captured and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Captain Schabruch has been employed with the ASO for 18 ½ years serving in various positions during that time. One of his most recent assignments was overseeing the Office of Professional Standards (OPS) as the Chief Inspector. Captain Schabruch indicated he did not have previous experience in OPS.

Captain Schabruch verified that OPS was equipped with a room for interviews, and that room was able to be remotely monitored by video and audio.

Captain Schabruch was asked if he was ever directed, or if it was implied to him, to monitor any ASO employee in the interview room prior to their interview. Captain Schabruch replied the topic was never implied nor asked.

Captain Schabruch was asked if he was ever directed to change the results of any OPS investigation. Captain Schabruch said he was and explained an incident involving Sergeant Kevin Davis. The case was given to Inspector Kyle Salman who conducted an inquiry to determine if a complete investigation was needed. Inspector Salman reviewed the facts and determined the case could be closed without opening an investigation. Captain Schabruch submitted the findings to Sheriff Watson. The next day Captain Schabruch was called in to talk to Undersheriff DeCoursey who said he disagreed with the findings and ordered Captain Schabruch to conduct a full investigation. Captain Schabruch did not know why he was contacted by Undersheriff Decoursey when he sent the findings to Sheriff Watson. Undersheriff DeCoursey explained he watched the incident involving Sergeant Davis on YouTube and saw several violations. Captain Schabruch saw the same video, which was a " heavily edited YouTube video…from a 30-plus-minute body-worn camera." Captain Schabruch indicated he did not see any violations.

Although Inspector Salman completed his investigation and came to the same conclusion, Sergeant Davis received a written reprimand for not wearing his body-worn camera.

Captain Schabruch verified the order to open the investigation came after Sergeant Davis had filed a lawsuit against the ASO.

Captain Schabruch was asked if he was ever instructed to replace a tracking number or remove a file from OPS. Captain Schabruch replied, " I was told a tracking number that I pulled, or my office pulled, was invalid." Captain Schabruch clarified by saying there were two investigations that he was instructed to close without taking any further action. One involved Detention Deputy Cory Short (OPS #22-00121). Captain Schabruch received an email from Jail Major Robert Stafford to cancel the investigation per Undersheriff DeCoursey.

The second cancelled investigation involved Detention Sergeant Pam James. Sergeant James was investigated for insubordination. The investigation was completed and sent to Captain Schabruch. It found that Sergeant James had been insubordinate to Lieutenant Jamie Scott and Captain James "Matt" Beck. Captain Schabruch, in talking with Undersheriff DeCoursey, was told, " 'This is not an insubordination case' and [DeCoursey] told me that he knows what happened. And I asked him how he knew what happened. I knew he wasn't present when it happened, and the investigation had not been completed; so, he hadn't obviously read the investigation yet, but he said that he knows what happened. He cited cultural differences and said that African Americans and Caucasians communicate differently, and just because James raised her voice does not mean that she was insubordinate."

Captain Schabruch further indicated that Undersheriff DeCoursey told him, " [S]quash that investigation because Sergeant James had filed a lawsuit, and we don't need to add fuel to the fire." Captain Schabruch did as he was instructed and administratively closed the investigation.

Note: Sergeant James's disciplinary records were later subpoenaed by State Attorney Kramer, specifically, " Any and all records regarding current, previous or ongoing Administrative, Office of Professional Standards, Discipline, or Internal Affairs Investigations (including corrective counseling) for Sgt Pam James." The provided file of Sergeant James details her response to the complaint; however, the complaint is not listed, no findings were given, "N/A" is listed under the tracking number, and no audio or written witness statements were included. Captain Schabruch verified interviews were conducted. Additionally, the file has five Confidential Administrative Investigation Acknowledgement signed by witnesses.

Captain Schabruch additionally spoke of some concerns he had with the way ASO Deputy Carlton Litzkow's shooting case was handled. Deputy Litzkow was involved in a shooting while on duty. Captain Schabruch said, " During that time while [the investigation] was still open, I had multiple meetings, interactions mostly with the undersheriff where I was asked either on the phone or in person several times why Carlton had not testified and if he was going to testify. He was the shooter…I explained to the undersheriff on multiple occasions that he was afforded the same constitutional rights as every other citizen that we have that's in a criminal investigation, and that his attorney had advised him not to speak to law enforcement; and there was no intent, he was not going to testify as far as to FDLE, and that we, OPS, had completed our investigation and did not need his testimony as far as administrative investigation goes. So, there was just no need for it. But that was continually asked again and again and again: 'Has he testified yet? Is he going to testify?'"

The transcripts of Captain Schabruch's interviews are attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-19 and INV-39. Sergeant Davis's investigation is attached as INV-49, "Subpoena 25," "Davis, Kevin," "22-00081," "22-00108 incident-270-_files," "Disciplinary Action," "22-108 Final Report signed." The email cancelling the Deputy Cory Short investigation is attached as INV-63. Sergeant James' Investigation is attached as INV-49, " Subpoena 32", "James Pam".

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

Major (Retired) George Corwine was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide his knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 19, 2023, and April 26, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Major Corwine. The interview was captured and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Major Corwine retired from ASO in 2019 as a Captain. Major Corwine was rehired and brought back to ASO as a Major when Sheriff Watson was elected.

Major Corwine said there were numerous changes that occurred when Sheriff Watson became the head of the agency. These changes included the involuntary demotion of many command level personnel, including Major Latrell Simmons and Major David Clark to Captains. There were also numerous changes and transfers to other personnel within the ASO.

One of the administrative changes included changing the Office of Professional Standards (OPS) from reporting to the Sheriff to reporting to the Undersheriff. Major Corwine indicated there were numerous transfers and promotions that occurred under the direction of Sheriff Watson that Major Corwine deemed "negligent". This included moving individuals into specialized positions without any training or experience. It also included promoting individuals that Major Corwine felt were a liability to the ASO.

According to Major Corwine, Sheriff Watson would decide on he would promote just based upon a photograph of the candidate. Major Corwine was present when Sheriff Watson did this on one occasion. He testified, " [Sheriff Watson] asked his admin assistant to print out all the pictures of everybody on the list…And he literally picked up the list and went, 'That's who I want.' It was the correct pick in my opinion [Sergeant Monica Herrera], but how he arrived at that pick was completely inappropriate."

Major Corwine indicated he had a conversation with one of the previous Chief Inspectors of OPS, Captain Brandon Kutner, regarding an investigation conducted against Captain Simmons. Captain Kutner expressed his frustration to Major Corwine with Sheriff Watson and Undersheriff DeCoursey sending the investigation back to OPS because the investigation was not substantial enough to justify demoting Captain Simmons to a Lieutenant. Captain Kutner was directed to find something that would substantiate a demotion. Major Corwine indicated directing the outcome of an investigation was not normal or acceptable in his opinion.

During the first 6-7 months, Major Corwine worked closely with Sheriff Watson. In July, Undersheriff DeCoursey told Major Corwine that all communication with the Sheriff had to go through him (DeCoursey). When this happened, Major Corwine said, " [I] kind of felt like I was on a train going to a destination and said, 'I'm going to the wrong destination. I need to get off at the next stop.'"

Major Corwine indicated the staffing at ASO suffered because, " People started leaving because they didn't agree with the Sheriff's philosophy."

Major Corwine also said, " It's almost like -- it's like you don't question the boss. The loyalty is one direction. You give your loyalty to the Sheriff, and there's no expectation that the loyalty is back this way. And if you ever questioned or crossed that, you were whacked, if you will. And I say "whacked" as in you were either transferred somewhere or you were run off or you were terminated."

Sheriff Watson created mandates that caused officer safety issues according to Major Corwine. These included not allowing ASO assets to leave the county without Sheriff Watson's approval. " [Sheriff Watson] simply demanded that, in order for any asset to leave this county, that that sheriff that was requesting or that chief that was requesting the equipment called him first, which severely choked the response time." This was detrimental, especially on issues like the SWAT team or Helicopter support responding to urgent situations.

Another topic Major Corwine talked about was that discipline of employees was not administered fairly. He cited cases against Sergeant William "Frank" Williams and Sergeant Kevin Davis who were placed on administrative suspension for months over a social media post that were critical of ASO promotions. Major Corwine then referenced ASO Bureau Chief Michelle Sherfield. " [Michelle Sherfield] had posted some items on Facebook that could be seen by some folks as slanted to one racial side... That was brought to Watson's attention, and our understanding is that she was given a corrective counseling for that."

Major Corwine then referenced the demotion of Lieutenant Matt Yakubsin, saying, " The Sheriff seems to make decisions based on emotion quite a bit rather than…actual facts. The Sheriff demoted Matt Yakubsin from Lieutenant back to Sergeant for essentially liking a Facebook post. Let me back up. [Sheriff Watson] demoted him, but he ordered me to demote him. So, I had to call him and tell him, 'Hey, look, you're demoted because you liked a Facebook post…I was instructed by the Sheriff to demote him back to Sergeant; and the Sheriff had told me that, '[Yakubsin] liked that Facebook post, and I'm going to demote him.' "

Major Corwine reported hearing allegations that Sheriff Watson authorized the purchase of new ASO vehicles from a dealership (Gainesville Nissan) where Sheriff Watson's son worked. This was later found to be inaccurate based on subpoenas that were served at Gainesville Nissan.

Major Corwine worked closely with the Police Benevolent Association (PBA) and was a previous member of the PBA administration. As such, Major Corwine was very familiar with the Police Officers' Bill of Rights. Major Corwine indicated, " The Sheriff and the Undersheriff has continued to disregard Florida Statute 112 on numerous occasions…Personally, I believe they don't care." Major Corwine cited internal investigations against Captain Rebecca Butscher, Sergeant Davis, Lieutenant Glen Stanley, and Sergeant Williams.

The interviews with Major Corwine are attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-18 and INV-36. The subpoenas and results from Gainesville Nissan are Attached as INV-50.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

Captain (Retired) John Richman was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide his knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 19, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Captain Richman via video conference. The interview was captured and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Captain Richman worked for the ASO for over 22 years. He worked for Baker County Sheriff's Office for two years before that. During his time at ASO, Captain Richman served in various capacities including being the Chief Inspector for the Office of Professional Standards (OPS). Captain Richman was appointed to the Chief Inspector position about four months after Sheriff Watson took office, replacing Captain Todd Kelly.

Captain Richman indicated Sheriff Watson and Undersheriff Joel DeCoursey did not agree with how some of the disciplinary cases were handled or with the findings that were submitted. There were other times when Captain Richman was directed not to pursue discipline on a specific deputy (Cleveland Cox). Captain Richman said he was never directed to find a reason to fire or demote any of the ASO personnel.

Captain Richman felt there ethically questionable decisions that were made above his rank, which affected the outcome of investigations submitted by his office to the Undersheriff and Sheriff. Captain Richman specifically named the case involving Detention Deputy Camille Rowe. Deputy Rowe's case was delivered to Undersheriff DeCoursey and Sheriff Watson once it was finished. It was sent back to Captain Richman by Undersheriff DeCoursey for him to change the findings. Captain Richman refused, and the findings remained the same. However, it was recommended by Undersheriff DeCoursey that the discipline be less than mandated by policy and the disciplinary matrix. Sheriff Watson concurred, and Deputy Rowe received a written reprimand instead of being suspended for the required 10 days.

As a result, Captain Richman was transferred out of the position by order of Sheriff Watson after four months. It was Captain Richman's opinion that he was removed from his position as the Chief Inspector because he did not provide Sheriff Watson with the results the Sheriff anticipated. Captain Richman said, " I don't know what my purpose was at OPS other than to shut up and stay out of sight, basically. Obviously, I didn't give them the answers that they wanted to hear because I only lasted four months, then I was sent back to patrol."

Captain Richman advised the state of ASO after Sheriff Watson became the Sheriff, made the decision for Captain Richman to retire much easier for him. " The command staff was completely shut out with the new sheriff, and a lot of decisions were being made in a vacuum, and it really affected a lot of people. You know, as a captain in the sheriff's office, you think you have some…abilities to be…an agent for change and make the place better…even though I was a Captain, I was not part of the command staff because we weren't given any command control of the agency at all."

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT
INVESTIGATIVE REPORT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

ASO Major Dorian Keith was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide her knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 19, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Major Keith at the Office of the State Attorney for the 8th Judicial Circuit. The interview was recorded and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Major Keith has been with the ASO since 2000. She has spent her entire career in the jail facility starting as a Detention Officer and working through the ranks before attaining the rank of Major. At the time of the interview, Major Keith was the Director of the Jail.

Major Keith was asked about her knowledge of the investigation involving Sergeant Pam James. Major Keith advised she was "somewhat" familiar with the investigation, saying she was a Captain when she learned from Major Robert Stafford that an investigation had been opened on Sergeant James for insubordination. Sergeant James did not work for Major Keith so her involvement in the investigation was limited. Major Stafford told Major Keith that Sergeant James had been insubordinate by being loud. Major Keith laughed and told Major Stafford that Sergeant James was always loud.

Major Keith indicated Major Stafford knew that Sergeant James had a pending lawsuit against ASO. Major Keith also believed that Major Stafford may not have felt insubordination was the most proper charge and that conduct unbecoming was more in line with Sergeant James' actions.

Major Keith was promoted to Major shortly after learning about the investigation because Major Stafford left ASO. Major Keith needed to meet with Sergeant James and learned she (Sergeant James) was in the Office of Professional Standards (OPS) because she was scheduled to provide her statement in the investigation. Major Keith thought that was odd since statements were always obtained in "security" if the investigation was done at the division level and not conducted by OPS.

Major Keith called OPS Captain Jon Schabruch and inquired why Sergeant James was being interviewed in OPS instead of in security. Captain Schabruch was unsure but researched it before getting back with Major Keith. Captain Schabruch agreed it was the first time he was aware of a division-level interview occurring in OPS. Major Keith did not want to interfere with the interview since it was already happening, so she did not interject anything further.

Major Keith later talked to Captain Schabruch, telling him that Sergeant James would “feel some type of way” since she was interviewed in OPS when no one else had been.

Major Keith reported that Lieutenant Jamie Scott, who was conducting the investigation into Sergeant James, was seen hanging out with OPS Lieutenant Kyle Salman and opined that Lieutenant Scott was “trying to control the outcome of the narrative.”

Note: Captain Schabruch indicated in his interview (IR#12) that Lieutenant Jamie Scott asked for OPS assistance and to be able to use the OPS interview room for convenience. Lieutenant Scott said in her interview she asked for assistance from Lieutenant Salman because she was not comfortable with the internal investigation process, which is why Sergeant James was interviewed in OPS. OPS Sergeant Peter King said in his interview, “…[T]he lieutenant [Jamie Scott] that was conducting that investigation…wasn't very familiar with the process…she would come up to... OPS and got with Lieutenant Salman because he was from the jail side, and he was in OPS…So, she came up and talked to him to get like guidance on how to do the investigation and stuff like that.”

Major Keith talked to Undersheriff DeCoursey about her feelings on Sergeant James' investigation. Major Keith later learned that Sergeant James had the charge of insubordination changed to conduct unbecoming.

Note: All records received from ASO indicate that Sergeant James' investigation was nullified and that she was not disciplined.

The interview with Major Keith is attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-25. Sergeant James’ Investigation is attached as INV-49, “ Subpoena 32”, “James Pam”.

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

ASO Lieutenant (Retired) David Tuck was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide his knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 19, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Lieutenant Tuck at the Office of the State Attorney for the 8th Judicial Circuit. The interview was recorded and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters. Lieutenant Tuck was represented by Attorney Stephanie Webster during the interview.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Lieutenant Tuck worked for ASO for over 25 years and served in various capacities during his tenure before retiring. Lieutenant Tuck was active with the Police Benevolent Association (PBA) and has been employed with them for the last two years. Due to his PBA experience, Lieutenant Tuck was familiar with Florida State Statute 112.532, the Law Enforcement and Correctional Officers' Bill of Rights.

Lieutenant Tuck brought up several instances where he believed FSS 112.532 was intentionally violated by Sheriff Watson and other members of the ASO. Lieutenant Tuck referred to the case against Deputy Nicholas Vickers, who was investigated for an off-duty incident where he euthanized two feral cats on his property in an adjacent county. The OPS investigation was for criminal conduct, which was not sustained by Captain Steve Maynard, Major Scott, and Undersheriff DeCoursey. However, Undersheriff DeCoursey determined Deputy Vickers' conduct was "unfavorable" and gave him two days off without pay. Deputy Vickers was not investigated for unfavorable conduct and was not allowed to contest against it.

Lieutenant Tuck said, "They sustained it simply on the fact that they believed this was going to be embarrassing to the sheriff's office with no other violation... There were additional charges after the fact. It was never investigated as such. He was never asked any questions such as, 'Do you feel this is an embarrassment to the agency?'"

Lieutenant Tuck next brought up the OPS investigation against Lieutenant Glen Stanley. Lieutenant Stanley was interviewed in an investigation against Detention Officer Erica Hollingsworth. Officer Hollingsworth alleged Lieutenant Stanley lied when answering a question about her investigation. OPS Inspector Lieutenant Scott Anderson conducted the Stanley investigation (22-00187) and determined the allegation of untruthfulness was unfounded. Chief Inspector Kelvin Jenkins, Captain James Beck, and Colonel Chad Scott all concurred with the findings. Major Dorian Keith disagreed, saying that because Lieutenant Stanley misunderstood a question, he was untruthful for not asking for clarification. The untruthfulness was initially sustained against Lieutenant Stanley; however, a review of Lieutenant Stanley's discipline from ASO after his Loudermill Hearing determined the charge was changed from untruthfulness to a lesser violation of neglect of duty. The 12-month probation sentence was dropped, but the one-day suspension was upheld, and his promotional probation was extended.

The investigation into Captain Latrell Simmons was the next 112.532 violation Lieutenant Tuck referenced. " What they sustained against him (Captain Simmons) was not seeking permission of the chain of command to do what he did when it was absolutely not required by policy, and they sustained the performance of duty based on that." It was Lieutenant Tuck's opinion that Sheriff Watson and Undersheriff DeCoursey wanted Captain Simmons demoted, saying, "It was apparent that they were coming after him (Simmons)."

Lieutenant Tuck also mentioned investigations that were currently ongoing, in which violations of 112.532 were occurring. They included the investigations into ASO Sergeant William "Frank" Williams and ASO Captain Rebecca Butscher.

Lieutenant Tuck brought up his belief that his meetings with some of the ASO members he represented were illegally monitored while they reviewed the evidence against them obtained by the Office of Professional Standards (OPS). Lieutenant Tuck spoke of an incident where he, PBA Representative Chris Dennison, and Deputy Morris-Brown were reviewing evidence in an internal case. Dennison commented on how hot it was in the room. Lieutenant Tuck testified, " Within 10 or 15 seconds there was a knock on the door... it was Captain Brandon Kutner with three bottles of water… I found that very odd at the time."

Lieutenant Tuck said it got to the point that during later interviews the OPS Inspectors would disable the cameras within the interview rooms to ensure the deputies and their representatives had privacy. Lieutenant Tuck testified, "What I was told was, you're being monitored; it shouldn't happen. It's happening, and we're doing this to protect you and your conversations."

Lastly, Lieutenant Tuck reported that Sheriff Watson possibly violated public records law by failing to allow an application be placed on his agency-issued work phone which automatically documents each call and text sent and received to and from the device.

Lieutenant Tuck provided several documents during his interview.

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

ASO Captain (Retired) Todd Kelly was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide his knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 19, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Captain Kelly at the Office of the State Attorney for the 8th Judicial Circuit. The interview was recorded and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters.

Captain Kelly retired from ASO in 2021 after serving for 24 years in law enforcement. Captain Kelly's combined time included ASO, Lake City Police Department, and Brevard County Sheriff's Office. During his tenure at ASO, he worked his way through the ranks of Sergeant, Lieutenant, and Captain. He was a detective and he also served in the Office of Professional Standards (OPS).

Captain Kelly was the Chief Inspector in OPS when Sheriff Watson took over as head of ASO. He was there for less than four months before being transferred out.

During his subpoenaed testimony, Captain Kelly verified his office had a television, which allowed him to monitor conversations in the OPS interview room by turning the volume up on the live feed. He indicated he was not aware of anyone monitoring privileged conversations while he oversaw OPS. Captain Kelly indicated there was also a common viewing area within OPS that had the capability to monitor the interview room visually and audibly, but he was not aware of that ever occurring.

Captain Kelly said he was never directed to reach a specific outcome in any of the internal investigations that took place during his time in OPS.

Captain Kelly advised he was never directed to prevent any FDLE mandated reporting cases (moral character violations) from being sent to FDLE.

Captain Kelly was not aware of anything illegal occurring within ASO, although he felt there were decisions made by Sheriff Watson and his new administration that Captain Kelly considered to be " bad ideas or bad decisions."

Captain Kelly indicated his decision to retire from ASO was influenced by Sheriff Watson's leadership of the agency, saying, "[M]y initial impressions of what that working relationship would be like didn't necessarily align with my personal... goals or objectives…what I saw going forward as a path, I didn't see that being necessarily a relationship that I wanted to be in."

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

ASO Bureau Chief (Retired) Diana Jacobs was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide her knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 26, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Jacobs at the Office of the State Attorney for the 8th Judicial Circuit. The interview was recorded and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Jacobs retired from ASO in 2021 after serving for 30 years. During her time there she served in various positions including 911 dispatcher, supervisor, fleet manger, risk supervisor, and bureau chief. She worked for six different administrations in ASO but viewed her interactions with Sheriff Watson as " very hostile in nature," saying, "[Sheriff Watson and I] had a lot of conflict. He didn't like what I had to say ."

While she could not point out anything that was criminal, some of the conflicts Jacobs encountered was Sheriff Watson not wanting outgoing Sheriff Sadie Darnell's picture on the wall with all previous Alachua County Sheriffs. Another issue included Sheriff Watson directing Jacobs to have one wall painted 13 different times within a short timeframe. Jacobs said there were requests made by Sheriff Watson for items that were either not budgeted, or above the cost of what would normally be paid. This included high end custom-ordered vehicles for both Sheriff Watson and Undersheriff DeCoursey. Another fiscally questionable incident involved Sheriff Watson demanding that the new uniform vests for the ASO deputies be replaced because of the words "Deputy Sheriff" being on them. Jacobs reported that Sheriff Watson said he was the only Sheriff and wanted "Sheriff" removed from the new uniform covers.

Jacobs referenced an incident for signage that was ordered prior to Sheriff Watson assuming his position as Sheriff. When the signs arrived, Sheriff Watson was “visibly angry” and accused Jacobs of “disrespecting him” for moving forward with the project.

When Sheriff Watson took over ASO, one of the first things he changed was to get a new fuel provider for the department. Lewis Oil had been the provider for ASO due to them being local. Jacobs reported that Sheriff Watson demanded the change to a different provider because Lewis Oil supported Sheriff Darnell’s campaign. Sheriff Watson said that Lewis Oil should have had a different (candidate) sign if they wanted to keep the ASO fuel contract.

There were other problems that Jacobs encountered with Sheriff Watson, although there was nothing she felt illegal.

A copy of the interview with Jacobs is attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-35.

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

ASO Lieutenant Scott Anderson was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide his knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 20, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Lieutenant Anderson at the Office of the State Attorney for the 8th Judicial Circuit. The interview was recorded and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters. Attorney Stephen Webster represented Lieutenant Anderson.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Lieutenant Anderson started in law enforcement in 1998 with the University of Florida Police Department. He moved to ASO in November of 1999 and has served in various roles. He spent several years in the Office of Professional Standards and was a current member of OPS at the time of the interview.

Lieutenant Anderson was asked if he was aware of anyone within ASO being solicited to commit perjury. He described an incident that occurred the previous week involving the OPS investigation on Sergeant William "Frank" Williams.

Lieutenant Anderson testified that an affidavit was drafted by General Counsel Rush on April 17, 2023, in response to a Writ of Mandamus and Injunctive Relief filed by Attorney Bobi Frank on Sergeant Williams' behalf. The affidavit was emailed to Inspector Calhoun for him to sign. Inspector Calhoun did not agree with what was written in the affidavit. Specifically, section nine of the affidavit indicated that Inspector Calhoun did not interview Chief Inspector Kelvin Jenkins, who was listed as the complainant on one of Sergeant Williams' notice of administrative investigation forms because " Chief Inspector Jenkins…had no unique information regarding [Sergeant Williams'] conduct." The affidavit further stated that General Counsel Rush, who was listed as the complainant on the other notice of administrative investigation form, "[H]ad no witness material to add." Lieutenant Anderson indicated the facts of the affidavit were not true and if Inspector Calhoun signed it, he would have been perjuring himself.

Inspector Calhoun sought the advice of Lieutenant Anderson, who had much more experience in OPS than Inspector Calhoun.

With assistance from Lieutenant Anderson, Inspector Calhoun provided a corrected statement to General Counsel Rush indicating section nine of the affidavit should be changed to read: "I [Inspector Calhoun] received the initial evidence from Chief Inspector Kelvin Jenkins who advised he received information from the Office of the Sheriff, requesting an investigation into [Sergeant Williams'] conduct." The corrected statement also verified that Inspector Calhoun did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins "[B]ased on adequate information he [Jenkins] provided to me to begin an investigation."

Lieutenant Anderson advised it was clear to him that Attorney Rush and Undersheriff Joel DeCoursey were unfamiliar with the nuances and guidelines of how internal investigations worked, along what was permitted and what was not. Lieutenant Anderson indicated there was also an issue with the command staff failing to understand the differentiation between what could be done in an administrative investigation compared to a criminal investigation.

Lieutenant Anderson talked with Chief Inspector Jenkins regularly after Chief Inspector Jenkins met with Attorney Rush and Undersheriff DeCoursey. Lieutenant Anderson testified, " Captain [Jenkins] will have meetings with Decoursey and Jake Rush. …he'll [Jenkins]…say,'I went to the meeting yesterday, and this is what happened' …and I fall over and say, 'We can't do this. You can't do this. You can't do this. That's illegal. You can't do this.' It's almost daily that that happened. …I express these things to Kelvin [Jenkins]. He goes to another meeting, and I kind of wait to hear…are we going to change our mind on any of this. And almost 100 percent of the time the course remains the same no matter what I say."

Lieutenant Anderson described incidents where violations of Florida Statute 112.532, The Law Enforcement and Correctional Officers' Bill of Rights, occurred during OPS investigations. Some of the violations OPS was able to correct, others were not. Lieutenant Anderson referred to OPS cases against Sergeant Williams and Sergeant Kevin Davis as two of the cases that were not able to be cured.

Sergeant Davis's OPS case that was opened on January 23, 2023. Sergeant Davis was represented by Attorney Frank. Attorney Frank spoke on the phone with OPS Inspector Sergeant Nancy Marzouk regarding Sergeant Davis' investigation.

Attorney Frank alleged that Sergeant Marzouk recorded the call without notifying Attorney Frank she was being recorded. The recording was placed into the OPS investigative file. Attorney Frank brought the illegality of the recording to light after discovering it was in Sergeant Davis' OPS file. This resulted in Sergeant Marzouk being removed from the investigation and disciplined. Inspector Virgil Calhoun replaced Sergeant Marzouk as the primary investigator.
Lieutenant Scott Anderson verified that Captain Jenkins relayed information from General Counsel Rush stating Sergeant Marzouk's work was a "draft" and, " All we need to do is delete it."

Inspector Anderson stated, " We have evidence that Nancy [Marzouk] gathered, these interviews that she did… This is coming from Kelvin Jenkins, but they said, 'Oh, no, you absolutely don't need to provide that [the recording].' …What are we supposed to do with it? And we were told, 'Just delete it.'"

FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

Previous ASO Lieutenant Kyle Salman was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide his knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO. Although the subpoena was not received by Lieutenant Salman, he was aware of its existence and was granted the immunities and benefits of the subpoena.

On April 20, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Lieutenant Salman at the Office of the State Attorney for the 8th Judicial Circuit. The interview was recorded and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Lieutenant Salman was dual certified as both a law enforcement and correctional officer with ASO. He began working there in 2008 and served in the Office of Professional Standards (OPS) on two different occasions as an Inspector.

Lieutenant Salman's wife began a job in Jacksonville in 2010 causing him to travel between there and Alachua County. Even with the extended drive, Lieutenant Salman described his job at ASO by saying, "[The] Alachua County Sheriff's Office was an agency that just fit me very well, and honestly, I was successful there. I got promoted twice. I felt like the ethics aligned with mine, and all my friends worked there, and it's just where I wanted to work." However, once Sheriff Watson and his administration took over ASO, Lieutenant Salman did not enjoy the job like he had in the past, which resulted in him resigning from ASO. Lieutenant Salman indicated the decision was based on Sheriff Watson and his administration.

Lieutenant Salman was in OPS during the investigation against Detention Sergeant Pam James for insubordination. Lieutenant Salman indicated that he was advised to assist jail Lieutenant Jamie Scott during her investigative process on Sergeant James since Lieutenant Scott was unfamiliar with internal investigations. According to Lieutenant Salman, once the investigation was completed and submitted, it was cancelled by Undersheriff Joel DeCoursey.

There were other investigations completed by Lieutenant Salman where he was directed to "dig further," only to come to the same conclusion he originally found. He said he was never told to sustain any specific charges, but there was a case against Lieutenant Howard Adams, which was later changed after being completed by Lieutenant Salman. Lieutenant Salman completed the investigation, sustaining two of the three violations against Lieutenant Adams, which Chief Inspector Brandon Kutner agreed with.

Note: The investigation was sent back to Captain Kutner, who was ordered to amend the findings of Lieutenant Salman. The investigation resulted in the termination of Lieutenant Adams.

Lieutenant Salman was transferred out of OPS about one month before resigning from ASO. He felt the transfer was a "punishment" for the investigation he completed against Lieutenant Adams, saying "I considered it a punishment considering, especially, that I was the senior lieutenant in the department. Why is the senior lieutenant, the guy with the most experience, being sent to night shift like that? And I found out I was going to night shift because an agency-wide email was sent out telling everybody I was going to night shift."

There were several other issues Lieutenant Salman did not agree with ethically that he discussed during his interview that were not criminal in nature, although he indicated they were catalysts for his decision to resign from ASO.

Lieutenant Salman's transcript is attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-30. The investigation on Lieutenant Adams is attached as INV-49, "Subpoena 10, PO 21-153".

On February 15, 2023, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) Office of Executive Investigations (OEI) was requested to conduct a criminal investigation into allegations that Alachua County Sheriff Clovis Watson was using his position as a public officer to influence, direct, and intimidate employees under his control in order to harass or retaliate against other Alachua County Sheriff's Office (ASO) employees.

ASO Captain Stephen Maynard was subpoenaed by the State Attorney's Office for the 8th Judicial Circuit to provide his knowledge of any potential criminal activity occurring within the ASO.

On April 26, 2023, 8th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Brian Kramer, OEI Inspector David Snowden, and OEI Inspector Keith Riddick conducted a sworn interview with Captain Maynard at the Office of the State Attorney for the 8th Judicial Circuit. The interview was recorded and transcribed by Certified Stenographic Reporter Cynthia Leverett from Nature Coast Reporters.

The following is a summary of the interview and is not all inclusive. Refer to the official transcripts for the entire interview.

Captain Maynard had been with ASO for 27 years where he has served in various capacities. His current position is supervising both the civil and criminal courthouses, the training bureau, and the warrants bureau.

Because Captain Maynard oversaw the courts for ASO, he was aware of the staffing shortages that necessitated hiring overtime. Deputy Travis DeVinny was one of the deputies that regularly volunteered to work there. According to Captain Maynard, Deputy DeVinny routinely worked there two to four extra shifts per month.

Captain Maynard reported to Major Lance Yaeger. In early March of 2023, Major Yaeger called Captain Maynard into his office and directed him not to allow Deputy DeVinny to work overtime at the courthouse. Captain Maynard asked what was preventing Deputy DeVinny from working at the courthouse. Major Yaeger reportedly said, "Travis is a cancer here at this agency, and I don't want that cancer to infect other employees in the courthouse." Captain Maynard told Major Yaeger he was not comfortable doing that without justification and asked what he was to tell Deputy DeVinny. Major Yaeger instructed Captain Maynard not to tell Deputy DeVinny anything, just make sure he was not scheduled for any overtime. Captain Maynard told Major Yaeger to be careful because preventing a deputy from working overtime could be very problematic and unethical.

Captain Maynard told his scheduling lieutenant what he had been directed. The issue got back to Deputy DeVinny who lodged a complaint against Major Yaeger. Ultimately, Deputy DeVinny was not prevented from working at the courthouse.

Captain Maynard testified he was also a witness to the disciplinary actions against Captain Rebecca Butscher by Major Yaeger. Captain Maynard heard a rumor that there was the possibility of the investigation based upon Captain Butscher's "tone and demeanor". Major Yaeger verified this when he approached Captain Maynard telling him he was going to conduct an administrative investigation on Captain Butscher and asked for Captain Maynard to be present while the administrative paperwork was delivered to Captain Butscher.

Captain Maynard did not think this was a good idea for several reasons and decided to meet with Major Yaeger over lunch to discuss his thoughts with him. After listening to Captain Maynard, Major Yaeger indicated he was going to continue with the investigation and still wanted Captain Maynard to be present when Captain Butscher was served with the paperwork.

Captain Maynard did as he was instructed and sat in while the paperwork was given to Captain Butscher. According to Captain Maynard, Major Yaeger was visibly nervous and ambiguous in his instructions.

Captain Maynard's transcript is attached to the related items section of the case file as INV-40.

(INTERVIEW OF SHERRY FRENCH, # EI-14-0186, 02/24/23)

(The following may contain unintelligible or misunderstood words due to the recording quality.)

SF = SHERRY FRENCH DS = INSPECTOR DAVE SNOWDEN
KR = KEITH RIDDICK BF = BOBI FRANK

DS: Today's date is March 9th. Uh, the time is currently 9:27 in the morning. I'm Inspector Dave Snowden of the Office of Executive Investigations. Also present at this time is Keith Riddick and attorney Bobi Frank. We're at the Law Office of Bobi Frank. I'll be questioning Sherry French as a witness in an official FDLE investigation. Case number is EI-14-0186. I am the Inspector in Charge of this investigation. Uh, prior to beginning of the interview, you should be aware of the following: that this interview is being recorded. As a sworn law enforcement officer, I am empowered to administer oath and take statements. In a moment, I'll be taking a sworn statement from you. You'll be under oath. And if you knowingly provide false statements, you can be criminally charged with perjury. You understand each of the above items?

SF: I do.

DS: Please, raise your right hand. Do you swear, or affirm, the testimony you're gonna provide to be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth so help you God?

SF: I do.

DS: Okay. Um, your full name?

SF: Sherry Lynn French.

DS: And you are currently employed where?

SF: The Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

DS: And in what capacity?

SF: I'm a lieutenant in the Civil Bureau.

DS: And how long have you worked there?

SF: Twenty-seven years.

DS: Okay. And, um, this is the second interview that we've conducted with you. And in the first interview, I read the, uh, letter of immunity, um, that's still, uh, applies in -- in the case that -- that we are, uh, recording today. Um, so when we talked to you last time, uh, you spoke about the -- the iRecord system and iPro. Tell us a little bit about that, how it works, um, and then I'll ask you specific questions regarding that.

SF: Okay. iRecord itself is a system that was put in place for there to be -- it's used in a couple different capacities within the agency. But within the Office of Professional Standards, it is set up in a room maybe about the size of this room that we're in actually. Um, there's two cameras, um, and what happens is there's -- on the TV outside there's the ability for when an interview's being conducted for other inspectors to watch.

That way, if something happens and they catch something that somebody in the room doesn't catch, we typically text and say, hey, ask this, ask that, whatever. So you can watch it and -- and see everything. And that's also the TV where the computer is attached and it -- you hit record to record what's happening in a room. Aside from the TV monitor where you can watch -- you hit the record, you stop, you burn DVDs for people where the computer is on the TV. There is a livestream function where anybody who is within the system that's we -- it's called -- I think we even called it just OPS. Within iRecord, you can livestream on your computer.

So you can sign in like web-based and you can -- you can't function. Like, you can't make it record or do anything. But it's set up so that you can watch it livestream. You can listen to what's happening and then you can go back in and you can just, like, name 'em just basic stuff. Um, within the Office of Professional Standards the one that's set up, it's just set up as the inspectors that are in there. So it would be the captain, um, the inspectors and the administrative assistant doesn't even have access to that one. It's just within the Office of Professional Standards. Um, and so we'd like -- within the other bureaus, they're using 'em in a different capacity. I'm not exactly versed on how they're using 'em. Um, it's very similar, but I don't know specifically because I've not been in those bureaus to see how they're used. But iRecord is something that's -- it's used in at least two places within the agency in a similar function.

DS: And the logons are all tracked and recorded? Or do you know that information?

SF: I would have to assume that the logons are all tracked and recorded. Um, I tried to actually -- when -- when some of this stuff was happening and -- and things were starting to -- to come to light and I had met with attorney Frank, um, I tried to go in under the admin password and find login history. And I couldn't find it. So I'm sure is something probably on the back end that the iRecord people would probably have to be able to track. But I mean, when you login to the system, you're logging in with your password. So you -- there would be a specific way to -- to see that each one of us signed in to the system on -- on the computer version.

DS: And you -- you said that you tried to login using an admin. Who -- who are administrators in the system?

SF: So the admin password was set up and when we initially moved into that building, uh, the captain knew the admin password. I knew the admin password. And I think, um, Lieutenant Rhodenizer at the time knew the admin password simply because we had to go in, like, if we wanted to remove people, add people, whatever else. Um, I don't know if any of the other guys knew the admin password. But all that that did was allowed you to go into the back end to add, remove people, to change the settings. When we logged in otherwise, we logged in with our own username and our own password.

So, like, when we log in on the computer, you -- you have to log in with your user name and your password. I don't know that even the computer would allow -- actually it did 'cause I tried that. Um, yeah, 'cause I tried it just to find the -- if there was a login record. But for the most part, you should be signing in. But even still, even if somebody were to sign in under the admin password, you're gonna be able to see it on the computer side. So, like, even when I signed in that day trying to find the login, there's gotta be a way to track it from the computer that I logged in on side of it. Everything's tracked. Like, it's the digital world we're in. I -- I wouldn't believe that it's not.

DS: So you -- you don't know if it would come back if you logged in under an admin, if it would be a, um, come back to a specific computer?

SF: It should.

DS: Okay.

SF: Yeah. So, like, for example, let's just say for argument's sake that Captain Kutner that day, that he -- the least two days that he was logging in. Let's just say for example he logged in under the admin password --

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: -- which I can't imagine that he would have. He should've used his own user name and his own password. Um, there would still be a way to track that he logged in on that computer --

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: -- on that day. Because that's one of things that we do with just basic investigations is we log in and we see on the computers, you know, we -- one of the cases I had was a guy who was logging in and going into David and -- and checking, you know, links and doing all these things. At 2:00 in the morning. He was a dayshift guy. There was no reason for him to be logging in that time in the morning to check those things.

So that was our IT that checked that. So there should still be a record of that. I -- and I don't know how long it -- it gets maintained. I know they maintain our drives for a minimum of, like, I was just told six to eight months of things that are in our drives that we -- that we do when somebody leaves. But the logon stuff, I don't know exactly how long it would take to go back and get that. But I can't imagine that they're getting rid of that stuff. It -- I think --

KR: You say our drives. You talking about officer --

SF: So, like, what -- what we call our personal drive is a K: drive.

KR: Okay.

SF: So when I save anything that I'm doing, all the -- the basic stuff that goes into my Outlook. It's called my K: drive. Um, we had an instance where we had someone who -- well, actually I think I asked and was told the example of when, um, Captain Kutner left. We were looking for something. And I asked our IT director. I said, "How long do you maintain our drives if we needed to go back and find something on there that he doesn't have?" And he said, "Usually at least six months. And then they put 'em somewhere else." Um, and he -- he -- if I remember exactly what he said, they basically keep 'em in the forefront for, like, six or so months. And then they put 'em somewhere where they still kinda keep 'em I don't know for how long. So I can't imagine that all of that stuff is not still trackable that when the computer that Captain Kutner had that was assigned to just him --

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: -- logged in to iRecord on his computer. I can't imagine they wouldn't still be able to go back and find that. Because I also would -- would almost assume that some of that is still trackable by iRecord as well.

KR: Tell me about iRecord. Is it web-based or is it cloud-based or it -- 'cause you -- you talk about the iRecord people. What -- I'm -- I'm assuming just by, like, most databases nowadays, is it just maintained by them? Or is it -- or is it actually physically possessed by them as far as --

SF: I am --

KR: -- where the data's kept and --

SF: I am not exactly sure whether or not we're putting that information on a server or whether or not they're maintaining that and it's cloud-based. I know that the application that I sign into appears to be -- to be web-based. Um, but as far as who maintains -- like, we -- we have a server for it or whether or not it's cloud-based, I don't know the answer to that.

KR: So when you log into it, you go to Internet Explorer or Chrome or something like that --

SF: Right.

KR: -- there's a --

SF: There's a web address.

KR: A log in?

SF: You put it in and then you sign in with your user name and your password.

KR: Okay.

SF: Uh-huh.

DS: If -- if somebody's watching but not recording, would -- would that be logged that they're logged in?

SF: It would -- it would -- they have to --

DS: -- but --

SF: -- 'cause you can't get into the system. You can't get in without logging in. So you -- like when I pull up my computer, if I'm sitting there and I wanted to watch something that was --

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: -- going on in there or, you know, like, record it or -- or whatever, the only way that I'm gonna be able to watch it and do anything recording it was on the computer with the TV. Just to watch it, to name videos, just very little stuff. I -- I literally only sat there and watched a couple times when an interview was happening at my computer only because I wanted to have the earphones.

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: Because the room didn't have a lot of insulation when they put up the walls. And so sometimes when we were sitting trying to watch through the TV, I was worried because you could just faintly hear when an interview was happening. You could kinda hear the mumbling of words. So I didn't wanna turn the TV up real loud. So a couple times when there was an interview, I would sit at my computer and watch the interview from my computer just so that I could wear earphones. But I had to login to what -- what pulled up as the iRecord page. I had to put in my username and my password --

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: -- to login to it.

DS: But it wouldn't -- there would be no record of who you were watching if it wasn't recording?

SF: No. Yes and no. The only way that I think that may be possible is if we went in afterwards and titled them as to which interview it was, there may be a way to track because of the date 'cause we don't do a bunch of 'em.

DS: What -- what -- so if -- if there was going to be a, um, attorney came in with one of the deputies and they were gonna review evidence and say that somebody turned on the -- that didn't turn on the record but was in there --

SF: Watching.

DS: -- monitoring what they were doing. Um, is it -- did IA keep track of when these certain events happened? Like, would they keep track of, uh, deputy Smith came in with the attorney?

SF: Yes.

DS: Okay.

SF: So -- so here's what -- here's what I think you're basically wanting to confirm that you -- there would be a way to tell without a doubt that somebody livestreamed, or watched, a specific interview with, like, for example, the ones that happened with attorney Frank. So -- or the reps on the other one. We -- when I was there, we didn't do more than one interview a day. A lot of times, we didn't do more than one interview a week. It just depended on what was happening. So there would be multiple ways to go back and show that when somebody logged in and was livestreaming, or watching something that was going on that day, there is without a doubt, no doubt, who was in that interview room because we kept track of who was in the interview rooms.

We kept track of who was being interviewed because we knew which cases were what. And there would be nobody else that it could've been confused with, much less if, like, we went in and we logged after the interview was over, we logged whose interview it was, that would be maintained with the iRecord video. So there would be a way to connect the dots with that because you wouldn't be able to say on November the 10th, like when we did Latrell Simmons' interview, you wouldn't be able to say that on November the 10th if somebody logged in and was watching Latrell's interview, you wouldn't be able to say that anybody else -- they were watching anybody else's because of that.

DS: Do you --

SF: And they sign into the jail log when they get there.

DS: Okay. Do you know if the -- the suite -- anybody in the suite, the sheriff, the undersheriff, anybody in there, has access to viewing rights?

SF: I don't know if they ultimately have access. But what I do know is that when you logged into the one that was just setup in OPS, there was nobody else's name but the OPS inspectors.

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: So I -- I don't know enough about the backend of that to know whether or not they could've logged in and watched it themselves. I wouldn't think that they could because their name wasn't attached to the profile for the OPS iRecord.

DS: Would Sherry French, going in as administrator, have to login Sherry French admin password? Or would it be admin -- admin password?

SF: It's -- it's -- so if you -- when I logged in, it was either Sherry French and my password or the admin password was admin and the password was -- it was admin.

DS: So some --

SF: I mean, it was real secure.

DS: -- what -- so they -- so if somebody else had access that you weren't aware of, somebody could login admin and password?

SF: Admin -- oh, yeah, somebody could've logged in admin admin and viewed it. Hm. Yeah.

DS: So that --

SF: Absolutely they could have.

DS: So that specific name, um, you know, like deputy Ryan Smith wouldn't have to be in the system. He -- they could do it as an admin.

SF: You could login as admin admin.

DS: If you had that function on your computer, that -- the, uh, iRecord?

SF: Right, right.

DS: Okay.

SF: That's -- that's -- that may be absolutely possible.

DS: Okay.

SF: That if they'd had been told admin admin and the way iRecord was setup that they could've logged into the link and they could've used the admin password and viewed anything.

DS: Okay.

SF: I mean, it would still be able to be tracked on their computer. You would know that they logged into iRecord.

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: But and -- and I'm sure iRecord has a log of who logs into their system and they'd be able to see the IP address that logged in. But yeah, I never even thought about the fact that if we would -- somebody would've given somebody the admin username and admin password that they could've logged in to watch it as well.

KR: As far as you know, is it still admin admin?

SF: As far as I know.

DS: But you wouldn't have access now because of your current position?

SF: Oh, I'm -- if it's still admin admin, I could login I'm sure.

DS: So you have the iRecord on your --

SF: The link?

DS: Okay.

SF: I still have the link on my computer.

DS: Okay.

SF: I can check it. I actually brought the computer. It's in the car. I can check that if you want me to.

KR: Well, and the link itself is nothing but a web address --

SF: Right.

KR: -- right?

SF: Correct.

KR: So really all you -- it's not like you have a -- a portal that you have to --

SF: Right.

KR: -- go to --

SF: Right.

KR: -- a --

SF: Because, like, for example, I don't have access to the OPS portal and the M: drive anymore because they removed it when I was removed from OPS.

KR: Uh-huh.

SF: But, yes, the link is still just a link to iRecord. And if the -- if the password's still admin admin, then, in theory, I could actually still login and see.

DS: Other agencies use iRecord, correct?

SF: To my knowledge, yes. I don't know which ones. But I know that other agencies use it.

DS: So did -- did the iRecord that you log into, the -- the site, is that link directly to your sheriff's office?

SF: Yes. I would say that they probably don't have backend permissions for me to, like, login admin admin and see anybody else's videos. I would say it's specific to our agency. But, you know, here's the other thing that's -- that is something that I don't know about the back end of it. Even when I logged in admin admin, I still only saw OPS stuff.

DS: Okay.

SF: So I don't know -- so it's not like I could log -- log in with the admin admin and see what was going on in criminal investigations. It still just only gave me permission because I think the way the back end was setup --

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: -- I think that it was setup by design so that, you know, vice versa, whatever their pass -- even if they have admin admin, I don't think they can see the OPS stuff. So actually I don't know. Maybe -- maybe somebody can't unless their computer is set up in the way that it needs to be set up. Because I know I couldn't see criminal investigation stuff.

DS: Okay. The, um, were -- you were aware any actual recordings that were made involving attorney Frank?

SF: The only recording was when we actually went forward with the interview. So there was not a -- or at least, I didn't have it. There was not a mechanism to record from within the web-based portal on the computer. I don't know if Captain Kutner had different privileges than I had, but to my knowledge, it should only be that you can view it and then, like, add names to videos and just basic stuff. So if he logged in, no matter how he logged in, I would only assume that he only had view permissions on his computer like I did.

DS: Where would this be? I think you've said this before, but just to clarify where -- how did you record, where was the --

SF: That's on the TV where --

DS: -- access to record --

SF: -- the actual -- there was an actual computer.

DS: Hm. Okay.

SF: So in -- when you walk into the room, there's, like, a little blank space. And then there was a TV set up and a conference table. This TV had an -- a physical computer base where you could make the copies. Um, and on that, the version that was on the TV, you had the functionality of recording, turning it off, labeling it, burning the copies and all of that functionality.

KR: Is that in the same room as -- where the interviews happened? Or --

SF: No. So, like, there's a big room --

KR: Uh-huh. Or would it be in the OPS, uh, squad bay?

SF: No. So, like, there's a whole big room. You come in this door right here or there was a side door right here.

KR: Uh-huh.

SF: So within this room, like, here was the office table, here was the TV. And then there was four desks right here --

KR: Okay.

SF: -- that all faced each other. And then over here is a whole separate room that was walled off very thinly. And then here was what we called, like, a breakroom and this was -- was our interview room.

KR: Okay.

SF: So it's a room within a room.

KR: Okay. So the interview room is within the OPS squad bay?

SF: Yes.

KR: Or -- okay.

SF: Yes.

KR: And then that TV and that computer that -- where you record from is in that open squad bay area?

SF: Yes. On the opposite end of the room.

KR: Okay.

DS: And somebody would have to physically press record?

SF: Yes.

DS: Hm.

SF: We would always -- it was always a game 'cause we'd always run to -- to, you know, like if they peek out or they say they were done or sometimes they'd take a break. And then they go back in and they'd say, okay, we're ready. And then we would hit record and we'd go, okay, we're hot. So that everybody knew that it was now recording.

DS: Okay. Is -- do you remember the name or was that computer labeled a specific --

SF: I -- I don't know.

KR: Is that a desktop --

SF: I'm not sure.

KR: -- or a laptop?

SF: It was a desktop. Yeah. It was a desktop. And when you logged in, there was a few things on a, um, like a, uh, what's the page called? Like your -- your main page when you --

DS: Home page.

SF: -- login on the desk top. And then there was a iRecord -- specific iRecord button, it was a link that you had to click on to open iRecord.

DS: So then that didn't stay on all the time? Somebody had to logon to that each time you wanted to record an interview?

SF: It depended on whether or not we properly shut it down after an interview.

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: A lot of times what we would do is we would just hit the stop button. I was the one that typically would burn a copy.

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: And then, um, we would turn the TV off. And so that was how we got around the next time that we thought Captain Kutner was trying to -- to log in to just live view because we hadn't reset it. So what was supposed to happen is we were supposed to shut it down properly and restart it. But a lot of times we'd just turn the TV off --

DS: Uh-huh.

SF: -- and we wouldn't restart it. And then the one time that he came in and -- and asked Lieutenant Rhodenizer, hey, what's going on with iRecord? We realized that what had happened is it had been -- 'cause like I said, we -- interviews were few and far between a lot of times. Sometimes we'd go two weeks without having one. And so what would happen is because we would just shut the TV off, we would have to go in and restart it or you couldn't even live view because it was, like, hung up. So we didn't always properly shut it down. We just turned the TV off.

DS: Hm.

SF: But what was supposed to happen is yeah, we were supposed to shut it down. But it wasn't recording at the time because we had -- you had to physically click the button the screen to make it record.

KR: Was that computer used for anything else?

SF: Um, not that I know of. I'm trying to even remember any other links that were on it. The only reason that we used the hub was to do the function of iRecord and burn the copies. Um, other than that, the TV was just used for cable. So I don't even remember the other links that were on there. I don't think I ever paid much attention to 'em 'cause we -- we would just sign into iRecord on that computer, or restart it and reboot it.

KR: And you refer to that computer as the hub?

SF: The hub.

KR: Were you there when iRecord was first started, was first --

SF: For the agency? I was there, but I wasn't using it. I was in a different position.

KR: Okay. All right. So you --

SF: Actually, I think when iRecord was brought to the agency, I think CID was the one who started it first. And I think Captain Kutner was there when that was started. So he -- he used it in CID as well and then came over to OPS.

KR: Okay.

DS: Keith, do you -- are you familiar with the IAPro?

KR: I know the old IAPro and I've gotten some use with the new IAPro --

DS: Okay.

KR: -- thanks to my last investigation.

DS: You -- you would -- you would probably be better off to ask the questions regarding that because that --

KR: Okay.

DS: Yeah.

KR: When you first started in OPS, how did you build your files, how did you -- how did you work an IA case?

SF: Okay. So when -- you mean the -- the -- the second time I was there? Just to clarify. 'Cause I was there in 2016 for a year. And then I left -- asked to leave and then I was put back in 2021. So --

KR: In 2016 --

SF: -- but --

KR: -- did you have IAPro?

SF: No.

KR: Okay.

SF: We did not have that until 2022.

KR: All right. So tell me about, um --

SF: So when we -- when I first -- the second time I went back, um, we were still using the same thing we were using when I was there in 2016. We were using a Excel spreadsheet for the log. And we were just doing basic, like, Word, PDF documents for everything. So what would happen is when you would get a case, um, although some of this got lost and we had to bring it back. But what -- what we finally went back to was when you get a case, somebody would call. Um, what was supposed to happen and it -- like I said, it got lost for a little while and then we had to get back to it -- was if somebody called the assistant and said, hey, I have a potential case, they, um, the assistant would give it to one of us.

We did a pre-screening log basically where we asked some basic questions. Um, hey, what's this about? What day did it happen, just making sure you haven't interview anybody yet, you haven't -- just the basic questions to make sure they hadn't already violated 112. And, um, got a -- just a brief synopsis about what it was. Uh, we consulted with him. And then we went on to the Excel spreadsheet that there was tabs for each year. And we would assign a tracking number. And within that, you'd put the tracking number, the date, who issued the tracking number, who requested it, who was the, um, person that was being investigated, who was assigned to investigate it. And then beyond that, there was a whole bunch of information that was put on there, like, um, at -- at the end of the conclusion of it, it was the things like what was the discipline, what was the case about, how many points, when's it due to fall off, that -- just the basic -- all the criteria.

So we had -- we pushed for iPro, um, brought it in and started using it. And in 2022, we finally transitioned completely to just using IAPro. There was a point where we were still trying to back up the files in the OPS drive within the M: drive that we had. That's the one that I'd -- I don't have access to anymore. It literally just goes away when IT pulls it. Um, but there was -- there's -- within the OPS drive, there's still the Excel spreadsheet that has all the old case information. And all the old cases when we were just doing, uh, Word documents and PDF stuff. So then when we transitioned to IAPro, we went through and, um, the assistant and I -- and Captain Schabruch, I think, did some -- I think I did a couple just to -- just to track 'em. We put a lot of the old cases in IAPro --

KR: Okay.

SF: -- so that what -- what would happen is that the assistant could then go in and pull the stats and pull the information, pull the comparables and things like that. Um, so as we transitioned into it, we would just put, like, that we were still using some of the basic Word forms. Um, and we were just putting 'em in IAPro. We would take an iRecord recording or any other kind of evidence that we had and we would just put it all in IAPro. Because within IAPro, you can put all of that stuff. You can put Word documents --

KR: Uh-huh.

SF: -- PDFs, videos, audio recordings, everything that you have is -- was supposed to go into IAPro. And that system was specifically set up for each individual person. And there were permission sets for the levels of the cases in there. And as I was leaving, we had given our, um, I -- I -- I don't know her specific title. Mia [phonetic] English she works in our fleet department. She handles crash documents. And because OPS does crash stuff and has crash review, we gave her permission so that she could then upload for a crash, she could upload estimates for vehicle damage. She could upload insurance stuff so that everything about that crash was in IAPro. But to my knowledge, when I left, she was the only person outside of inspectors that had the IAPro. Everybody else was using what was called BlueTeam.

KR: Yep. That was my next question.

SF: So they would -- they would put -- everybody else would put their information in BlueTeam. They would transmit it. When we were in IA, we could review the BlueTeam entry. We could either kick it back and say we need something more, or hey, this is good, we're gonna go ahead and, you know, for complaints or crashes was the first thing they were doing, we will go forward, we'll, you know, somebody else is gonna handle this, you're gonna handle this, whatever. We would -- we would delegate that out.

KR: Once you took, uh, once you started using IAPro, solely using IAPro, what happened to any physical documents? Were they kept? Were they destroyed?

SF: They were being kept when I was there.

KR: Okay.

SF: Um, and what Captain Schabruch had us do was every time we had documents -- so, like, if this was my case file for a case, I was responsible for making sure that all of that stuff was put in IAPro and categorized by what it was. I took this file. Then I gave it to the administrative assistant. Um, and she was supposed to -- if we had not already, put it in the OPS drive because the -- he also wanted to maintain a secondary place in case something happened to IAPro. And then she was supposed to be taking all these documents and then filing them in the files for each individual person. So each individual person that had a case has a case jacket in a filing cabinet. And so she was supposed to be filing them in there. Since I left, I'd hope that's still happening --

KR: Uh-huh.

SF: -- and she's retaining the documents. Um, but I don't know.

KR: Okay. You -- you got IAPro in 2022. So I'm assuming it was the one that's now called IAPro Nextgen?

SF: Yes.

KR: Okay.

SF: Yes.

KR: All right. So which is a -- a truly web-based --

SF: Yes.

KR: -- uh, system that you have to have a link to that you have to be invited to use. Um, 'cause they had to add me back to it recently. Um, if -- okay, let's go back to -- to the old days.

SF: Okay.

KR: Let's go back to the spreadsheet. And we've heard testimony in some of the, um, interviews we've done about making that tracking number go away. How was that physically done?

SF: So, for example, on the old spreadsheet, there was a while. And -- and this -- this was always weird to me. And I don't -- I think I touched on it before. But on the actual Excel spreadsheet, what would happen is you go in, you'd assign the next tracking number. And then like I said, you'd put the date, the initials of who did it and all that other stuff. You fill out, like, a section of the line. Um, if we had pulled a tracking number and they said get rid of it, you could've just basically wiped out the majority --

KR: Delete it?

SF: -- of the line and just -- just left it there.

KR: Uh-huh.

SF: Um, I don't know whether or not any of the tracking numbers that we started to assign were ever wiped out and -- and recirculated. There was a point of time in the beginning of the year where I was out 'cause I had a couple surgeries. And but what I do know is that Inspector Kyle Salmon was assigned a case, um, and they were told to pull tracking numbers for people that liked a Facebook post. And there were, like, 10 or 12 tracking numbers that were pulled. When they changed their mind and they decided that they did not want to, um, move forward with just the people that liked 'em and they were -- they said it was okay to do a corrective counseling, Kyle went in and highlighted those tracking numbers and basically just put a note on them about why they were, um, no longer in use. And we skipped them. He did not delete them.

KR: Okay.

SF: But I don't know if -- if that was done any other time. I don't know if -- if Captain Kutner did that, um, or deleted any. I just know that the one time when I know that we pulled numbers because we were told to look into something, that -- and I don't even know specifically 'cause that happened when I wasn't there. I don't even know if they were told, again, delete them or whatever. I just know that Kyle -- because he -- he -- he knew better. Kyle is, like, is very, very knowledgeable and knows what to do and not to do. He went in and made a note about why we were just were not gonna recycle those numbers. And he didn't delete anything.

KR: Okay. IAPro. Were you ever told, or do you know of being told, to get rid of a tracking number with IAPro?

SF: Yes.

KR: And how --

SF: Those are -- those are the two times were Captain Schabruch was there and he said that he was told, um, by the undersheriff to delete the cases. And that was the Corey Short and the Pam James cases.

KR: All right. Do you know how that was done? How can you delete something -- SF: We didn't -- we didn't delete 'em. He was told to delete 'em --

KR: Okay.

SF: -- but when he came back and said, "I was just told to delete them because they didn't want those cases to be looked into." I turned around and I said, "You're not gonna delete those." And he's like, "Of course I'm not." He goes, "I'm gonna put a note in there as to why this case is -- is stopping. But I'm not deleting anything that's in there." So all of the stuff for those cases is still in there.

KR: Or should be.

SF: Should be.

KR: Yeah.

SF: Should be -- it was there when I left.

KR: Okay.

SF: So --

KR: When did you leave?

SF: Um, six weeks ago.

KR: Okay. Okay. Um, are there any other incidents that you know of where things were deleted?

SF: In IAPro?

KR: Yes.

SF: The only things that I know that were -- they weren't deleted, they were purged in IAPro was all the stuff that we tested.

KR: Okay.

SF: So, like, if we were putting in a -- a test crash through BlueTeam and we were looking to see how it transmitted and how to send it back and stuff like that, we purged them. But I'm not even sure even with purging that it -- that it really deletes it on the back end.

KR: Right.

SF: Um, I wasn't able to work in the system enough and I didn't have the -- the back end password to get into that. Um, Lieutenant Rhodenizer may be able to answer question about when we purge it what happens to it. But to my knowledge, the only things that we purged were the test cases.

KR: Okay.

SF: The things that we were doing.

KR: Did you use -- like our agency, sometimes we'll get something in and we'll -- it'll be an inquiry, a, uh, an official inquiry that we then turned into a full-blown IA. How did y 'all address that, or did you do inquiries that were turned into full IAs?

SF: We -- so we -- we do. Um, there's two things that typically happen though. A lot of times -- and this is one of the things that Captain Schabruch was trying to implement when we started this system. A lot of times a lot of those inquiries, or just basic complaints that you don't know whether they're really complaint, they come in from patrol.

KR: Right.

SF: So what would happen is, in theory, patrol you'd -- you'd get a call on a screen. Um, it was put in as a message and it would have a name and a complainants phone number. And it would say request for supervisor and we would have to -- the -- we as the shift commander sergeant lieutenant on the road, would call the comps center supervisor and say hey, what's this complaint? Um, we would get the complaint. We would, um, figure it out whether or not we needed to call somebody, watch a video, whatever it was to figure it out, then call the person. Um, and if it was a nothing burger, a lot of times we just closed out the call, maybe or maybe not put a note in the call and just didn't do anything with it.

KR: Right.

SF: What Captain Schabruch was trying to implement -- because the thing is is, like, you may get 300 a year that they're nonsense. It's just a basic inquiry that you're doing on something and it's nothing. What he was trying to implement when we went to IAPro was for them to put that into BlueTeam and say John Smith called in and said that, um, deputy Sherry French cussed him up one side and down the other. I watched the video and that didn't happen. And then what would happen is that Captain Schabruch wanted us to take all of those and put 'em in there to justify that hey, we're getting 300 complaints a year. And we're only investigating 15 cases because we're doing things right more than people know. I don't know since he left if that's still happening. Um, but that's the bulk of how we get those types of things. If it was something, what they were supposed to do is they were supposed to put it in a BlueTeam, um, call and basically consult with us. They would transmit it to IAPro.

We would have a verbal conversation about it. And then we would say hey, yeah, we're good to go. Either we're gonna take this or you're going to do this. Here's your tracking number, move forward. So for example, I had -- right before I left, I had a -- an incident that was being investigated with our property section. Um, gentleman back there marked off the log that stuff was turned in and he really didn't see the stuff. And it was just because he was, you know, it was lunchtime and he wanted to go to lunch unfortunately. Um, so the supervisor called me and said, "Hey, this is what happened."

Um, and essentially, we -- we put the information in, gave her a tracking number and then put a note that said this is being investigated by this supervisor and basically we would just consult them through the process. If it came directly into us and it was just an inquiry, we would absolutely put it into IAPro, say hey, this is how we got this complaint. Um, I got one of those because we had a -- a social media thing where a deputy sent a picture of himself of -- in uniform clothed, not unclothed. Um, sent a picture of his face in uniform to an underage girl. And when we initially got the complaint, it was because her coach had seen the Snapchat picture and was like, "Who is that deputy and why is he sending you this picture of himself?" Um, and initially, you know, we didn't know what that was gonna be, you know? It was very --

KR: Uh-huh.

SF: -- very odd. Um, we didn't understand why he was sending this Snapchat picture to an underage girl. And so we put it in as a basic inquiry, assign a tracking number, put what it was, and then, um, as we called the coach, um, spoke to the dad and realized it was completely a nothing burger. He had, um, sent it because he knew the coach and had Facebook friended her. Um, although people Facebook each other and they don't even know each other which is the oddest thing to me ever. Um, but he kinda knew who the coach was, the coach had accepted him on Facebook, thought he was whatever. He had no idea this girl was underage and was just trying to be friendly. And so we still maintained the file but what we did in the summary was put this is basically the inquiry steps that we went through, this is what happened, this is what we verified. And then we just close it.

DS: But it's still documented --

SF: It's still --

DS: It's --

SF: Every bit of it's still documented.

KR: Okay.

SF: And there was quite a few of those whether they came in from the outside or came in from the inside. And like I said, I don't know whether or not they're still pushing patrol where the bulk of those come in to put it in BlueTeam. Um, let us see it, let us assign a tracking number and then let them go through the steps or not. I don't know if that's still being done. I -- I just know that was what Captain Schabruch wanted to have done.

KR: All right. When it came to IAPro, you, Sherry French working a case, you save everything to IAPro. Is that also saved to your K: drive or is that just -- SF: I did. But I'm extra.

KR: So --

SF: Um --

KR: -- you would create your own --

SF: I would create my own file that had my own stuff.

KR: Case file?

SF: And -- and I also had an Outlook file for my cases --

KR: Okay.

SF: -- where I kept everything so that when I scanned it into the printer and then sent it to my email so that I could title it and name it --

KR: Uh-huh.

SF: -- I had an email log of it, I had a K: drive log of it and then it was put in IAPro.

KR: Your computer -- do y 'all have -- you use laptop or desktop?

SF: Laptops.

KR: Laptops. Okay. Once you plug 'em in at the office and you're working at the office, do you leave it there or do you take it home every afternoon?

SF: I left mine during the week. But on the weekends, I took it home.

KR: Okay. How are they backed up to the mainframe?

SF: What do you mean?

KR: Our -- I -- I use a laptop also.

SF: Okay.

KR: I leave mine at work 99 percent of the time unless I'm travelling. It's always plugged in to the intranet.

SF: Right.

KR: Everything that we do within a certain parameter on the computer which is 90 percent of it, our agency every night backs up to what would be considered our K: drive.

SF: Okay.

KR: Um, in case my computer crashes, whatever. They can rebuild everything I have. Does that happen at ASO --

SF: I --

KR: -- as far as you know?

SF: -- do not know.

KR: Okay.

SF: I know that there is a nightly backup from things like SmartCOP and things like that, some of the web-based programs, um, for -- because of reports and things like that. 'Cause I know that every night, you know, for the purposes of links --

KR: Right.

SF: -- everything dumps, um, every night. But as far as our K: drives and all those things, I don't know how often that saves. I mean, I know it saves on a mainframe somewhere because I know they have access to it 'cause they can go in and move it --

KR: Hm.

SF: -- um, or do anything with it. And they maintain 'em after we leave. But I don't know if it's a nightly thing that happens or whether or not once I hit save and save it to my K: drive, I'm -- I'm not sure about how that works.

KR: Okay. Who's your IT person?

SF: Uh, Mike Robinson is right now.

KR: Is the over --

SF: Over the IT --

KR: Okay.

SF: -- Bureau. And he took, uh, John Moorhouse's position who I mentioned before that knew that he was asking, um, for things to be set up on Clovis -- 'cause I'm sorry, I don't respect him anymore enough to call him sheriff, I'm just gonna call it like it is -- on Clovis' phone --

KR: Uh-huh.

SF: -- to, um, be able to do public record stuff. And supposedly they kept refusing. So Moorhouse is the one that's familiar with that. And Mike took Moorhouse's spot.

KR: When did Moorhouse leave?

SF: Uh, last August.

KR: Okay. So he'd probably know about IAPro --

SF: Absolutely he would.

KR: Uh, iRecord --

SF: Absolutely he would.

KR: -- all of that? Okay.

SF: He would.

KR: And I know we mentioned earlier, and just for the record, I wanna mention. You're not longer in OPS. So we're not asking you to use admin admin or anything --

SF: Right.

KR: -- because that would be probably a violation of your policy.

SF: Right.

KR: 'Cause you're no longer officially allowed in that database. So please don't.

SF: Right, right. Okay.

KR: Okay.

DS: Yeah. I -- I see that you have an additional folder that you brought. Would you like to talk about that?

SF: I would, please. Um, I just want to impress upon so that the information can get relayed about the importance of this and why this is so critical to not only our agency, but the county. Um, for example, tomorrow we're starting with eight people on the road and have 11 zones. Um, Captain Butscher's here and she'll be able to tell you guys even more. But here's a copy of our patrol operations schedule right now that has all the yellow is all the vacant. And then there's at least one that's deployed. Um, there are 25 people down. Here's a email that just came out where you can see they're begging for help.

The minimum staffing for 11 zones is 13 people. This outlines how many people is working every day if you don't even put overtime in. There's the majority of them are at least four people. Here's a map of our county with the zones. Typically, even on the days where they can get 10 people to work, which is -- is hard to find 'cause everybody's tired, the zone that gets left is the one that we're in right now. This is called Alpha Zone. This is where there's a lot of people that live, but because there's a less of a crime going on in this particular zone, they leave this zone blank. There's a lot of people that live in this area.

Um, and that zone gets left uncovered every day. And when something happens, you know, it takes a good 15, 20 minutes to even get there from where somebody is. And that's running lights and siren. Um, if anybody that you guys have to tell care, here are some documents. This is one that I just did before I went out for medical leave that says that last year we served over 26,000 papers. Um, here's a courthouse schedule that shows every time somebody's in yellow, that means they're there on overtime. And you can see in red there's still vacancies for court rooms. Um, you -- we have to staff the courthouse. We have to.

We just had an incident where an -- an attorney was attacked. And although he said that he thought there was a staffing shortage in that courtroom, there were actually people in there. But, you know, who -- who's to say that based on that if we had had extra people there could've been an -- an extra one? Um, you know, but you -- you can see here's documentation for whoever needs to see it to show we have an issue. Um, here are a couple documents that I just got where we had a detective who was leaving to go work on his own. He has his own business. But because of the staffing issues and the fact that he knows that people are -- are just, like, overwhelmed and burned out, he wrote, uh, IOC and said, "Hey, basically I resigned. But I'm willing to stay an extra six months. Can you rescind my recision?" And Clovis denied it. Why -- why would do that?

KR: IOC for the record, Interoffice --

SF: Interoffice Correspondence.

KR: Okay.

SF: Um, here's another one where we have a dispatcher. They're 25 positions down right now. Here's a dispatcher that left, went to go work full time doing deliveries. Because the stress and the amount of stuff that they're having to deal with. He's been gone, um, he reached out and said, "Hey, I'm hearing from you guys that things are critical, you don't have staffing. You're working with one call taker on a shift when there should be six and seven."

Um, I'll come back part time. When he initially put in his, um, resignation, there was not an opening. He reached back out to the division commander and said, "Hey, I understand, um, you know, there's an opening." She said, "Yes. We had somebody leave." Um, they said write an IOC even though he's no longer an employee to see if he can come back for part-time. Clovis denied it. Um, here is documents -- or our documents where I got the -- the second week I was in civil, there was a open position posted and they did interviews for deputies to be able to be transferred.

It was dated June of 2022. Clovis signed it on February 1st of 2023 and said that it was not appropriate now. It was obsolete because there's no staffing. Um, here are awards that were submitted in 2021. They sat on Clovis' desk and were just sent to the PIO and opened on February the 7th of 2023 because they were sent back. Um, here's an interesting little tidbit of one that I have and Captain Butcher can tell you there's more. Um, we have deputies whose wives are having children. And they're asking to have FMLA leave and crazy enough to me, they're willing to burn their -- to use their FMLA leave to benefit of the agency.

Um, and here's one from a deputy that's in the Juvenile Relations Bureau. He was willing to take a few weeks of it just to help his wife get acclimated and then take the rest in the summer so that it was not a burden to the school. Clovis denied it. Can't do that. I called. I checked. He can't deny FMLA leave like that. That's against the law. Captain Butcher has more of them that were done in patrol. Um, you know, here's a interesting little article that I found that talks about why it's so important to be ethical in this job and do your job. Um, I'm sure you guys are familiar with statute chapter 8.38 where it talks about official misconduct and all the things we're supposed to do, uh, the public employee oath of office and here's the Alachua County Sheriff's Oath of Ethics that I was -- I had to sign.

I -- I don't understand why this man is still in charge of our agency when he's not doing any of this stuff. But yet, I'm expected to. I would be hung out to dry if I wasn't doing this stuff. I don't understand what's going on. I know the governor is busy. But I pulled the orders for the suspensions. Here's all the suspensions that he's done this year of people. Here's also the suspension order that he gave for sheriff Daniels in Clay County. And the most recent one from the attorney. What they did pales in comparison to what Clovis is doing to this agency. They're violating people's rights. They're -- they're committing crimes. And I don't understand what it's gonna take to get this man suspended so that you guys can do the job that you need to do.

'Cause people are not gonna be as forthcoming. They're not. And just to tell you, like, how long I've been trying to help stop this, here's the phone number of one of the agents in you all's -- y 'all's division that I spoke to on December 17th of 2021. His words to me were you're telling me a lot of unethical things. But do you have any crimes? And I said, "I don't know if I have crimes. I know there's a lot of things going on that I don't know." When he didn't seem to think that he could help me, I said, "Okay." I tried to move to the -- the Florida PBA. I sent an email to an attorney on January the 28th of 2022 and a follow-up email on the 31st. Um, on April the 21st, I met with the PBA attorney. And I said, "These things are happening."

At the time, the crime had happened against attorney Frank. Um, she even highlighted that and said to me, "Wow. That's some really bad things." And at the time, I was just pushing for a vote of no confidence 'cause that was the only thing I knew that was an option. Um, and she said, "Okay. This is some really bad things. We'll see what we can do." Nothing happened until I was having an -- an completely other conversation with attorney Frank about a case in the office. And come to find out that yes, all that she confirmed with me that all that stuff had happened and then meets with me November 27th of 2022.

This has been going on for so long that I don't know how much longer. I don't know if the government needs to see his face. But that's Nick Tilliman. He's the one that just took his life. The day that happened, I was having a conversation with another deputy, it's gonna happen again. It's gonna happen again. These -- these young guys don't understand what's going on in the world of law enforcement. They don't understand why we're short staffed. They don't understand all the politics that come with this stuff. They don't get it. They -- all they see is the here and now and what's around 'em. I'm sure you guys know about this new generation of people and it is hard to keep their head above water. I don't -- the governor has go to understand that we are in a dire emergency here. Not only the community, but the agency.

I mean, at what point is the community suffering because the deputies are suffering? They -- you can't convince me that all of them are going out there and doing their best. They're -- they're struggling. It's -- it's crucial that this man get temporarily suspended and we try to get some sense of normalcy back to this agency for the sake of this community that we live in. And if -- and if they can't do it, then there's a whole lot of us that are gonna -- are, you know, we're -- we're gonna leave. We have to. You know? The -- it's -- it's not healthy to keep doing this. We have five in process with FWC right now, one with the Ag office, one with FHP and one who says he's just gonna leave just because he can't do it anymore. It's -- it's not fair.

KR: Your full strength with 13?

SF: Full -- if you had 13 for 11 zones, you would be at what we consider --

KR: Minimum.

SF: -- minimum staffing.

KR: Okay. How short is patrol total?

SF: They're 25 people down.

KR: Okay.

SF: We've had over -- we've had 302. As of last week, we've had 302 employees leave those since Clovis came in.

KR: Okay.

SF: Out of a thousand.

KR: Do you know how short the jail is?

SF: Uh, 65-ish.

KR: Okay. Patrol's 25?

SF: Twenty-five.

KR: How short --

SF: CID has 12 right now and they usually have 32 to 34.

KR: Are there any units being shut down because of -- SF: No. And it's interesting that you say that. He refuses to shut down a unit because he doesn't wanna give the appearance of everything that's going on because he's hiding behind it. Like, we have an evening shift that literally on the roster has one person assigned to it. Right now our evening shift is -- one team has a sergeant and one team has a lieutenant and that's it. Because the deputies are having to be reassigned to at least still try to make minimum on the day and the night shifts.

But he refuses to break 'em down. He refuses to move anybody else that he could potentially move because it would give the appearance that things aren't what they are. And Captain Butscher can elaborate on that because she has document after document where she asks to break down evening shift before it dwindled down to nobody. And she kept putting, um, words like liability in the documents. And they flat out told her, and she can tell you this, they flat out told her to stop. They didn't want that stuff to be public record.

KR: Who worked your in-custody deaths?

SF: Depends on whether or not it's because of some type of force or something that they did. Like, if it's an in-custody -- like I had one -- OPS would do it. I had one at a hospital who died. We knew he was having a medical emergency. I mean, we were just guarding him but there was nothing to it. Um, the most recent one that we had where there was a use-of-force and then he died, um, FDLE came in and did it.

KR: Okay. How about in the jail?

SF: Yeah. That's what I mean.

KR: Okay. That was a --

SF: FDLE.

KR: -- use of force in the jail?

SF: In the jail.

KR: Okay. Uh, a regular -- and I -- that's a bad word to use when talking about deaths, but a death in the jail not associated with the use of force, who would work it?

SF: The Office of Professional Standards.

KR: OPS would?

SF: Uh-huh.

KR: Okay.

DS: Attorney Frank, anything you'd like to clarify, anything you'd like to ask?

BF: I just wanted to make sure, Lieutenant, that it was clear if you could please describe on the record, where is the OPS office located?

SF: In the upstairs second floor of the Department of the Jail.

BF: And to your knowledge, everyone, um, there's no other way to get to that office other than to go through the front doors and be screened, correct?

SF: If you're a visitor, yes --

BF: Okay.

SF: Correct.

BF: And so, um, if anybody is coming in, if there's an officer that's coming in for an interview with OPS where it'd be evidentiary review and the interrogation, um, what would be the normal process of that occurring? Where would that individual go and what would be the steps that they would have to take to get to the second floor?

SF: They would have to come in through the front door, sign in just like everybody else and, uh, somebody from the Office of Professional Standards has to come down and meet them and escort them in.

BF: And is it true that they have to be buzzed through all of the security doors?

SF: In the front, yes.

BF: And is it true that they have to be issued a visitor badge?

SF: Yes.

BF: And is it true that once they leave, um, that badge has to be turned back in and the identification that's given at the front desk is then returned to the individual?

SF: Yes.

BF: And that's all documented, correct?

SF: Yes.

KR: Is the building that the OPS housed in connected to the main office of the sheriff?

SF: No.

KR: Okay.

SF: That's in the main -- main building on Hawthorne Road.

KR: Okay. So where's OPS, what road?

SF: The Department of the Jail is on 39th Avenue --

KR: Okay.

SF: -- across from the airport.

KR: I have been there long time ago.

DS: Sherry, we appreciate you, uh, coming back in and, uh, giving additional information. Is there anything else that you can think of that you'd like to add before we conclude the interview?

SF: No, sir.

DS: The time is 10:25.

(INTERVIEW OF BECKY BUTSCHER, #EI-14-0186, 03/09/23)

(The following may contain unintelligible or misunderstood words due to the recording quality.)

DS = INSPECTOR DAVE SNOWDEN
KR = INSPECTOR KEITH RIDDICK
BB = CAPTAIN BECKY BUTSCHER
BF = ATTORNEY BOBI FRANK

DS: The date is March the 9th. Time is currently 2:33 p.m. I am Inspector Dave Snowden of the Office of Executive Investigations. Also present at this time is Inspector Keith Riddick and Attorney Bobi Frank. The interview is being conducted at the law office of Bobi Frank. I will be questioning --

BB: Uh, Becky Butscher.

KR: Can you spell the last name for us, please?

BB: B-U-T-S-C-H-E-R.

KR: Okay.

DS: Um, and this is, uh, in reference, uh, to an FDLE investigation case number EI-14-0186. I'm the inspector in charge of this investigation.

Prior to beginning the interview, you should be aware of the following: That this interview is being recorded. As a sworn law enforcement officer, I'm empowered to administer oaths and take statements. In a moment I will be taking a sworn statement from you. You will be under oath, and if you knowingly provide false statements, you can be criminally charged with perjury. Do you understand each of these items?

BB: Yes, I do.

DS: Um, you are here under subpoena. And I also have a letter here from State Attorney Brian Kramer addressed to you and to Miss Frank and it states that, "This letter is to inform you that I, as the State Attorney in and for the Eighth Judicial Circuit, do hereby grant Captain Rebecca Butscher, Alachua County Sheriff's Office, immunity from prosecution for any testimony or evidence that she provides as part of the above investigation. The immunity exists from this day forward and applies to any investigative interview, grand jury testimony, deposition testimony, hearing testimony, and trial testimony. This grant of immunity is not conditioned upon any other agreement between the witness and the State of Florida." And it's signed Brian Kramer, State Attorney.

Um, if you'll raise your right hand, I'll now swear you in. Do you swear or affirm the testimony you're gonna give to be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

BB: Yes, I do.

DS: Okay. Um, state your full name, please.

BB: Rebecca Butscher.

DS: Will you spell that for me?

BB: R-E-B-E-C-C-A, B-U-T-S-C-H-E-R.

DS: Middle initial?

BB: L.

DS: Current place of employment?

BB: Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

DS: For how long and in what capacity?

BB: 30 years.

DS: Um, you were the subject of a recent investigation there?

BB: Yes.

DS: Tell me about that.

BB: Um, hold on one second. Um, I was -- February the 13th was a Monday. I, um -- hold on one second. Um, can I start at the beginning?

DS: Sure, absolutely.

BB: Okay. I'd like to start at the beginning if I can. Um, yes, I was served with a corrective counseling on Monday, February the 13th. However, um, I have a little pattern of behavior or a history with, um, Major Lance Yaeger. Um, he was my -- one of my field training deputies back in 2004.

Um, most recently we had an issue back in January of 2020. Uh, I was a lieutenant on midnight shift. He was a deputy sheriff. He called me on the phone. His stepdaughter was found with a vape pen that had liquid THC in it. He demanded that I come to the home, arrest her and remove her from the home. It is his stepdaughter, not his biological daughter.

At the time there had been some issues with hemp, um, and so our general counsel at the time, uh, ordered us to -- or through the sheriff, ordered us to take all our marijuana test kits away because there was some confusion in the court system between the hemp -- the delineation between hemp and -- anyway, all of that testing process. So they said, "Take them all away, we're not dealing with that," and we said, "Fine."

So I had no way to test it. I didn't have a Valtox kit. And I said, "Lance, um, I'm not coming to arrest her." Um, she was 17 years old. And I told him that, "She's not your biological child." He said that his wife was in agreement with it. And I told him I didn't have a way to test it. So, um -- and I told him that, uh, we had surrendered our kit test. He knew. And he told me that it didn't matter I didn't have a means to test it. Um, he said that he used to do that when he was on the CHIP Unit, which was our little street-level narcotics unit. I told him that I was not gonna put my 27-year career on the line by arresting a juvenile with liquid THC with no means to test it.

Um, the conversation got a little heated. He didn't agree with me not arresting her. So I told him that I would send my sergeant at the time. So my sergeant responded to the home, collected it. Um, he gave her -- he documented in a report and he gave her a juvenile civil citation.

The very next day, um, I received -- two days later I received a text message from Lance telling me that he had caught -- her name is Delaney -- uh, on camera hitting vodka in the home and, uh, that there were no consequences, so she has no incentive to stop. And I replied, "You can get an ex parte on her." And he follows and says to me that the intake attorney, Michael Becker, and Rebecca Shinholser, who was the juvenile division chief at the time, um, said that the daughter could have been arrested for the felony. And I replied, "I'm sure they did, but, um, I had no way to test the liquid and I was not gonna put my career on the line."

So that's kind of where it started a little bit with him. He was pissed off from that time. We've known each other for a very long time. Um, my husband previously worked for him in the Drug Task Force. I'm sorry if I get off on a tangent a little bit.

My husband worked for him in the Drug Task Force and, uh, we, um, had, uh -- we had the HIDTA at the time and there was an issue with the, um -- the HIDTA contract not being signed, and obviously it's gotta be signed by the multiple agency heads and there was a period of about 10 months that that agreement was not signed. So come day that, you know, you're supposed to go before the board, you're supposed to bring this contract and it's all supposed to be signed.

Well, my husband had done the legwork, had given it to general counsel and said, "Hey, sign this. We need this signed by all these agencies, the sheriff." And, um, come the day before, they got the contract signed, but it was only signed by the general counsel and the sheriff, none of the other agency heads. So it's an incomplete contract, nonbinding.

So they go to the meeting and Director Perriam [phonetic] says, uh, "David, where is the contract?" He's like, "I don't have it." So basically we lost the HIDTA. And the problem was that Lance was the, um, captain over our Drug Task Force at the time. His best friend is our general counsel. David asked and asked and asked and asked and asked to go speak to the sheriff. "Look, we need to do this. I gave you -- I -- I sent you the email." He actually authored the document, the contract, to where, um, it was done. All they had to do was get it signed. They couldn't even get it signed. So went before the board, the board voted unanimously, and David got kicked out of the Drug Task Force.

Um, March 25th -- that was September of 2021. Um, he spoke to our -- we call her Mom. She's our secretary in the Drug Task Force. She's been at our agency like 44 years. She tells it like it is. She -- Lance boasted to her that I was singlehandedly responsible for Delaney's drug addiction because I didn't do anything to her that night. So that kind of, you know, chapped my butt a little bit, but I knew that wasn't true. I knew she was given -- she was given the juvenile civil citation, no big deal, but there was some, you know, consequences for what was -- what was done.

Um, March 25th, 2022. My husband's in law enforcement with the Sheriff's Office. I have 26-year-old twin boys that are both deputies at the Sheriff's Office. The whole damn family's there. March 25, 2022, um, my oldest twin son was involved in a shooting in Hawthorne. Um, it was a suicide by cop. He was a single shooter. There were multiple other deputies that were there with him at the time.

Um, we all came back to the station. FDLE came. Um, PBA and Attorney Frank were contacted. Um, everybody was in place and my son pled the Fifth. Lance was irate. He was raising hell. He was mad. He demanded to speak to my son that night, even after pleading the Fifth, and was not going to be told he wasn't gonna speak to him. So, um -- and he didn't like being told that per the PBA attorney or per the -- per the attorney representing my son, he wasn't going to speak. So -- DS: What was Lance's position at that time?

BB: He was the captain over CID.

DS: Okay.

BB: So obviously we know FDLE does -- they're -- they're taking the lead on the investigation.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: Our CID has a supplemental role to that. Um, however, it was apparent that he was -- he thought he was gonna run the show.

DS: Okay.

BB: Um, that was on March the 25th. So for a period of about seven months, so till October 11th. FDLE came to the station to give their review to exonerate him. Everything was done. He was cleared. It was good. Um, the undersheriff was there. The colonel was there. FDLE was there. Brian Kramer was not invited in enough time. He didn't make it. And, um, Sheriff did not show up.

Um, my son, his name is Carlton. Carlton and Clayton. Carlton was cleared on October the 11th and everything was kind of going a little fine. I didn't hear anything until maybe a month or so later, November-ish. I had a conversation with the colonel and I'm like, "Why" -- so October 11th he was exonerated, he was cleared by FDLE. Um, obviously procedurally it takes a couple weeks to get all that done.

And, um, on November the 16th I went to my colonel and I said, "Hey, what's going on? He's been cleared for a month here." And he says to me, um, "The sheriff's not gonna clear him." And I said, "I'm sorry. What?" "The sheriff's not gonna clear him. He didn't cooperate with the investigation." And I said, "I'm sorry. What?" "Oh, he didn't -- he didn't get interviewed by FDLE." I said, "He pled the Fifth." "Well, he didn't get interviewed. The sheriff doesn't feel he got -- he cooperated with the investigation." And I said, "He is no different than a criminal suspect in the hood that we're dealing with." I said, "We have rights as human beings. You can't take those rights away as law enforcement officers from us." And he said, "Well, I can just tell you the sheriff's not gonna release him. He's not gonna release him back to -- to full duty until he talks to FDLE."

And I said, "Well" -- this is November the 16th. He was cleared on October the 11th and the colonel was there, so he lied to my face. And I told him, "Well, then discipline him, then." I threw that little dagger out there, "Well, discipline him, then, if that's what you think you're gonna do." Um, he said, "No, no. I don't think it's gonna come to that, but, um, the sheriff believed that he did not cooperate." I was stunned. I was stunned.

So I believe that Lance was the driving force behind that because Lance wasn't allowed to interview my son. Um, my husband was the watch commander at the time who responded to the scene. We did exactly what we were supposed to do. You ask the safety questions like you're supposed to do. You don't go above and beyond. You find where the round is. You make sure your employee's good. You make sure they want their rep. You get them, facilitate them, get them back, all that whole thing. Everything was fine, but he wasn't happy. Um, and then come to find out, the sheriff doesn't think my son cooperated with the investigation, so he wasn't gonna clear him to return to shift. So, um -- and he wasn't cleared for 66 days. He did not return back to his shift until December the 16th. I have a real hard time with that.

Um, I had a little discussion back in September. So Lance was instrumental in implementing our Narcan usage and, uh, we obviously had to establish a policy. It came through the State, and we got all kinds of dosages for free and it was great. And initially our policy stated that the Narcan usage was only gonna be used for law enforcement; it wasn't gonna be used for normal citizens. We didn't want to perpetuate that drug addiction -- you know, that philosophy, so we're like, "Hmm, maybe we'll try this."

So we had a couple deputies that, um, administered Narcan. They responded to an overdose, administered Narcan and ultimately saved this person's life. Well, they were nominated for a life-saving award, and he comes to my office and proceeds to tell me that he in good conscience can't nominate these deputies because they violated the policy. And I said, "Well, you're right, they did." However, we knew when we implemented this policy that it was initially going to say we only use Narcan on us, that somebody was going to -- first of all, we wouldn't take discretion from them, and somebody out there is not going to stand there and watch somebody overdosing on the floor, not -- you know, it's -- it's for the greater good. They're not gonna step out and say, "Oh, I can't help you. You're dying. I'm not gonna help you 'cause our policy says it's only for law enforcement." So, um -- but it surprised me that in good conscience he said that he couldn't, you know, deviate from the directive because it would save somebody's life.

So, um, we had a little argument about that and I said to him, um, "What would you do if that was your daughter? Knowing the history with his child. And, um -- and he wouldn't answer me and he said nah. And I said, "No, I'm gonna ask you one more time. What would you do if that was your daughter? What would you expect the deputies to do if that was your daughter?" And he goes, "Save her life." And I go, "There you go."

So like two days later we changed the policy. Everything's good. I discussed the statute about, hey, it talks about a person and we just went -- but he was very argumentative that you can't deviate from the policy even though it includes, you know, life-saving measures to save a drug addict.

Anyway, um, that was September 6th of 2022. I'm laying this foundation so you have an idea of what's about to come.

Um, September 24th, 2022, I was on a cruise with my husband and, um -- um, I didn't find this out until October 3rd when I came back to work. Uh, we have two captains. We have a Team 1 captain and a Team 2 captain. So I was on a cruise. My counterpart was handling, uh, patrol while I was gone. And I come back on October the 3rd and I -- my counterpart comes into my office and says, um, "I got a phone call from Lance and he called me to his office on the 24th, um, to talk about you." And I said, "Me?" "Yes, he wanted to talk about you, your demeanor, and why you are the way you are." I'm like, "Oh, great." I said, "I wasn't even here. I couldn't even defend myself."

He said, "We sat in the office, closed door, for about an hour talking about you." I said, "Okay, fine, whatever." My counterpart, to his credit, says, um, "I told Lance that Becky does not like -- does not like aggressive -- passive-aggressive men." And he told him that if, uh -- he should step to me and have a conversation and not send me emails. Um, I don't appreciate that. I didn't like it. We were equal rank at the time. I think that's very passive-aggressive to act like that. You should be able to step to me, I should be able to have a conversation with you. And, um, I was really angry about him doing that to me. So -- but I credited my counterpart and, uh -- for telling me that.

So he did the same thing on October 3rd. He, um -- he was organizing one of our command staff meetings. And, um, in my opinion, he always wants to make himself look better than everybody else. He didn't earn his rank, and so I felt like he was always trying to overcompensate for trying to show that he was worthy of the rank that he was given.

And he sent his administrative assistant down to me to ask for PowerPoint slides for our command staff meeting. This was a command staff meeting. This is a table conversation. This is nothing more than you have an agenda. You don't need a PowerPoint. You're talking about, you know, day-to-day operations. Totally overkill.

Um, secretary comes down there. I'm like, "Why -- why are you coming down here? I don't work for you." "Well, Lance told me to come down here." And I go, "Okay. Why don't you tell Lance to come down here and ask me?" Um, she started laughing. And, um, she got back to the office and he was there waiting for her when she got back and he said, "What -- what was her demeanor like?" And she said that, um, he asked was I being ugly, um, when I said I'll get to it when I get to it and his assistant said, "No, she's just really busy." So I was like, here we go again, you know. We're equal rank. If you need information from me, bring your butt down here or call me down to your office, I'll come talk to you.

Um, I spoke to my colonel about it at the time 'cause I'm like we're just not really -- we're not getting anywhere. I explained to him, I told him, look, that I -- I was on a cruise. I spoke to the colonel. Um, I told him -- I expressed my displeasure with Yaeger asking his administrative assistant about my demeanor and he asked me, "Well, why would she do that?" Um, I also expressed to him that I did not appreciate him calling my counterpart down to his office to talk about me, um, because he was our direct report at the time. Um, and I believe that he said that he would have a conversation with him or something.

Um, he's very passive-aggressive. He likes to send emails. He's a gaslighter. He'll send an email, get you stirred up a little bit and, you know, to my detriment, um, sometimes I respond. Um -- KR: And he was chief of CID at this whole time.

BB: He was. Yes, he was. Captain -- chief detective, rank of captain.

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: Um, October the 4th he sent an email to me about -- basically complaining about a patrol response on a death investigation and it was months old. The complaint should have been handled the night of by the road supervisor, by the -- the lieutenant or the sergeant that responded from the Detective Bureau. It was a death investigation. It was a natural death. There was no reason for patrol to be there. He tried to tell me that it was our responsibility to be the scene security on a natural death. I said, "No, it's not."

We had a shooting and, uh, he tried to say that we needed to be at the shooting. It was a -- they sent the wrong detective. They tried -- tried to put the blame on the patrol deputies because they left to go look for the suspect vehicle once we saw the suspect vehicle on camera. Um, complaining. And I said, "Look, again, this is not an issue we need to deal with right now. It should have been addressed the night of. You know, thanks for bringing this to my attention, but, yeah, it's a little too late."

Um, we had an incident the day -- a couple days later with the same suspect. They surrounded an apartment in an apartment complex and, uh, he sent an email about, um -- he says, "On a less-than-recent call, a detective called a patrol supervisor." And he puts in parentheses "same supervisor as the aforementioned to arrange." The aforementioned supervisor he's speaking of is Sergeant

Kevin Davis. We have Sergeant Davis on day shift and we have Sergeant Drew Davis. The day that he is speaking of, the incident he is speaking of, Sergeant Drew Davis was off. It was evident to me, um, that he was after Kevin Davis.

So the detective called a patrol supervisor, says that same supervisor to arrange for an on-scene security and transport. Yaeger was referring to Kevin Davis. However, it was Drew Davis that was actually spoke with the detective -- I'm sorry. Let me clarify that. The detective talked to Sergeant Drew Davis. He was not actually off. Um, but Kevin -- Lance was inferring that it was Kevin Davis in the email.

Um, he's talking about a disconnect, whatever. And I -- I emailed myself. I email myself conversations. I spoke with Sergeant Drew Davis on October the 5th at 2:13, who informed me that he spoke with the sergeant from CID, told him due to staffing that he needed to get another and his deputy needed to get back in his zone for calls. Due to the need of staffing, um, another detective responded and there was no issue. My -- my point being that it was apparent to me that he was trying to dime out Sergeant Kevin Davis.

Um, the same command staff meeting that we were, uh -- that Lance was orchestrating that we were trying to have on October the 25th in 2022, um, Lance had assigned seating. And I was just like, "This is stupid. This is -- we're not in kindergarten." I don't -- I don't want my counterpart, um -- told him, "This is stupid. We don't need to do this. I told him it was stupid, but again it was -- it was his attempt, in my opinion, to elevate himself, um, to justify his position.

Um, something else that -- that happened. So October the 18th, um, the Alachua Police Department sergeant called and they requested the use of one of our LPR trailers. LPR trailers are managed by Patrol, not Criminal Investigations. The sergeant obviously didn't -- he's my neighbor. He knows who I am. Called Lance instead of calling me. Um, instead of Lance deferring that to me to manage that request, he took it himself and basically sent me an email saying that, um, "They're requesting this LPR.

The request has been approved. Can you please ask the person coordinating to contact him, um, to discuss the specifics?" I'm like, I don't stick my nose in your CID business, don't stick your nose in Patrol business. Um, he's been told that multiple times that I -- you know, he's got that follow the chain. We all have our own rules, we have our own responsibilities and he just does it. Um, we, uh -- he knows that I don't like being circumvented because I feel like it's very undermining to my position. Um, I think it's very demeaning to my authority and I -- I don't -- I take a lot of pride in my position as a patrol captain and I -- I think that out of respect for -- for the position that it's his responsibility to notify me of anything involving patrol, not to just handle the things -- the requests that are made through them.

Um, October the 19th, my counterpart walks into my office -- so he had received that email -- and he says, "Well, what -- how do we -- how do you think we need to deal with this?" Um, and I said -- because he's like, "Well, why didn't -- you know, why didn't he defer that down to us instead of just taking care of a problem that's patrol related himself?" And I said, uh, "I think you need to go get him and bring him down to my office and let's have a conversation about it." I'm like, you know what? You're gonna be passive-aggressive.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: I'm gonna call you down to my office. So he went and it was about 8:30. Um, my counterpart's name is Kelvin. And, uh, he walks in my office and we start talking. He goes and picks up Yaeger and, um, they come back, and Yaeger asks me what the meeting is about and Kelvin tells him the email that he sent to us, um, that we don't work for him and that he should have notified either of us instead of making the decision and telling us what to do.

They both sat down. I asked Yaeger why he called my coworker to his office while I was on vacation to talk about me and, uh, why would he ever try to turn my coworker against me. He had no answer and just looked at me. He went on to say that he doesn't like talking to me and that I'm always mean to him and yell at him. I told him that if he was the leader and the man that he thinks he is, he should have given me the decency to come into my office to have a discussion with me, not try to turn my coworker against me.

Um, I told him that I'm not mad at him, I'm not angry at him, but when he sends me emails with minimal information, expecting me to give a quick answer, uh, it automatically puts me on the defensive, as I believe that he has all interior motive -- an ulterior motive. Um, I told him -- he says he doesn't have one and he just doesn't like talking to me, so he sends me emails.

Um, I explained to him my perception and why I become defensive and gave an example of when the -- the scene security thing and that I believe that he was specifically targeting Sergeant Kevin Davis, um, by the verbiage that he had put in the email. I go on to talk about that call. And, um, the conversation actually I thought was overdue and it was necessary. In my opinion, um, Lance Yaeger does things to intentionally make himself look better and others look bad. Kelvin discussed that he believes that there is a lack of trust, which I agreed. I told Yaeger that once -- once upon a time I respected him; however, I no longer do, and I will only deal with him in a professional manner, documenting my conversation, as I believe that Yaeger will attempt to use this against me in some way.

Um, we had an officer safety bulletin for threats to kill law enforcement that came out in October. The bulletin comes out of the Criminal Investigations Division by our analysts. The bulletin went straight to Comm Center and to outer agencies. It didn't go to Patrol at all. So we have an officer safety, threats to kill law enforcement, a crazy guy, and, um, I simply said, "Hey, this needs to come to Patrol. You know, there was a lag in time here. Doesn't need to go to Dispatch. They're not dealing with this." And then I -- "Fine. You sent it to the other agencies, but we need it as well." And he made some excuse as to, "Well, I talked to somebody else and it" -- just -- instead of just saying, okay, fine, we'll fix it next, he made some excuse why that wasn't done.

Um, November the 17th. Um, I was on duty and we had two jail employees that were involved in a crash. So it's my team. My team sergeant is on duty. My team lieutenant is on duty. Two girls that work at the jail, they were headed to work, they were involved in a crash; no injuries, in their personal cars, not in a jail van. He takes it upon himself to call the sergeant directly and ask questions about the crash involving the jail employees. Doesn't call the watch commander, doesn't call the captain. I had been on the radio just a few minutes prior, talking to the sergeant, asking questions about the crash myself, so it should have been readily obvious to him that I was on the radio and it was my shift. Um, any request that he made for information I felt like should have come through me.

So I, um -- I called him on the phone and I said, um -- actually the lieutenant called me because the sergeant called her. The lieutenant calls me and says, "Can you tell me why the Chief Detective Yaeger called the sergeant and asked about a crash? Neither the involved employees work for him, or are they assigned to Criminal Investigations Division?" Um, I'm the captain of Team 2 and I was on duty and I was on the radio, so I felt like that was a no-brainer; he should have known better.

I called him on my -- on his personal phone and asked him if he had called the sergeant about the crash. And he hesitated for a moment, didn't say a word, and he said, "Yes." And I asked him, "Why?" And he says -- he replies to me, he says, "I'm not going to have an adversarial conversation with you." And I replied, "I'm not being adversarial with you. I'm not yelling. I'm asking you why you are sticking your nose in patrol situation by calling the on-scene sergeant."

He then starts yelling at me and says, "What is wrong with you, Becky? Are you having a bad day?" I said, "No, I'm not having a bad day, but this has nothing to do with CID, and you are the chief detective of CID, not patrol. I was on the radio, so if you had questions, you should have called me." He said he had already called the lieutenant, she didn't answer, so he called the sergeant. Again, not his supervisors and not his place. I told him that I don't stick my nose in CID-related issues, I expect him to do the same. I asked if he, uh, had been asked to go behind my back and do my job for me and he said, "No." I said, "I'm the captain of Team 2 in Patrol Operations and I was already on the radio." Um, he said, "We are command staff and we should be concerned about the well-being of our employees." He continued yelling and then hung up on me.

I called the colonel and I told the colonel, I said, "Listen." I notified him about the crash and my argument with Yaeger over the phone. He told me that he would talk to him. It's a continuation of him going after my family. I will not tolerate him circumventing me in Patrol Operations, as that is what I am responsible for.

Um, I receive a text from him later that day that says that, "If you would like to speak to me later today, I would welcome it so long as it is professional and productive. I don't want you to think that my actions -- any actions that I take are to undermine you. I truly care about the employees and was concerned for their safety. I even reached out to the director at the jail to ask if there was anything I could do since I was in the office." He's the CID captain. Be the CID captain.

Um, December the 7th, 2023 -- I'm sorry, 2022, the Alachua Police Department called us for a domestic violence investigation involving one of their sergeants. Um, the lieutenant, um -- Sergeant Carlos Hunt. Uh, given the sensitivity of the case, I called Yaeger and I asked for a Special Victims Unit supervisor to respond. Obviously the -- the connection between our administration, this agency, um, the fact that it was someone that they would know, I didn't want to muddy those waters at all, so I asked for a supervisor of Special Victims to respond.

Lance responds to me and says, "Why is this not being handled like a normal patrol response?" And I said, well, hmm, okay. We did respond, uh, to take the initial. However, I knew the connection that is there between this agency and I knew that had I not notified him so he could notify, um, the upper chain, the colonel and everybody, that I would have gotten probably in trouble for that.

So we responded. Uh, the initial, um, sergeant called me and said there was obvious injuries, there was a ripped dress. And based on that information at the time, I was under the impression that we were going to make an arrest. I even suggested to the colonel that we call FDLE because we needed an outside entity because we did not need any collusion, nothing, and I thought that was the better route. Um, Lance texts me and, um, said that there was more to it, that FDLE was not gonna be getting involved. I'm like, "Okay, fine." I knew it was domestic. I know typically FDLE does not handle domestics. However, it was a law enforcement officer.

Um, I called the colonel and I advised him of the situations. I made it, um -- basically the determination was that there was, um, inconsistent statements and arrest was not made. She had injuries to her arm. She had a ripped dress. There was, uh, disarray in the house and, um, a couple days of a battery. I believe that there were phone calls made. And that's fine. It doesn't -- it doesn't matter now, but I really was like I knew had we gone up there and handled that as a normal operation, a normal patrol response, there probably would have been an arrest made and my ass would have been on fire. Um, so I went that route to try to cover my own and tried to involve FDLE, and they were not used and, um, the investigation was documented, there was no arrest made.

Um, December 20th, 2022, my husband was the night shift watch commander. He was informed that Yaeger had called a couple of his supervisors on his shift directly and asked them if they were interested in going to CID. Um, on that same night -- I'm sorry. That was the 19th.

On December 20th, I went to my night shift's roll call so Colonel could present an award to one of the sergeants there. And after the presentation was over I asked the sergeants, "Hey, have you guys gotten a call from Yaeger about going to CID?" And one of them said, "Yes." I said, "All right. Well, tell me about it."

Um, the sergeant text me back and said that, um -- he confirmed that Yaeger texted him on December 11th, telling him to call him back and asked him about his goals at ASO, specifically asked the sergeant, Townsend, if he had aspirations of going to CID, and he replied no, that he was interested in going back to the DOPE Unit. Yaeger concluded the conversation by saying, "Keep this conversation between me and Rob," Rob Townsend. And I'm like, here we go again. You're stepping your -- sticking your nose in my business. You got no business going straight to my sergeants trying to recruit them over to your division. Really did not like that. Um, I don't do it to his people. I expect my counterpart or my -- my equivalent to not do that to my people.

Again I spoke to the colonel on January the 3rd about the practice and he informed me that he would have a conversation with Yaeger. He encouraged me to have a conversation with Yaeger, as we are equal rank, and I told him that based on our history, that I had been good, I didn't believe that would be a good idea, so I didn't communicate with him.

Um, that leads to where we are. So February, uh -- January the 15th -- maybe it was the 12th. January the 15th I was, um, transferred from the Patrol Captain's position to the Public Information Office. I believe it was the 11th or so. The sheriff called me into the office, to his office. We made a promotion -- he made a promotion. And after the picture and little ceremonial part was done, the undersheriff said, "Hey, the sheriff wants to meet with you." And I said, "Okay." Um, he said, "Hey, do you want to be over the PIO?" And I said -- I thanked him for asking me. That's not something he normally does, but I said, "Respectfully, sir, I -- I'm not interested. I was there before. I'm not interested in going back to the position." He's like, "Okay." Well, obviously they were going to try to make my husband my XO, and I'm like you guys can't do that, that's grievances and policy -- you can't do that, don't do that.

So long story short, I -- I refused the position or turned down the position and, um, I ended up getting it anyway. So January the 15th I was transferred over to the PIO position. Um, and, um, on February the 7th, um, Lance walks past my door, looks at me, looks straight at me, walks -- turns to the left, looks at me, makes eye contact, turns to the right and keeps going. Again, passive-aggressive.

The very next day I get copied in an email from my administrative assistant at the time in the Public Information Office. Lance, unbeknownst to me, had made a request for some awards that we maintain through the Public Information Office from the jail. The awards were two years old. I wasn't really sure why he was requesting them, but nevertheless, he requested them. Um, instead of going through me, I had been in that position, he went to the person that was previously in the position because there's a friendship there and she does whatever he wants him to do, so he didn't have to deal with me.

Um, so the email comes down by the administrative assistant. At that time is when I'm notified that he's made a request for documents maintained by the Public Information Office and, um -- and specifically he had requested those. Um, I was like here we go again, circumventing me. I'm in my position. I've been here for three weeks.

So, um, I respond back to him and I say, "Major Yaeger, when making requests for awards or any information that is maintained or managed within the Public Information Office, I expect to be copied and/or notified of such request so that I do not receive notification such as this after the fact when copied by my administrative assistant. Your consideration will be greatly appreciated." That is what spawned this investigation.

Um, I copied the person that he made the request through and I copied the, um, sheriff's executive assistant because at the time I was still in the PIO, I was a direct report to him. Um, I knew there was gonna be a little bit of backlash from this, and a couple minutes later I, um -- I called Courtney and, uh, just to give her a little bit of the backstory and just say, "Look, I wasn't just being a bitch. There's a little history here. I'd like to, you know, let you know what's going on."

DS: Who's Courtney?

BB: Courtney's the sheriff's executive assistant. And she answers the phone and her response to me is, "Oh, are your ears burning?" And I'm like -- I said, "I guess so." Uh, I proceeded to explain, "Look, there's -- there's a little more to this situation." She asks if I would like for her to relay that information to the sheriff or would I like to speak to the sheriff. I said, "No, ma'am. I'm a direct report to the sheriff. I'd like to speak to the sheriff and talk to him myself about this." And she said, "Okay, fine. He's with somebody. I'll let you know when he's available."

To this day I've heard nothing. I never got to meet with him. It was apparent to me by her statement, uh, and his ignorance of replying or agreeing to meet with me that Lance had beat me down to the hall -- down the hall, which is fine. I expected it. Um, it's a pattern behavior.

And, um, I confirmed with the administrative assistant that a text message was sent to her by my previous person, um, that I replaced requesting the information. She responds to me -- and she's a witness in this investigation -- claims, "Oh, it's just confusion; I didn't mean intentionally to do this."

They both know I'm a very chain of command, you do your job; and if you don't do your job, you're held accountable. As you can tell, I'm sure, I'm very matter of fact. I don't play around. We have a job to do and you have to follow the rules. If I have to follow the chain, then I expect everybody else to follow the chain, too. It's just -- it creates so much confusion, inconsistencies, there's -- and obviously it creates personality issues here.

Um, I guess it was a couple hours later, uh, yeah, about 1:38 p.m., Lance sends me an email and says, "Schedule an appointment through Amber," his executive assistant, "to meet with me this week." Um, again, I don't work for him. I didn't respond to the email.

Um, on the 8th I got a phone call to go meet with the colonel. I knew -- I figured I was gonna get my butt chewed that day at that time. Um, so I go down to talk to the colonel and he says, "Close the door." So I did. And, um, he says, "There's a personnel change." I said, "Okay. Where am I going?" I knew. I knew. Uh, he said I was being transferred back to Patrol. And I asked why, assuming it was because of the email that I previously sent to Yaeger, and he said they thought I would be happier there. I told the colonel that if it was because of the email -- I'm sorry. I asked the colonel if it was because of the email. He said no. I asked him if he was aware of it. He said yes. We spoke on -- he tells me that I wear my emotions on my sleeve and that, um, he had to learn early on in his career that that wasn't effective.

So prior to leaving the office I told the colonel that, um, I had received the email from Yaeger telling me to meet with him and asked him if I still needed to do that because I was a PIO. February the 12th was Sunday. That's when my transfer was effective. At that time on the 12th was when I was gonna report to the colonel. This is key. Um, I said, uh -- prior to leaving I told the colonel, uh, that I I had received the email from Yaeger telling me to meet with him and asked if I still needed to do that and he said no. Knowing the answer, I asked the colonel again if I would be reporting to Lance and he said, "Who?" I said, "No, Lance." I'm doing this right here.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: Pointing over my shoulder across to where he is. And he said, "No, no, no." I said, "Thank you." I got up, walked out. My transfer was effective Sunday, February 12th.

Monday, February the 13th I got a phone call -- at 1111 hours I got a phone call from the colonel and he says, "Hey." He's asking me about an email that I sent. I said, "The one to Yaeger?" And he said, "Yes." And I said, "Yes?" And he asked me if I ever met with him and I told him no. Well, I could sense where this was going, so I hit speakerphone. We were having a meeting. It was me, Captain Levy, Lieutenant Hood, Sergeant Kinsey.

And, uh, he asked me if I had ever met with him. I told him no. I specifically asked him on the 8th when I was in his office when he was telling me of my transfer, um, if I had to meet with Yaeger and he said no, and he responds back to me, "Well, that was a misunderstanding." I said, "Okay." Um, I said, "I went on to specifically ask you if I would be a direct report to him and you said no," trying to recall -- recollect that conversation. He said no, I needed to speak with him, and I told him that I would not speak with him about a witness and he said that was fine. Um, I told him that I did not want to speak with him -- I did not -- he told me that I didn't have to speak, I could listen to what he had to say and leave.

So direct -- Yaeger is a direct report to the colonel.

He's the major of Support Services and the captain of Patrol. Obviously he now outranks me. Um, he reports to the colonel. I report to the colonel. The discipline comes from Yaeger, not my direct report.

So on Monday the 13th, um --

DS: Let's back up just a second.

BB: Yeah.

DS: So sometime -- we missed when he went from captain of CID to major of whatever.

BB: January the 15th, when I went from the Patrol captain to the PIO, is the same day that he was transferred from Chief Detective of CID to Major of Support Services.

DS: Okay. And the PIO would office reports -- well, they're a direct report to the sheriff.

BB: That's correct.

DS: Okay.

BB: That's correct. That was replaced by another person.

DS: All right.

BB: So I went back to Patrol. He got elevated to Major of Support Services.

DS: All right.

BB: I'm the report to -- even as the Patrol captain, I report to the colonel. He reports to the colonel as the major. So --

DS: Okay.

BB: There's no --

DS: Right.

BB: Um, so I get called into the office and I was -- this was an hour or so -- just a little after an hour after I had spoken to the colonel. And I was pissed. Um, I felt like he let me down. I felt like if you're gonna tell me that I don't have to meet with him, by God, you better stand on your word and you better stand up for me. Um, that did not happen.

Um, I -- so he says -- and this is a corrective counseling session that he gives me on the 13th and says that prior to February the 7th, which is why I bring all this other stuff because he's referencing history prior to February the 7th.

Uh, he says, "I visited you in your office in an attempt to address any perceived conflicts in order to strengthen professional relationships. On February the 7th, while sharing information with Chief Inspector Jenkins, yourself regarding a noteworthy arrest" -- we had an FDLE -- FDLE -- we had evidence that was intercepted going to Jacksonville to be tested, some weed, and they were making an arrest on the guy. It was on camera and all. It was a slam dunk. So they were making the arrest. Well, Jeff had already called me and said, "Hey" -- a week prior and said, "We're gonna be making an arrest on this guy." I said, "Cool. Your case. We turned it over to you guys. Do you need me to do a press release or anything like that? Is Gretel [phonetic] gonna do a press release?" He's like, "I don't know. I don't think so. I'll let you know." Perfect, done, no big deal. Lance is telling me he's educating me that this is what's happening. That's what this part is about.

He says that, um, "My nonverbal communication and tone of voice indicated that you were displeased with having to converse with me. Despite that conversation being very brief, you interrupted me several times to make unnecessary comments." He says, "On February the 8th, you sent me an electronic mail in an attempt to set your personal expectations of me as a major. A deputy sheriff assigned to the Court Security Bureau is prohibited from being insubordinate to a sergeant assigned to the Uniform Patrol. The same applies for a captain and major, regardless of the departments in which they serve. The ACSO expects you will treat all employees with respect. It is my expectation that you will treat your superiors, me included, in a respectful manner at all times. Future occurrences will result in progressive discipline." I was like, yeah, I could see the writing on the wall; I know where this is going.

Um, I did make a comment in that that, you know, look, you beat me to the sheriff. You know, look, I -- you know, you beat me to the sheriff. I wanted to go speak to him and explain some of the backstory here, but you beat me to it. Um, I wasn't happy that my colonel did not stand up for me and defend me, and as a result, this is what happened. It sits in my file for a year. I didn't think -- you know, I was -- I was perturbed. People don't typically get, uh, discipline, corrective counselings and they're happy, please, thank you, give me another, you know. No, doesn't happen like that. So, um, I signed it and, um, that was that.

Um, the next day is -- I'm sorry. So I had -- I want to note that there were three documented conversations with Colonel Scott where he told me that he would have a conversation with Yaeger with the knowledge of Yaeger going and violating the chain, circumventing me. It's apparent the conversations I don't believe occurred and Yaeger just disregarded it. Um, in my opinion, he gaslights me because he -- it triggers a reaction. And that's obviously something that I need to learn to manage, but, um, I just -- I don't have any respect for him. Um, he went from the rank of a deputy sheriff to the rank of major in 22 months. Um, I believe that he stepped on a lot of people to get there and I told him that in one of our conversations when -- when I confronted him about calling my supervisor -- or my counterpart in on September the 24th and he -- he says, "I don't have an agenda." But clearly he -- he does and it worked and now he's promoted. Um, so that is the foundation that -- that started it.

So, um, my son is getting married -- Clayton, the second twin, the younger twin, is getting married on the 18th. So I took off Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. The wedding was on Saturday. Obviously Wednesday, Nick was found dead from suicide and, um, awful, awful, awful. Um, we go to the apartment where Nick was because the shift that Nick was assigned to, my husband and I collectively have supervised that shift for the last 11 years. It was he or it was I. So those were our people.

Um, and I get on scene and I see Lance and I'm civilized. I'm obviously upset, crying, and, um, he's overly sympathetic in which -- whatever. It was fine. The thing that really bothered me the most was that -- at one point, you know, I was having a conversation with someone else. My concern was that it wasn't gonna be treated -- I don't want to say respectfully. Obviously you don't treat suicides like line-of-duty deaths.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: And I wanted there to be a show of respect for Nick despite the fact he took his own life. I didn't -- I didn't want them to take away from what he brought to our agency. It was a very, very, very traumatic situation for everybody. And Lance was like, "No, no, no, no. We're gonna show up. We're gonna do everything." Fine. He strokes my arm and he's like, "Take care of yourself." He goes, "Go be a mother hen to your deputies." And my husband is standing right next to me. He's like, "I thought you were gonna kill him." And I said, "Nope. I'm good. Got the corrective counseling. I'm good, I'm good, I'm good." So we went about our business. I had no idea that he had launched an investigation on me on February the 14th. I got a phone call and someone said, "Hey, um, he's coming after you. That's all I'm gonna say." And I said, "Okay. All right."

So the 14th, uh -- I'm sorry. I was off that week. Um, this person had said, "Please don't do this. Her son's getting married. Don't ruin" -- family was coming in from out of state. "Um, don't ruin this, um -- don't ruin her week. Family -- it's not the right time."

So I come back to work on the 20th and, um, yeah, I wasn't happy. I wasn't happy at all. I had a suspicion there was something coming, so I -- I sat there and waited. The 22nd was a Wednesday. I got a phone call -- or an email from his secretary and it was titled "Meeting" and it said that, um, I needed to report to a meeting in the suite at 3:00. And -- sorry. Um, yeah, she says that I have a note, uh, request that she reaches out to me to notify me that my attendance is required at a 1500 hour meeting in the admin suite today. She said, "I was unable to reach you at your desk, so I'm sending an email so you have timely notification." I knew that -- I knew that's what was coming.

So I, um, go down there and I sit outside of his office, and a couple minutes later another captain, uh, Steve Maynard, comes from, um, Judicial Services and Training. He sits next to me. And a couple minutes later, Lance calls him into his office and then he calls me into his office.

So we sit down. Um, and I could see there's a bunch of paperwork laid out. I could see a pocket recorder, virtually identical to that one, sitting right there on the desk in front of me, and, uh, I knew what time it was. So he, um, proceeds to tell me that, um -- hold on one second. I'm referring to my notes that I placed in my phone a couple hours after. Is that okay?

KR: Sure.

DS: Yes, ma'am.

BB: Okay. All right. Suspected the meeting would be for me to be noticed that I was under administrative investigation. I arrived before 1500, sit outside Yaeger's office. Yaeger walks in from the hall. I say, "Hi." He says, "Hi." I reply, "Hi." Proceeds to his office. Steve comes in and sits beside me outside the office. We're called in. Um, I close the door and I sit down. I see several documents on his desk with a pocket recorder. Yaeger turns on the recorder, proceeds to read me the confidentiality agreement and Garrity. He tells me that he will be asking me some questions, and I explain to him that as a subject employee, uh -- well, first I ask him, "Am I under investigation? I never received a notice of administrative investigation." He said, "Yes." And I said, um, "As a subject employee, I will not be making any statements without my representative present." And he recanted, said, "No, no, no. My intent is to not ask you any questions at this time, but maybe in the future." I said that seemed odd to me. I wasn't given a notice of administrative investigation.

So I asked, "Am I under investigation?" He said, "Yes." He gives me the allegation sheet alleging insubordination, uh, with him listed as the complainant and, um, he gives me copies of the witness statements, my corrective counseling, the email, obviously the accompanying documents, um, that I sent to him, his email back to me. He gives me a blank administrative investigation response form and then tells me that I need to fill that form out and submit it back to him preferably within 24 hours; however, if I need more time, just to email him. I knew that wasn't right. That's not how administrative investigations go. I've handled several and I'm -- I'm not 100 percent, but I'm about 85 percent solid in how administrative -- so I knew immediately, right off the bat, something wasn't right.

So I said, "Okay." I got copies of my documents. Um, even though I don't have my confidentiality and my Garrity copy for some reason, I -- I don't know that I got those. Um, I asked for a copy of the, um, conversation, the -- the -- the interview that we had in his office. He said he would get it to me. And, um, I asked him if that was all and he said, "Yes." And I said, "Okay. Can I go?" And he said, "Sure." So I got up and I left, calm, cool, sweet Becky. I knew what time it was.

Um, I get my stuff and I go to leave and, um -- um, I'm walking out in the parking lot and I'm like, wow, that just happened. I got a corrective counseling on Monday and just a little over 24 hours later, um, he doesn't like my tone, he doesn't like my demeanor, and he launches an insubordination investigation against me. Okay.

I hear somebody holler my name in the parking lot. I turn around and it's Steve Maynard and he's like, "Hey, are you okay?" And I go, "Yeah, I'm good." He goes, "You sure?" And I go, "I'm good, Steve. I'm good." He goes, "Well, I told Lance that I was gonna come out here and check on you." And I go, "I'm good." He goes, um, "I'm very proud of you." And I said, "Thank you." And he goes, "I was sitting there praying don't lose it, don't lose it, don't lose it." And, uh, he goes, um, "As soon as you got up and walked out of the door, Lance said, 'Oh, my God, that was so professional.'" And I said, "Yeah, yeah." So, um, he left. He said, "Go home and, uh, take care of yourself." And I said I would. And, um -- um, he said I did a good job maintaining my composure.

Um, that's where we are. So obviously I contacted Attorney

Frank and I explained to her what had happened, um, and I dropped off my paperwork from the administrative investigation that I had received at that time and, um, she then sends the email with three-day notice for the notice of the 112 violations identifying five of the violations, um, and that they needed to be cured. Um, I believe it was the fourth day that an email was sent for the compliance review and, um, she was since told by our general counsel, Jake Rush, that, um, the violations did not support a compliance review board, and so here we are.

Um, I'm pretty unnerved that I received a corrective counseling because of a personality conflict with someone that I have a history with who does things to gaslight me and, um, create a reaction, um, but I accept responsibility. It's my -- it's my responsibility to not allow that person to do that to me. I recognize that. Um, I did not think that it justified corrective counseling, certainly.

Um, there is a number of other people in the Criminal Investigations Division that also received corrective counselings; however, none of them led to, um, an administrative investigation for insubordination, especially within 24 hours. So I didn't even have the opportunity to correct my behavior, modify my behavior -- modify my behavior. And in my opinion, it was pretty evident that when he served me with the -- or he noticed me -- rather, I asked if I was under administrative investigation and I -- I acted completely calm, that clearly that corrective counseling worked. So really, um, it didn't set well with me that that was the route that he was choosing to take and I felt like it was just some more "I outrank you and, um, this is what's gonna happen."

So, um, that's where we are. I think a lot of this stems from my son's shooting. I think he was hell-bent that he was gonna conduct his self in a certain way and make himself look like he, um, was something that -- that he didn't have a role in. And, um -- um, I think it's pretty -- pretty sad that my son, you know, is penalized and not allowed to return to his shift where he is -- you know, he felt like, um, he had done something wrong. The sheriff never came to see him at the scene. He never came to the station to see him. He never called him to his office to thank him for doing his job, never engaged him. On January the 10th, 12th, when he told me -- when he asked me if I wanted to be in the PIO position, I told him on that day that it really bothered me that he had never engaged my son, he never thanked him for doing his job; he felt like he had done something wrong. And I'll give him credit. Within an hour he called my son to his office and said, "Thank you for doing your job." Well, it's nine months too late.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: That's your job. You should have been there the night of. Nevertheless, it was done. Um, that's where we are.

KR: So the major calls you in to notice you of this admin investigation. None of this has ever gone through PSU or --

BB: OPS?

KR: OPS. Thank you.

BB: No, sir. He was the complainant and he was the investigating supervisor. Our policy says that if complaints come in, they can come in in the form of writing, verbal, email, however, um, and that if you receive a complaint, that the complaint is to go to the direct supervisor.

Well, Colonel Scott is my direct supervisor. The complaint -- Lance could have filled out the complaint response form, could have gone straight to the colonel, as it should have. It wasn't. He was allowed to investigate me, be the complainant. It's very biased, very one-sided. Right? So, um -- and the approval chain was the colonel, the undersheriff, and the sheriff. Well, all of them had already known because he told me during the, um, corrective counseling that they had all been made aware of what was going on naturally by -- by the executive assistant's, "Oh, are your ears burning?" Clearly they had already been -- they knew what he was doing.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: Um, which proves his intent in my opinion. Um, it should have been the colonel's responsibility to take care of it, but he didn't, um, and, in my opinion, wasn't given the -- afforded the opportunity to do it.

Um, yesterday -- so the three days and the 10 days and the compliance review and all of that, um, occurred and yesterday I was at work and, uh, the lead inspector of the Internal Affairs, OPS, called me on the phone and said, "Hey, are you in the office?" I said, "Yes." He said, "I have some paperwork to give to you." Well, I thought it was for Sergeant Davis. I said, "Okay." He said, "I'll be there in a minute." All right.

So he comes over and, um, hands me a sustained, uh, notice of administrative suspension, um, from the sheriff to me sustaining insubordination, uh, with two days' suspension and 12 months of disciplinary probation. Um, it is -- it is incredibly suspicious to me that the witness statements that were given in the corrective counseling are pretty spot on, but there is a lot of information that is included in these witness statements in the investigation that appear to be very embellished, uh, in order to portray one side of this.

Um, I'm pretty -- I'm not quite sure how, um, an investigation is complete and thorough if you don't investigate a subject employee. That's really -- I mean, you don't -- you don't handle investigations like that on the street typically, so I'm not quite sure -- when I'm protected under 112, I'm not quite sure why that's -- that's how they're choosing to operate during administrative investigations either. So, um, it's troubling. It's very troubling to me.

So I, um -- that is Kelvin. He was my former coworker. Obviously he is aware of the history and pattern of behavior here between Lance and I. And, um -- um, I asked him if I would be fired if I refused to sign it and I told him -- I -- I said, "I'm not gonna put you in that position. I'll sign it, no big deal." Signed it. And, um, he gave me a hug, several hugs, and said take care of myself. I told him I would and he left.

So, um -- um, that's where we are. Obviously I have three days to meet with the undersheriff if I wish to have a Loudermill. And, um, coincidentally, um, the chain of command, um, Captain Jenkins recommended two days. Colonel Scott recommended two days, no -- no probation. Um, Lance Yaeger recommended termination, termination. Uh, the undersheriff recommended 80 hours without pay and 12 months disciplinary probation, um, citing that as a member of the command staff, which I recognize that I am, that I am held to a higher standard and I need to treat everybody just so, but that I don't have any -- you know, it made me feel like, well, I don't -- that's a two-way street. That's a two-way street. You don't get to treat people just however you want because you hold a higher rank and then -- you know, then you get to potentially ruin their career.

So, uh -- and the undersheriff concurred. He -- he gave two days and 12 months disciplinary probation. I also find this suspect because the day that I spoke with the sheriff when he offered me the PIO position in January, he said to me, "Becky, I really like your style. I really like your style." He said, "You're a no-nonsense kind of person and you don't take crap off of anybody." And I said, "Sheriff, why should I? That's not how I operate. I appreciate that." It made me feel good that he knew that I could handle my own, I can run the Patrol Division and there was no issues, yet now I have a guy that has a higher rank than me and he's being allowed to come after me, potentially ruin my career.

I just entered DROP a month ago. I'm in my first month of DROP, so I'm a little, uh, passionate when it comes to my money and my retirement and my 30 years of service here. My family collectively has given 65 years of service to this agency. I have been here since I was 22 years old. This is my home. These people are my family. Um, and as difficult as it is in law enforcement, I think you have to establish yourself and not tolerate being harassed by anybody. So -- KR: Did they do the compliance review on the, uh, 112 violations?

BB: The -- the -- it is -- it is in the works. An email was sent, um --

DS: But they disciplined you without -- without, uh --

BB: They didn't cure the 112 violations.

KR: Cure the 112.

BB: There were five total, correct. That is --

DS: What was the initial thing that he gave to you, um, before -- before he called you in?

BB: Before he called me in?

DS: Right, to notify you that, uh, he was --

BB: I received an email from his secretary telling me it was a meeting.

DS: But when you -- he gave you a corrective counseling?

BB: He did. He gave me a corrective counseling.

DS: Okay. Is that not, um, in your -- in your hierarchy of discipline?

BB: It is. Yes, it is.

DS: Okay.

BB: It is a form of informal discipline, yes.

DS: Okay. So you received that discipline regarding your -- the claimed insubordination?

BB: That was titled "communication with superiors."

DS: Okay.

BB: The corrective counseling was titled "communication with superiors." The investigation 24 hours later was insubordination.

DS: Okay. Was it two -- two different issues or -- that he -- that he's claiming?

BB: I would say no, they're not -- they're not different at all. He's referencing -- he's referencing, you know, prior to February the 7th, in my opinion, he's -- he's bringing up a whole bunch of situations --

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: -- and he's combining them into multiple situations here to show a pattern. Um, he talks about February the 7th he visited my office, um, to address perceived conflicts. Um, then he's talking about the -- the noteworthy arrest where he did not like my -- he says my nonverbal communication and tone of voice indicated I was displeased with having to converse with him, that I interrupted him as well. That's what he is saying. He's titled it "communication with superiors." Go ahead.

DS: Is there something that you'd like to add, Miss Franks?

BB: Thank you.

DS: Frank.

BB: Captain Butscher, isn't it true that continued within the corrective counseling document with -- first of all, is there anything in your policies that's titled "communication with supervisors"?

BB: No.

BB: And isn't it true that the statement of insubordination is in the final paragraph?

BB: Yes, it is.

DS: So you were disciplined for the same issue and within 24 hours --

BB: Yes.

DS: -- called in without any additional incidents between -- or alleged incidents between you and Major Yaeger?

BB: Yes. Correct.

DS: And the investigation launched.

BB: So I saw him on February 13th, that Monday when I got the corrective counseling.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: I was off from work --

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: -- until February the 20th. So there was a week I didn't speak to him; I didn't see him; I had no interaction with him at all. All of this -- the investigation -- insubordination investigation occurred when I wasn't even at work. So there was no -- there was no --

DS: But after you had received the counseling?

BB: Corrective counseling, that is correct, is when he launched the investigation, yes. And these are -- actually, not that it really matters, but these were handwritten notes from the moment that I was there, um, in the office. It just says the date and time.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: Confidential, uh, I asked for a rep and, uh, Garrity read. Uh, he told me he wasn't gonna ask me questions but that he would later. Um, I really would like to have a copy of that recording because I think there's some pretty telling information that's gonna come out in the administrative investigation because there is some very embellished statements, um -- KR: Have you ever been given the opportunity to review?

BB: No. Review the -- the -- KR: The evidence.

BB: The audio? I -- I was --

DS: And any of the evidence.

BB: I -- go ahead. Go ahead.

DS: Miss Franks?

KR: Miss Frank?

BB: Have you ever been noticed, Captain Butscher, that you've been under administrative investigation?

BB: No, ma'am.

BB: Is it true that you have -- that you've specifically requested the audio recording of the interaction between you and, uh, Major Lance Yaeger?

BB: Yes, I did.

BB: And isn't it true, pursuant to Chapter 112, you shall be provided within 72 hours?

BB: Yes, ma'am.

BB: Have you ever been provided that?

BB: No, ma'am.

BB: Um, isn't it true that it's vital for you to receive that audio because there -- you've been served with a final investigative report by Lance Yaeger? Is that true?

BB: Recommending termination, yes, ma'am, that is correct.

BB: And within that, um -- from a cursory review of that final investigative report, uh, do you believe that you have a good-faith, reasonable basis, uh, that there could be perjury statements contained in there by, uh --

BB: Yes, ma'am, I do.

BB: -- Lance Yaeger?

BB: Yes, ma'am, I do.

BB: And of course, that would, in addition, be falsification of an official document. Correct?

BB: Yes, ma'am, it would be.

KR: So they -- just to reiterate in layman's terms, um, they call -- or the major calls you in. I guess the captain was there as a witness?

BB: He was, yes. And at the end of it, he noted on record that he was only there for the procedural aspect of it. So --

KR: Okay. Major calls you in, tells you he's initiating an internal -- or an administrative investigation against you after turning on a tape recorder, then tells you -- how long was this meeting total?

BB: 15 minutes.

KR: Okay. Does he let you read the statements that he has on --

BB: Yeah, he hands them to me. Yes, he hands them to me.

KR: Okay.

BB: Yes.

KR: And were they -- but they were also audio interviews that he had done?

BB: No, there were no audio --

KR: It was all written? Okay.

BB: Yes, written statements. Yes.

KR: Okay. So he let you read the written statements. And then basically the next thing you know -- I mean, you asked for a rep. The rep notices the 112s, and the next thing you get is a notice of discipline.

BB: That's correct.

KR: Okay. And when did you ask for the audio?

BB: Immediately at the conclusion of the -- the -- at the conclusion of the, um -- the interview. After I had signed all the documents.

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: I requested my copies. He provided the copies. I said, "I would also like a copy of the audio recording." He said, "I'll give it to you." I never got --

KR: And that --

DS: Was that on the recording as well?

BB: Yes, that's on recording. Yes.

KR: Okay. And how long ago was that?

BB: That was on February 22nd.

KR: Okay.

BB: Um, a very troubling statement in here if I can talk about this, one of the statements. It says at the bottom, page number 3, it says, "Once dismissed, Captain Butscher left abruptly." Captain Levy, who was there as my witness, exited; and before getting to the door, Captain Levy looked back at Captain Behl, who was sitting in the chair, and I, while offering a facial expression which indicated he was shocked by Captain Butscher's behavior.

Um, additionally, Captain Behl made a comment that, um, on February the 14th, while dropping off her witness statement, Captain Behl verbally expressed her disappointment in Captain Butscher's behavior during the corrective counseling session, adding she would never treat an animal in the manner in which Captain Butscher treated me. Captain Behl noted Captain Butscher staring at me intensely, adding she believed Captain Butscher was going to knock over the plant on my desk to come over my desk where I sat. Captain Behl provided a two-page witness statement from which was digitally signed. So it goes from --

BB: Are -- are any of those comments contained within that written statement, Captain Butscher?

BB: No, ma'am. No, ma'am. No, ma'am. Um, in fact, Captain Levy points out that, um, Major Yaeger started the conversation -- this was during the corrective counseling session -- um, to inform me that -- about a discussion from the command staff meeting. That was the February 7th -- felt that Captain Butscher was slightly aggressive towards him, felt her nonverbal and verbal communications were disrespectful from her position as a captain to his, a major. Major Yaeger stated he was going to document this in a corrective counseling session. Captain Butscher scooted her chair up to his desk to accept the paperwork to review it. Major Yaeger stated he would read it to her. Captain Butscher stated she could read it herself.

It's pretty demeaning to me as a 30-year law enforcement veteran, you're gonna read to me as I'm a five-year-old child? I didn't appreciate that. Nevertheless, he said, "I'm gonna read it to you anyway." And he did. Um, I signed it and, um -- when it was done. Um, Major Yaeger sat down after he brought me my copy and, uh, stated that he wanted this working relationship to be professional, and Major Yaeger stated even though he's not in my chain of command, he is a major and I am a captain and respect needs to flow both ways. Well, I have that same expectation of him.

Um, Major Yaeger gave Captain Butscher a copy of the corrective counseling and we both left. During the time of the meeting, Captain Butscher was already upset prior to walking into Major Yaeger's office because he had told me I didn't need to speak to -- did not need to speak with him. It is my understanding there are some past issues between both Captain Butscher and Major Yaeger. During the meeting, I don't feel that Captain Butscher was being insubordinate but upset with the situation. There were other issues going on in the near time frame with transfers and poor communication with Captain Butscher that Captain Butscher felt Major Yaeger did when Captain Butscher was the PIO.

Um, Captain Behl says that while she does not know the intimate details of why Major Yaeger and Captain Butscher do not get along, it is no secret they do not appear to like each other. I also understand Captain Butscher is likely under a high degree of stress because of several factors, such as staffing shortages, experience in Patrol Operations, and a high degree of organizational changes, such as only being in the PIO role for a couple weeks. We are all human and at times we react -- we can react negatively even in what should be a professional environment. She says, However, I also believe the sheriff holds his command staff in a higher level of authority and responsibility. We are required to be polite and professional, have the ability to set aside personal feelings in order to interact in respectful way even if others do not. Captain Butscher did not overtly refuse to sign or comply with Major Yaeger's corrective counseling; however, I do not consider Captain Butscher's verbiage, demeanor, tone, and body language during the meeting to be at all professional or respectful of his superior rank or position.

That's a far cry different from what she wrote in this other investigation, that I was gonna come across the table.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: So, um --

BB: And Captain Butscher, isn't it true that you've never received an audio recording of -- of any form of statement from Behl?

BB: Correct.

BB: The only thing that you've been provided merely is a --

BB: Written --

BB: -- written statement from --

BB: That's correct.

BB: -- Behl. And just to clarify, the written statement that Behl signed is grossly different than the assertions and the statements that Major Lance Yaeger placed within his own investigative report?

BB: Very much so. Very, very much so. Very much so. Um, can I proceed?

DS: Sure.

BB: Um, this is -- I'm not sure that this is completely relevant, but in my opinion it's relevant. This is an article that's written by a sergeant from a law enforcement agency. It's called "Bullying in Law Enforcement." It's an "End of Silence." And this is what we're dealing with right now at the Sheriff's Office. There is no, um -- it's agencywide and it's coming from the top and it's coming most specifically from people like Major Yaeger. Um, he is well aware that he is not respected, he is not liked, he did not earn his rank, and he is hell-bent that he will discipline you if you do not respect him, period.

Regardless, there have been multiple conversations with people, there have been multiple counseling sessions, there's been multiple, um, closed-door conversations that you will engage him and, um -- and if you don't, there will be consequences. Um, we are -- he's a bully and, uh, it affects morale. Um, it doesn't only affect individuals, but the entire department in terms of morale, productivity, recruiting difficulties, and litigation. That is where we are. That is where we are. We've been dealing with this for two years, um, and it's destructive. It's a very toxic work environment. Nobody wants to come to work. Um, people are medicated more than they've ever been.

If there's one positive thing that has come from this, it is that we have all like (sound effect) come together. It is like camaraderie like I don't know. We obviously had a suicide. Two of the things as the Patrol captain that I feared the most were suicide and a line-of-duty death. Well, shit, we've already had one. We've had one. I'm not gonna settle for a line-of-duty death. I'm not gonna -- I'm gonna do everything I can.

I've reached out to many people. I genuinely care about my people. I'm called Mama Bear. Um, I don't coddle them. I hold them accountable. I love them. If I love them, good. If I don't, I tell them; they know it. It's a tough love kind of mentality. It's a woman thing, too. So, um, I'm proud of it and I love it and I've been doing it and I feel like it's worked. Um, that's where we are.

Um, one of the very first things that happened, uh, when the sheriff came in was that we -- we didn't have a swearing-in ceremony. He came in. Nobody was sworn in. Uh, we have deputies to this day that went through field training, um, and have not been sworn in. We've not had an oath-of-office ceremony. Nobody's sworn in. And --

KR: Were you called in to sign new oath of offices?

BB: No. No. Um, one of the very first things that occurred was we, um, right off the bat -- June 15th, 2021, I was in the Civil Department at that time. Um, excuse me. Um, we were told -- so we have our over-vests that we wear. Right? And there's a Velcro patch on the back historically says "Sheriff." All 67 counties wear them. They say "Sheriff." Until now.

Uh, we were told that there's only one sheriff and, um, it's Sheriff Clovis Watson. Um, they stripped us of our sheriff Velcro patches off of our vests and they were replaced with deputy patches. Um, that occurred in June. People were like, what is going on? We all know who the sheriff is. It's a matter of identity for us. All the other 67 counties and their deputies all -- everybody wears sheriff everything. What is this about? People were very pissed off about that. There was no justification for it at all.

So I sent an email to my people, "Hey, you have your new deputy Velcro patches that will replace the sheriff. It's currently affixed to your vest. Please get with me when you come in." That was June 15th. November 20th, 2022, we got an email back. I guess they had an epiphany and decided, gee, maybe we shouldn't do this to these people, and we got all new sheriff patches again. So we wasted about $2600 purchasing brand-new sheriff, uh, Velcro placards to put on the back of our vests when they shouldn't have taken away. It was said to me that, um, just that, that there's only one sheriff and, um, so they strip us of that.

Um, staffing is awful. Uh, oh, here's one other thing. So September 23rd, 2021, we had an officer-involved shooting in the city of Newberry. Um, our deputy shot and killed a guy. And that very same night, everything was fine. Our deputy was good. The suspect was dead. FDLE got called. And within probably three hours of that call, um, Nassau County Sheriff Bill Leeper called, said, hey, they had a line-of-duty death. One of their deputies was on a traffic stop. He got shot in the face. He was in critical condition and later died. Bill Leeper called sheriffs' offices, said, "I need everybody from all the surrounding counties, send your SWAT teams to me. I gotta find this guy." Everybody went from the surrounding counties but Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Sheriff said no. We were like, what the hell? So we didn't go. So right off the bat we were like -- people are like, what is going on?

We have been a premier agency for a long time. We're part of RDSTF. We're part of the HIDTA, the whole TFO stuff with the FBI, all kinds of stuff. We -- we have been functioning like a well-oiled machine until two years ago.

Um, our staffing is awful. We have lost close to 300 employees in the last two years. We have lost 80, we call them gun-toters, law enforcement officers. That's just on the patrol side. In our county we have 969 square miles to manage, we have 11 zones, and we're approximately 300 short. In the Patrol Division right now we are 25 bodies short. Um, we are robbing Peter to pay Paul every day and every night and they're exhausted. It's been two years.

Um, we -- we have an evening shift that, um, we had seven FTEs each shift, so 14 deputies. We have two on each currently. I have been begging and asking to either disband the evening shift, um, and absolve them into the day shift and the night shift. It's only two. We started out with seven and now everybody has left and we're now down to two. We can't do it as a campaign promise. I have been allowed to temporarily reassign them but only for a brief period of time, not for any lengthy period of time. Well, that doesn't really do me any good. This is a long, protracted event. Nobody's coming into this profession. Nobody's coming to our agency. And it's causing --

KR: Let me get some clarification. You have a night shift and a day shift. So you work twelves.

BB: Yes.

KR: And this evening shift would be a high-profile for the lapsed hours or anything or --

BB: Just a two-to-two overage, coverage.

KR: Okay.

BB: That's all that it is.

KR: Just to put extra people out --

BB: Yep.

KR: -- during the busy time.

BB: Correct. We had a CHIP Unit, which was prior administration. We had a PCIU, which our Police Criminal -- uh, Patrol Criminal Interdiction. It was dissolved so they could come back to the road. We had an Intelligence-Led Policing Unit in our Criminal Investigations Division. They were dissolved, came back to the road. Um, the only proactive unit that we have now are our Traffic Unit. We have a HIDTA Unit on the Interstate. Not a HIDTA. It's our Interstate guys.

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: Um, and we have two Rural Services deputies. I've been desperately begging to dissolve those units. We cannot justify having -- we're functioning with 11 deputies and sometimes we're functioning with nine. We have 11 zones to cover. That is critical staffing.

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: Minimum staffing per our directive is 13. We're rarely at 13. So when you have 11 and it's covering 11 zones, well, if you have somebody that wants to take off, somebody's sick, somebody's got training, you're automatically behind the eight ball and you have nobody covering. I have a huge issue with us not having zones covered. As a taxpayer in this county, I have a huge problem with that, huge. I live in the -- in the -- in the zone that, um, has been left unmanned, if you will, because of staffing.

Um, and the deputies are -- you know, the deputies can't get time off because of staffing. The deputies that are working, um, are constantly being asked to cover the other shift because of staffing. They're wore out. They're exhausted. They're physically, mentally, psychologically burned out. And I don't really have the autonomy to do anything about that. I can't move evening shift. I can't dissolve traffic. I can't dissolve the Rural Services, uh, which is what I want to do, um, to backfill to give them some relief. There's no relief.

KR: What was this campaign promise you mentioned?

BB: So the campaign promise was the evening shift. That was promised throughout the campaign. Well, that's great. That's great. Our little Patrol Criminal Interdiction Unit, uh, was not necessarily a campaign promise, but it was a specialized unit. You can't justify -- it looks terrible when you're running with zones uncovered and when you have two deputies, which most times what we're doing is we're backfilling on days and nights anyway, and it's just -- it's ineffective.

Um, all of the transfers that -- so as the Patrol captain, you should have the autonomy, and our directive says that I have the ability to move people and move cars. Um, we had a command staff meeting back in October and the undersheriff announced that all transfer of any personnel, uh, will be approved by the sheriff. So I had like two, four, six -- I don't know, 12 transfer IOCs in our office correspondence requesting to go different places within the Patrol Division. I could not make that decision myself to do that because that had to go to the sheriff to make that decision. So here we sit.

We have internal office correspondence that comes down that is submitted in May, May 9th of 2022, I don't get a response back until February 6th of 2023. Months and months and months and months and months we sit here, there's no communication. We're like, what do we do? Approvals are not made. Um, appointments to special teams are not made in a timely manner at all, yet we -- we have to make sure that our staff is sent up to them quickly, but their response back down to us, it's -- it's ineffective. Um --

KR: Is your SWAT team full?

BB: No. Um, as a matter of fact, my son is on the list right now. I believe it was back in July, August maybe, uh, an IOC was sent up appointing a certain number of them to the SWAT team. He's on the list, has yet to be appointed. Um, and for instance, it's -- it's -- it's -- it's difficult to function when you don't have the means, um, to function.

Uh, we have a field training sergeant position, and this sergeant was requested, um, to be the Team 2 field training sergeant. That request was made August 22nd of 2022. We didn't get approval back until, um, February the 1st, 2023, six months later. By that time, the sergeant that we were going to place on this team had already moved to another team. So it's completely a waste of time and it's obsolete; it doesn't matter. There's no timeliness to anything coming back down.

Um, we do have a Co-responder Mental Health Unit. That's a contractual, um, situation. We -- we -- we appointed one deputy to that position and then we went for a period of 10 months with the second position unfilled. I'm like -- I noticed the -- the colonel and I said, "Look, we gotta fill this. This is a contract here. We're gonna lose this contract if we don't fill it." It took 10 months from the time that I noticed him to get this position filled when we had one applicant, one deputy from Patrol, that put in for the position. I said, "Cool. This is easy. We can just have a conversation with him. We can just submit his name up. We can get him appointed. We can -- let's just get this ball rolling." "No, you gotta interview him." The undersheriff said, "No, we gotta interview." We're gonna interview one guy who applied for one position. Um -- KR: Who's the contract with?

BB: It's with Meridian Behavioral Health.

KR: Okay.

BB: So he ended up getting picked, naturally. Um, and again, just another ineffective practice that is just bogging -- it's bogging the system down.

KR: Are those positions still filled?

BB: Yes, they are.

KR: Okay.

BB: Yes. And they're good. They're effective. Again, but those are two bodies that we could use on Patrol. I get the contract. Same thing with our School Resource deputies. There were several School Resource deputies that were transferred out of Patrol into the schools and the excuse was the contract. I understand that. Uh, we're now -- and -- and thankfully, um, some of the supervisors are covering the schools, so it's helped a little bit, um, but Patrol is suffering. Patrol is suffering terribly.

KR: Have you had to change your recruiting, um, qualifications?

BB: Uh, I'm not involved in the hiring process. I don't know.

KR: Okay.

BB: Um, that's another point of contention that I have. I was the Patrol captain and I think that -- at one point I was involved in the, um, law enforcement oral boards. Um, there was a couple captains in there. There was a lieutenant, sergeant, so -- including the field training sergeant who's over the Field Training Program. Um, there was a particular guy that came in, um, wanting to be a deputy sheriff, and at the end of his interview he asked, um, "If you were involved in a shooting, would the sheriff back you?" And one of our sergeants -- that's a very odd question.

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: And she was kind of like -- she said, "No comment." She felt like that was appropriate at the time. The field training sergeant was sitting there and he was like, "We're not gonna talk about that." And, um, that got back to the sheriff, and because no one stood up for him and defended him, they wiped the oral board clean. Removed the field training sergeant from the oral board. He wasn't part of it at all. Removed the captain. I wasn't even at the meeting. I got removed. Um, and replaced them with two-year deputies out of our schools who are contractually bound to be there. They're not supervisors. They're two-year deputies. They hardly have any experience. They're not in a supervisory role, so how are you going to give, you know, a good judgment assessment of someone that's trying to be a law enforcement officer? Um, but I was wiped from that, so I'm like, "Okay, fine."

So, um, we have had -- specifically about that, our HR director, there was a female, a black female that was on night shift. She did not want to be a part of the oral board because she was on night shift. It was too difficult for her to be there at 8:00 in the morning, 8:30 in the morning. So she said, "I really don't want to be a part of this." And I said, "Okay, fine. Perfect, fine. I'm your captain. I can, you know, make -- I'll ask the colonel." And I went to the colonel and I said, "This is -- you know, please, she doesn't want to be a part of this." And he said, "Okay, fine." So she wasn't a part of it anymore.

Next thing I know, um, I walk into one of the -- the oral boards and I'm like, "What are all these people doing?" They had not told us when they wiped the board clean. So there's all brand-new people in there, including the people that we thought we were supposed to go back in there. She's sitting in there. And I said, "What are you doing in here?" "Well" -- I said, "I went to bat for you and I argued to keep you off of this because you're on night shift." And she's like, "Well, I don't want to cause any problems." And I go, "Look, you either want to be on this board or you don't." "Well" -- and I said, "Okay, whatever, fine."

So I emailed the HR director and she said that they were looking for diversity. And I said, "Okay." I said, "Well, how about Heather? She's a white female lieutenant." "Nope. She was on the board last year." I said, "All right. How about Sandy? She's a white female lesbian." She said, "Okay." Never saw her on an oral board. The black female's still on the oral board.

Um, morale is horrific. I've never seen it. I've never seen this. People are beat down. Um, days off are not approved, uh, again, having to cover other shifts as well as our courthouse because they're about 25 bodies down as well. So we're covering each other shifts because most times you can't get a day off unless there's someone that's willing to swap with you. You have to cover the courthouse. You have to go to in-service training. If you're on a special team, you have to go to special teams training. You have to go to court. Um, and it's just -- it's -- it's -- no one can transfer out of Patrol because we don't have the bodies. So we're not gonna make this problem any worse by allowing other people. So they've continued to hold interviews for open positions and then they'll select somebody, but then they'll sit on a list for months and months.

We have a guy that's waited over two years to go to the Interstate because we can't support leaving him -- taking him off the shift. Um --

KR: Are they leaving CID --

BB: They are.

KR: -- special units?

BB: They are. We have a detective right now who, um -- he was going to leave, um, in August. So with our deputy that just died --

KR: You say leave.

BB: He was going to resign. He's gonna resign.

KR: Oh, okay.

BB: Yeah. He's got a business. He was gonna do his -- his political stuff. So he, uh, was going to leave in August. Um, after the situation with Nick occurred, he decided, "You know what? I want to go back to the road. I want to try to help maybe some of the deputies that -- I can maybe reach them. Maybe" -- it really bothered him that Nick died in the manner that he died. So he said, "I want to go back to the road and maybe help them out. I'll stay a little bit longer if I can do that." Sheriff denied it, so his last day is tomorrow. So we have an opportunity to have another person here in place, um, to help out with staffing, but he denies it. He says that the, um -- the -- the resignation has already been approved. There is -- I have documentation from a command staff meeting where it says once it's in green ink, it's a done deal. There's no -- nothing.

KR: How long had he been there?

BB: He's been on the shift -- well, he's been at the Sheriff's Office for five or six years.

KR: Experienced.

BB: Yes. Yes, a good employee. Uh, we have had multiple people that we have had an opportunity -- so obviously retention is a problem. Recruitment is a problem. My priority is retention. I think you need to be taking care of the bottom right now before any more leave. 300 employees, that is unprecedented for the agency. I get it's a nationwide problem, but when you're not doing a damn thing to take care of what you have, you can't -- you can only work these people so much. You can only -- they have to have relief. They have to have a break. And when it's day in and day out and day in and day out, in two years they are worn out. Morale, productivity, you know, all of that, it all comes into play. Um, we've had the opportunity, um, to keep some people and they've just flat out said no, no. Um --

BB: Captain Butscher, can you please clarify, do you recall which month in 2022, uh, Carlton Litzkow's officer-involved shooting occurred?

BB: March 25th.

BB: Do you know what day Carlton Litzkow was put on administrative leave, suspension? Was it the same day?

BB: I would believe so. There was no email that was sent out notifying anybody of that, so, um, I believe it was that same day, yes.

BB: So Deputy Litzkow was placed on administrative suspension from March 25th, 2022, until December 16th, 2022?

BB: Well, he was placed on administrative duty. He was out for a brief period of time and then he was -- he went to the Training Bureau.

BB: Do you recall ever being involved in a chain of command staff meeting where they discussed, um, what shall be the universal process in handling first-time social media violations?

BB: Yes.

BB: Can you tell us about that?

BB: Yes. So, um, I have documentation from a meeting, um, social media violations would be dealt with. First -- first offense would be a corrective counseling, and progressive from there.

KR: That was a memo or -- or --

BB: It was notes that I took from a meeting --

KR: Okay.

BB: -- that was -- it was -- it was either a command staff meeting or it was a commander's meeting that was handled with the colonel.

KR: And the colonel is the number three at the SO?

BB: Yes.

KR: Okay.

BB: Yes. Um, I believe that that also occurred when our former major, Corwine, was here as well, 'cause I have some printed notes and that's not -- that's not how our colonel currently operates. So, um, I believe that that occurred twice, but yes.

Um, I also know -- if you want to -- if I can chime in on that a little bit. Um, January the 12th I was having lunch. This pertains to Sergeant Davis. And I received a phone call from Colonel Scott and he asked me if I had seen Sergeant Davis' Facebook post and I said, "No." Um, I was having lunch." "I don't know. What's it about?" Something about cronyism and racism. And I said, "Okay." I said, "I can have a conversation with him," I said, "but, um -- um, you know, First Amendment, it's a little bit of a slippery slope there." I said, "I don't know that -- you know, I could take a look at it, but I'm at lunch." And I said, "But, um -- and have a conversation with him, but," I said, "you have a meeting scheduled with him on January the 17th. Would you like to -- at 10:00 in the morning." I said, "Would you like to" -- I said -- you know, he said to me, um, Jake Rush had brought that to his attention, our general counsel.

DS: Uh-huh.

BB: I said, "Okay." I said, "You have a meeting coming up next Tuesday, uh, on the 17th at 10:00. Would you like to address that with him at that time?" And he said, "Sure, sure, I'd like to do that." I said, "Okay, fine. I'll leave it at that." Spoke to Sergeant Davis after he met with the colonel, not a word was said about it.

Um, I'm also aware of the other situation with the hotdog bun and Major Yaeger. My husband was on scene at that party. He did not see it firsthand. It was a running joke at the time. There were several other employees that were there. The colonel mentioned this while we were speaking and I said, "I am aware of that." Um, there are several current employees that were there that night that witnessed that." And I said -- and, uh, at that time my husband was on evening shift with Lance Yaeger, and Lance -- David stepped to him their next night that they came to work and said, "Did you really do this?" And he goes, "Yeah, I did it. I was walking around telling people to put ketchup and mustard on it." And so it was a running joke, and now all of a sudden it's a terminable offense. Um, yeah.

Um, we are unstable. We are unstable for multiple -- our agency is unstable. We, um -- since January of 2021 we've had 146 transfers, 60 promotions, six demotions. Um, we are unstable; and I say that not mentally; but professionally. We are not able to settle, to learn our jobs, to be effective employees because you're in position for a very brief period of time and you're moved. Um, there were -- the last two sets of promotions were not necessary. We are very supervisory heavy.

KR: Are the motions -- or not the promotions, transfers a result of the short staff, or why all the transfers?

BB: No.

KR: Sorry?

BB: No, they're not a result of the short staff. No.

KR: Okay. Are they -- is there a reason for the transfers given?

BB: No. A lot of the moves are -- so for instance, Internal Affairs, uh, they have been -- I think they've had four overhauls. Um, investigations go up. It's -- it's apparent. Investigations go up. Recommendations are made. Allegations are made. Investigations are conducted as -- and the recommendation of discipline that comes back down if that is not favorable or it's questioned or not the way someone may perceive it should have gone, they remove the inspector. There are also some investigations that have come back down that have, um -- were not favorable, um, specifically my son's shooting. I think I can talk about that.

Um, the investigation was in process and, uh, based on the statement that he was not going to be allowed to return to work by the sheriff, uh, until he spoke with FDLE, after he was cleared by FDLE, um, they felt like there was a supervisor on scene that specifically told them to not speak to FDLE. And so the undersheriff, um, ordered discipline for the people that did not speak, and the inspector at the time, chief inspector, um, conducted an inquiry and reinterviewed all the witnesses again, trying to find out which supervisor, presumably my husband -- he was the watch commander that was on scene -- there was a sergeant on the scene -- um, if they had told them to not speak to FDLE. They were headhunting, my opinion, um, I think at the direction of Lance Yaeger because there's -- there's no -- the sheriff -- the sheriff would not -- I don't think he would have come up with that thought on his own.

And, um, so they reinterviewed them all over again. My son was never interviewed. Um, there was a question that the undersheriff was like, "What? You guys never interviewed him?" They don't understand the investigative process. Clearly they don't understand it and, if I can speak freely, um, I don't think they care about it. It's their way or no way.

KR: Who was the chief investigator that reinterviewed all those people?

BB: That was Captain John Shawbrush [phonetic].

KR: Okay. Who's since left the agency.

BB: No, sir. He's the --

KR: Oh, he's still --

BB: He's our CID captain right now.

KR: Okay. Okay.

BB: Yes. Yes. Um, yeah. Um, very troubling to me that -- that the concern -- the -- the -- the concern was the sheriff's feelings over my son's rights. I have a huge problem with that. We all raised our right hand. Right? We have to uphold the Constitution. So does he. You can't take his -- you can't strip him of his rights because he's an employee. That doesn't supersede -- his employment status doesn't supersede your constitutional rights.

Um, that is very troubling to me, very, very troubling to me, because everyone knows what happened. Everyone knows that he pled the Fifth, and now I don't know what impact that is gonna have on a deputy that's involved in a shooting in the future. Are they gonna be scared to plead the Fifth? Are they gonna say something and make an incriminating statement against them self that could potentially hurt them? I don't know.

Um, that's part of the instability. We have directives and policies that are in place. The day-to-day operations are not -- they're conflicting. The verbal direction conflicts with the written direction. So we're constantly like, well, what do we do? What do we do? We're not quite sure. The rules of engagement vary from day to day, um, which makes my job very difficult.

Um, we had multiple -- there's a lot of -- again, the morale stuff. There's a lot of, um -- the sheriff won't show his face.

In November of 2022, we had a Thanksgiving luncheon because they -- we had a Thanksgiving luncheon out behind the back of the building and nobody came. Nobody wants to be there. Nobody wants -- nobody wants to be there. Um, people were getting food and, uh, Mom, the Drug Task Force secretary who's been there for 42 or 44 years, was walking, pushing her little walker and Lance was carrying her food, and I happened to meet them at an intersection coming down the hallway and, uh, she's like, "Where is the sheriff? Where is the sheriff?" And Lance said, "Sheriff" -- I mean, uh, "Mom, the sheriff don't like to be around people that don't like him." And she said, "Well, that's stupid. He should be here. This is his agency. These are his people."

I had live-saving awards to present to a night shift. Happened to be on October, um -- hold on. It was October the 11th because that's the same night that my son was cleared by FDLE. So when I found out that afternoon -- that morning that he wasn't, um -- that the sheriff did not show up for the meeting, um, I had already scheduled -- our awards have to be sent to the sheriff's secretary in order for him to decide whether or not he wants to come and present them or not. He has yet to present them. He's presented a medal of valor for a shooting and that was all that he's presented.

Um, that particular day I was baffled. I'm like, why is he not here? The PIO at the time, Captain Behl, came to my office and said that he was in the building. He came in at 1:30. So I thought to myself, okay, he's gonna come in here, he's gonna sign off on Carlton being cleared. No. She went in the office at 5:30 to have a conversation with him and he totally ignored her, played on his phone. The secretary said, you know, "Look, um, sorry if the sheriff doesn't respond to you in a timely manner in your text messages. Um, if he doesn't respond to you in a timely manner, he doesn't value you or doesn't view what you're saying to him is important." She's like -- she's a direct report as the PIO. She was dumbfounded.

Um, she comes down to my office and she's like, "You're not gonna believe what just happened." So she told me and I'm like, "Wow, that's crazy." I said, "So he is in this building." So he was there on October 11th and could have signed to have my son come back to work but didn't. He also could have shown up that night because that was the same night that I had scheduled for him to present life-saving awards, five of them to one particular shift. I arranged four times for him to present life-saving awards on this same shift, never showed up. So the deputies are like, "Where's our boss? Where's the sheriff? Why is he not showing up?" So I said, "I'm not making arrangements. I'm not scheduling this anymore. I'll just go present them myself." And that's what ended up happening, because they felt let down. They were like -- oh, they were excited. They came early, they shined their boots, they looked good, and he wasn't -- he wasn't showing up. So, you know, we want to see our -- we want to see our leader. Right?

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: He's the leader of the agency. We need to see him.

Um, we implemented the evening shift back in March of 2021 and it was great. At that time we had two vacancies patrol-wide. They took the ILP Unit out of Detectives and they brought them back to -- I think it was five or six deputies. They helped backfill.

KR: ILP?

BB: Intelligence-Led Policing Unit.

KR: Okay.

BB: Uh, brought them back to the road, which only -- which put us down two. That's two years ago this month. We are now down 25 positions. I have five in process with FWC right now. I have one in process with the Department of Ag. I have one in process with, um, an outside business. So that's seven right there. We have seven trainees that are getting cut loose May the 7th. Well, there's a lot that can happen from now till May the 7th. We are approximately 100 down sworn gun-toters agency-wide. There's not a lot that seven are gonna do to backfill that. So --

KR: 25 are in Patrol. Where are the other gun-toters?

BB: Um, the courthouse, um, Civil, and, uh, the Detective Bureau. We have 12 detectives in our Detective Bureau right now. We have no crime analysts. One of our crime analysts was doing the job of two crime analysts, and she submitted an IOC requesting to be compensated for doing the work of two people and Major Yaeger denied it. So she quit. She's in the private sector. Her last day was last Thursday.

So again, instead of making concessions and trying to help with retention, they're just letting people walk out the door. Obviously when you're recruiting law enforcement, from the time you get hired through the academy, if you make the academy, through field training, through the mini academy, I mean, you're talking a year at best. Um, we have, um, an academy that's coming out. I think there's seven of them. They're coming out in April. Well, they won't be available for a year. They're just coming fresh out of the academy. Their graduation's in April. So we'll be -- um, just trying to stop the bleed, it's -- it's very difficult when you don't have the ability to do so. Um, it's -- and they're not doing anything to retain employees.

Uh, we had a deputy that -- I'm sure this guy's already been spoken of. He was -- he was the deputy with us. He retired. He became a green coat at the courthouse. It's within those two years, so he was able -- his standards were still active and he was able to, um -- he decided he wanted to come back and work in the courthouse. Well, typically we don't hire directly in. Um, however, in this situation, he's a good guy, he's a body. We're at that point where it's a body now. And he, um -- because it was within the two years, by contract and by directive he could come back at the rate of pay that he left at. And he questioned the HR director, and the HR director said she couldn't make that decision, that it would have to go to the sheriff. And the fact that that was questioned, the PBA contract was quoted, they terminated him, said he didn't the meet the standards of his probation and terminated him within -- he's one of these transfers -- within two days. Again, there's a body.

We have a guy that had a massive stroke. He worked at the Gainesville Police Department, retired, 20 years at the Gainesville Police Department. He came to the Sheriff's Office. He said, "I got a little more life in me." He had a pretty nasty stroke, nearly killed him, but he recovered. He came, he went through field training. Um, he -- he was hired on the heels of the previous administration, so our sheriff currently was not involved in that process from the beginning. Um, it was understood that he was gonna go to the courthouse. By God, he did 20 years at the Gainesville Police Department, he'd had a near fatal stroke, we're not gonna stick him on midnight shift in Patrol. Yes, let him go to the courthouse. He's a body.

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: Um, he gets through like two phases of field training and they say, "Hey, we're gonna let you go and -- but you gotta go to Patrol first." He's like, "What?" "You've gotta go to Patrol. You've gotta fulfill your obligations in field training. You know, go to Patrol and work a little bit and let's see how you do and then we'll send you to the courthouse." He's like, "I'm not doing that. I've already done nights at GPD. I know how this works. I came here with the expectation and the understanding that I was gonna go to the courthouse." Captain Maynard said, "Yes, this is good." The sheriff said, "I wasn't a part of that process. I didn't agree to that in the beginning." Denied it. He quit. So he wasted all that money, field training, hiring, all of that, everything. Pissed it away, gone. We're dysfunctional at best.

Um, I can leave, but I'm not. I'm not leaving my flesh and blood here. I'm not going to allow this. I -- I am doing everything I can to help. Um, I mean, these are -- these are staffing. This is staffing. Sometimes we have 10; sometimes we have 11; sometimes we have eight.

I mean, here's emails back to Major Corwine back from November 15th of 2021. "In light of our critical staffing in Patrol, I'm gonna send you an updated list of weekly numbers to ensure you're in the loop. Currently Team 2 days has the most vacancies, and I feel passionately that eventually a serious discussion needs to be had about consolidating the evening shift sooner than later. We are encroaching on a busy holiday season, which for many reasons is stressful for many people, including our employees, and it's important that our shifts are staffed with more than less if possible."

November 15th, 2021 is when I sent that email. Here we are. Here we are. I asked to consolidate the evening shift backfill. I provided a, uh, roster showing what that would look like. I was told it was confusing. I said, "If the sheriff would love for me to explain it to him, I'll be glad to come down and explain it." He never seen me. We are offering options to resolve some of these problems and they're falling on deaf ears.

Um, light duty. Deputies are getting injured, have been injured. We have what's called a TRD committee. Historically when you have -- uh, when you have deputies that are injured, um, the Patrol captain should be involved in that process of either approving them to come back to light duty, offer them something to do, or just being a part of the process.

There's a TRD, called a TRD committee that meets Monday and Wednesday. It's the HR director, it is the colonel, it is the chief of staff, um, I believe it's the undersheriff. That is it. No Patrol captains, no Patrol supervisors, no nothing. The phone call that I get is from the colonel that says, hey, do you have a job that you can -- that so-and-so can do? Yeah. Why can't I be -- I've begged. When Major Corwine was here, I said, "Why am I not a part of this process? I'm the Patrol captain. This deals with my people, where I could potentially put them. They're injured. I need to be aware of this." They won't let you guys be a part of it.

KR: When is the last time were you full?

BB: Hmm. Full?

KR: Or at least operationally full.

BB: Five years ago.

KR: Okay. But you said in -- you mentioned having only two openings on Patrol when they took the Intelligence people out.

BB: That's correct. They brought them out of the Detective Bureau.

KR: When was that?

BB: That was in March of 2021.

KR: Of 2021.

BB: March 28th, 2021 they brought them back, yes.

KR: And when did Sheriff Watson --

BB: January 6th, 2021.

KR: Okay.

BB: Yes. Major Corwine was amazing. Um, he was run out. Um, he was very instrumental. He was -- he communicated well. He followed up with us a lot. He met with us a lot. He asked us our opinions and we -- we felt valued because he asked our input. Um, we were -- we were operating as captains as we should.

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: And, um, we don't have that. Major Corwine recognized the -- the problems with staffing, um, and actually admitted to me at the end that, um, the undersheriff told him that we don't put anything in writing and that, um, the staffing reports that were being -- that I was sending to Major Corwine, he wasn't forwarding up. So we had a conversation -- that's probably a month or so, couple months maybe afterwards. I'm like, "What is going on here? I'm sending you emails. I'm offering you solutions to help with the staffing situation here and nothing is coming back. No approvals, no nothing. I'm offering you solutions here."

He's like, "I was told not to send them." And I'm like, "Why?" So he got pissed off. We had a little argument and he got pissed off and he hit "send" and they went up.

So, um, we're trying. We're desperate. We're holding on. A lot of caged animals. We feel like we're on the edge and, um, we're just trying to hold on. Uh, we need relief and we need it now.

Um, you still have very good people that are still driven, that want to do a good job. And, um, I mean, we've never lost 87 gun-toters. We typically will lose maybe one a month or so, 12 a year. We've lost 40, 300 percent. That's crazy. We can't recover from this. And my fear not only is a line-of-duty death. Where the hell are we gonna be in two years from now? If we are at this point right here -- they're taking a lot of the people from the jail. So the recruiting, I blame the recruiting.

Early on, Marion County came up. Billy Woods sent his recruiting team up here to our academy. I didn't know nothing about it. They said, "We're gonna offer you a $5,000 signing bonus. We're gonna give you a conditional offer of hire. We're gonna give you this nice little T-shirt and this nice little cup and come work for Marion County." I'm like, "What the hell are they doing up here?" I said, "Major Corwine, this is what's going on here. What -- what are we doing? Marion just came and took five recruits out of our academy. That should not happen."

And, um, I went to the HR director. We had a staffing -- a recruiting meeting and she said to me, "Sheriff doesn't believe in conditional offers of hire and he doesn't relieve -- doesn't -- does not believe in signing bonuses." And I'm like, "What the hell are we doing here, then? What are we doing here?" So now all of a sudden -- with the commission meeting that we had a couple months ago, now all of a sudden signing bonuses. Now all of a sudden that our former jail director has exposed all of the vacancies at the jail. Now all of a sudden a bonus is -- a signing bonus is -- is a priority. It's not happened yet, but now all of a sudden -- this was mentioned months ago, years ago. Um, and so they're taking people from the jail. So we're just doing nothing but robbing Peter to pay Paul. They're taking bodies from the jail.

We have five right now. So we started with nine -- nine -- we started with 10. We lost two, so we're down to eight, eight recruits right now that are -- they are gonna be solo in May. Five of them have come from other divisions, Comm Center, Fleet. Three of them came from the jail. So what does that do to those other divisions? We're shortcutting our other divisions to make it look like we have staffing in Patrol. That's not -- that's not recruitment. That's not -- that's not recruitment. Um, we're not taking away from what's happening across the country. We understand. We understand what's happening. Uh, it does not negate our responsibility to try to do everything we can to recruit.

Um, I think the word is out. I don't think that we are -- we are revered as we once were. Uh, I think there's a -- our sheriff could do a lot better, and I don't think he's doing his part, and it hurts me terribly because I changed my party affiliation to vote for this man. It troubles me terribly. I have higher expectations of him. So what else?

DS: Miss Frank, anything you'd like to add?

BB: No. Thank you for the opportunity, though.

DS: You've given us a lot to digest.

BB: I'm hurting like everybody else. Right? I bleed just like everybody else. I may hold the rank of captain, but these are my people, and I'm not foolish enough to recognize or foolish enough to think that these people can carry on like this for much longer.

Um, you know, Nick's death was -- not that a -- not that a suicide is ever, um, positive, but it couldn't have happened at a worse time. It just exacerbated the existing environment and it made it worse. It made it worse. There's a lot of things about that case, um, that I don't think are being handled properly, but I'll leave it at that. Um, we don't need another one of those. People are exhausted. They're tired. They're stressed out. And you know as well as I do with your history in law enforcement that you can only manage that for so long. So you're gonna self-medicate with alcohol or you're -- and all other destructive ways. You have to manage it. I'm so thankful for our psychotherapist. He's been amazing, but we're burning up his phone. So, um, I don't want to -- I don't want to lose another employee. We're better than that and we should be taking care of our people and, um, I'm choosing to stay here to help facilitate that. So -- DS: Well, we thank you for taking the time to sit down and talk to us today.

BB: You're welcome.

DS: Um, is there anything else that you would like to add before we conclude?

BB: Intermittent FMLA. He won't allow us to do intermittent FMLA. Um, obviously you're afforded by federal law 480 hours of intermittent FMLA. Historically how that has gone is that we have, um -- an IOC comes up from an employee requesting FMLA and, um, it goes through Human Resources with the accompanying documentation. Historically it just comes back down, an email comes down saying, hey, this person is approved for intermittent FMLA. Um, supervisors manage the hours. Right? It's not -- it's not a big deal. You're not gonna bust the 480 hours. However, um, intermittent FMLA is denied. Sheriff doesn't believe in it and we -- they don't allow it.

We've had several cases come back down denied. So what do they do? Instead of -- and -- and there has been a lot of, you know, um, articulation saying that, look, if I work these days, it helps my shift. I can -- on my days off I can be with my family. They're trying to help their shift and take care of their family and children at the same time. Nope, not doing that. So they say, well, okay, I'll burn my full 12 weeks.

I had three deputies on one day shift that all went out on FMLA 12 weeks. I submitted a two-page IOC to the sheriff saying, "Please, I need you to reconsider this. You are creating a staffing conflict by not allowing intermittent FMLA." Nope, denied. So I don't know where he's coming from. Um, I wish he would ask. I wish he would trust our decision-making. We've been here. We've been here a lot longer than he has and I just wish that it's -- it would be -- it's -- it's so counterproductive, um, and that's why people are leaving. They don't want to be in this environment. It's not healthy. Why? Why when we can go somewhere else? You can go to Marion right now.

KR: Uh-huh.

BB: With less than five years, you can get a 7 grand -- $7,000 signing bonus. You can live in a contiguous county. So you can live in Alachua County and drive to Marion County every day. Now, I'm not foolish enough to think that every agency doesn't have their problems, but I can't help but think that they're not of this magnitude. So staffing being the greatest. I think -- you know, everybody says patrol is the backbone of every single agency, they should be -- we should be coddling those deputies in Patrol. And they're leaving. They're leaving in record numbers. So that's all I have.

KR: I'm good.

DS: Okay.

BB: Thank you.

DS: Thank you again. Thank you.

BB: You're welcome.

DS: Um, it's been a long day.

BB: Yeah.

DS: The time is now 4:35 and we are going to conclude the interview.

WHEREUPON,

GEORGE CORWINE

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Mr. Corwine, can you please state your full name?

A. George John Corwine, C-O-R-W-I-N-E.

Q. And even though I know you, and I know your history, for the record purposes that we're creating, I would like to review with you your educational and employment history. So if you could start by telling me how you're currently employed.

A. I'm currently employed with the Florida Police Benevolent Association. I'm the chief labor negotiator, and I do the union contracts for Ms. Webster.

Q. Briefly describe your educational background.

A. My educational background is, I've got a BA in criminology. I then went on to get my masters in business administration, and I'm currently finishing my masters in nonprofit at Notre Dame.

Q. Are you currently a certified law enforcement officer in the State of Florida?

A. Yes.

Q. And would you briefly review for me your history in law enforcement?

A. So I went to the police academy here in Gainesville, and I was subsequently hired by Sheriff Oelrich. I started at the courthouse. I was a bailiff part-time, if you will. Part-time was 39 hours a week at that time, making $9 and something an hour, but that was -- it was a time when it was very competitive to get into law enforcement.

So I started under Sheriff Oelrich. I worked in the courthouse for about a year and a half. Then I went full-time, went over to the road. I was road patrol. I left road patrol, I went to traffic. I was a motor cop for about five years. After that, I went to warrants. I worked in warrants about a year and a half or so, got promoted, went back to the road as a sergeant. I was on the road as a sergeant for a little bit and then went back to motors as a motor sergeant. You can kind of see the pattern there.

Then I was promoted to the rank of lieutenant. I was patrol lieutenant for a while, and then I went over to patrol support division where I was engaged much more in purchasing and budgeting and things -- more administrative and things of nature. During that time I also became the union president, which this will all kind of tie in later.

I was eventually then promoted to the rank of captain. And then ultimately a good friend of ours had passed away that worked for the union. The union asked me, said, "Hey, come down and work for us." And I was nearing 22, 23 years at that point. I was in the investment program, so I wasn't really tied into the pension.

I left. I went to work for the union, and I was doing basically IAs and mostly contracts, but some IAs. And then I was there until such point in time where I went back to the sheriff's office when Sheriff Watson was elected.

Q. In what capacity were you initially employed by Sheriff Watson?

A. Rank of major.

Q. And what were your responsibilities?

A. I was the -- there was two of us, so you have department of support services, which basically handles CID, the courthouse, training. And then I was the director of operations, which basically encompasses patrol and school resource and K-9, SWAT. And at that time, when I was first brought on, there were two majors at the time; one was Latrell Simmons, and the other one was a David Clark.

Latrell Simmons was moved over to the jail, and somewhere along the line he was subsequently demoted by the sheriff to the rank of captain. And then Major Clark was eventually demoted to the rank of captain, and I was left holding the bag for the entire agency -- which was, as you can imagine, a major undertaking of work -- until such time as Arabella Blizzard was promoted to the rank of major.

Q. When you were in command as a major, who was the captain over in the OPS division?

A. It changed. It changed a lot because that was one of the things that happened, is he made a lot of moves and, you know, lengthy moves, multiple-page personnel orders. So initially, I don't recall. I don't recall who was there when I first got there. I just can't remember.

Q. That's okay. Do you remember any of the individuals who were the captain over OPS while you were employed with the sheriff's office with Sheriff Watson's office?

A. Brandon Kutner was there. Josh Schabruch, I think, was moved. I think that was after I left.

Q. Okay. I want to talk about Brandon Kutner for just a moment. Were you ever involved in a conversation with any of the administration at the sheriff's office regarding Brandon Kutner and either his promotion, demotion, or changes in his position with the sheriff's office?

A. I was not. So I assume you're going to have a follow-up question to that.

Q. Not if you have something more to tell me.

A. Okay. So there was a conversation that was kind of a joking conversation -- so there was a point where -- first of all, we have to scroll back to Bobby Stafford. Okay?

So Bobby Stafford was rank of lieutenant, and he was promoted to the rank of captain; which means he could no longer be the union president, so he had to resign. That position became vacant. Jody Brannon was running for that position, and Brandon Kutner was running for that position.

When Brandon Kutner was promoted to the rank of captain, I think it was myself, Stafford, and DeCoursey, and somebody made a comment, and I don't remember who it was, said, "Well, now you can't be the union president anymore," but that was after the promotion had already occurred.

Q. Okay.

A. And Brandon Kutner wanted to be promoted to the rank of captain. It wasn't like he didn't want it.

Q. Right.

A. He was always wanting to move up. And, in fact, him and I had a couple conversations about moving up. He was always looking for that next rung, if you will.

Q. And how does one achieve that, promoting to captain? Is that a test or --

A. It's appointed.

Q. Appointed. Okay.

A. So basically, you call me in and say, "Hey, George, I like what you've been doing. Congratulations. I'd like to promote you to the rank of lieutenant."

There's no testing process, there's no submission process, there's no resume, there's no CV, there's none of that.

Q. Is that normal?

A. Yes, that's normal.

MR. KRAMER: Do you gentlemen have anything to follow up on that question?

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Not just yet.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And let me just ask you about Latrell Simmons. Do you know why Latrell Simmons was demoted from major to captain?

A. I would assume -- again, I have no first-hand knowledge of this; but I would assume it was probably because he was a high-ranking official under the Darnell administration, and the sheriff wanted to put his own team in place.

Q. Are you aware of an OPS investigation that was conducted regarding Latrell Simmons?

A. I am.

Q. Can you tell me what you know about that investigation?

A. It had something to do with him maybe not completing his duties at the jail and maybe had a whole bunch of unread directives and whatnot.

Q. So would the individuals who conducted that investigation, would they have been under your command at that time?

A. They were not.

Q. Explain to me whose command they would have been under.

A. They were directly under the sheriff. So the captain of OPS reports directly to the sheriff. It's always been that way until -- excuse me. I don't have dates. At some point Sheriff Watson moved the responsibilities to the undersheriff, which historically has never happened. That has always been a direct report to the sheriff.

Q. Is there a reason for that? Well, first, let me back up. Is that normal that the --

A. That is not normal.

Q. -- that the captain over OPS would report directly to the sheriff?

A. It is not normal. Oh, it is normal to go directly to the sheriff, yes. It is abnormal to be directed to the undersheriff.

Q. Why? What is the issue there? Why would that be a direct report?

A. It always has been. I don't know. Same thing like the PIO. The PIO is a direct report.

Q. Were you ever aware of -- it would have been outside of your responsibilities to be aware of Latrell Simmons' demotion and why that occurred?

A. That is correct.

Q. And were you ever present for any conversation related to why that would have occurred?

A. I think Brandon had called me one time on the phone, and he was frustrated. He felt like it was unfounded. He had reported those findings, but he was sent back with a different direction to try to find something that was -- could be sustained to make that demotion; but that's all -- you'd have to call Brandon and call him in and ask him about that. This is just a third party here.

Q. But I want to understand the timing of that conversation between you and Brandon Kutner with regard to the Latrell Simmons investigation. Is the investigation complete but yet not finalized as far as what the department is going do to Latrell Simmons when that call occurs, or was this after?

A. My understanding -- and again, you'd have to verify with Brandon -- is that they had reported the findings to the sheriff, and he said, "No. Go back." And that's when the conversation occurred between Brandon and I. So it was after the initial findings but before the final discipline.

Q. Got you.

A. So it was in that window.

Q. And let me ask you this. Is it normal or acceptable for the sheriff to direct what the findings of an investigation will be?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Has that ever occurred prior -- I mean, you have an extensive history in law enforcement. You've been an administrator at the sheriff's office for many years. Are you aware of that ever occurring previously?

A. I am.

Q. And when did that occur?

A. That happened with the Rich Howell investigation where he left the football game, and he was in the APC.

Q. I don't -- first of all, whose administration is this?

A. Sheriff Darnell. So this was years ago.

Q. Okay.

A. So the SWAT team is always at the University of Florida. They left. They noticed a couple performing a sexual act at 13th and University, if my memory serves me correctly. They stopped the car, and there was some interaction. It turned into "I got stopped by a tank," which then was referred to as "Tankgate" for many years after that.

Then there was some -- it was unfounded. It was a lawful reason for the stop, and she said, "No, I want something."

Q. So two instances in your career of the sheriff directing that the results of an OPS investigation be changed?

A. And keep in mind all that is rumor, rumor that it was directed to be changed with Rich Howell.

Q. With Rich Howell.

A. But you could certainly ask him.

Q. And that's fine. It's just that, with regard to the current administration, your knowledge is not coming from rumor; it's coming from an individual who was involved in the changing of that document over that investigation. Is that correct?

A. That's the best of my knowledge, that --

Q. Brandon Kutner would be involved in that change?

A. Brandon Kutner, who could direct you to that conversation.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Mr. Kramer, can I follow up, please?

MR. KRAMER: Yes.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Major, in your position with PBA, I'm sure you deal with more than ASO, GPD, all that. Have you ever seen that happen in any other agencies, or have you heard of that happening in any other agencies as far as the admin ordering a change on an IA?

A. Personally, I have not. Again, the majority of my work is contractual, and we defer disciplinary cases to another person. Obviously, you can imagine I don't want to be at the table asking for money, "Hey, I need this. I need this. I need this," and then the next week saying, "You can't fire this person for this."

So in order to remove that conflict, we defer it to somebody else; but there was a short period of time where I was kind of doing both, but that was not -- that's not normal, no.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Thank you, sir.

THE WITNESS: You're welcome.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I may just not understand, so pardon me. If the sheriff has the authority to simply demote Latrell Simmons because he doesn't want him as a captain anymore, as a major part of his administration, because he's changing administrations, is there some necessity to have a sustained investigation against him?

A. I don't believe so. There's a career service board, I think it's like 86-342 or something.

Q. That he can contest that demotion?

A. Well, he could if -- he could with the career service board if he went the disciplinary route; but if he just elected his authority to demote him, then he wouldn't be able to do that.

Q. Okay.

A. Then I think the things is, now you're putting a mark on this guy's record unnecessarily. He should have went the other route and just said, "Hey, look, you know, I understand you were a major over here. I'm going to put my own team in place" and just been done with it.

Q. Are you aware of any motivation why the sheriff or his administration would take these actions against Latrell Simmons?

A. The answer to that is no, and that plays into a lot of other movements that I'm sure we're going to end up talking about.

Q. Well, let's talk about them. How does that play into movements within the sheriff's office, and why?

A. First of all, I'm going to start with, there's a lot of good people at the sheriff's office as there are in any organization, right? But we all have people that have strong points and people that have weak points. I'm sure within your organization you've identified those.

Within your organization, you identify those, right?

So the question is, do you move somebody from Point A to Point B where they've got zero experience? And a logical person would say, "No, you don't do that." You don't remove somebody who's got a lot of experience especially without some sort of type of transition, and that seemed to be kind of common.

You know, we've heard the term -- I'm sure everybody in the room has heard the term "negligent retention," right? But I felt like there were some promotions and transfers that I would consider like negligent transfers, negligent promotions, things of that nature.

Q. And is there some motivation behind those that you were able to determine?

A. I was not.

Q. Can you give an example of -- or one or more examples of negligent transfers within the agency?

A. Negligent promotion, Cleveland Cox. He was promoted to the rank of sergeant. He had numerous, numerous disciplinary issues. He just didn't have his act together. And quite frankly, a lot of people are like, you know, this guy is barely holding it together as a deputy sheriff. How can he be promoted to the rank of sergeant? Like it was just --

Q. My understanding is that in order to be promoted in those levels of ranks, there's testings, it's competitive.

A. There are. He was on the list.

Q. What does that mean?

A. He had taken the test. He was on the list of eligible to be promoted, but you and I both know that you can take a guy -- like Rain Man, for example, when he said 242 toothpicks when the toothpicks dropped, right? He can pass a test, but he doesn't -- he can't apply the common sense in the field, right?

So he just was not the best pick; let's just put it that way. He should not have been picked.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is he an individual that was involved in a domestic violence situation?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if any discipline ever came about that?

A. I think there was, but I'm not 100 percent sure.

Q. And that was prior to his promotion?

A. It was, and it was actually pretty significant, if my memory serves me correctly. There were threats made and whatnot against the spouse, but certainly you can pull the OPS investigation and dig through that.

But he had a rather spotty background. It's not the type of person that you want to represent to the troops as a supervisor. It sends the wrong message.

Q. Did you have any input? Was there run through you any discussion on who the promotions would be and they wouldn't be?

A. It's interesting that you say that. So when we first -- I say "we." When the sheriff first took office on January 5th, he brought me in. And then up until the 4th of July, when that -- I would have you ask for the personnel order that was effective July 4th, if my memory serves me correctly, of 2021, and that was the last round of any type of promotions or decisions that I had any type of input in.

Q. That's when Brandon was promoted, correct?

A. Brandon was promoted. I believe Bobby Stafford was promoted. There was some other people. Becky was promoted, I think. Becky Butsher was promoted. And then after that -- so let me -- let me stop there for just a second.

When I had first went back to the sheriff's office, the sheriff was in the office routinely 5:00, 6:00 in the morning, and we were there until 8:00 or 9:00 at night. There were long days, long days. He was trying to understand, you know, why this policy is like this, why is business done like this. Like everything seemed normal.

And then after that round of promotions on the 4th of July, a couple days later, it was either the 6th or 7th or something like that, the undersheriff, Joe DeCoursey, took us to The Clock restaurant for a chew and chat, as he likes to call them, and told us transition is over. You're never -- you don't meet with the sheriff in the morning. And I kind of felt like what was happening is, he didn't agree with some of the things that were happening, so he interjected himself back in, said, "You're going through me, chain of command, that's it."

Q. Joel DeCoursey didn't like the way things were going, or the sheriff didn't?

A. Joel DeCoursey didn't like the way things were going. See, Joel DeCoursey is -- in my opinion, he operates in the 1975 police world. He's under the assumption that if you work for this county, then you have to live in this county, period, point blank, and there are no exceptions to that. And we may get to that later down the road when we get to some other bargaining and items, if that comes up.

So he didn't agree with certain things like vehicles being taken home out of county, so somehow he interjected himself. He convinced the sheriff that transition needs to be over, we need to go back to strict chain of command. The minute that happened, we were 33,000 feet, and the plane lost fuel, and we went straight down to the ocean; and that was it.

So I kind of felt like I was on a train going to a destination and said, "I'm going to the wrong destination. I need to get off at the next stop." And it didn't take very long before I -- in fact, October 18th, which we'll get to at some point, October 18th was the needle -- or the straw that broke the camel's back that actually had me call Kaz, which is all of our bosses, he's the state president, and said, "Can I come back to work for you?"

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. What happened on October 18? And if you need to walk back and talk about what led up to it, that's fine.

A. How about we finish the negligent promotions and all that? But just make a note we need to go back to October 18.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Major?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was that particular sergeant on the list? Are we talking second, third, or --

A. He was in the top band; but where he was, I don't know. It was a band of five.

Q. Does this policy allow the sheriff --

A. Pick anyone in the top five. So we could be -- like when I first promoted to sergeant, there was two points that separated five people; but then, you know, you could have a band that had more points.

Where he was, I don't know. I don't think his score was that good; but again, I would just ask for the records, and you could dig into that.

Negligent promotion, in my opinion, was Lance Yaeger.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Was he promoted while you were still there?

A. Yes, he was, which we had no input in, zero input.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. What was he promoted from and to?

A. He was promoted from the rank of deputy sheriff to the equivalent of captain.

Q. Skipped sergeant and lieutenant?

A. Correct, because sergeant and lieutenant are tested positions. Captain is an appointed position. So, you know, tomorrow, boom, you could be promoted.

There's only one other time in history that I know something like that happened, and that was when Sheriff Oelrich promoted Jim Eckert from the rank of sergeant to major after the election. That was before my tenure, so it was a long time ago.

Yaeger had no supervisory experience, and he was promoted. Not only was he promoted, essentially, a captain, they named it Chief Detective; but if you go back and you pull the pay grade, and you look at his pay raise, it was captain.

He, in my opinion, had no business being promoted to that rank. He had no understanding of even the basic things of supervisory, of payroll approval, FMLA, return-to-work status, I mean, basic front-line sergeant duties, much less requisitions and second- and third-level signings of requisitions and things that would now be his responsibility. So he was trying to -- he did micromanage, and there's a lot of people that were impacted by that in a negative light by his actions.

Q. Other than patrol experience, did he have any investigative experience?

A. He did. He was in CID. And when he was in CID, he was always kind of known as that guy -- he was good at his job, but he always kind of pushed against his supervisors and would just push that envelope as far as he could go to get the job done as far as -- not that he did anything illegal, but it was constantly like "Why didn't you tell me you were going out and doing this" kind of thing.

Q. A supervisor's nightmare.

A. A supervisor's nightmare. And I'm sure there's other people that you're going to be talking to; and if you ask them the same thing, they'll probably have the same opinion.

John Hoover. And this is after I left. This has been recently, but he was promoted, from my understanding, from the rank of detention officer to captain of the jail. Why would you promote somebody from a detention officer to a captain?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Were you at the sheriff's office when John Hoover was there prior?

A. I was.

Q. What was the story with him? Was he terminated? Was he --

A. My understanding is, he was terminated; but again, that was a department of jail function, and that was just as far off my radar as -- I was in my own silo at the complete other end of the building. This was another building.

My interaction with John Hoover was, I was the union president at the time. Brandon -- let me scroll back one step further.

Brandon was the union president. I was the treasurer. And we had major pay issues, and we had devised a step pay program. We got it implemented. Brandon ended up resigning. I took over the presidency.

And then John Hoover called me one day on the phone and said, "Hey, can I get a copy of the Excel spreadsheet?"

And I said, "Aren't you guys FOP?"

He said, "We are FOP."

And I said, "Are you doing it for the FOP? What's going on?"

He's goes, "No. The captain wants me to get it. I'm working on it for the captain."

So I said, "You're working on it for the administration?"

He said, "Yeah, I'm working on it for the administration."

I said, "Don't you think that goes against your union? Don't you want to discuss that with your union?"

He said, "Yeah, but I want your spreadsheet."

I said, "I'm sorry. That's intellectual property. I'm not sharing it with you."

So my impression of John Hoover was that he didn't really follow protocol to begin with, but that's really the only interaction I had with him.

Q. Do you know why he was let go?

A. I don't. I don't. I had heard it was something for a truthfulness issue, but I don't know. That's rumor mill, and you know what happens. Something happens at the water cooler; and by the time it gets down the hall, it's got four variations of it. You'd probably have to pull the OPS investigation for that.

Reshone Flanders was promoted to HR director. He probably should not have been promoted to HR director. In fact, there was a point in time where right before Christmas, a couple weeks before Christmas, the sheriff was going to demote her. And Joe DeCoursey said, "We shouldn't do that. It's right before Christmas. Don't demote somebody right before Christmas," and then it never happened.

So I don't know if Joel got in there and was able to --

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. What position was she in before the demotion?

A. She was the second in command. Susan Wiley was the one who was in charge. When Susan left, they kind of put her in that place, and then I think they realized that she had no idea -- like she couldn't even write a personnel order. I had to write the personnel orders. That's not my job. That's an HR function.

So they were going to demote her. In fact, I was thinking about this last night. Luckily, before I left, I saved all of my network drive, my K drive, and I brought it with me. I could probably go back and find the personnel order where he was going to sign it to demote her, but I'd have to go back and look.

Q. Is there anything on that drive that you would consider to be privileged communications between you and your lawyer?

A. Possibly. Without going and looking through it -- I would have to understand more legally what would be considered privileged and not privileged. I mean, I can certainly confer with counsel with that.

Q. Okay. I may issue a subpoena to either you or your counsel requesting that you hand over that drive through your counsel for the purposes of investigation.

A. Okay.

Q. But I'll confer with your lawyer with regard to that.

A. Okay.

Q. All right. Are we complete on this issue, ready to move on?

A. No.

Q. Then continue, please.

A. Bobby Stafford.

Q. I understand he was a sergeant and was promoted directly to be in charge of the jail, which would be a major?

A. So it did not happen like that. So Bobby Stafford was a sergeant. He was then promoted to lieutenant. He went back, and he worked the road. A very short time had passed, and then he was promoted to the rank of captain. I would say a short time, probably 60 days, roughly somewhere in there, because he was promoted on the 4th of July, if my memory serves me correctly -- go ahead and pull that personnel order.

And then a short time after that -- either a short time after that or short time before that, the sheriff had let Director Woody go, Robert Woody, who was running the jail, and --

Q. Was Mr. Woody competent to run the jail?

A. He was out of touch. I don't know if he was competent because I don't really know much about jail operations. That would be like putting me in some art room and asking me to evaluate art. It's a different realm, right? So I would never want to work out there, but it's -- I don't know. The short answer is, I don't know.

So he had left. There was a conversation that happened between the sheriff and I about what's going to happen at the jail. I said, "Sheriff, I think you need to do a search and find somebody who's competent to take that position."

And he said, "Who can we fill in in the short term?"

I said, "I don't know." I said, "The closest person, I think, that maybe you could put for a very short time until you can find a person through a nationwide search would be Brett Rhodenizer," who was a lieutenant at the time. He was a lieutenant colonel in the guard. He's now a full-bird colonel, so he understands organizational structures and whatnot.

I felt that that would be a very, very short-term fill, only enough to make sure that payroll gets processed and the things that he understands as a lieutenant, that at least those things could keep moving until that person could be appointed and put in place.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And he was lieutenant in the jail?

A. He was a lieutenant on the road. The only thing that we were drawing from was his vast supervisory experience in command structure from the military. And even then, that was kind of stretching that, but we were literally at a point where we didn't have anybody.

I told the sheriff, I said, "Let me call Bobby and see what his thoughts are."

And Bobby came down. We were talking, and Bobby looked at him and said, "Sheriff, if you need me to go out there and hold the range down until you can get this nationwide search done, I'll be happy to do that; but it just needs to be a temporary thing."

And right then and there, to both of our surprises, the sheriff said, "Okay. I'm going to move you out to the jail. You're promoted to the rank of major."

And he looked at me and said, "How do you feel about that?"

I said, "I don't really want to lose him from patrol because he's an operationally strong guy, and I don't want to lose that."

And he said, "Well, if you have to pick his replacement, who would you pick?"

And I said, "Becky Butsher."

So that was one of the very few promotions that I felt like I had any true input on. I said, "I want Becky."

He said, "Okay. I'm going to promote him, and you can have Becky."

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. That moved then Sergeant Butsher to Lieutenant Butsher?

A. No, Becky had already been a lieutenant for a significant amount of time before she was promoted. Becky is very strong-willed, as you know her. She run a tight ship, she run a tight shift; and I felt like I would like her to expand that to the other three shifts, but that comes with a whole -- sometimes maybe she was a little tighter than you needed to be, but she was my best option. And I said, "I want Becky."

He said, "Okay."

But again, let me make it perfectly clear that the majority of the decisions -- almost all of the decisions are not determined until the sheriff signs the green ink.

In fact, there was a conversation that was -- I believe Ms. Webster was in there, and the undersheriff said that the sheriff makes all the decisions. It's very clear the sheriff makes all the decisions.

I had less decision-making authority as a major under the Watson tenure than I had as a lieutenant under the Darnell administration, which is completely backwards.

So I say -- I reference Bobby as kind of a negligent promotion to the standpoint of he was put in a position where he didn't really know anything about that; and he should have just left him out there as a very short interim thing to make sure payroll gets processed and paper gets moved and directives are followed and whatnot, but he should have never been promoted and left there in place.

So that's what I have for negligent promotions.

Negligent transfers. Recently Yaeger was transferred to the chief of staff, and he supervises civilians, notably accounting and budget. And to my knowledge, he has no accounting classes. He doesn't know what a debit and credit is, what side of the sheet it goes on. He probably can't read a profit-and-loss statement, and he's going to supervise the CPA.

So, in my opinion, he's supervising people that he has zero knowledge of. You're talking about fleet, communications, records. Does he even know what 119 is? You know what I mean? There's just a whole slough of things. So, to me, that was silly.

Pat Ford Thomas, she was brought over to communications. How is he going to supervise her?

Kelvin Jenkins was moved to OPS as a captain. Kelvin Jenkins was in OPS as a lieutenant; and he was removed from OPS as a lieutenant for some truthfulness issues that never really made it to the documentation process, but there was a lot of strong speculation that he was untruthful about some things.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. That was during your tenure?

A. That was under the Darnell tenure.

Q. But while you were working there?

A. It was. I was a lieutenant at the time, if my memory serves me correctly.

So he was removed from OPS. So now Kelvin is now promoted to the rank of captain under Watson, and he's now moved over to OPS. And Captain Jenkins is probably the last person that needs to be in charge of OPS out of all that.

Brandon Kutner was promoted. And when he was promoted -- Brandon, as you know, is very detail-oriented, and he is very good at his job. That was a good promotion, I felt like. Kelvin Jenkins, that was just -- I felt like that was negligent, to move a person over there who was in charge of people's careers. 112? I don't even think he knows what 112 is, so how are you going to put him in charge of investigators that are responsible to adhere to 112?

Again, Lance Yaeger to CID as captain, that was negligent. I mean, he had no supervisory experience.

Sheriff Watson moved Nancy Marzouk and Pete King to OPS, and they had no formal training in 112 or any type of internal affairs matters. Nancy Marzouk was a detective. From my understanding, she was a good detective; but just to go over there and hand her a caseload and say, "Here you go" with no, "Hey, we need you to go to class. We need you to do this. here's a training. Here's a transition time."

Just drop somebody in there and say, "Here you go. Start investigating internal affairs."

Q. You said he was removed from OPS due to truthfulness issues, but it never rose to any type of internal investigation that you know of?

A. It was all speculation. It was under the Darnell administration. So again, that's -- it's -- to the best of my knowledge, I'm just speculating he was removed because this was some -- something that came up, and Darnell didn't want to put it on paper.

It's enough when people -- it was significant enough when he was moved back over as a captain, it's like, wait a minute. Why is that guy going over there?

So as far as the negligent promotion, negligent transfers, that's as far as I've got on that. So now do we want to go back to October 18th, or do we -- where do you want to go?

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Before we leave that, was there any common denominator to why these people were promoted in such a manner, or transferred? Is there anything that can be assigned to that, or does it just seem like it's bad decision after bad decision?

A. I would encourage you to pull all of the promotions and transfer orders, all the personnel orders, and probably pull an employee picture with it also. I'll give you an example, and I would encourage you to pull all that.

There was a promotion that was made of Monica Herrera. Monica Herrera was on the list, and I felt that she was the correct pick. She was -- while young, she was very dedicated. She was a very hard worker. She worked for me when I was the night shift lieutenant. She worked overtime details. She saved her money. She's like the first person in her family to buy a house. She's Hispanic. She basically had her act together, I mean, zero problems. It's like a shift lieutenant's -- you know, I don't have to do anything. Like she just runs herself kind of thing, right? Almost like Darren Patterson. You know, Darren is a guy that just runs himself.

I felt that was a correct pick for promotion, but that's not how the sheriff arrived at that. He asked his admin assistant to print out all the pictures of everybody who was on the list; and I believe if you are to request a copy of that document, if it -- they claim it exists -- which they may claim it may not exist -- you'll find that she was probably the only minority that was on that list. And he literally picked up the list and went, "That one right there. That's who I want," and it was Monica.

It was the correct pick in my opinion, but how he arrived at that pick was completely inappropriate.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Were you there when he did that?

A. I was.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I do want to move along while we're on this issue and you've raised it. Are you aware of any record that the sheriff's office had that they intentionally destroyed which should have been retained as part of the ordinary course of business of the sheriff's office?

A. In other words, did he destroy any official documents?

Q. Correct.

A. Not that I'm aware of. And I will tell you there was an investigation that I was involved in that surrounded Lewis Oil when I was captain under the Darnell administration; it was not sustained. And the sheriff did want me to have an attorney, i.e., Bobi Frank, write a letter asking that that be opened; and he was going to open it, and he was going to unfound it and move it along. In other words, he was going to go back and --

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Retroactively?
A. Move it from not sustained to unfounded. And that's going to come into play, probably, when we talk about Chad Scott.
Q. What was Lewis' last name?
A. Chad Scott?
MR. KRAMER: Lewis Oil is a corporation that provides fuel to the sheriff's office.
THE WITNESS: Correct. It was a vendor contract for Sheriff Darnell. And you're certainly welcome to pull a copy of that OPS investigation.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. I think we touched on this briefly earlier. Ordering or directing that a closed investigation be changed is not normal protocol and, in your mind, inappropriate?
A. Inappropriate.
Q. Okay. At any time were you instructed by any person at the sheriff's office not to put anything in writing or to not put something in an email?
A. Absolutely. Absolutely. That was general protocol.

Q. Can you describe who made those directives to you, and what were they in reference to?

A. It was in reference to almost everything, and it was Joel DeCoursey.

Q. Give me specific examples of particular things where you were instructed not to put them in writing.

A. One of our tasks and one of his campaign promises is that he would put an evening shift back. We operated day shift and night shift, 06 to 18, 18 to 06. Sheriff Darnell, under a different philosophy, as her right, said, "I want this unit. I want this unit. I want this unit."

You only got so many FTEs. Those are always pilfered from patrol, and then patrol is whittled down to bare bones. Our philosophy was, we need to put some of those people back, and we need to help out patrol.

So I ran the numbers, and I said, okay, how many calls for service? What hours were they happening? What types of calls are happening? And what we found is that the majority of the calls, it was like 60 or 70 percent of the calls that required three deputies or more were happening from approximately 4:00 to midnight, somewhere in that range. Well, if I've only got 11 or 12 people working, and I've got two calls that require three, that's 50 percent of my staff on two calls. So we basically said we need to have an evening shift.

We got all the bodies together, we put them on evening shift. People started leaving because they didn't agree with the sheriff's philosophy. We started getting more and more and more shorthanded.

Becky Butsher would give me a staffing report. She would email me a staffing report. I'm sure all you've got to do is ask for a copy of my emails. And I would have those discussions with the undersheriff, say, "Hey, listen, Undersheriff, we're getting critically low on patrol. We need to deal with this. It needs to happen."

And he was just like, "No. If they want to leave, just let them go somewhere. Let them go. Let them go."

He had no care in the world as to what the staffing was and what responsibilities were being shoved. I mean, we're turning fewer and fewer and fewer people out, and you know that that's not safe, you know.

So he instructed everything was not in writing. If I emailed him something, it was, "Why are you sending me this?" basically. That was the feeling that I got.

So as I was -- I had already decided I was leaving. I had put in my resignation. And the staffing reports kept coming from Becky, and I just started going "forward, DeCoursey, send; forward, DeCoursey, send; forward, DeCoursey, send." And then I would follow that up with -- after I sent that email, I would then send that email to Arabella Blizzard; which you could pull her emails and see where that trail started happening to basically document that, hey, we've got a staffing issues, and you're still not doing anything about it.

Very few people were hired in that year. Go and pull the record for how many people were hired in 2021, deputy sheriffs, and compare them to the other years, and you'll see what I'm talking about.

Q. Okay.

A. But it was common practice, you don't put anything in writing. Paperwork was always sent up to the suite to be signed; it was never dealt with. Rarely was paperwork ever -- just basic course of business and responsibilities as a sheriff to process basic paperwork, like secondary employment forms left unanswered for months and months at a time. And the problem is, anytime you questioned, hey, where is this at? How come this hasn't been signed? You better stand by. You know what I mean?

It's almost like -- it's like you don't question the boss. The loyalty is one direction. You give your loyalty to the sheriff, and there's no expectation that the loyalty is back this way. And if you ever questioned or crossed that, you were whacked, if you will. And I say "whacked" as in you were either transferred somewhere or you were run off or you were terminated.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Retaliatory?

THE WITNESS: Very much so.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Before we move on to the October issue, I want to ask you this. Are you aware of any person, either a civilian -- any person who wasn't a suspect in a crime being recorded in the sheriff's office?

A. There were rumors about it, but I have no first-hand knowledge of it.

Q. Do you know whether or not officers who were meeting with their union representatives who were under OPS investigations were being recorded or being listened to live? I'm sure there's a better word for that.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Monitored.

MR. KRAMER: Monitored. Thank you.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Eavesdropped upon, I don't know, any of those things, during their meeting with their union representatives during the course of the OPS investigation where they were required to be there?

A. There were rumors of it. I have no first-hand knowledge. I was not part of OPS, but there were a lot of strong rumors. That's as far as I know.

Q. Let's then go to what happened in October and anything that led up to that.

A. So I have -- first of all, we had union negotiations, and it was very difficult. The undersheriff had gotten involved in that, and this all surrounded take-home cars. And everything was pretty much -- all the other articles were pretty much good; we had those hammered out, but the take-home cars were a big issue.

The undersheriff was trying to take away take-home cars if you didn't live in the county, and that's actually in reverse of what everybody else in the rest of the state is. They're trying to expand their take-home program to try to recruit and retain people, and the sheriff was going back the other way.

In fact, there was a conversation -- can I confer with her for just a second?

MR. KRAMER: Absolutely.

(Off-the-record discussion was had between witness and his counsel.)

THE WITNESS: There was discussion about folks moving -- the undersheriff wanted people to live in the county in which they served, and it caused some problems to the point where we weren't reaching an agreement; which was pretty embarrassing to me because I had been doing union contracts for a long time, I had been doing the sheriff's contract for a long time, and now for the first time I felt like we were in a position where I can't get a contract past my own agency.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I want to make sure I understand. You're now working on the contract on behalf of the sheriff?

A. That's correct.

Q. Not on behalf of the union, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay.

A. So we had reached an agreement. We finally reached an agreement.

MS. WEBSTER: Could I just --

MR. KRAMER: Yeah.

(An off-the-record discussion was had between the witness and his counsel.)

THE WITNESS: So when I was the union rep, I was obviously on the union side of the table. As part of Watson's management team, he appointed me as part of -- basically, I was essentially to lead the union negotiations. Even though DeCoursey was at the table, I was the spokesperson; but DeCoursey kind of continued to get in the way even though I was the spokesperson for the group.

So we had -- it was an interesting dynamic because I was on one side of the table, and then, you know, a handful of months later I'm on the other side of the table. And we all have the same common goal in mind, but DeCoursey kept getting in the way of that common goal. So there was some differences of philosophy, but it was kind of an executive session, so I -- I can't reveal that, right?

MS. WEBSTER: No, you can.

THE WITNESS: I can reveal --

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. The only thing you can't reveal is attorney-client communications, so nothing that your attorney has said to you, nothing that you have said to your attorney in seeking or gaining advice. Those type of things have no privilege under the law.

A. We were in a -- we were in a caucus, and we were discussing take-home cars. The undersheriff said, "I want everybody moved back in the county. That's what we want. We want everybody to move back in the county."

And Jake Rush says, "Okay. Well, how about we just write it where everybody has three months to sell their house and move back in the county?"

Three months. Now, think about this. This was in 2021. What was the housing market in 2021? Everything was hot. You couldn't buy a house. People were trying to get out of the county, paying taxes, and they were going to whack everybody. Again, this is what we want, whack, and bring everybody back in.

I said, "Look" -- Bobby and I kind of pushed back on it. I said, "You can't do that. Somebody may not be able to sell their house. They may not be able to financially afford to move back in here. What are you going to do when they can't sell their house? What's the discipline from it? Are you going to take their car? Are you going to fire them?"

There were so many things that came up with it, it just got dropped; but it was a point of contention, the take-home car. So kind of moving forward, we reached an agreement. It had a lot of issues with the take-home cars.

Generally, the protocol is this. Once we tentatively agree on articles, we will generally hold a vote, in my world, in two weeks. We'll send out all the information, send out all the TA articles to everybody who's a bargaining member. They can look at it. They have the opportunity to ask questions. Sometimes if it's something like a pay plan or something like that, we'll hold some meetings and say this is how it's going to happen, this is how it's going to get implemented, A, B, C, D.

Because the cars were such a controversial issue, Jody elected to push the ratification vote back just a little bit. We just have to do it in a reasonable time frame. Now you start opening the door to what's reasonable time frame. You know, 30 days -- 30 days always seems like a reasonable time frame. Like if I make a public records request, 30 days should be the time I should get that back, right?

So on October 18 Bobby and I were playing at the BJ Classic. We were on the second or third hole, and I got a call from the undersheriff. The undersheriff said, "Hey, I just want let you know that the sheriff is rescinding all the articles."

The vote was going to happen -- this was a Monday. The vote was happening on Thursday and Friday; and they knew the vote was happening on Thursday and Friday, but he called me and said, "Hey, we're rescinding the articles."

I say, "Whoa, whoa, whoa, whoa. You can't do that."

He said, "I'm just telling you, this is what's happening."

And we had a brief conversation. I was around quite a few people, so I kind of had to step aside. And I ended up sending him text messages, which I have printed out here. I'll be happy to provide them to you.

Q. Can you hand those over?

A. I'll kind of read them to you. It says -- I said "Let me call you when I'm not 1012," which means I'm with somebody. I said -- I wrote "they," but I meant "this may cause us some issues. We knew the vote was this week. I'm around people where I can't talk."

His response is "The sheriff is typing up the rescind now and will deal with any issues. He's going back to the original plan. I think the union will lose public relation issues."

At this point I know I'm arguing for -- I can't argue with the guy, and I just said, "Okay. Is Tara going to contact Jody?"

"No, we will handle. The sheriff will sign the rescind contract today. General counsel will contact Jody."

My response was "Okay."

So later that evening I got frustrated. And I got home, and I said "I found this, which sums up what I was trying to explain earlier," and it's a clip from NLRB, which is National Labor Relations Board. And I put -- I highlighted -- took a screenshot of refusal to bargain.

"An employer will be in violation of the NLRA if a company either, (a), refuses to bargain collectively with representatives of the employees; refuses to recognize a majority union; (c), takes unilateral action," which was him just stripping this without consulting his team. Oh, he was just going to do it. Which I felt (c) applied. "Refuses to provide necessary information to union representatives," which didn't happen; but more importantly, "(e), refuses to sign a written contract in which an agreement is reached."

We had already reached an agreement; and he was taking unilateral action to rescind all the articles knowing that the vote was coming, and he was going to refuse to sign the contract.

And I put "Specifically sections (c) and (e)."

Later that night, October 18th, at 2100 I get the text message that says "Major Corwine, your text is not" -- "your text about the union contract is not consistent with the decision our sheriff made. I disagree on your interpretation."

So this is an example of the sheriff just completely disregarding what the procedures are. Whether they be internal procedures, whether they be National Labor Relations Board, it was just a complete disregard.

If he felt disrespected, that was it. And I'm sure you're aware of an incident that happened just a month or two after we were back in office.

Q. Of course.

A. You want me to --

Q. No. It's all right. I mean, it's not relevant, really, to this situation.

A. It's not, but my point --

Q. We've got to move along, and I'm --

A. What I'm saying is that -- is that that disrespect that came from that, my ass got chewed time and time and time again from it; and that is consistently what happened all the time.

(Exhibit 1 was marked for identification.)

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Is that what causes you to resign, this situation, or were you just moving towards that?

A. That was the straw that broke the camel's back. Here's the best way to put it. Do you play Black Jack?

Q. I'm aware of it, but I don't gamble.

A. Dealer's got a nine, you got two kings. What do you? You hold, right? Because more than likely, he's got 19, you've got 20. You're going to win the hand, right? The person who's sitting in the last seat at the able is either going to make or break or the table, right?

The sheriff, you know what he would do with two kings? He would double down and pull another card knowing that there's only four cards in there that could provide a winning hand in the other 48 cards.

Those are the types of decisions that he makes. They're in my opinion careless, and they're reckless.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So that leads me to my next set of questions, which is, other than what we have described -- or what you have described already, are you aware of any person in the sheriff's office who has committed a criminal act?

A. I mean, Cleveland Cox would be one of them. He threatened his spouse. Are you talking about any person?

Q. I mean anyone who is currently an employee of the sheriff's office who has committed a criminal act that has been unreported to law enforcement.

A. I would have to give that some thought.

Q. All right. And if you come up with anything that you think warrants answering that question after having the opportunity to cover with your lawyer, I'd ask that you notify either me or either of the inspectors who are present.

A. Yes.

Q. I'm going to read to you the definition of what is a misfeasance. A transgression, especially wrongful exercise of lawful authority. That's sort of the standard definition of misfeasance. And you have described a lot of activity which may meet that definition.

Is there any other action which you are aware of that you haven't discussed here today that meets the definition of misfeasance -- I will also define for you the definition of malfeasance, which is wrongdoing, especially by a public official -- that you have not discussed here today that you are aware of that occurred at the sheriff's office either while you were employed there under Sheriff Watson or since that time?

A. Are you going to read the definition of malfeasance?

Q. It's very short. I did. Wrongdoing, especially by a public official.

And understand I'm not saying you haven't already done that. I'm just asking you to be sure that there is nothing more that you're aware of that you have not told me about or that my questions have failed to elicit from you.

A. Okay. So let's kind of scroll back to there's some -- again, no first-hand knowledge of it, but there's some questions about the burning of the campaign headquarters. It's just a rumor that they were burned down, and that he had something to do with that; but that's as far as I know.

There is some rumors and discussion -- again, we don't know. You can probably pull her Internet activity and her work tasks, which probably would be good for you guys to pull for Michelle Sherfield.

The sheriff hired Michelle Sherfield. She really has no defined role, and she's paid well into the 70,000 and some change. I'm sure you could pull her salary from a records request. But there's a lot of speculation that she works on future campaign things for the sheriff in her office. He also hired her son, who's Brandon Johnson, and it seems like he has no defined role.

There are some questionable practices, in my opinion, as far as the hiring practices. I understand to some degree that -- let me kind of scroll back to me.

When I retired under the Darnell administration, I was moved to reserve status, and I maintained a reserve status. I held an active bond card, badge. I went to in-service training. I kept all my standards, and I was in that status when I was brought back. So all I was done -- for me, personally, it was a change of status through what's call an inner office correspondence. I went from full-time to reserve, reserve to full-time, but I never really technically separated from the agency, if that makes sense.

Joel DeCoursey was brought in without an application process. To some degree, I understand that because he's number two in command.

Danielle Judd, Jacob Rush, but now we get into Tara Malone, who is his admin assistant. I don't believe there was an application process or anything completed for her.

Courtney Ferrera, maybe, who took Tara's spot, but then we get into Chad Scott, who was brought in without an application process.

Director Woody, Pat Ford Thomas, Michelle Sherfield, Brandon Jones, Joel Coppock. And then I don't -- I don't have the names of the -- there's a couple deputies, a Lamar, maybe, something; Brian Osgood; Denise Scott, which Denise Scott is the ex-wife of Chad Scott. And then there's another one that kind of sticks out. I apologize. I don't know his name, but he is the gentleman that had the ballot scandal up in Alachua. I don't remember his name. I could get it to you later. I just call him the ballot tamperer.

I'll have to send you his name later, but there was some speculation -- and I am not 100 percent sure on how the whole election rules work; but Watson was a democrat, and Darnell was a democrat. And my understanding is that if only those two were involved, that everybody could vote in the primary. And then there was another person, and I can't remember his name -- Brinkman magically put in to run as a republican, which would have eliminated the republican vote in the primary between Watson and Darnell. And shortly after the primary was decided, he pulled his -- his ticket, which left Watson the de facto sheriff.

Q. Is there anything about Chad Scott that you have brought up that we haven't discussed? You mentioned several times a Chad Scott. Is there anything that occurred with him that we have yet to discuss?

A. Chad Scott was terminated under the Darnell administration; and he was terminated, I believe -- please pull his OPS, but I believe it had something to do with a double-dipping of time sheets.

Chad Scott worked a lot of details. He was a very hard worker. I felt at the time when that happened that it was more a clerical thing, not necessarily like I'm intentionally stealing money from the sheriff. Darnell, I think, didn't feel that way. Again, I'm speculating, but he was terminated. I believe if you were to pull his internal affairs file, that that may be one you find was altered by Sheriff Watson.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is the IA different than the personnel file? Do they include the same things?

A. No. You'd have to pull the IA file, but you would see -- there certainly should be some record of the termination and the findings for Chad Scott back in the day and then if they were changed.

My ultimate reason -- the straw that broke the final -- the camel's back was that, but I had already made the decision to leave. And Chad Scott had come in the office, and there was a lot of speculation that Chad Scott was taking my spot. And I asked the undersheriff, "Hey, is Chad Scott coming back? There's a lot of questions. There's a lot of rumors going around."

And he stood right in the sheriff's doorway and said, "No, no, that's not happening. He was just here to pick up a retiree bond card."

Now, why he was picking up a retiree bond card ten years later, whatever it was, I mean, seemed a little off. I later found out, a couple weeks later, that in fact he was there to take my position, that I had been lied to.

And there was a conversation that took place between myself and Joel DeCoursey either on January 19 or January 20th of 2022, where DeCoursey told me that I was being unethical. And I basically told him that he was an effing liar, and I couldn't believe that he would operate under these standards.

And then 15, 20 minutes later I got a call from Arabella Blizzard saying they were on their way to check the rest of the stuff from my house. And then at the conclusion of that, I said, "Where's my sick leave, and where's my annual leave payout?" to which they denied that also.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. How did that resolve?

A. It didn't resolve. They never paid me. He still owes me an $8,000 payout. It's never been resolved. But my problem was, I was working for the union. And I felt like if I push the issue with going after him for the leave, that he was going to retaliate and take it out on the backs of the line workers, and I wasn't willing to do that.

I left that position. I went back to that position because I felt like I had unfinished business; and I felt like I could effect a lot of change, and that simply was the farthest from the truth. And I left that position and took a significant pay cut because I felt that I could not stand on that train with unethical decisions being made, and I was getting off that train.

MR. KRAMER: I understand.

Is there anything else that you guys want to follow up on?

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: For the sake of time, no. I would like to explore more, if possible. Could we have you back?

THE WITNESS: You just tell me when and where.

I found this which sums up what I was trying explain earlier. to the NLRB. An employer may not discharge or otherwise discriminate against an employee in terms and conditions of employment because he or she has filed charges or given testimony.
Refusal to bargain. An employer will be in violation of the NLRA if the company (a) refuses to bargain collectively with the representatives of the employees, (b) refuses to recognize a majority union, (c) takes unilateral actions, (d) refuses to provide necessary information to union representatives, (e) refuses to sign a written contract once an agreement is reached, (e) or imposes conditions on its willingness to bargain.
Section 8 of the NLRA provides detailed information on unfair labor practices.

WHEREUPON,

JONATHAN SCHABRUCH

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Would you state your name, please?

A. Jonathan Schabruch.

Q. What's your current occupation?

A. I'm the chief detective with the Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

Q. And so what rank is that within the sheriff's office?

A. Captain.

Q. And is it appropriate to refer to you as captain or chief detective?

A. Either is fine.

Q. All right. So, Captain, I want to start by asking you, what's your education?

A. I've got a four-year degree from the University of Florida, bachelor's degree in criminology.

Q. How long have you been a certified law enforcement officer?

A. October will be 19 years, so 18 and a half years.

Q. And can you briefly review for me what agencies you've worked for?

A. Only the Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

Q. And in what capacities have you served in the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. I was patrol. I was on the community orienting policing team. I was on the SWAT team for ten and a half years. I was sergeant in patrol, then I was a sergeant in the warrants bureau for four years. I was sergeant over patrol support division, which was like a sort of focus unit for a little while. I was promoted to lieutenant in 2018.

Q. By the Darnell administration?

A. Correct. Sheriff Darnell promoted me to lieutenant. I went to patrol as a lieutenant, night shift lieutenant, and then I was transferred to the investigations division as a lieutenant. I was over the property investigation bureau, and then I moved over to major crimes bureau; so I supervised all crimes during my tenure there.

And then under the current administration I was promoted to captain just last August and transferred to the office of professional standards.

I was the chief inspector of the office of the professional standards for about four and a half months, and then I was transferred back to the criminal investigations division where I am now.

Q. All right. And let's go back, then, to your time at the office of professional standards. Who did you supercede in that position?

A. Who was there before me?

Q. Correct.

A. Well, at the time it was actually Lieutenant Brett Rhodenizer. He was in sort of like an acting capacity. There was no captain of -- it was kind of influx. It was in between, I believe, Brandon Kutner left; and then there was a period of time when it was just lieutenants out there, so Brett Rhodenizer was sort of overseeing the division of the unit.

Q. Based upon the history of what you've described, it sounds like prior to going to be the captain over -- is it captain or lieutenant over that?

A. OPS?

Q. OPS.

A. Captain.

Q. You had not served in OPS prior to that?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you receive any form of training? Did you attend classes? Did you attend anything to provide you an understanding of how OPS works?

A. When I went there, yes, sir. After I was transferred there, I went to an officer discipline class in the panhandle, in Panama City, a week-long class learning about those, you know, OPS, or internal affairs investigations. And then I sat in on the CJSTC hearings that they had that week.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Did they give you any 112 training at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Any 119 training?

A. There was some, I believe, 119 training incorporated in it, but that was pretty limited. It was more geared towards 112 and just the way to conduct investigations.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Is that an FDLE class?

A. Yes, sir.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And during the course of that training were you -- or at any time other than that were you instructed on when and how it's appropriate to record investigations that are not related to a crime?

A. I'm not sure I totally understand the question.

Q. Sure. So Florida Statutes 943, the Securities of Communication Act, makes a distinction between criminal investigations and non-criminal or anything else.

A. Administrative. Any other kind of investigations.

Q. So my question is, were you ever instructed with regard to your -- the people who you supervised, their duties and responsibilities regarding recording individuals or not recording individuals without their consent in an OPS environment?

A. No instruction, no, sir, other than the class that I told you I went to.

Q. Is that addressed at all in that class?

A. I mean, to be honest with you, I don't -- I don't recall if that specifically was addressed in that class or not. We talked a lot about 112 and, you know, The Officer Bill of Rights, but I don't recall if they specifically addressed the recording of individuals and what was -- what's allowed or not.

Q. At any time while you were involved in OPS as the captain or any other time, were you aware of recordings or monitoring of personnel being conducted by OPS during the investigation?

A. You're talking about recorded interviews?

Q. Sure. Anytime that you or anyone under your direction or control recorded or monitored through surveillance equipment any person who was not a suspect in a criminal act investigation.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you describe what that was?

A. Well, I mean, we conducted several interviews with people during my tenure there, witnesses and subject employees, that were all recorded either with a voice recorder or in an interview room with video.

There were other times when surveillance video was used, jail video, sheriff's office building surveillance video, many instances.

Q. Okay. And other than surveillance video, are there times you're aware that individuals were recorded or were monitored who were officers who were there for the purposes of having some interaction with OPS?

A. The interviews.

Q. But are there any of those recordings that were done without their knowledge or consent?

A. Not that I know of.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Were they ever monitored without their knowledge or consent?

THE WITNESS: Were they monitored without their knowledge and consent?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. You have interview rooms that have a monitoring system, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that monitoring system, it's my understanding, can record or not record?

A. Correct.

Q. But even when it's not recording a human could review the equipment and both see and hear the individuals who are in the rooms even if it's not recording back to a permanent record?

A. Correct.

Q. So my question is, was that equipment used at any time, to your knowledge, to observe a deputy sheriff or civilian employee or any civilian, was it used without their knowledge that it was being used to observe them?

A. Not that I can recall.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Have you ever directed or was it implied to you to monitor any type of situation where an employee was being investigated prior to the interview?

THE WITNESS: No.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Do you recall an investigation that relates to a person whose name is Annie Waller?

A. Yes. I sat on the career service board for Annie Waller, but I didn't have anything to do with her investigation prior to that point.

Q. Okay. And assume I know nothing about a career service board and tell me what that entailed.

A. Yes, sir. So career service board is when someone has already received discipline from the agency for a violation, and that discipline -- I can't recall if the minimum is two-day suspension, two- or three-day suspension, up and including termination. If they receive that amount of suspension, then they are entitled to a career service board.

So the employee will then select two individuals from, I believe it's, law enforcement officers within the county, my recollection; and then the sheriff's office administration will also select two individuals, and then the four of them will then get together and select a chair and agree on a chair for the career service board.

And the purpose of the board is to appeal the discipline that was rendered because that person believes it was unfair or unjust. And they will appeal to the board, present their reasons why. Witnesses can be called. Subpoenas can be issued, all of that. And then at the end the board makes a decision, and the board's rendering is binding, I believe, as to what the sheriff must do, whether uphold the discipline or not.

Q. What was the result of Annie Waller's career service board?

A. The discipline was upheld.

Q. At any time other than that did you handle or discuss the Annie Waller investigation with anyone in the sheriff's office?

A. It would have been all related to that career service board.

Q. Were you ever told to send or not send that investigation to FDLE for criminal charges, for investigation of Annie Waller for a criminal act?

A. I don't recall being asked to do that.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Are you familiar with certain violations that are committed, whether they're sustained or unsustained, that need to be sent to FDLE?

A. Oh, yes, sir. You're talking about for the commission, moral conduct violations and things like that?

Q. Correct.

A. Yes, sir, I'm aware of those.

Q. Do you know if Annie Waller was sent, or did you have any interaction with that?

A. I wasn't in OPS when that happened, so I was not part of whether or not that was sent to FDLE.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. While you are in OPS, were you directed or asked to change the results of any OPS investigation?

A. I'm going to say yes, and I'll explain.

Q. Please do.

A. So there was an administrative inquiry that was completed by one of -- by Kyle Salman; this would have been on Kevin Davis.

So we were given an investigation involving Kevin Davis, who's a sergeant at the sheriff's office, involving a homeless person that he ultimately arrested. We were asked to look into whether there were policy violations committed during that arrest.

Inspector Salman completed what we call an administrative inquiry, which is basically when you look into -- you kind of look into the facts, and you decide whether or not it even merits further investigation or not.

He completed the inquiry and deemed that he didn't see any policy violations by Sergeant Davis, and that he didn't feel like it warranted any further investigation.

So I read his inquiry. I concurred with it, and I submitted that to the sheriff; I believe I did that electronically and sent it to the sheriff. And then I was called in to meet with the undersheriff at a later day, I believe.

And so I met with the undersheriff, and he advised me that he disagreed with the findings of the inquiry and that he couldn't pass that on to the sheriff in its conclusion. So he ordered us to conduct a complete -- to conduct an investigation, a full investigation, into the matter.

So with that regard -- I mean, it depends on what you consider to be asked to change the investigation. An inquiry was completed where we didn't feel like there was any merit to the investigation, and then we were asked to conduct a full investigation, so to speak, involving, you know, interviewing everyone and --

Q. Is that normal procedure?

A. Again, I was in OPS for four and a half months; so I don't think so, but --

Q. Why?
A. Why I don't?
Q. Why -- so if I understand it correctly -- let me back up.
Someone, and I'm -- because I'm just not completely following -- says this sergeant has done something that may violate a policy. So there's an Officer Salman who is responsible to say --
A. He's a lieutenant.
Q. A lieutenant who's responsible to tell you essentially is there even reasonable suspicion to believe that there is grounds to proceed with an investigation, he tells you no.
You look at what he says, and you say, "I agree with you. This is no. There is no reasonable suspicion to proceed on to a full OPS investigation."
You submit that to the undersheriff, and the undersheriff says, "I disagree."
A. Just to clarify, I submitted it to the sheriff.
Q. At that time did you answer directly to the sheriff?
A. Yes.
Q. So that begs the question. If you submitted it to the sheriff, why is the undersheriff the person who is telling you this is not -- why is it being re-routed to the undersheriff if that's the proper chain of command, number one? So let's answer that question first.

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay. And then when this conversation -- whether it's email or it's in person, I don't know, what is the stated reason why this investigation needs to proceed?

A. Because the undersheriff explained to me that he saw several violations when he -- it was a YouTube video, so that's how it came to light. So when he watched the YouTube video himself he saw several violations there, and he felt that it needed to be addressed.

Q. You and he are watching the same video, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are now the trained captain of OPS?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you see these violations?

A. No, sir. It was a heavily edited YouTube video. It was about a three-minute YouTube video, which was edited from a 30-plus-minute body-worn camera.

Q. Did you also review the body-worn camera?
A. Yes, and I had that conversation with the sheriff. It was an edited video. It didn't paint the whole picture.
Q. So you reviewed the YouTube video. You reviewed the full video from a body-worn camera; and he's given you specific reasons why a particular policy of the agency has been violated, and you don't feel that's true. Correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. So at that point you are directed -- is that a fair analysis -- to conduct a full blown OPS investigation?
A. Yes.
Q. So is that normal procedure?
A. I don't believe that it should be. I think that when I submit that administrative inquiry to the sheriff, now, I mean, they -- I wouldn't necessarily have an issue with the sheriff or the undersheriff maybe needing further clarification if something was unclear or if they brought to my attention this -- you didn't address this, some other thing in the administrative inquiry, this wasn't addressed, please go back and look at that before you, you know, resubmit it or something along those lines; but I felt that the concerns -- the primary concerns were all addressed in the original administrative inquiry.

Q. Are you aware of any other reason that may exist why they would choose to cause an OPS investigation to occur when the lieutenant and captain of OPS have said there's no cause for an investigation, other than this stated "I disagree with you that there is a policy violation here"?

A. No, sir.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is there any issue between Kevin Davis -- was there anything going on at that time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What would that be?

A. I believe he had lawsuits pending against the sheriff's office. There had recently been another inquiry that had been done between him and -- I did not complete this; it wasn't an OPS function, but another supervisor had looked into a situation where he and another -- it was Chris Sims. I can't remember what his rank was at the time. Chris may have been a lieutenant at the time. And Sergeant Davis and Chris Sims had words in the hallway or something.

And yes, there was clear animosity between Kevin Davis and the administration.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who was the original complainant against Sergeant Davis? Do you recall? And this IA has been closed, right, so we can discuss it freely?

A. Yes, sir.

So it came in from a YouTube video. I believe that we received several complaints from citizens because of the way that it was presented.

Q. So then you do your IA, or you do your prelim, what we call them. You come back, say no need for a complete IA, no policy violated, and the undersheriff says, "I disagree." Does he direct you on what the finding should be?

A. He didn't tell me what to find, but he told me what he believed he saw in there. He mentioned several potential policy violations.

Q. What standards did he think -- or policies that he thought were violated?

A. I believe -- I'm not going to be 100 percent sure here, but I believe he mentioned things like conduct unbecoming or unfavorable conduct, those kind of --

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: What was the eventual outcome of the IA?

THE WITNESS: The follow-up with complete investigation.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I want to go back. Who did it get assigned to?

A. I left it with Kyle Salman.

Q. So he's going be the investigator all the way through?

A. Yes.

Q. Does Kyle Salman change his analysis? Is he agreeing with the undersheriff? Or did he say, "I've looked through this. I don't see these things"?

A. No, he didn't change.

Q. Now, the inspector's question: What was the outcome of the allegations?

A. Those allegations, anything about conduct unbecoming or unfavorable conduct, were all either unfounded or not sustained. There was one sustained violation at the conclusion of the full investigation, and that had related to his body camera being not on him; it was in his car. So it was like a technical violation.

You know, I instruct our -- I instructed all of our inspectors at the time if we're going to do an investigation, we're going to do a complete and thorough investigation. You're looking for any potential policy violations; and that was the violation that was found, was that his body camera was left in his vehicle while he was dealing with a citizen.

The interaction was captured by another deputy's body camera, so that's why we have it; but Kevin Davis' was left in his vehicle instead of being properly worn as it should have been on his uniform, so that was sustained.

Q. So you have either an unfounded or --

A. Not sustained.

Q. -- not sustained, and one sustained that was not part of the original complaint, obviously. Most citizens would have no idea that that's a violation. That goes up now again to the sheriff because that's who you report to?

A. Well, once we have -- this is a little bit different because the original was an administrative inquiry, so that is sent straight to the sheriff with a sustained.

When a complete investigation is done, I would -- I give my own recommendation. The inspector gives his recommendation not as far as discipline, but he just gives his "this is the findings." Then I look at it. I either agree or disagree with his findings.

I agreed with them.

I give my own recommendation as far as any discipline is concerned based on our matrix, and then it goes to that person's division commander, which would be captain, and it goes up the chain of command. It ends at the sheriff.

Q. Who was the captain in that situation?

A. I believe that one was Becky Butscher.

Q. Did she agree or disagree with your findings?

A. As far as I recall, she agreed.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. What were your findings?

A. Mine were the same as Inspector Salman. So I agreed on the sustained violation, the one sustained violation of the body camera issue, and either not sustained or unfounded on the others.

Q. Did you say yes or no, you do recommend discipline or you don't?

A. Well, I did based on there was a sustained violation.

Q. Written reprimand? Day off?

A. It was written reprimand.

Q. Was that sustained all the way up?

A. I think it was.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I'm assuming above her is the undersheriff or a major.

A. At that time it probably was Colonel Scott, and then it would have been undersheriff.

Q. And then sheriff?

A. And sheriff, yes, sir.

Q. All of those individuals agree now that these are unsustained and unfounded as far as the original violations?

A. If memory serves correctly, yes, I believe that is accurate.

Q. But your involvement with that is done after -- no one is re-sending it back to you, is what you're saying.

A. We do get it back. I got back the completed copy. I'm just trying to remember what everyone's recommendations were in there. So yes, we got the completed one back, and it's all been stored.

Q. At any time while you were in the OPS division, or at any other time if that is applicable, were you told to find any reason to demote or fire anyone?

A. No.

Q. Were you ever given any instructions from any person within the administration regarding not emailing or not texting or not reducing things to writing?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain?

A. Well, most recently I was asked not to text my current major's personal phone. I've been asked -- I can text his work phone or call him. That happened just a couple weeks ago.

Let me think for a minute.

Q. Do you need me to clarify?

A. You can. I'm trying to think of specific examples or specifically if I've been asked to not put things in writing.

Q. Correct.

A. I couldn't recall specifically for me not to put things in writing.

Q. Have you ever been told to replace a tracking number or remove a file from OPS?

A. I have not been told to remove a file from OPS, but I was told that a tracking number that I pulled, or my office pulled, was invalid.

(Exhibit 1 was marked for identification.)

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. All right. Let me show you this email -- and I'll include this as part of the record here -- and ask you to explain what that means. And is that what you're referring to?

A. This is one of two that I'm referring to.

Q. Let's start with that one. Can you explain what the circumstances are that are being discussed in that email, which we'll attach to your deposition -- or excuse me, this is not a deposition, your interview.

A. So this is involving Cory Short, who had posted a video on YouTube where he actually posted his OPS interview that he -- you know, and I can't remember -- I think he was the subject of an investigation in that case. And so he -- when a subject is completed, they are entitled to everything; and so he requested the whole investigation, so he was given the video and everything with it. So he took his interview and put it on YouTube.

So just that in itself -- you know, he's sitting in there in uniform with his patch displayed on his shoulder. We do have a social media policy violation that basically says you can't post sheriff's office emblems and things like that on social media without prior authorization. But in addition, later it was determined also that there are apparently linked files with that video; and it had everything that we had given him, which included jail surveillance video that if someone wanted to, and they clicked the linked files on the video, they would basically be able to see the inner workings of the jail.

So that was done, and then this is --

Q. If I understand correctly, what he has done violates policies and could result in an OPS investigation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right, sir. Go ahead.

A. So during that time I received this email from then Major Stafford. This is Bobby Stafford.

Q. Is he in your chain of command at this time?

A. No.

Q. Why is he sending you things and telling you to do stuff if he's not in your chain of command?

A. Because he -- this investigation was the -- the social media violation was not being investigated by OPS. It was being investigated by his chain of command, by the jail command.

OPS doesn't do every single investigation at the sheriff's office, so it's common for the individual's chain of command to actually -- they can do a formal investigation just like OPS can. It will ultimately come to our office for a review and everything like that; but in this case it was being investigated by his chain of command, and they get their tracking number from OPS.

So if there's going to be a formal investigation, they call us, "Hey, I need a tracking number. I'm doing this investigation," and then we kind of help a them through the process unless OPS needs to take it for some reason.

So in this case OPS was not doing this investigation. The jail chain of command was doing it, which is where Major Stafford was the director of the jail at the time.

So he had a conversation with me prior to sending this email where he told me that the undersheriff had directed him to cancel that investigation, that he was no longer going to look into that investigation, and then he followed up by sending me this email.

Q. What is that email directing you to do?

A. Well, it says that he was ordered not to have Cory Short's supervisor continue the investigation. And then he says "Please cancel Tracking Number 22-121."

That's really not a thing. I can't cancel a tracking number, nor do I. So he's saying to do that; but that tracking number, I don't delete.

Q. What did you do in response to this email?

A. If I remember correctly, I took that email and saved it as an attachment under that tracking number, and then I believe I wrote the disposition under that tracking number "administratively closed per the undersheriff."

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Is this in IAPro?

A. Yes, sir. So -- but I certainly wouldn't delete or, you know, get rid of a tracking number.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Would the jail chain of command conduct investigations that can result in termination?

A. Yes, sir, anybody can.

Q. So that wouldn't just be OPS?

A. No, not automatically. There are certain investigations that require OPS to investigate, but --

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. But this wouldn't have been?

A. Not for a social media violation.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Even with the discovery that it had the inner workings or security issues of the jail?

A. It may have; but the timing there, I'm not 100 percent on. I think we may have actually discovered that after this email and all that stuff.

Q. That wouldn't have caused it to be re-opened?

A. It could. I don't recall how all that happened at that time, but it certainly could.

MR. KRAMER: You had mentioned that --

Any other follow-up?

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Just one more.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. If the jail is doing their own internal investigation, for lack of better words, are they following 112, audio taping, noticing?

A. They should be.

Q. They should be?

A. If they're doing a formal investigation that will result informal discipline, they should be following 112. And that's why they're supposed to consult with OPS along the way.

Q. Okay.

A. But if it's informal that's only going to result in corrective counseling, then --

Q. It's still an investigation that's directed by 112, though, even though it's informal, right?

A. Yes, sir.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. You mentioned there was another similar incident. What is that?

A. So that one is going to be -- can I refer to some notes?

Q. Absolutely.

A. So the other one that's related to tracking number being invalid, November of 2022. It started with Sergeant Pam James. She was under investigation, again, by her chain of command. So it was not an OPS investigation, but her chain of command was investigating her for insubordination. I was aware of it because, again, they do consult with OPS, they've got to pull a tracking number. Kyle Salman was assisting Lieutenant Jamie Scott with the investigation. It was Jamie Scott and Captain Matt Beck, were the two supervisors of Sergeant Pam James when the incident happened.

So it was explained to us that Sergeant James had committed insubordination to her lieutenant and captain, and there were witnesses also outside of the office when it happened; and they were beginning that investigation, so they used our OPS interview room.

So we were housed at the jail. OPS is at the jail, so it was a very convenient place for them. If they needed to do witness interviews, they could come and do them in our interview room. So they did that. They were interviewing witnesses in our interview room.

And then on November 16th I was called by Major -- at the time Major Dorian Keith. So she had took -- Bobby Stafford was no longer at the sheriff's office, so Major Keith was the new jail director. And she called me, and she asked why Sergeant Pam James was going to be interviewed in OPS instead of on the floor, meaning by -- you know, somewhere in an office or something by her jail staff. And she said that she felt that maybe we were treating Sergeant James differently than we would treat other people.

I told her that I had no issue with her being interviewed in OPS, that our interview room was available for anyone at the agency who was conducting an internal investigation. It was obviously just very convenient for the jail staff to do it, so they probably would use it more than maybe the law enforcement side just for location. But that's part of what I felt we were there for, was to assist in these investigations and that they could have a discrete location to bring someone and do a recorded interview without having to worry about, you know, setting up recordings and things like that.

So I explained that to her. It was an amenable conversation. I thought we had a pretty good understanding at the end of that. She just said she had some concerns with it; but she was asking if I had any, and I said, "No, I don't. I would offer this to anybody." So that was the end of that.

The following day -- this would have been November 17th -- about 4:00 p.m. the undersheriff called me, and he asked about the Pam James investigation. He told me that he had previously ordered Major Stafford when he was at the sheriff's office to, quote, squash that investigation because Sergeant James had filed a lawsuit, and we don't need to add fuel to the fire.

The undersheriff told me that he would take care of it when it got to him, meaning when the -- I assume meaning when the recommendations, or whatever the case may be made it to his level, that he would take care of it. And he said that it was relationships or knowledge of policy at best. He was quoting directive violations.

And then he -- then at the conclusion of that phone call he also ordered me not to let other divisions use the OPS interview rooms from that point forward, so it only should be for OPS staff, our investigations team. So that was the conclusion of that phone call.

I did that evening, I called Bobby Stafford, who is no longer, obviously, employed at the sheriff's office at that time, and asked him about the James investigation and asked if he was ordered to stop that investigation. He says no, he was not ordered to stop doing that investigation.

The next morning, so this would have been November 18th, about 8:15 in the morning or so I was actually having breakfast with one of my inspectors, Pete King. The undersheriff called me at breakfast and told me that the tracking number for Pam James was, quote, invalid, because he had previously ordered Major Stafford not to continue with the investigation.

I asked him to relay that information to the chain of command who was investigating Pam James. I explained to him OPS is not conducting this investigation.

So I asked if he was going to call either Major Keith or whoever in that chain of command and give his directions to them, but he said, "No. I'm telling you, my chief inspector, that the tracking number is invalid."

And then --

Q. Do you know what that means, "invalid," or what -- I don't understand what that means. What is he saying to you?

A. He's saying to -- well, my interpretation of it is, he's saying he did not authorize that investigation to take place at the outset; that he told Major Stafford to not proceed with this investigation, and so it was -- he was saying it's invalid because he said it should have never taken place to begin with.

Q. What is it that's being asked of you to do? He's imparting this information to you for what purpose, to what end?

A. To cancel the investigation. To stop the investigation.

Q. But how would you do -- I mean, you're not conducting an investigation.

A. Correct.

Q. How do you stop an investigation that you're not conducting?

A. The only thing I could think of to do was call Major Keith and relay his instructions to her. I explained to him on the phone, "Undersheriff, I can't" -- "we have already completed" -- well, not "we," but "the investigating supervisors have already completed interviews with witnesses that have been recorded." I told him, "I can't delete those interviews."

And he said, "I'm not asking you to delete any interviews. I'm just telling you that the tracking number is invalid."

I said, "I understand. I'm just letting you know those things have already been" -- "there's several things that have been documented."

And I did -- he did also -- he told me, he said, "This is not an insubordination case," and he told me that he knows what happened.

And I asked him how he knew what happened. I knew he wasn't present when it happened, and the investigation had not been completed; so he hadn't obviously read the investigation yet, but he said that he knows what happened. He cited cultural differences and said that African Americans and Caucasians communicate differently, and just because James raised her voice does not mean that she was insubordinate. That was what he said to me.

Q. Okay. You've been imparted this information that this is now an invalid number, whatever that means, and you do call whoever is in the chain of command that is conducting the investigation and tell them what?

A. I called Major Keith, and I told her what the undersheriff told me; that he said he had previously ordered Major Stafford not to proceed with this investigation, and that he told me this investigation was invalid and that he did not want to see this investigation proceed further.

She said, "Understood. Thank you."

Q. All right. And to your knowledge, what happens after that?

A. Well, I followed that conversation up with an email. I sent the email to Major Keith, I don't recall, either the same day or the next day, but I sent an email to Major Keith. I can't remember exactly what I wrote. I'm sure you guys can find it, but I said to her something along the lines of please let me know when you have informed your chain of command of the information that I, you know, provided you from the undersheriff.

And she did reply to that email and said something to the effect of Lieutenant Scott and Captain Beck have been informed. And then I took that email and saved it under the tracking number in the IAPro.

Q. And to your knowledge no one has altered, changed, or tampered with that IA file since the undersheriff gave directions to invalid it?

A. To my knowledge, no, sir.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Had they already uploaded the interviews to IAPro.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And her name is still there so that if you searched "James" in IAPro, you --

A. It should be.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Is it normal protocol that an undersheriff can essentially end an investigation that's made by one officer for insubordination against another officer?

A. No, sir.

Q. Has that ever occurred other than this incident that you're aware of?

A. Not in my experience. Not that I know of.

Q. What happens with the -- I'm assuming there's a sergeant and lieutenant. The lieutenant is alleging insubordination. What happens with the lieutenant's complaint about the sergeant?

A. The case was administratively closed at the direction of the undersheriff.

Q. Is that in and of itself a violation of any policy within the office to essentially not provide the proper IA -- or OPS investigation of a complaint?

A. Yes.

Q. What does that violate?

A. Well, I'd have to look at the exact -- what the violations are titled because I don't want to misquote which specific directive that would violate; but there are directives on the conduct of investigations and the way that they proceed, and that maybe you could articulate -- you could articulate conduct unbecoming. There are probably several that you could articulate, and I don't want to misquote exactly what --

Q. So essentially this lieutenant could at that point, if he were -- he or she --

A. It's a she. Lieutenant is a she.

Q. If this lieutenant, let's say, were misguided enough to make a complaint against the undersheriff, that the undersheriff by doing these actions has violated internal policies in the sheriff's office by unilaterally closing an investigation --

A. She could.

Q. That did not occur, to your knowledge?

A. No, sir.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Just to clarify. You said that when you contacted Major Bobby Stafford about this, he was no longer employed with the sheriff's office, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And was it uncommon to do interviews within OPS by the jail prior to that?

A. No, sir. There had been not only -- OPS has gone back and forth between being housed at the jail and housed at the sheriff's office main building, so there certainly was a long period of time when they were at the main office as well. So I'm aware of several times that the OPS interview room was used by the chain of command to do internal investigations just because of convenience. You have an interview room set up for audio and video recording. You don't have to worry about -- and you have OPS right there in the event that, you know, a 112 violation is complained or something, and you can hopefully resolve those issues right there.

It's probably more common to not use the OPS interview room, but it does happen.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Speaking at 112 violations, during your time as chief inspector, were 112 violations ever brought up during any of the investigations?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What happened?

A. We were able to remedy them and get them -- and continue with the investigation.

Q. Do you remember specifics?

A. Yes, sir. So it would have been -- there were two that I can recall. I'm just trying to remember which one.

What it involved was who the complainant was on one of them. And so the employee's representative said that we didn't have -- we had the office of the sheriff listed as a complainant, and we needed a name, a complainant's name. That was the issue.

I was not actually in the office when it happened, but I was called by the inspector who was completing the -- doing the interview and said this is the alleged violation.

I actually spoke with the representative on the phone. We talked for a little bit, and then I made a phone call. Long story short, we were able to -- she was correct, and we were able to say, okay, that's right. We stopped the interview. They went home.

And then, you know, she sent the formal grievance, and then well within -- it was probably within, I don't know, 24 hours we had identified the appropriate complainant, which we had already interviewed. We just didn't have that person listed as the complainant, but we re-interviewed to make sure that that person was comfortable with being the complainant and put them back on record, got it solved.

Q. Who was the investigation against, and who was the complainant?

A. That's what I'm trying to remember. The complainant ended up being Daniel Judd; I remember that. She was our chief of staff at the time. And I believe that was the Erica Hollingsworth investigation. So that would have been the detention officer who sent an email to the county commission, and we ended up investigating that.

MR. KRAMER: I think this is my last question unless you all have any questions further.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Have you been asked to report the contents of this interview to anyone within the sheriff's office?

A. No, sir.

MR. KRAMER: Do y'all have any other questions?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Are you aware of anything else, anything that would be illegal, immoral, or unethical, at that sheriff's office?

MR. KRAMER: That we haven't already touched on.

A. Right. Give me just a minute.

I have some concerns with how the situation was handled with our employee who was involved in the shooting, Carlton Litzkow. I don't know if you're familiar with that.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I am. What is your concern?

A. Well, the concern was that -- so that obviously happened prior to me being going to OPS; but when I moved into OPS that investigation was still active, so I was there for the completion of it, for the conclusion of it.

During that time while it was still open I had multiple meetings, interactions mostly with the undersheriff where I was asked either on the phone or in person several times why Carlton had not testified and if he was going to testify. He was the shooter.

And so I explained to the undersheriff on multiple occasions that he was afforded the same constitutional rights as every other citizen that we have that's in a criminal investigation, and that his attorney had advised him not to speak to law enforcement; and there was no intent, he was not going to testify as far as to FDLE, and that we, OPS, had completed our investigation and did not need his testimony as far as administrative investigation goes. So there was just no need for it. But that was continually asked again and again and again: Has he testified yet? Is he going to testify?

And then there was also an issue with the witnesses that night who -- one of them gave a statement to FDLE. Several others, again, after consulting with an attorney that night, decided to not that night give a statement, but they -- eventually they did, they set up a meeting. And I was told again on multiple occasions that, you know, those witnesses needed to be disciplined with either a, you know, written reprimand or a corrective counseling of some sort. And I --

Q. Would that be an IA? Or is that one of those things that's less than an IA that you discussed?

A. He didn't really -- I wasn't really told -- I wasn't given a direction of how to do it. He just told me, you know, they needed to be disciplined and to understand that they can't do that, that they -- you know, they're required to cooperate and give a statement.

They did give a statement to FDLE eventually. It just didn't all happen on the night of the incident. So I was told that they needed something, a corrective counseling or something. That's kind of our lowest form. That's the informal discipline. It doesn't stay in your personnel file forever, that kind of thing. They needed to receive some kind of discipline.

So what I ended up doing was, I suggested to the undersheriff, I said, "Listen, I'll do" -- "I will do an administrative inquiry. " That's like the same thing I told you about earlier that Kyle Salman did. I said, "Let me" -- "I'll do an inquiry; and I'll interview every single one of those deputies that was a witness, and I'll determine if there was any wrong doing or anything like that."

So I did one myself. I brought every one of them in there, interviewed every one of them, asked them did they talk that night, why did they maybe not talk that night. I uncovered no even potential policy violations. I completed my administrative inquiry and submitted it to the sheriff. That was accepted and received and signed off on.

I was called in for an additional meeting. I ended up meeting with the undersheriff and the sheriff together to discuss it, and I explained my findings. The sheriff seemed good with it at that point. I recommended no discipline on any deputy, and that was that.

Q. What was the result with Carlton Litzkow?

A. He was cleared. He was cleared by our -- by the OPS as early as we could, as early -- I mean, once we had the FDLE report back and basically as soon as we reviewed the FDLE report, and based on the information we had, we had no concern about any additional policy violation.

So the issue was that he was still -- he was working, but he was not working where he was assigned. He was a patrol deputy. And like we do for a lot of deputies, if they're involved in a shooting, they'll be -- you know, even though it's a perfectly good shooting, they'll be put on some kind of admin duties for a while to let the investigation kind of play out. So they might be assigned to the training bureau or something, and that's where he was. So he was assigned to training but not working on his shift for a long time. I believe --

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. After being cleared?

A. Yes, sir.

So I'm trying to see -- if you can give me just a minute.

So on October 11th, 2022, is when FDLE came to the sheriff's office with the investigation, with the completed file. So I was in that meeting, and the undersheriff was there. That's one of the -- that's the first time that the undersheriff mentioned to me about that the witness deputies who had not provided statements to FDLE that night needed to be disciplined; that was that time.

I specifically asked the undersheriff -- the sheriff wasn't in attendance, so I specifically asked the undersheriff at the conclusion of the meeting -- FDLE officers said everything looks good on our end, no issues. And then they said they were on their way over here to the state attorney's office to bring a copy over there.

So once that meeting was kind of concluded and FDLE had walked out of the room, I asked if there was a time schedule for Carlton Litzkow that he could return to duties.

He said there's no time frame. That's up to the sheriff.

Fast forward. So that was October 11th. October 28th Litzkow is still assigned to the training bureau, nothing had happened.

On November 4th, 2022, I met with the undersheriff. He brought up the shooting again, which had still not been signed off on by the sheriff. The undersheriff said that he was -- told me that he was still in training and not released to full duty because he did not testify.

I reminded him that as a potential suspect in a criminal case he was not required to give a statement to LEO, Miranda.

The undersheriff then also brought up the witness deputies again who did not provide a statement on the night of the incident and said that they would receive a written reprimand or corrective counseling.

That's when I -- well, I'm sorry. I can't say that that's when I pitched it; but sometime shortly thereafter is when I suggested that, you know, he allow me to conduct an inquiry, and I would look into it. On November 14th is when I began my inquiry. The undersheriff continued to mention some kind of discipline.

This next thing that I'm going to tell you is a -- which is related to the Litzkow investigation, is not something that I heard -- that I saw first-hand, so this is -- you'd have to ask the person who told me. It's third-party information.

Becky Butscher, who is Carlton Litzkow's mother -- so she's a captain at the sheriff's office, but she's his mother. She told me that Colonel Scott, Chad Scott, had told her that the sheriff was not going to release Carlton back to full duty until he provided a statement to the FDLE, but again, you'd have to verify all that with them.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: And that's even after FDLE has closed their --

THE WITNESS: The FDLE had closed their case for weeks at this point.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is there any detriment to Deputy Litzkow being assigned to training as opposed to being on patrol?

A. Staffing. I mean, just --

Q. Can he work details?

A. I don't think he was able to work extra duty details during that time. I'm not 100 percent on that, though. You'd have to verify that.

Q. He could still take his car back and forth?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Still has all of his equipment?

A. Yes, sir. As far as I know, yes, sir.

On December 1st I met with the undersheriff and the sheriff. It was an accidental meeting. I just happened to sort of run into them in their suite. I went into the suite on purpose; but they happened to both be together at the same time, so we talked about the Carlton investigation again.

At that time the sheriff -- the sheriff seemed surprised to learn that Carlton was never asked to speak with OPS. I had told that to the undersheriff many, many times, but I explained to the sheriff that we, OPS, had no need to talk to him. We had everything we needed. We didn't need to interview him. There were no violations that we even alleged, so no reason to interview him; and that seemed to kind of resolve his concern. He just said that he wanted to make sure our folks were cooperating with the internal process, and I said, "Absolutely. Nobody has not cooperated with us at all."

So that was December 1st. On December 5th the sheriff assigned Carlton to investigations.

Q. When they delivered the packet, and the undersheriff made the comment that discipline needed to be administered for the individuals who didn't cooperate the night and provide the statement at that time, was FDLE still there when that was said?

A. I don't recall when he said the discipline part if they had left the room or not. They left, obviously, and we did have a conversation after they left.

He did mention to them -- he did bring up the fact that witnesses did not talk to them that night, and he basically was telling FDLE -- kind of apologizing to them, "I'm sorry that happened. We're going to make sure that doesn't happen again."

He said something along those lines; but specifically about the distance, I don't know if he said that after they had gone or not.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who's the lead for FDLE here?

A. I knew it at the time. I spoke to several people. I can't recall.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Thank you.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else, gentlemen?

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. I know your tenure in OPS was short. Did you ever deal with anything that should have gone up to CJSTC as far as moral turpitude or anything like that?

A. No.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Were you aware of the members that should have been -- that Captain Kutner took to the sheriff or undersheriff regarding individuals that should have been sent?

A. I'm aware from Brandon Kutner. He told me that story.

Q. Okay. Do you know how many were sent?

A. I don't.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. But during your tenure there you've never ran across where you wanted to send something to CJSTC --

A. Correct.

Q. And it was denied?

A. No, sir.

MR. KRAMER: That's it.

WHEREUPON,

JOHN RICHMOND

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. John, we're here on a state attorney's office investigation, and it really revolves around some things that occurred at the sheriff's office. And we have -- I want to just start by asking you just some brief background questions just for the record.

Are you still a law enforcement officer, sworn law enforcement officer, in the state of Florida?

A. No, I'm only certified still.

(Unintelligible.)

THE REPORTER: I can't hear him.

MR. KRAMER: Let me see if I can turn it up a little bit.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So, John, let me ask you again. Are you sworn, or are you only certified at this point?

A. I'm only certified. I'm not sworn. I'm not employed with any law enforcement agency currently.

Q. How long were you in law enforcement before you retired?

A. Twenty-four and a half years.

Q. And were you at any agency other than the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Yes. Baker County Sheriff's Office for the first two years of my career.

Q. And could you explain what positions you've held at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Yes. Deputy sheriff, patrol; deputy sheriff, school resource deputy; law enforcement sergeant, patrol; law enforcement sergeant, court security bureau; law enforcement sergeant, warrants bureau; active lieutenant, warrants bureau; lieutenant, warrants bureau; lieutenant, Gainesville-Alachua County Drug Task Force; captain, patrol; captain, special operations division; and chief inspector for the office of professional standards. I think that's it.

Q. And were you the chief inspector of the office of professional standards prior to, I guess, Brandon Kutner taking over?

A. Yes, sir, I was.

Q. And did that happen because you left the agency?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Was that -- did you leave that position because you were leaving the agency?

A. No.

Q. Where did you --

A. I got transferred out.

Q. Where did you get transferred to after that?

A. Back to patrol for one pay period and then to special operations bureau, which currently was called patrol support division. I'm sorry. Not bureau, division, and then we changed the name to special operations division.

I gave it to you out of order. My final job was special projects, which wasn't a real job. It was just a broom closet until I retired.

Q. Okay. Can you explain the circumstances under which you left the sheriff's office?

A. I put in my retirement. I was -- my wife works in central Florida. Once I reached the age of 55, I was eligible for retirement; so I put it in and retired.

Q. And you said you had 20 years law enforcement service?

A. At the sheriff's office, I have 22 and a half years.

Q. And was there -- other than your personal concerns that have nothing to do with the sheriff's office, was there any reason that related to the sheriff's office that you chose to leave?

A. I would say that the current condition of the sheriff's office made it much easier for me to make the decision to retire. It was -- it was basically -- pardon my French, but it was a shit show. The command staff was completely shut out with the new sheriff; and a lot of decisions were being made in a vacuum, and it really affected a lot of people.

You know, as a captain in the sheriff's office, you think you have some -- you know, some abilities to be, you know, an agent for change and make the place better, but I was basically -- even though I was a captain, I was not part of the command staff because we weren't given any command control of the agency at all.

So it was -- it was not -- you know, it was no longer a productive working environment, so it made it much easier for me to decide to retire, if that makes any sense.

MR. KRAMER: It certainly does.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Can I interject?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. You said that decisions were made in a vacuum. Can you elaborate on that?

A. Sure. Any decision that happened basically after Sheriff Watson was elected were made only between he and Joel DeCoursey. No one ever, to my knowledge, contacted the command staff and said, you know, like you would normally do, hey, this is what we're thinking. You know, let me know what kind of problems it could start. Or is this a good idea, or how can we do this? This is what I want to do as sheriff. How do we best go about doing it? That never happened.

There were only one or two command staff meetings, and the sheriff never attended either of them; and it was just basically Joel DeCoursey blabbering on about what a good man Clovis Watson is, but nothing ever got accomplished. We were never able to have any input in what happened.

So a lot of personnel changes. They didn't -- you know, some didn't make any sense, or I couldn't understand why some were happening in the first place, to include myself. I was a fairly new captain in patrol, and I got moved out to the office of professional standards, which was kind of odd.

And for another example, office of professional standards. You, as FDLE agents, should know what the mission is with the office of professional standards. It's hard to complete the mission when you change out the chief inspector and two of the inspectors all at the same time, so all your -- or three inspectors all at the same time -- there's only four in there besides the chief inspector -- leaving only one inspector who was there prior, and he had only been there six months. So now you have an entire office of professional standards that don't know what they don't know, and so we're scrambling to learn the job and, you know, make sure we're not violating 112 in the process. So it just -- it doesn't make sense to any competent person.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Were you provided any training, sent to schooling to assist you in that mission?

A. I was not. I took it upon myself, me and the new inspectors, and I found a class; and I sent -- you know, with the only ability for staffing, I sent two of my inspectors to that class. And basically, it was a, you know, internal affairs course. I didn't go myself. I was going to go in the next round, but I wanted to provide that training to my people that were going to be doing the work more than myself.

So I believe I sent Kyle Salman and Brett Rhodenizer, and they went to the class first. Shirley Prince had previously been in the office of professional standards; so she had a bit of a working knowledge, but she hadn't been there long the first time.

I was only there four months; and then I transferred out, so I never had opportunity to get any training.

Q. Let me ask you this. At any time under Sheriff Watson's administration while you were there, were you told by any person at the sheriff's office to find any reason to demote or fire any person?

A. No, I was not, not in those specific words. I was asked to look into some things, the first one being Ray Swallows. He was a captain at the time. And there was an attempted escape at the jail, and it got reported as an escape because that's the charge, Brian. So even if you don't actually escape from the jail, if you try to abscond in any way, you're charged with escape.

Well, the sheriff and undersheriff didn't like that. They didn't like the wording of it. They overheard -- someone left a note that they overheard Swallow saying, "I'm charging this guy with escape. I'm going to make an example out of this guy," which isn't uncommon for law enforcement to say.

So he was charged, and so they asked me -- number one, they didn't -- they were pissed at Ray for calling it an escape; and they were also pissed off that they didn't know about it, which -- and then I got chastised for not letting them know, and it's not my job to do that. You know, I'm not in that chain of the jail.

So they said -- basically, DeCoursey -- understand, as chief inspector, I'm supposed to report to the sheriff. I never reported to the sheriff. They changed the rule and said I was to report to the undersheriff, which I don't think is proper. So I never met with the sheriff when I was chief inspector, not once.

But the undersheriff told DeCoursey, he said -- they said, you know, "We heard that he said, 'We're going to make an example out of this guy,' so I need you to look into that."

I'm like, "Look into what?"

And they're like, "We don't like that. We just want to make sure everything is on the up and up, so just check the circumstances of the escape and the charges and make sure everything is on the up and up," hoping -- you know, in my mind, hoping that they could find a reason to probably discipline Swallows because he had just been demoted. He was the newly promoted captain right before Sadie Darnell left; and they promptly demoted him back to lieutenant, so, you know, they -- there was animosity, I believe, between the two.

So I put Rhodenizer on it, and we looked at it. It was a clear attempt to escape. The charge was appropriate, and that was the end of it. So I was -- because I'm dealing with facts, and that's all I was -- one thing I knew at OPS, I was going to just deal with the facts; I didn't care what anyone's opinion was, and that's probably why I got moved out in four months.

MR. KRAMER: Understood. Let me ask you this unless, gentlemen, you want to follow up anything on that?

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Did you send your findings up to the suite?

THE WITNESS: Yes. Brent Rhodenizer did an AI, I believe, and he sent it to me; and I sent it up to the suite, and I never heard back.

MR. KRAMER: I just need a second because this thing is telling me it's going to end this session.

(An off-the-record discussion was had.)

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. During the time that you were there, were you ever asked by any person to either monitor or record a conversation without that individual's knowledge?

A. No.

Q. Were you ever directed by anyone to do anything that you felt was immoral, or unethical, or illegal?

A. I would interpret unethical -- okay. let's back it up.

Q. Okay.

A. It was suggested to me to do something unethical, yet I refused. It was during an investigation on Camiel Rowe. I don't know if that name has come up in your investigation at all.

Q. The agents are nodding "yes."

A. Okay. So during the Camiel Rowe investigation, Joel DeCoursey and the director of the jail through -- well, the director of the jail and the current captain and lieutenant, which was Latrell Simmons and Ray Swallows, dumped this investigation in my lap. And the actual investigation on Camiel Rowe had already been completed. This was the investigation regarding her complaint that she felt that she was targeted or bullied or racially profiled or whatever.

So they dumped this on me, and so I started looking into it. And she had a complaint on one of the sergeants. Now, understand, the Camiel Rowe investigation now was complete, but it had not made it through the chain of command for discipline recommendations.

You got me so far?

Q. Yes.

A. Okay. So now that I'm in OPS, I'm currently in the discipline recommendation chain on that investigation that was completed prior to my arrival.

One of the lieutenants involved in that investigation was one of the new lieutenants who became one of the inspectors in OPS from shift work in the jail, and that's Lieutenant Beck. So he and a sergeant, whose name escapes me now, they did the investigation on her for leaving her post; it was clear. And because she then launched a counterclaim on her sergeant, Joel DeCoursey come to me. We met twice on this, I believe. And he said, "I think the interview is tainted because she complained on a sergeant. So, you know, I really don't think it was a proper interview, and I think this case is no good because of it."

And so I disagreed with him. I said, "Well, you know, that's your opinion, but I have no facts to prove that this interview is tainted," and I tried to explain why.

He and the director of the jail both tried to convince me that this investigation was tainted, the interview was, because she had lodged a counter complaint on her sergeant, basically, who was the complainant in the case prior to her interview.

So I developed a timeline on what happened, and it was apparent that Lieutenant Beck knew about the complaint on the sergeant, but he did not notify him or let him know until after the interview was completed. So during the interview the sergeant had no knowledge of the counter complaint against him, which by the way had already been looked into and was discarded by Scott Anderson previously when he was in OPS.

So they continued to try and convince me that this investigation was tainted, and it was ridiculous. And I don't know what the big deal was, why they were trying to make this investigation go away, but it was clear they were doing it.

Now, this is hearsay, but I was told by Latrell Simmons that Director Woody ordered him to write an IOC stating how he felt that this investigation was tainted and it should be dropped.

I then raised my voice to Latrell Simmons. You know, he had been my major at one time when I was a newly promoted captain, but we were both captains at this time because he had been demoted after the new sheriff came in. I told Latrell, I said, "Don't you compromise your integrity."

And he said, "I won't." And then he subsequently refused to write an IOC, and he made a recommendation of a proper discipline that would fit the discipline matrix for the charges that Camiel Rowe had.

You follow?

Q. I'm with you.

A. Okay. So I then made a subsequent appropriate recommendation for discipline based on her charges, which were sustained, and then I sent it to the suite. Joel DeCoursey then recommended a written reprimand.

Now, the minimum discipline based upon the sustained charges were, I believe, 15 days to termination. So I believe I had put 15 days on the investigation. Hopefully, you have a copy. Joel DeCoursey put "written reprimand," and the sheriff inappropriately said, "I concur with the undersheriff."

Now, as the sheriff, you need to not only say whether you feel the charge is sustained, but what charge is sustained, and then what is your discipline recommendation and recommendation for probation. He did none of that.

When this got back to me, I politely rejected it and sent it back to the undersheriff, and I said, "This is improper. If the sheriff wants to say it's unsustained or if he wants to sustain a lesser charge to where a written reprimand would be within the matrix, then that's what he needs to do; but as it stands, I can't accept this."

So to my knowledge, that's exactly what they did. And she received a written reprimand for something that someone else would have been terminated for; but before that stuff made it through the chain completely I was transferred out of OPS, and then Brandon Kutner caught that bag of crap.

Q. Understood. I think I asked you this, but were you ever asked to delete or alter any record that was within the disciplinary system for the sheriff's office?

A. I don't know if it's delete, but I received a call from Jake Rush regarding Saxton Dallas' civil case against the sheriff's office. He had won his case, and I was advised that the judge had ruled in favor of the Saxton Dallas and said that his discipline record was to be expunged or something to that effect. Understand I never received anything in writing; that's one of the issues, but I never received anything in writing from Jake Rush. He said he would send it to me; he never did.

I said, "Look, I'm not getting rid of any disciplinary files. I will put an amendment. I'll put that letter in his file, but I'm not going to delete" -- I mean, "I'm not going to expunge any records or remove any records of that case."

And he goes, "That's fine. That's fine," and he never sent me anything.

Come to find out, the paper versions of his files were gone anyway because he had left the agency, and so his disciplinary file was already sent to storage, off-site storage; but once again, I never received that paperwork for Saxton Dallas.

Now, that doesn't -- I don't think that really fits in your question, you know, but --

Q. Understood.

A. -- I was not asked to alter or delete any other types of disciplinary files.

Q. Were you ever ordered not to conduct an investigation upon any individual other than what you've already sort of alluded to with regard to the investigations you've discussed?

A. Ordered, no. There were -- there were some -- there was -- there was one. I was told by George Corwine not to pursue discipline on Cleveland Cox, who, I think, is a sergeant now, but he was a deputy sheriff at the time. He had some driving issues, and I was told by George Corwine that he had several driving cases. Well, he was disciplined for one. There was another one, which the 180 days had expired due to a supervisor's failure, and so he basically skated on that one. And then I said -- I sent him an IOC stating this case has been suspended, and -- but this does not absolve you of any subsequent disciplinary action that you may be involved in.

Then another case came down the pique, and I was told by George Corwine, "We can't do anything with that because I already gave" -- "I already spoke to him."

And I said basically, you know, "You gave him a talking to," or whatever.

And he goes, "Anything after this" -- "basically, you have a clean slate; but anything after this, you're going to be disciplined for."

Well, the one I'm referring to happened just before that conversation. So George Corwine told me, "We can't do anything with that," so nothing happened with that driving discipline case.

Q. All right. Is that the only -- is that the only other one?

A. Yeah, that I can recall.

Q. Okay. And again, I've asked the question about anything immoral, unethical, or illegal, and there was nothing else you needed to share with regard to that?

A. The general feeling was that -- I don't know what my purpose was at OPS other than to shut up and stay out of sight, basically.

Obviously, I didn't give them the answers that they wanted to hear because I only lasted four months, then I was sent back to patrol. So I believe the whole Camiel Rowe was unethical; but other than that, there wasn't a whole lot of investigations coming down the pique while I was there because I was only there four months.

MR. KRAMER: Understood.

Anything else?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Do you know why they chose Brandon Kutner to go into OPS after you?

A. Well, I have my opinion. My opinion was that he was about to be voted in as the next PBA president, and he was probably going to try to burn the place down after he became the PBA president. So I think they kept their enemies closer and promoted him to captain; because once you're a captain, you're not bargaining. And being OPS, you can't -- you know, you can no longer serve as PBA. You cannot serve as the PBA president and be a direct report to the sheriff.

I don't know the ins and outs of it, but that basically ended his candidacy. You know, he always wanted to be a captain; I know that. And good for him, you know, for whatever reason. Obviously, he has merits enough to be a captain on his own, but I -- you know, my opinion is that it had a lot to do with him running for PBA president.

Q. Who was your predecessor in OPS?

A. Mine? Good question. I think it was T.K.,

Todd Kelly, who's also retired, well, resigned.

Q. Do you know if any of the appointments or promotions were done because of favors or political promises?

A. I would say that George Corwine rehiring to major was absolutely regarding -- during the campaign George Corwine and Bobby Stafford were members of the PBA; and the PBA was backing Clovis Watson, and they spent a lot of time holding signs and putting signs out. They -- you know, they both ended up as majors at different times, and they're both no longer employed.

So, you know, absolute knowledge, no, but Jake Rush was hired as the counsel, chief counsel; and his best friend is Lance Yaeger, and Lance Yaeger is now a major. Having been promoted from deputy to captain, having never, to my knowledge, taken any promotional exams whatsoever, and now he's a major. So I believe -- so I believe that has happened, you know, but I don't have any first-hand knowledge of it.

MR. KRAMER: Understood. All right. John, thank you very much for your time. And if we need to get back in touch with you, we certainly will.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: I'm sorry. One more.

MR. KRAMER: Wait. We just had a new question.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. During your tenure there, sir, in OPS, did you ever deal with any case that -- like moral turpitude or criminal violation that per statute is supposed to go to CJSTC and were told either not to send it or were directed on how to deal with it?

A. No. So that would be the Camiel Rowe case. So when that time came, I was not there any longer; so Brandon Kutner had to deal with that, and he was required to send it to CJSCT. And I don't know if he was told not to, but he said, "I'm statutorily required. It's happening."

So Brandon would be better able to tell you better than that. It would have been that case, but I was already transferred out.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Thank you, sir.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Last question. Did you have any knowledge of John Hoover and his prior leaving at the sheriff's office or for the reason that he left?

A. Hoover. Was he a lieutenant? Because I believe when I was in OPS he was still a lieutenant, and that Hoover business happened after I was already back in special operations division. So no, I don't have any first-hand knowledge of Hoover.

Q. I think he was employed as a sergeant under a prior administration and either resigned in lieu of termination or was terminated.

A. Oh, he was just -- he was brought back?

Q. Yes.

A. No more than rumor. I don't have any first-hand knowledge about Hoover.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Okay. Thank you.

MR. KRAMER: All right. John, thanks so much. Have a good day.

WHEREUPON,

JOEL S. COPPOCK, JR.,

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Deputy Coppock, could you state your full name, please?

A. Joel S. Coppock, Jr.

Q. How are you employed?

A. Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

Q. How long have you been employed with the sheriff's office?

A. Since January 23rd.

Q. Of this year, 2023?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you previously employed in law enforcement?

A. Yes.

Q. In what capacity?

A. As a police officer with Alachua Police Department, and at the sheriff's office since 1989.

Q. And so let me just break that down a little bit. You've been employed at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office prior to this employment?

A. Correct. Yes.

Q. Could you describe that for me, that time frame?

A. April 1st, 1989, until April 1st, 2017.

Q. So you retired --

A. Yes.

Q. -- from the sheriff's office?

A. Yes.

Q. And then -- and what were the dates of your employment, if you recall, for the Alachua Police Department?

A. May 3rd of 2021 until January 22nd, 2003.

Q. Okay. And what I'd like to ask you about is your application to the sheriff's office. How did it come to pass that you applied to work at the sheriff's office?

A. Through the normal chain.

Q. Did you submit a job application to the --

A. Yes.

Q. -- sheriff's office?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you submit that through the normal --

A. Yes.

Q. When did you submit the application to start work at the sheriff's office?

A. December, January, in that area.

Q. December of 2022 or January of 2023?

A. Right. It's online. All of it's online now.

Q. And so, if I understand correctly, the earliest date would have been December 1st of 2022; the latest date would have been sometime in early January 2023.

A. Before that, because the application went through, yeah, before that.

Q. Okay. And so how did you become -- how do you become aware that the sheriff's office is considering hiring you?

A. Through, I want to say, HR, human resources.

I'm sorry. Who are these two gentleman?

MR. KRAMER: That's my bad. I got right into it. I always have them introduce themselves.

Go ahead.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: I'm Dave Snowden, inspector with FDLE.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Keith Riddick, Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So you're emailed, phone called, letter?

A. Emailed.

Q. And that email comes to you in January of 2023?

A. I'm not sure. I just know I was given a start date, and I don't know if it was -- I want to say it was an email, but I'm not sure, yeah.

Q. So who were you instructed to report to at the sheriff's office for your onboarding?

A. That's a good one. I can't remember.

Q. Okay. And so --

A. I think it was traffic division, but I didn't go straight to traffic division. I went to training, I guess. Not "training" training out there, but Sergeant Kinsey.

Q. So you go to Sergeant Kinsey for the purpose of acquiring a uniform, a vehicle, equipment?

A. I went to -- I was told to report to try on my uniforms, and then I had the other process of, you know -- man, I guess -- I went to a physical, took a physical. Then I was instructed to go get my uniforms, try on my uniforms. And then after the physical, I -- the 23rd I resigned at APD, and then the 23rd I started ASO. So from there I went to, I guess, Sergeant Kinsey's office.

Q. And between the time you filed the online application and the time that you showed up at the sheriff's office to try on uniforms, which is, I'm assuming, now the first thing you did --

A. Right.

Q. -- was there an interview process?

A. No.

Q. Were you given any testing other than the physical that you've described?

A. A written test?

Q. Like any form of written test.

A. No, sir.

Q. Was there any form of a polygraph?

A. Yes.

Q. When did that occur?

A. That occurred after the 23rd, so I want to say a week ago, two weeks ago.

Q. So today is April the 19th.

A. Right.

Q. So it was sometime around --

A. April 8th.

Q. That sounds like a very specific day.

A. Well, I'm thinking I was working that day, so yeah.

Q. So were there any other employment actions such as interviews, polygraphs, physicals, fitting for equipment? Anything else that -- because I don't know how someone is onboarded at the sheriff's office. Anything else that occurred between the time you submitted your application and the time you started working that I have not asked you about?

A. Yes, I took the agility course, passed the agility course. I qualified that day too.

Q. Firearms qualifications?

A. Right. And then after the polygraph I took the -- I can't think of the name of it, the mental health. I can't remember --

Q. Mental health evaluation?

A. Yeah, but it's not called that. I can't remember the name of it, but it was with Dr. Seitz.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Psychological?

THE WITNESS: Yeah, that's it.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Anything that I've missed that you can think of that I don't know about this onboarding process?

A. One day after I was hired I had to do paperwork, so that was, I guess, the 23rd or 24th.

Q. Okay. Now, were you required to participate in a field-training program?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And are you still in the field-training program?

A. No, I was in the excel part because I had prior history working here.

Q. So describe for me how long that field-training program lasted.

A. It was 35 DORs.

Q. What's a DOR?

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Daily observation report?

THE WITNESS: There you go, yeah.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Who was your field-training officer?

A. I had three or four. It was Deputy McCarthy, Deputy Evans. I can't think of the other guy's name.

Q. Okay.

A. Harris. Deputy Harris.

Q. Okay. So was your field-training period successful?

A. Yes.

Q. You passed without any concerns or problems?

A. Yes. Right.

Q. So how long were you -- well, let me rephrase this question. You indicated that you initially were assigned to patrol?

A. Traffic, yes.

Q. So you went into a traffic unit when you originally started with the sheriff's office?

A. Yes. January 1st, yes, that's what my assignment was. Well, I was assigned the sheriff's office, then I guess I was assigned to the traffic division somewhere in there, yes.

Q. Is that where you remain today?

A. Yes. Right.

Q. And I guess the other question is this. Other than the job opportunity at the sheriff's office, to work there, was there any other reason why you left the Alachua Police Department?

A. No.

Q. At the time you left the Alachua Police Department was there a pending internal affairs investigation?

A. Not on me, no.

Q. Was there any that had been recently completed?

A. Recently as -- what are you talking about?

Q. Let's say within 60 days prior to your departure from the department.

A. Not on me. I don't recall any.

MR. KRAMER: Did you guys want to follow up on any of those?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. You were with -- is it Alachua city?

A. Alachua city, yes, sir.
Q. Okay. And that was from May of 2021?
A. Yes. I started October 2020, but I was in reserves. And then I finished that program. And then, I guess, a couple people quit, and they asked me to come on, yeah.
Q. So you were --
A. May 3rd.
Q. -- full-time there May of 2021, May 3rd of 2021 --
A. Right.
Q. -- until January of this year?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Okay. So little over year and a half?
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. And you said that there wasn't an internal investigation on you. Was there an internal investigation on somebody?
A. You -- you --
Q. I mean, I'm just trying to understand.
A. Yeah. I don't know if it was internal. I don't know if it was internal or nothing, but, you know, you hear rumors, stuff of that nature.
Q. Did anybody ever come to you and say --
A. I was internal?

Q. Uh-huh.
A. No, sir.
Q. Okay. So nobody came to you and said that there's an OPS investigation or an IA investigation on you?
A. No, sir.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. They're required to give you some form of notice of that, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. They would have to specifically tell you, correct?
A. Well, sometimes we get complaints, and we have internal affairs out there, Sergeant Z. He used to worked for GPD. He'll call you in and say, "Oh, this not official. You got a complaint about this, but no serious internals or nothing like that."
Q. If they're doing an internal they would give you an actual notice of it?
A. Yes, sir, I would say. Yes, sir.
INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Did Sergeant Z call you in and say there was something that wasn't official, you got a complaint or something?
THE WITNESS: Yeah, it was about -- I don't know. He said 60 days, though, right.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Well, I'm just making that up because I have no idea what's going on over at the Alachua Police Department. If there was something going on as you were leaving, that's what we're interested in.

Nothing internal, no. It was some concerns someone alleged that I was trying to talk to someone else, and they told me to stay away from that certain person.

Q. When you say "talk to," do you mean have a relationship?

A. No, no. It was a waitress. And she said that I said this, and there was some witnesses that said I didn't say that. So they said the best thing to do was stay away from that person, but that was well over 60 days. That's what I was trying to figure out.

Q. That's the only thing you can remember that would have been at issue within that time frame or within months of you leaving?

A. That's the only thing. I had a pretty good time there.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. So nothing that would have been reported to CJSTC or gone up to standards?

A. No, sir.
Q. Nothing big?
A. Nothing big.
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Were you hired as an individual, or did you go through a -- was there like half a dozen deputies that got hired with you?
A. No, sir, just me.
Q. Did they swear you in with a class, or how did that work?
A. No. No, they didn't swear me in with a class.
Q. Did they swear you in individually?
A. No, sir.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. Who swore you in to become a deputy sheriff? Did the sheriff do that?
A. Not yet.
Q. So you're not -- you haven't taken the oath of a deputy?
A. Yeah, I signed the paper that say, yeah, I take the oath of deputy sheriff.
Q. But no one has made you hold your hand up?
A. No, sir.
Q. But there is someone you've --

A. Where I signed the paper, yes.
Q. You've signed a written note?
A. Right, right, right.
Q. And you did that on the day you did paperwork, I assume?
A. Yes, sir. I remember that.
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Where I came from, the traffic division was for the motorcycles. Is that similar to what you do now?
A. No, it's mostly traffic citations, crashes of that nature.
Q. So you just work traffic offenses?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And crashes?
A. Right. And we work when they're shorthanded, we work on the road too.
Q. So you're tasked with answering calls on occasion?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Was that part of the reason that you came over, that you were told you'd be able to go to the traffic unit?
A. Yes, sir. Yes, sir.
Q. Do individuals normally get hired and not have to go to, you know, patrol right away?

A. Yes, sir. Yes, sir.

Q. How often does that happen?

A. Well, I know some people left and came back, and they went to certain divisions. I don't know if it happened before, you know, before I was with this sheriff, but this happened before with other sheriffs.

Q. And you said that you originally started with the sheriff's office in '89 to 2017?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That's 18 years?

A. It was about 20, because I did 16 months in Columbia County Sheriff's Office.

Q. Okay.

A. So total is 30 years.

Q. And you wanted to come back, huh?

A. Well, when I went to APD it still felt good to do it, you know.

Q. You wanted to come back to Alachua, is what I'm getting at.

A. Sheriff's office?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Yes, sir. Yes, sir.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. All right. My last question for you is, has any person asked you, directed you, or ordered you to report the contents of this interview to them or to anyone?

A. No, sir.

MR. KRAMER: Very good.

WHEREUPON,

LANDON BROOKS

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE DEPONENT: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your full name, please?

A. Yes, Landon Brooks.

Q. Deputy Brooks, I'd like to start by asking you about your educational experience.

A. Sure.

Q. Can you tell me what your education is?

A. Yes, sir. I have a bachelors in criminal justice from Florida Gulf Coast University. I also have my fire certification and my EMT certification.

Q. All right. Very good. Could you describe for me your law enforcement experience, if any?

A. I don't really have any. I just got out of the academy. I graduated on April 4th. I just got out of the academy.

Q. I want to talk to you about your onboarding experience with the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Is that who currently employs you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I know there's a circumstance in which you can be sponsored -- I may be using the wrong terms, and please correct me if I am -- by an agency to go to school with the expectation that you're going to become part of that agency. Is that your situation?

A. No, sir, I was not. They picked me up at the very end of the academy.

So I started the application process in October-ish. They said that all the spots were full at the time. So my hope was to get maybe picked up halfway through the academy and sponsored, but things just didn't play out that way. So they picked me up at the very end.

Q. Explain to me what that process is like.

A. Yeah. Sure. You have to do a physical agility test first. I did that in -- I was supposed to do it in November. I got sick with COVID, so it got pushed back to December. I did that.

I had to do an oral board interview, which I believe is also -- it was either in December or January. I had to do a polygraph. They did a background investigation on me. I did a psych exam and a medical exam.

Q. And all of that occurs before an offer of employment?

A. Yes. Yes, sir, that's correct.
Q. Okay. So you completed each of those things, and then I'm assuming that you are now employed by the sheriff's office satisfactorily.
A. Yes, sir, to my knowledge.
Q. And they made an offer of employment to you?
A. Yes, sir, that's correct.
Q. And what is the next step after the offer of employment? I assume you accept, and what is the next step to onboard?
A. Accept and then go to HR, fill out a bunch of paperwork, stuff like that.
Q. During the process of filling out that paperwork, were you administered an oath?
A. I don't recall. I don't -- I don't recall.
Q. Did anyone at any time between today and the day you were born ask you to raise your right hand and swear to become a deputy sheriff?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Okay. Is it at least possible that something in that paperwork may have been an oath of office?
A. Yes, sir, that's correct.
Q. But you don't have a present recollection of whether or not that's an accurate statement or not. Is that fair?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So describe for me what has happened since you completed the paperwork.

A. Since I completed the paperwork, I took my state exam, passed that. And then we started our mini academy on the 10th, which consists of like eight weeks of additional training before we go into our field training program.

Q. And is that where you sit today?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what's called the mini academy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So as you sit here today you haven't engaged in any of the activities of a deputy sheriff with the public. Is that fair?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. I understand. All right. Prior to coming here today, were you asked by any member of the sheriff's office to report back to them the content of your interview that is occurring here today?

A. No, sir, I was not.

Q. Has anybody -- let me clarify this. Not disclosing to me the content of any conversation you may have had with any lawyer, has any person asked you to discuss the contents of this meeting with them?

A. No, sir.

MR. KRAMER: Let me just ask if these gentlemen have any other questions.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. So you get hired. And the mini academy, I'm going to assume that's a classroom phase of the FTO program.

A. Yes, sir, that's correct.

Q. How many individuals were hired with you?

A. So, like I said, I was a unique circumstance. There was ones that were hired before the academy started that went through the whole academy. I'm currently in that same class with them right now.

Q. How many are in there?

A. There's eight of us.

Q. So individuals that were sponsored to go through the academy or got picked up in the academy, as well as yourself, start the mini academy, which is the classroom phase of the FTO program?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you'll do that for eight weeks?

A. Yes, sir, that's correct.

Q. And then you'll do on-the-road training with FTO?

A. Yes, sir, that's correct.

Q. And that starts May? June?
A. I believe June, yes, sir.
BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:
Q. First off, congratulations.
A. Thank you.
Q. And welcome to the family, dysfunctional that we are.
Did you get a copy of your employment packet when you were hired?
A. I don't recall. I might have. I don't recall. I think I have the paperwork at home.
Q. If you do, and if we decide that we might want it, we'll go through --
MR. KRAMER: We will go through your lawyer, and that would either by a subpoena or by request.
MS. WEBSTER: I think the request will be fine. We'll talk about it, I'm sure.
INSPECTOR RIDDICK: If you do have it, don't do anything with it. Remember that old statute about tampering with evidence.
THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.

WHEREUPON,

JOSHUA LAMAR

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, ma'am.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Good afternoon, Deputy. My name is Brian Kramer. I'm the state attorney. It's nice to meet you.

A. Nice to meet you, sir.

Q. I want to start asking you questions about your education experience, and can you tell me what your education is, please?

A. I graduated high school and also had some college, maybe about a year, but didn't graduate from college.

Q. And have you gone to the law enforcement academy?

A. Yes, sir. I completed that in 2020 at Santa Fe School of Public Safety.

Q. And what was your job occupation between completion of 2020, if any -- completion of 2020 and your beginning to become employed with the sheriff's office?

A. Yeah. So while I was going to the police academy I was dispatcher at the City of Alachua Police Department. Once I completed the police academy, I was still a dispatcher until the summer of 2021; and that's when I transitioned into police officer.

Q. So you were employed as a police officer with the Alachua Police Department?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So let's talk about your time with them. How long were you with the Alachua Police Department?

A. From 2016 until 2022.

Q. And in 2016 did you start as a dispatcher?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you were dispatcher up until the time that you became a police officer?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you also continue to dispatch, or were you solely a police officer at that point?

A. I was solely a police officer once I transitioned.

Q. So that, you said, was April 2021?

A. July of 2021.

Q. And then from July of 2021 when did you end your employment with the Alachua Police Department?

A. It was in October of 2022 or -- yes, 2022.

Q. 2022?
A. Yes.
Q. And was the reason that you ended your employment with the Alachua Police Department because you obtained a different occupation or a different employment?
A. No, sir.
Q. What happened to end your employment?
A. I ended up resigning in lieu of termination from the Alachua Police Department.
Q. Okay. And what was the situation? If you could, just describe it generally for me.
A. I can. I handled a call. I was on probation, probationary officer, during that time, and it was a policy violation that I ended up going into investigation. And obviously when you're on probation, departments give you a whole bunch to --
Q. Absolutely.
A. So that's what ended up happening.
Q. You're going to have to forgive me because my questions might be unintelligent in the sense that I don't understand officer discipline a great deal.
Was the nature of the violation such that it would have required the agency to report the issue to FDLE and call your standards into question, if you know? If you don't know --

A. I'm not sure.

Q. So you resigned from the agency, essentially, while under investigation?

A. No, after the investigation was over.

Q. Oh, the investigation was over?

A. Yeah. It was completed, yes, sir.

Q. And the allegation was going to be -- or was founded? Is that what they call it?

A. I believe so.

Q. Sustained?

A. I believe so.

Q. And so then they gave you the choice?

A. Yes, the chief of police.

Q. You can resign, which would look better for you because you're on probation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not it was something you would have been terminated for had you not been on probation?

A. Again, I'm not sure. I was a first-year officer, so I just --

Q. You made that choice. That's fine. I completely understand.

So that occurs, and what is your employment history from that point until you become -- start the onboarding process with the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. There was no employment. I applied to the sheriff's office, I believe, in November, first week of November time frame.

Q. Tell me the last day that you're employed.

A. I believe it was October 16th or 15th, somewhere around there, 15th or 16th was my last day at -- when I was terminated.

Q. And you start the application process to the sheriff's office approximately 30 days later?

A. It was like the first week. It was like maybe November 4th or something around that time frame when I decided to go ahead with the sheriff's office.

Q. Between two and three weeks?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And what is the first thing that occurs in your life to start that process? Is it a conversation? Is it an application? What is it?

A. Just an application. I had conversation with my mom just trying to figure out what my next steps were. At the time I was thinking about going down south. I really wanted to move to Tampa area. I thought about other the agencies here. I didn't know exactly what that looked like for me, so I just started with the first one that I thought of, which was ASO.

Q. And so what did you do? Fill out an application?

A. Yes, sir, online. It was an online application.

Q. And how do you become aware that they're interested in you?

A. They gave me a call, I believe it was. I want to say after the application is submitted you get like an email confirmation a couple days later. And after that it's like maybe a week or two later that you get called, "Hey, we received your application, would you be willing to come in and do the physical agility and stuff like that"?

Q. That's what I'd like to talk about, is that process, all the things that you did between the time that you submit your application to the time that they tell you you're employed.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or they're, I guess, going to fill some paperwork out with you that actually starts them paying you.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So tell me. You get the call; that would be the first thing. What's the next thing that you do?

A. So they called telling me that they received my application, that, you know, my process is starting. And then they ask what would be a good day to set an appointment for your physical agility course. You tell them that you're available whenever. So they assigned a day. I think it was like the second week of December.

Then from that point, you go to the IPS, which is where they do the obstacle course. I believe that day it was raining really bad, so I rescheduled for the following Monday or Saturday or something along those lines. Once I cleared the obstacle course, they told me that they'd be in contact with me via phone.

During the next couple of weeks, I had -- there were two investigators. I can't remember their names exactly --

Q. That's all right.

A. -- but there were points on the application they needed, background, they needed like your credit history, stuff like that. So I would have to go back and forth playing phone tag with them as far as getting all that lined up.

Once they received everything, and that process was complete, the next step was the polygraph, I believe, or not the polygraph, the oral board interview.

Once we completed the oral board interview, the next step after that was the polygraph and then the physical, medical, drug test. And then after that it was a waiting game until --

Q. Was there a psychological?

A. I believe that was -- yes, there was. Between the physical and the drug test, there was a psych -- we did the psych eval as well, yes, sir.

Q. So after that's all complete, you're now just waiting for them to say yes or no?

A. Yes, pretty much. Yes, sir.

Q. And when does that completion occur? Or when did they tell you yes? I know dates are tough. Just generally.

A. I would say in January time frame, the end of January, because the first day, that starting date, was February 6th, so it was --

Q. And what was your -- what was your assignment, I guess, is the -- what were you assigned to do starting February 6?

A. February 6 I was to show up at the station, business casual. I believe I was assigned to Sergeant Kinsey at the time. And on that day we just filled out HR paperwork; kind of took my picture, badge picture; got access to different systems.

And then from that day they told me that I was going to -- because I was kind of in limbo between the police academy class that they had currently that was getting ready to graduate and the one that already did that had already started the mini academy.

So I was waiting until that next class got done to graduate the police academy and start the ASO mini academy in April. And so because I was hired during that interim time, they wanted to make sure that I was able to get a paycheck.

During that time, instead of sticking me somewhere, I was able to work at the criminal courthouse providing assistance there in the control room, which is just monitoring cameras.

Q. You weren't interacting with the public?

A. No, I wasn't in a deputy status.

Q. At any time did anyone ask you to raise your right hand and take an oath, the oath of a deputy sheriff?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall ever swearing an oath or signing an oath in writing?

A. Not that I recall, no, sir.

Q. Is there paperwork that you completed as a part of your onboarding process?

A. As far as HR?

Q. Yes.

A. Stuff like insurance and those things?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as far as your taking of an oath, I guess my question is: Do you have a memory of whether you signed one? Or are you just saying, "I don't know if I signed one"?

A. I do not remember specifically if there was an oath that I signed as far as swearing in to a deputy status. I just remember signing HR paperwork initially.

Q. Fair enough. And so the status that you're in right now, as I understand it, is mini academy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And let me ask you. Was there any concern, investigation, conversation with you about whatever it was that caused your dismissal from APD during the onboarding process with ACSO?

A. During my oral board it was brought up, I believe. They were aware, obviously, doing a background.

Q. And you answered their questions to their satisfaction?

A. Yes. Detail, yes, sir.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Fair enough.

Any other questions, gentlemen?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. When you did your physical agility, was that with a group of individuals?

A. Yes, it was a lot of us. It was like maybe 18 or 20 that were out there that initial day. It was raining, so they gave everybody an option to either wait until later in the day when the rain stopped or you can reschedule for the following, like, Friday or Saturday. So I rescheduled for the following Friday or Saturday.

Q. Did anybody else reschedule?

A. I believe actually Landon, who you guys just talked to, was out there, and I think maybe two or three others that rescheduled for that day as well.

Q. Did they ever talk to you about, due to your prior law enforcement experience, doing a shortened academy, or was that brought up?

A. No, sir, not that I recall. I don't -- everything that I've done has been like the rest of the cadets from the mini academy. People know that I have prior law enforcement experience, but it was only a year; but everything has been straightforward for me. Again, I haven't been through the sheriff's office process, so that's --

Q. What will the assignment be upon your completion?

A. Regular deputy sheriff on patrol.

Q. Will you be allowed to go to any specialized units or --

A. No, not until I complete, I believe it's, a year. After my probation ends, they said that you can start applying for specialty units. So you have to wait the whole year on the probation.

Q. You got aspirations of where you want to go?

A. That's tough. I think detective, but I'm not sure. We'll see where I end up.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did you get a copy when you did all your paperwork? Do you have a copy of all that? Do you recall?

A. I don't have copies of the paperwork that I signed.

Q. If you don't, you don't.

A. I'm not sure.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Then the last question I have for you is, other than I'm not asking you to discuss with me any conversations you might have had with any lawyer who represents you, including the gentleman next to you, has anybody asked you to discuss or directed you to discuss the contents of this interview with them following your presence here?

THE WITNESS: No, sir.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

That's it. Thank you for coming in. Congratulations and best of luck.

(The deposition concluded at 2:17 p.m.)

WHEREUPON,

DORIAN KEITH

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, ma'am. Absolutely.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Good morning, Major. My name is Brian Kramer. I'm the state attorney. It's nice to meet you. Thank you for being here.

I want to start by asking you, are you a sworn law enforcement?

A. I'm a corrections officer.

Q. How long have you been a corrections officer?

A. Twenty-three years.

Q. And has all that time been with the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. It has been.

Q. And other than major, in what other capacities have you served?

A. A DO from 2000 to 2022 -- to 2004. I'm sorry. 2004, I became a Detention Officer II. Shortly thereafter -- as a matter of fact, exactly a month after I was promoted to sergeant. Then I've a been lieutenant, then captain, acting major, and now major.

Q. What are your responsibilities as major?

A. At the jail, I am the jail director. I'm responsible for everybody and everything.

Q. So the jail is entirely your responsibility?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you report to the undersheriff?

A. I do.

Q. And let me ask you this. In your capacity that you've served with the sheriff's office, have you ever been involved in the officer discipline process?

A. Somewhat, yes, sir.

Q. And my understanding is that officer discipline can occur in two different ways. One could be through the chain of command, or one could be through the office of professional standards?

A. Yes. So it would depend, I guess. So if someone from OPS saw you do something, then they could navigate their own investigation; or you could do something in your division, and then it would be through the chain of command.

Q. And specifically there's an investigation I want to ask you a question about, and that's in regard to a person by the name of Sergeant Pam James. Do you know who that is?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And there was a disciplinary investigation involving Sergeant James. Are you familiar with it?

A. Somewhat. Somewhat.

Q. What's your understanding of what occurred in that instance?

A. So I don't remember dates and times, but at some point I was the special projects and administration captain. And I was also, if you will, kind of the right hand to then Major Stafford, if you will. He was the director.

And so he told me one day, he came up, and he said, hey -- he said -- I think he said Lieutenant Scott had an issue with Sergeant James.

And I said, "Really?"

And he said, "She was insubordinate."

And I said, "Okay. That's interesting. I've never saw that side of her," was my exact words.

And he said, "She was just loud."

I started laughing. I said, "She's always loud." I said, "It's hard to even have kind of a private conversation with her, if you will, because she's loud."

And so he was like, "Yeah." He said, "I" -- "I", meaning him -- "will have to look into it further to see exactly what was going on."

And I said, "Okay."

I never heard anything else about it because they weren't answering to me. They were answering to him because he was the director, and so that was that.

And then at some point whenever he was gone and I got promoted, I was on my way to work; and I needed her to do something.

Q. Who is the "her"?

A. "Her," meaning Sergeant James. I'm sorry.

Q. That's okay.

A. I needed Sergeant James to do something, and I was -- I want to believe that I called to find out could she do it or whatever. And at some point somebody told me that, oh, you know, today -- no, I know what it was. I'm sorry.

I was calling to tell her that her 25-year plaque presentation was rescheduled, and I found out at that time that she was upstairs. When I called for her, they say she's upstairs in OPS.

And I said, "Why would she be upstairs in OPS?"

They said today is her testimony, if you will, and I said okay.

And so when I hung up the phone, that was very odd to me; and it was odd to me because, in all my 23 years being there, when there's an investigation that is done at the division level, everybody is questioned in security, if you will, down in those conferences in those offices. So I found it very strange that she was up there.

And, mind you, I knew when others had went up, but they didn't -- I'm sorry, that others had been questioned, but they didn't go upstairs. They were all questioned at the division level.

So I said, as a major, I want to make sure we get things right. So I believe I called Schabruch at some point, and I said, "Hey," I said, "can you tell me why Sergeant James is being questioned upstairs?" I said, "I don't need to know what the questions are. I don't need to know any of that. I just want to know why she was being questioned upstairs, and nobody else was."

He said, "I don't know," he said, "but I'll look into it." He said, "Are you saying this has never happened?"

I said, "Absolutely, it's never happened. And I can tell you right now that if we want to change the culture around here, that we have to treat everybody the same."

And I think he was the captain at that time, and he may still be; I don't know. But I said, "Captain," I said, "we got to make sure that we do things the right way."

And he said, "I'll get back with you."

And at some point that day I think he got back with me, and he said, "If you don't want me to allow the agency to use our interview room to do the interviews, then this is your jail, just say that."

I said, "Sir, that's not what I'm saying to you." I said, "What I'm saying to you is that it has never been done."

And at some point he said -- and the reason I keep saying "at some point" is because I don't know the times. This has been a minute.

So he says, "Patrol has done it."

I said, "Captain," I said -- he said when OPS was located at the main building, he said patrol -- he believed patrol had done it.

I said, "Sir," I said, "patrol and the jail is two different beasts." I said, "Patrol are out there in cars, and so they may not have an office that they have available to them to do an interview." I said, "However, the jail lieutenant and captains all have their own office, plus they have a conference room that they can utilize." I said, "And that's the way it's always been done. Unless you're telling me something that's changed, that's different, then say that," and he did not.

He said, "Well, let me go back and ask the people."

And I believe the people that he was referring to at that time would have been probably Lieutenant Salman because he was in OPS and came from the jail, and maybe Captain Beck because Captain Beck was the captain of security.

And so he came back and told me, he said, "We don't have an incident" -- or "they can't remember an incident where this has ever happened."

And I said, "Yeah, probably because it's never happened."

And to back up a little bit, when he told me -- when I found out that she was there, and I called to see was she there, he said she was there. And I said, "Have they started the interview?

And he said yes, they had already started, so I did not interfere because -- I just let it go. She's there now.

And so once I found that out, and then -- what else transpired that day? I think that he ended up -- and I don't want to speculate; because if I don't remember, I'm just going to say I don't remember.

I don't remember exactly what he did after that; but I know at some point he and I did have a conversation about it, and I think it was in my office. And we talked about, you know, the differences in between the jail and patrol and why I felt the way I felt.

And I told him, I said, "I just believe that if you're going to" -- "if you're going to interview her up here, and she's the only one being interviewed up here, then perhaps you guys should lead the investigation versus having the division do it," I said, "because I'm telling you now, she's going to feel some type of way."

I remember that conversation.

Q. Okay. So let me ask you this. At some point is it your understanding that the investigation involving Sergeant James ends?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And how does it come to an end? What's your understanding?

A. Okay. So I know at some point, and I wish I could remember.

Q. No one is asking you to remember dates.
A. Okay.
Q. Please don't feel like we are.
A. Okay. I just like to be as accurate as I can be.

And so I think at some point I may have told undersheriff that I had a problem with her investigation, and the reason why I had a problem with her investigation is because people talk, everybody talk.

And so I had found out, and I don't remember who through, but not only did she -- she was the only one that got interviewed up there. When she was in the room being interviewed, there was another inspector standing at the door. I felt like, to me, that could be intimidation. Okay. That was one incident.

And then another thing was, one of the witnesses had just come back off of a cruise with the complainant that did the investigation. And then, if I remember correctly, they interviewed her again after they come back from the cruise. And all this, once again, took place downstairs. Sergeant James was the only one that went upstairs.

And then I also remember, to go back a little bit, Major Stafford had shared with me that undersheriff told him that, "You treat her like you treat everybody else," because I think -- I think at that time -- and I don't know what it was about. Sergeant James had a lawsuit, and I think that Major Stafford was kind of on the fence about how he should proceed with her.

And Major Stafford shared with me that undersheriff shared with him, "Treat her like you treat everybody else," which I'm good with. That's the way it should be.

And he also said that he had to get with OPS to change the -- this is being Major Stafford, to get with OPS to change the charge from being -- I think it was insubordination to conduct unbecoming because, he said -- his words to me was, "Remember when your first reaction was she's loud all the time?" He said when he went back, and he talked about what occurred, that's what kept coming up, was the fact that she was loud.

And so I think at that moment Major Stafford realized that maybe she wasn't being insubordinate. She was being loud, but she's loud all the time; and it wasn't -- maybe Lieutenant Scott may have taken it however she took it; I don't want to speak for her, but I think that what Major Stafford was telling me -- because we work very closely together, so he shared a lot with me. And I think he was being feeling that it's probably not insubordinate. She's probably loud because she's always loud and emotional, but maybe that wasn't the right time.

And so he said he needed to get with them so he could change the charge from being insubordinate to whatever he wanted to change it to, and I think it was conduct unbecoming.

And so as we talked about it with Schabruch and I was sharing with the undersheriff about the things that transpired that I didn't feel comfortable with, it came up at that time that she was indeed being charged with insubordination instead of conduct unbecoming; and so I think that's what put the spin in that that's not what should happen, that it --

Q. So is it your understanding that she was treated as everyone else and the investigation went through its normal course, or that it ended in some other way?

A. No, I don't think that she was treated like everybody else. I definitely do not think she was treated like everybody else. And I felt like because she wasn't, that may have played into why the investigation went the way that it did.

Because if I would have been doing that investigation, everybody would have been questioned downstairs. No way would -- not to say that anything improper happened; but being a lieutenant, you can't -- in my opinion, you should not hang out with the person that's your key witness, if you will. And not only that, if you're friends, okay, fine. But not only that, during the course of that, one of the other things that I shared with undersheriff was that I saw Lieutenant Scott several times, because I'm right up there with OPS, hanging out with OPS. And so when you do that -- nobody wants to hang out with OPS. I'm right up there with them. And I can count probably on one hand the number of times that I go down there, and it's when I have to.

But I saw her down there just kind of hanging out with Salman. And the, if you will, "probably rumor mill but everybody hears" is that she's trying to control the outcome of the narrative. None of that looks good.

So I don't feel like she was -- that Sergeant James was treated like everybody else; because if she would have been, everybody else that we've done has been interviewed downstairs. Why would she need to go upstairs and be interviewed by Salman -- or with standing at the door when Lieutenant Scott is conducting the investigation? It makes no sense.

Q. I understand what you're saying, but your understanding is that the investigation was essentially just ended by the administration? Is that the way it comes to an end?

A. Well, I wouldn't say just ended. I think that -- if I remember correctly, my understanding was that undersheriff was saying I told Stafford that -- and Stafford and I talked about it, that the charge was not going to be insubordination. That's what my understanding of it was.

I don't think the administration -- and when you say "administration," who are you talking about specifically?

Q. I don't know.

A. Okay. I don't know either. It's a lot of people in administration, so I don't want to speculate who you're talking about.

Q. Oh, no. I'm only asking you what your understanding is.

A. Oh, yeah. I mean, because when I look at administration, I think about anybody that's a lieutenant or above is in administration, including the sheriff. And I certainly never had a conversation with the sheriff about any OPS investigation, never had a conversation about -- even when there is an investigation going on -- and because I am the director of the jail, when I find out that a captain or whatever wants to write somebody up, out of respect, I tell undersheriff, hey, this person did this, this, and this, and we're going in this direction. And he says thanks for the heads up, and that's it.

So it's not like we actually discuss it, it's just an FYI, like I would do you if you were my boss.

Q. Understood.

A. Yeah.

MR. KRAMER: Any follow-up on the James investigation?

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: No, sir.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: I got a couple questions on that.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Was it Lieutenant James?

A. Jamie Scott.

Q. Jamie Scott?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that the one doing the investigation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did I understand you correct that Captain Beck and Lieutenant Scott were together, and that's who Pam James was allegedly being insubordinate to?

A. So if you're talking about the initial investigation, when Stafford told me about it, he said Lieutenant -- Captain Beck was in Lieutenant Scott's office. And I guess they were talking to Sergeant James, or she came in to ask a question, and that's where it all transpired.

Q. So Lieutenant Jamie Scott was also a complainant on this and doing the investigation?

A. She was the lieutenant, so she was the one who did -- she did the investigation.

Q. Is that -- was it Lieutenant Jamie Scott that interviewed Pam James?

A. She was one of them, yes, sir.

Q. Was there others? Do you know?

A. I don't know who the others was. I know that Lieutenant Scott -- I mean, Lieutenant Salman, who is in OPS, was there. He was present, yes, sir.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Are you aware of the Cory Short investigation?

A. Cory Short investigation? No, I don't think

I am. I mean, you can tell me, and I'll tell you if I am; but no.

Q. That's okay. Last question is, have you been directed, ordered, or requested to report the contents of this interview back to any person at the sheriff's office?

A. Oh, no, sir, absolutely not. As a matter of fact, I emailed -- or not emailed. I called Darry Lloyd because normally when we get a subpoena at the jail it has an inmate name and case number. And I'm like, okay, what is this about? I didn't see any of that. And so it says in the content of the email to call Darry Lloyd if you have a question, and he never called me back. And so I called --

Q. That's not very nice of him.

A. That is not nice.

Q. I'll have to speak to him about that.

A. I'm not trying to tell on him. I'm just being honest.

And so our policy is when we get a subpoena or something like that, we notify the suite or whatever; and that's been a policy forever. And so I -- I'm not sure if I forwarded it to Rush or did I call him; but either way, he never called me back either and said nothing about it.

And I know for days Lieutenant Scott asked me, Hey, have you heard anything? Do you know why we're going?"

And I said, "I don't know; but if Darry Lloyd ever call me back, I'll let you."

MR. KRAMER: I'll mention his transgression to you. I appreciate you coming.

THE WITNESS: Thank you so much.

WHEREUPON,

JAMIE SCOTT

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Good afternoon. My name is Brian Kramer. I'm the state attorney. Could you start by telling me how you're currently employed?

A. I'm currently employed with the Alachua County Sheriff's Office in the capacity of lieutenant assigned to the department of jail.

Q. Are you dual sworn or corrections?

A. I am dually certified.

Q. Could you briefly review for me what positions you've held with the sheriff's office?

A. When I was hired in 2008 I was hired as a detention officer. Once I turned 21, I was already dual certified. I just turned 21. I was detention deputy, field training officer. Then I promoted to sergeant in 2016 and lieutenant in 2020.

Q. And what we actually have questions for you about today is the investigation that was involving Pam James. Do you recall that investigation?

A. I do.

Q. And could you start by telling me what your involvement was in that investigation?

A. (Unintelligible.)

THE REPORTER: Ma'am, you're going to have to speak up.

A. I was the complainant.

I'm a little uncomfortable.

Q. I hope I'm not making you uncomfortable.

A. Just the situation.

Q. Is there anything about that you want to discuss with us off the record?

A. (Shrugs shoulders.)

Q. You can, if there's something that can ease your mind.

A. I'm just curious why I'm here.

Q. I will tell you this. You're not the target of an investigation. No one thinks you've done anything wrong, if that helps.

Can you tell me -- you're the complainant in the investigation -- what was the allegation?

A. Insubordination.

Q. And my understanding, and you can please correct me if I'm wrong, is that within the sheriff's department there's two ways an investigation can be handled for misconduct. One would be through the office of professional standards, and the other would be through the chain of command for the person who's committed the violation. Is that accurate?

A. Correct.

Q. And in this investigation, which one of those methodologies was being employed?

A. More or less, chain of command. I was not her direct chain of command; she did not have one at the time other than the captain, but I was lieutenant on the day shift at the time.

Q. So did that investigation -- you're the complainant, so is there an investigator when it's being handled this way?

A. I was the investigator and complainant.

Q. So can you just kind of walk me through what occurred with that investigation?

A. The incident, or the investigation?

Q. I'm not that concerned about the incident itself. I'm really much more interested in the investigation.

A. So, obviously, there was an incident that occurred where the sergeant was very loud, disrespectful, vocal with myself and a captain present. I told him, because this was not the first time there was an incident with her, that I wanted to make a complaint. At some point he came back and told me to go ahead and do a -- you know, request a tracking number, and that was done through the office of professional standards.

I went through and did witness interviews. There were several witnesses that were in the area at the time, civilian staff and sworn, well, certified. We got those interviews done, then we did the subject interview with the assistance of OPS in the area. It finished. I got everything typed up and emailed it to the captain, and I left a hard copy under his door because it was the end of the day. And then --

Q. Who was the captain?

A. At that time it was James Beck. He is a lieutenant now.

Q. When you say "complete," it means, as far as I understand it -- trust me when I tell you I'm learning -- is that all the investigative part has been done. And then you make a recommendation of founded, unfounded, or what have you, and then a recommendation for discipline?

A. Correct.

Q. So it has all of that done, and you put that under the door?

A. Correct. As far as I was aware, I was done with what needed to be done. Now, there are occasions where, you know, the chain of command may look at it and say, okay, this needs to be corrected.

But I submitted it, and then when I returned to work -- or it may have been when I was off, but either way, after that point I was told that it was dismissed; that the major had passed it down, that it was dismissed.

I requested to speak with her just about the situation, not necessarily that it was dismissed, but it was a volatile situation. And when I spoke with her, she told me that the undersheriff had dismissed it, and that I needed to go tell Pam James that it had been dismissed.

Q. Let me just back up for a second. I'm going to assume, and it may not be true, that this is not the first disciplinary action you've been involved with in your career as a law enforcement official.

A. It's not, but I have not done a lot of drawn-out investigations. We have fast track options as well, and most of my experiences have been with fast tracks. I've requested assistance in the past for some training in it, and that opportunity hasn't come up yet. So luckily, OPS is in our building, and they offered assistance with the things that I struggled with.

Q. And so do you have an understanding of whether dismissal is an option that exists within the policies and procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. I did not know that there was an option.

Q. It is what occurred?

A. It is what occurred, so I believe it is now.

Q. Or it exists because it has happened in the past, not that it's authorized by the rules and regulations?

A. I'm not sure what's happened in the past. I'm just aware of the one incident.

Q. Correct, and that's the past I'm referring to.

A. Yes.

Q. So what -- is there any documentation associated with this dismissal that you're aware of? Like, are you given a piece of paper? Because my understanding is that that disciplinary packet is going to, under normal circumstances, travel through the chain of command all the way to the sheriff and then back to you?

A. (Nods head.)

Q. Does this thing just disappear?

A. I mean, I wasn't given anything. I was told it was dismissed.

Q. So you're not given -- that packet of paperwork does not return to you?

A. No.

Q. You're not given any kind of other documentation, email, text message, anything other than verbal that the incident has been dismissed?

A. It's been a little bit since then. Without going back and looking, I can't tell you for sure that there was nothing in an email or a text message.

Q. And the first person to deliver the news to you that it was dismissed is who?

A. I believe it was James Beck.

Q. And his direction to you is for you to confer with --

A. No. I requested to meet with her just because I didn't want the situation repeated.

Q. Meaning to meet with Sergeant James?

A. No, to meet with Major Keith, who had passed down the information. I didn't want the incident with Sergeant James to repeat again because it's been a prior issue, which I don't know that anyone was really aware of other than them; but this had been an issue in the past, and I wanted to make sure it wasn't an issue in the future because it makes for a very uncomfortable environment.

Q. You go to meet with the major, and the major tells you now that you need to go tell Sergeant James that this investigation is dismissed?

A. Correct.

Q. And normally, it's my understanding that the way that the person who is the subject of the investigation would find out the result of the investigation is through some form of written process.

A. Correct.

Q. Does that occur here?

A. It did not at the time. I don't know if she was given it by somebody else I'm unaware of.

Q. What is the major's position about the ongoing and continuous problem that the sergeant could create because she's being disruptive, loud, insubordinate now without discipline?

A. I don't know.

Q. Is that discussed in that meeting with the major?

A. We talked about it just because it's been an ongoing thing, but it didn't really go anywhere.

Q. So do you then tell Sergeant James that the matter is dismissed?

A. I did.

Q. And does it continue? I don't know when this occurred. Has this continued to be an ongoing problem?

A. It's been a while. We just have very minimal interaction now.

Q. Is she on your shift?

A. She is not on my shift. She works an administrative schedule in an office that is right next to me.

Q. Let me make sure I understand your current duties. You're a correctional lieutenant who oversees a shift during the day or --

A. Yes, during the day, 0600 to 1800.

Q. Is that what you were doing at the time?

A. It is.

Q. At that time that you -- I'm backing up now just to keep you on track.

The time that you conducted the investigation and you spoke --

A. Are we able to go off the record?

MR. KRAMER: Sure, we can stop for a moment.

(An off-the-record discussion was had.)

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. What were your findings in that investigation?

A. They were founded.

Q. For?

A. Insubordination.

Q. And then you said that this is sent up the chain of command for possible corrections. Explain to me what you meant by "corrections."

A. Well, it was sent up the chain of command. As far as I was concerned it was complete; but if he would have seen something, the captain would have seen something -- well, he wasn't actually going to be signing it. He was supposed to be reviewing it because he was a witness, so he wasn't going to make a recommendation.

The major at that time had told him, I believe, to review it, you know, before that point -- we were at a transition at that time -- just kind of review to make sure it was correct because he was in OPS at one point prior, but then send it up for recommendation elsewhere since he was a witness. So he wasn't going to put a recommendation on it. So I had forwarded -- I had sent it to him.

Q. Do you have still a copy of the investigation you did?

A. Probably.

Q. You said that Lieutenant James now has an administerial position?

A. It's Sergeant James. She was already in an administrative position, so she works like Monday through Thursday.

Q. She works a special schedule?

A. Yes.

Q. How long has that been?

A. She's been the administrative sergeant for a while.

Q. So all administrative sergeants within the jail work a four ten?

A. There's only one sergeant. The administrative lieutenant is on five eights. It's kind of varied between eights and tens.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: No other questions.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Your investigation that you did do before it was dismissed, was it uploaded in to IA Probe?

A. I know that the majority of it was. The Blue Team had been set up. I know I had gotten part of it in there. I don't know if the completed packet went in. It should have been scanned in because I sent it via email. So I don't know that it went into Blue Team; but I scanned it to send it, so I should have a copy. We were just learning how to use Blue Team, and that was the start of us using it. It was also the end of it.

Q. You don't use Blue Team anymore?

A. We haven't really had a reason to anymore. They had only started training us on it. It had just started when that came up.

Q. The interviews that you did as part of the investigation, were they recorded?

A. They were.

Q. Were they loaded as far as -- or had you got a chance to do that?

A. I believe so, yeah. I think they're still on the recorder too.

Q. Were you given any instructions on deleting them or anything like that?

A. No.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Thank you.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And just to check with you, has anyone from the sheriff's office requested you to report the content of this conversation to them upon its completion?

A. No.

MR. KRAMER: All right. That's it. Thank you.

WHEREUPON,

TODD KELLY

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Can you tell me your full name?

A. Todd Kelly.

Q. And how are you, if you are, currently employed?

A. I am not currently employed as of Friday of last week.

Q. How were you employed Thursday of last week?

A. I worked for Motorola solutions, a communications company that -- I was on the public software side.

Q. And are you currently a sworn law enforcement officer or certified law enforcement officer?

A. I would imagine, yeah, technically I still am because I left in '21.

Q. But the last time you worked for a law enforcement agency was in 2021?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how many years did you work in law enforcement?

A. Total, I think, 24 point something. At ASO, I was there just over 22 years, roughly.

Q. And where were you before ASO?

A. Lake City PD for a short time, and then Brevard County Sheriff's Office.

Q. And what position did you hold at ASO?

A. Everywhere from deputy -- I started there as a deputy, obviously, and then worked my way up through the ranks, sergeant, lieutenant, then I left as a captain in '21.

Q. And were you ever in charge of the office of professional standards?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when was that?

A. Oh, gosh, it's embarrassing how quick the dates go. I want to say it was around -- let's see here. Oh, gosh. The dates get by me now.

I want to say around 2015-ish or so when I got promoted to captain. That's where I was assigned, was the office of professional standards.

Q. And when you left the agency in 2021, what was your rank?

A. Captain.

Q. And what were you the captain of?

A. At that particular time they had moved me to criminal investigations, so I went back to CID.

Q. Had you been a detective during your career?

A. Yes.

Q. And when Sheriff Watson took over, what was your job assignment before he took over?

A. When he took over I was a captain assigned to the office of professional standards, and then I also had policy accreditation and human resources.

Q. So when did you leave the sheriff's office?

A. July of 2021.

Q. And was there -- was there anything that led to your leaving that involved the sheriff?

A. Not directly. I mean, it definitely influenced my decision to look elsewhere; but there was no, you know, singular, like, over instance where I said, that's it, I'm out of here because of X, Y, or Z, no, sir.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Can you tell me why you said it made the decision easier?

A. Just the -- I think the -- just my initial impressions of what that working relationship would be like didn't necessarily align with my personal kind of, you know, not necessarily goals or objectives, but kind of my personal -- what I saw going forward as a path, I didn't see that being necessarily a relationship that I wanted to be in.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. When you were the -- I guess it's chief inspector, is the actual term for the head of OPS division.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was -- you were under Sheriff Darnell?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that continued into at least some portion of the administration with Sheriff Watson?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that point was it located at the jail, or was it located at the main --

A. No. When he took office, my office was like -- they used to call that like the suite, or the sheriff suite. Office of professional standards was located in a space right next to that. So there was a doorway that went between like our office and the sheriff's suite.

Q. And where were investigations? Like when you were doing interviews, where were they conducted in?

A. In that office as well. That space is kind of an open space. If you were to envision this room, there were, you know, like offices with doors that went off, and then there was a big bay area like this where there were cubicles for inspectors. So the first room as you come in OPS was an interview room within that.

Q. Was it recorded?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it an undercover recording, or was it obvious there's a camera?

A. No, I mean, it was like covert cameras, but I think it was pretty apparent. Like anybody that had been through an OPS investigation knew that it was recorded or had seen recordings of other investigations. We would tell them, you know, that it's being recorded, so it's not like a secret.

Q. Now, was there any ability to monitor without recording what was going on in that room?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were you aware of that occurring at any time?

A. Oh, sure, yeah.

Q. Explain to me how that would happen.

A. So like, you know, if somebody came in as a witness, or whatever the case was, sometimes, you know, that -- that space was monitored. There was a TV in the captain's office that had a feed, and there was also like a viewing area within that office that had a feed to that camera as well.

Whether it was being recorded or not, you could visually see and listen to whatever was being recorded in that room.

Q. Was that room used for any purpose other than witness interviews?

A. Oh, yeah. We ate lunch in there. On occasion as a group that worked together, we would go in there; because it was room like this where you could sit down and eat, so we would eat in there. You know, it was used for sometimes a witness interview. You know, anytime somebody from the public was in to make a complaint or anything like that, that room is used.

Q. Is there any signage in the room that says it's under recording?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Would a member of the public be informed if they were just there to make a complaint, hey, this room is either monitored or recorded?

A. I don't know specifically like on a particular instance. I mean, it wouldn't have been uncommon for somebody to be told that, but I'm not aware of any policies that were in place or signage that was in place that would have given anybody any kind of warning.

Q. You're familiar with, obviously, the OPS process where officers are given an opportunity to review the evidence against them.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Would that ever occur in those rooms?

A. Yes.

Q. And were those officers told that their review of the evidence would be recorded --

A. I'm not aware if that was ever laid out like instruction-wise or anything like that.

Q. Were those reviews of evidence monitored or recorded?

A. Generally, I'm not aware of them being recorded and certainly not monitored, especially if they were in there with representation or anything like that.

I think more what I would see would be more so of just a -- it was usually muted or whatever, but more of a glance to see are they still reviewing or not. Because sometimes they were reviewing other witness testimony, and there are hours of recording, so it was more common practice to see, like, yeah, they're still there listening. Or if they saw them shifting around, they'd be like, "Oh, let me go check on them. Maybe they need to go to the bathroom," that kind of stuff.

Q. Let's say you wanted to utilize that to surreptitiously listen in on that interview -- or the content of the conversation between a rep and an officer, could you have done that?

A. You could have, yeah. It's possible.

Q. How would you do it?

A. Just turn the volume up.

Q. Are you aware of anybody having ever done that?

A. Not that I'm aware of, no, sir, not while it wasn't being recorded. Like if they were monitoring it, it was because it was being recorded; that was common practice. So if you were doing an interview with them as a subject, yeah, other people may be monitoring and texting, hey, don't forget did ask about this, or whatever, some tips or coaching or things they might have seen, that kind of thing.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Who did you report to as chief inspector?

A. So during my entire tenure there, the position was a direct report to the sheriff.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And did you directly report to the sheriff during that time frame?

A. Yes.

Q. Did the sheriff -- I guess for lack of a better of way of saying it, did anyone direct you to reach a particular outcome in any particular investigation?

A. No, sir, never under either sheriff. Well, I worked for Oelrich as well, but no.

Q. As an OPS --

A. No, sir.

Q. -- chief inspector.

A. No.

Q. When Sheriff Watson took over, were there changes made to your OPS division?

A. Well, we were being displaced, but that was right before I left. There was a -- you know, we were going to be getting moved back -- or to the jail where they once previously were. Outside of that, no major changes that -- policy-wise or anything like that.

It was really early on -- I mean, there was a good portion from when they took office that there was no communication. And then there was some communication, but it was more revolving around learning about the process, I guess, where I was like meeting with them and kind of explaining like here's how we've always done it kind of thing, like here's, I guess -- so I would have like weekly sit-downs with Sheriff Darnell. And so it was kind of like, hey, we meet on a weekly basis. Would you like to continue that cadence, you know, that kind of stuff.

So there was some communication in that regard, but really there wasn't much beyond that until it was time for -- where they told me they were going in a different direction and making some moves and where I was going.

Q. Okay. And was there any -- was there ever a time when anyone asked you to find a reason to -- that someone should be disciplined or demoted?

A. No. I mean, it was certainly absolutely never that way under the prior sheriff. In fact, there were many times where I went to brief Sheriff Darnell on generalities of, hey, we got this complaint. We started looking into it. Here's kind of like a big, high-level overview of what we're kind of seeing just as a heads-up warning kind of thing.

And she was always, "Stop. I don't want to know any more than that. Thank you for giving me a heads-up. Go do what you do, and when you're" --

"when you have a completed product, I'll read all about it; but until then, I don't want to know."

That was always kind of the standard: Yes, if it affects our office, if it's going to make us look bad on 6:00 news, you know, certain check marks that you learn over the years like these were things that I would want to know if I were sheriff. Outside of those, it was always just do your job and let me know when you're done.

Q. Did that change under Sheriff Watson?

A. It didn't change. It was just there was no communication at all. Like it was just none.

Q. Who replaced you when you left OPS?

A. Gosh, it's been two years. Like how quickly I forgot.

Q. Was it Schabruch?

A. No.

Q. Brandon Kutner?

A. No.

Q. Was it John --

A. I think it was John Richmond.

Q. John Richmond?

A. Yeah, I think it was John Richmond. Yeah, it was. It was John Richmond.

Q. Did you leave before or after John Richmond?

A. So I left after -- no, I'm sorry. I left before John Richmond.

You mean as far as retirement?

Q. Yes.

A. Yeah, I left before he did.

Q. Were you ever given any direction about not putting things in writing or not creating public record by any other member of the administration?

A. No. I mean, as a general habit, I had a habit of getting up and going and talking to people versus a lot of email back and forth; but no, I'd never been directed to like -- no.

Q. Are you aware of any person audio recording a telephone conversation without the knowledge of the other person that's part of the conversation?

A. As part of like an investigation?

Q. Uh-huh, but not a criminal investigation. We understand that's lawful.

A. No. Not outside of a criminal investigation, no.

Q. And what was your -- did you receive training before you overtook or overseen the OPS division?

A. Not before, no; but shortly thereafter like within -- I don't know the dates, but shortly -- you know, I want to say it's within the year, basically, I think it was a directive that you're to attend an FDLE-approved internal investigations school or whatever the case was; I don't remember the exact verbiage, but I did that as well and then went to, you know, the hearings and kind of exposure to that process.

Q. Was there ever a time during your tenure under Sheriff Watson where a matter that should have been sent to FDLE because it was immoral turpitude or immoral-something violation -- I forget the exact verbiage.

A. Moral character violation?

Q. Moral character violation that should have been sent to FDLE but was not?

A. Nothing that's standing out, like, that I can recall. No, I mean, that -- we didn't pick and choose like what goes to FDLE and what doesn't. There's like a standard.

You know, we had an admin assistant that processed the paperwork and the forms and stuff. So if there was a sustained finding that required reporting to FDLE or whatever, that's what that administrative person took care of.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Who was that?

THE WITNESS: It used to be a female by the name of Teresa Watson. She left sometime in 2020, 2021; maybe it was before that. And then there was -- the one that took over for her was --

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Chris?

THE WITNESS: Chris, yeah, Alfrey. Thank you.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. During the time that Sheriff Watson was in office did you observe anything that you would have felt was, by any member of the administration, unlawful, unethical, or immoral?

A. Unlawful, no. I don't even know about ethical or moral. Maybe just, you know -- I mean, I can say this, I guess, because I don't work there.

Decisions that I didn't necessarily think were good ones, but not -- not, you know, anything that I would like need to raise my hand and point out to somebody outside of -- you know, nothing illegal; but yeah, I mean, there's certainly things that I frowned upon or thought was a bad idea or bad decision, but nothing that rose the level of illegal activity or anything like that that I saw. Like I said, there was very little communication.

Q. Anything that rose to the level of incompetence?

A. There was so little involvement, it was hard to see, you know. The level of closeness I had to that office under the prior sheriff was much different than the relationship that was -- you know, that came about, you know, with the change in sheriff. It was very different.

It wasn't like open arms. You know what I mean? It was very clear that I wasn't selected as part of his team. There was a lot of conversations about that like, "I didn't pick you." You know, that's -- there were a lot of conversations revolving around that.

So that's where I definitely had a clear vision of, okay, it's very clear to me. You don't have to spell it out. You didn't pick me. I'm not part of you team. Like, I get it. Like, I don't want to go through hell to realize I've got to leave. I get it, you know.

Q. I understand.

A. You didn't have to, you know, pound it. I get it, so I'll find somewhere else to go.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Did you ever send an investigation up that you signed off on that was sent back to you and said that they didn't approve or request a change be made?

A. No. At most, there might have been some can you clarify, not necessarily the outcome or, you know, anything like that. It's always -- and that's one thing I absolutely respected about the office and why I felt like the work we did was important, was because there was no boundaries by Sheriff Darnell. Like, if I went in and said I'm opening up a case on the chief deputy because of X, Y, or Z, it might be like, "What?" Like, "What are you talking about? Explain this to me."

But if it was something legitimate, I don't have a doubt in my mind that she would say, "Do what you got to do."

There was full autonomy to do right no matter what, no matter who it involved, no matter what their rank; and I valued that very strongly, and still do, and proud of the work that we did.

But yeah, I don't --

Q. I'm sorry to interrupt. What about under the Watson administration?

A. Again, there wasn't much communication, so it was quite obvious that I wasn't going to fit in that role, kind of that trusted --

Q. Did you ever send any investigations up during your time there to the Watson administration?

A. Yes, sir. Yeah, there were several. I mean, I don't remember how many total, but there was never a, hey, change this or send it back. In fact, we had a lot of discussions about that, like the procedure and how important that is, and this is the way we've always done it. Is that cool? Is there some change in the way you want to meet? Do you want to discuss these things? What does that look like?

So there was a lot of those kind of discussions; but like I said, I didn't get a lot of participation in discussions. It more turned to "I'll pick my people. I didn't pick you." You kind of get the -- you know, you get the drift. It was like, okay, I get it.

So eventually they called me in to tell me they were moving me, and so that was actually -- it was great. Yeah, I was actually pleased to hear that I was being moved because I'd been in the position for five years already, right, which is -- nobody wants to work internal affairs as it is, much less for five years, right?

So that was kind of a relief in a way, but I also -- it was clear that I wasn't going to be part of their inner circle, so to speak.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. How long before you were moved -- how long had you been the OPS captain when they moved you under Watson?

A. Under Watson? I don't remember the exact date. I'd have to look or see, you know, personnel. I want to say it was like March. Maybe a couple months. It wasn't long.

Q. So he took office in January, so within a couple months they moved you?

A. It was pretty quickly, yeah. The first news I got was kind of like, hey, we're going to be going a different direction in human resources, so I was aware of that. Because they didn't talk to me at all about anything to do with HR, nothing. It's like I didn't exist in the HR world.

Q. And HR was under you at the time?

A. Yeah. They would not speak to me at all. They would go directly to everyone beneath me. I was not involved in any communications, nothing. So that was pretty apparent quick, that I wasn't going to be involved in HR matters; but then it was, I want to say, around March, or it could have been April, where I was called and told, "Hey, we're making some moves, and you're going to get moved."

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Not to get into your personal business, but was there a reason for you leaving Motorola?

A. Oh, just -- yeah, just work-life balance. Yeah, like literally fell into that role, which was great, like the money was great. It's still public safety, utilizing a lot of my experience in the past; but corporate, the hours, the accounts, the work-life balance is -- it was cool. It was great experience, and I wouldn't trade it for anything. I learned so much, but it wasn't for me. Like, man, the hours are just brutal.

Q. You were in corporate security?

A. No, no. Like an account -- basically like an account manager for public safety software. So like all the CAD, in-car mobile, all the software that cops and firefighters and everything use that Motorola makes, it was basically managing those accounts through the southeast, like southeast US.

Q. Was it your choice to leave?

A. Oh, yeah. Yeah. Yeah, my choice. In fact, there was a girl that used to work at the sheriff's office who works for Motorola. She was reaching out during the election and transfer -- you know, not transfer, but like transition period with the sheriff, and had reached out and just said, "Hey, how's that going?"

I'm like, "Well, I think I'm" -- "I think I'm going to call it quits here."

She was like, "Oh, you should come work for Motorola."

I'm like, "Doing what?"

The timing of it just worked out. I'm like, you know what? More money, worked from home, travel, all that stuff sounded great. It was great; but a couple years of it, and I was like, yeah, it's a lot of hours, lot of work.

But yeah, right now I'm just relaxing and doing honey-dos around the house; which sounds crazy, but it's been phenomenal. I love it.

MR. KRAMER: Unless you're being bothered by us.

THE WITNESS: Well, yeah, it is what it is.

MR. KRAMER: That's it. Thank you so much.

WHEREUPON,

SCOTT ANDERSON

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your full name for the record, please?

A. Scott Allen Anderson.

Q. And, Lieutenant, could you describe for me your educational background?

A. I graduated from the University of Florida in 1993 with a bachelors of criminal justice. I graduated from 2007 from Florida Gulf Coast University with a masters in public administration.

Q. Are you a sworn law enforcement officer in the State of Florida?

A. I am.

Q. How long have you been a certified law enforcement officer?

A. I started at the University of Florida Police Department in May of '98, transferred to the sheriff's office in November of '99, and I've been an officer the entire time from mid '98 to now.

Q. So approximately 26 --
A. Twenty-five.
Q. Twenty-five years. Okay.
And could you briefly describe the positions that you've held with the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?
A. I've been a patrol deputy, traffic unit deputy, detective. As a sergeant, I worked in patrol, patrol administration, special operations, detectives. As a lieutenant, I worked in patrol, detectives, internal affairs, and I've switched in those positions back and forth a few times between internal affairs and criminal investigations. I spent a year in the courthouse as a lieutenant, and I'm back in internal affairs now again.
Q. As a lieutenant?
A. As a lieutenant.
Q. And in total could you estimate how long you have worked in OPS combining all your experience?
A. In internal affairs?
Q. Yeah, OPS.
A. OPS? I was there the first time from 2011 to 2013. I left for about four months. I was brought back to work, basically, a special case on Captain Vermillion. I finished that one, worked the case on his supervisor, Major Fellows. That was about six months. I came back out. I went back in 2017 until 2021 and then came back again now in January of 2023.

Q. And were you assigned to OPS, or internal affairs, by Sheriff Watson's administration or by the prior administration?

A. So I was in a tenure there when he took office, and I stayed there from -- he took office the beginning of January, and then in the middle of March all of us were transferred out. And then now this year I was transferred back in there by him in January of this year.

Q. So as of right now you've been in OPS for approximately four months?

A. Yes.

Q. So let me start by asking you this. In the time that you have been working under the sheriff's administration, have you or has anyone that you are personally aware of been solicited to commit a criminal offense or specifically solicited to commit the offense of perjury?

A. So what I can imagine that you're referring to is, in the past week, the general counsel, Jake Rush, has been preparing a response to the 112 violation lawsuits that are currently pending. And so

Just within this week he has emailed some affidavits that he drafted up for us to review, edit, send back.

And one of the other inspectors, Virgil Calhoun, got his affidavit and read me one of the bullet points, which upset him greatly. And he -- I asked him what it said, and it was -- it was facts related to whether or not Jake Rush was interviewed in this case, and it was not factual. So had Virgil printed and signed it, he would have been perjuring himself on that document.

Q. And explain to me, was Jake Rush interviewed in the case?

A. He was not.

Q. And the affidavit indicated that he was?

A. It didn't indicate that he was, but it did not give the real -- the true reason why he wasn't. It wasn't accurate.

I brought the email chain, and I brought the drafts of the document with me. There's a lot there, so I might have to kind of walk you through it.

(Exhibit 1 was marked for identification.)

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Virgil Calhoun is also in OPS?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: A lieutenant?

THE WITNESS: He's a lieutenant from the jail side.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So I'm going to assume that in this proposed affidavit it was paragraph 9 that you're referring to that says "I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins."

A. Correct.

Q. And then the next sentence begins "Likewise, General Counsel Rush had no witness material to add. He was routinely called upon for his legal opinions. I used direct sources such as witness interviews in my own independent investigation."

A. Correct.

Q. That statement is materially false?

A. Correct. So I can walk you through the process that's occurred over the past three months and how it actually played out. And I actually had a conversation in the office with Jake Rush about this right before I got in the truck to drive here.

Q. Okay. Go ahead.

A. So when these cases -- these cases were opened together. You got Frank Williams and Kevin Davis in January. They were brought to Captain Jenkins' attention in a meeting that he generally -- or regularly has meetings at the sheriff's suite with Jake Rush and Joel Decoursey. I've never participated in any of those meetings; but he always comes back and tells us the results of the meetings, and he'll come back with directives of what we're supposed to do or whatever.

So he came back from one of these meetings. He told us we were opening these cases, and that the information had been given to him by Jake Rush. He came back with printouts of Facebook posts and pictures and gave this stuff over and said, "We have to work this. It came from him."

I wasn't in the office when it started, so they asked me advice because I've got eight years experience in OPS; I'm working with three inspectors that have none, so I have to basically direct them to do everything. They've had no training whatsoever. And at the time Eric Hutchinson was not in there; he is now. At the time it was Chuck McCray. Chuck McCray had two or three months of experience when I got there.

So they asked me for advice on how to do the notice, so I explained to them, put Jake Rush's name. Just be general about the allegation. Don't list policy violations, say what it is. You're alleged to have made an inappropriate post about the sheriff, something to that effect.

So he did exactly as I explained him to do. That got served. I'm gone, and somehow, some way they find out that Jake Rush is the alleged complainant, and they said, "You can't do that. He's the attorney. You need to change it."

So they ordered one of the inspectors to make a new notice listing Kelvin Jenkins as the complainant and go re-serve him that night.

I come in the next morning, didn't know that happened. Chuck McCray comes to me and says, "We just violated somebody's 112 last night."

Q. Why?

A. That was my question. I said, "Why do you say that?"

So he explained to me what happened about the changing of the complainant and notice and all this.

I said, "That's not a 112 violation. That's all paperwork. It's ASO stuff." I said, "You need to be concerned about 112 the day we do the interview. You've got to give them the complainant name. You've you got to give them the allegation. You got to give them every witness statement. What name is on the paper when you tell him he's under investigation, it's irrelevant.

Q. Is the subject entitled to truthful information with regard to who the complainant is?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. So is that not a 112 violation?

A. My point to him was that we have to fix this before the interview. Don't think that you violated 112 and you're done because you served a paper, served another paper. I said, "We need to be clear on who the complainant is. We need to get a good complaint, and we need to have all of that lined up so that we can provide it when the time comes."

So I start understanding what's going on. I said, "We need a complaint from Jake Rush. Jake Rush is the complainant. We can't switch people out. We've got to be truthful."

So for the next two months, from January to March, we repeatedly asked for a complaint from Jake Rush. We would ask through the captain. The captain would go to his meetings, and he would be denied that opportunity.

We're now the week before the interviews are taking place, and I'm telling Nancy, who's got one case, and Virgil, who's got the other, "When they come in, if we do not have a statement from Jake Rush, she is going to" -- talking about Bobi -- "she is going to allege a 112 violation, and she's going to be right. So this has to happen."

Captain Jenkins was in the office. He hears me say this. He doesn't tell me he's going to do it. He calls Joel Decoursey on the phone, puts him on the speaker and says, "Hey, I got Lieutenant Anderson here. He wants to talk to you." And he puts the phone down on my desk in front of everyone in the office.

Q. You did not want to speak with him?

A. I wasn't asking to do that. I was just making clear to the captain that this has to happen.

So he just dials up Decoursey and puts the phone down. So I said, "Undersheriff, I've got a concern I feel like I need to raise to you. This is going to happen next week. If we don't have a complaint from Jake Rush, they're going to have a valid 112 allegation, and we're not going to give an interview."

And he pushed back, and he pushed back, and finally he said okay, and he gave into me.

I was surprised. We hung up. I said, "I guess we're going to finally resolve this. We're finally going to have something to put in front of the officers."

And the day of the interview was when the complaint form from him showed up, and it said one sentence; and it basically said "I'm the legal counsel for the sheriff, and I give legal advice."

Q. That's not a complaint.

A. And it gave no facts, no circumstances, or anything about it.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Would that in and of itself right there be a 112 violation?

A. In my mind, absolutely. We already had them coming in to review evidence.

What I told the inspectors was, I told the inspectors, I said, "When they get here, she's going to tell you that this is a 112 violation; and she's going to be right. The first step is, we have a conversation, and we attempt to cure it. So when her and I are on the same page, we're going to call the sheriff's suite. And we're going to tell them she's alleged a 112 violation over this statement; and she's correct, and we need to provide one. And then we're going to put it on them that" -- "there's nothing more than we can do except for go to the witness, and they're refusing to do it."

So that was the plan going into the interview. They review the evidence. We go in. We start the process, and she starts to outline numerous allegations, many of which I did not believe have merit. I was waiting to get to the one that did, but we were never able to get that far. We weren't having a conversation. It was a one-way event.

So I had told the inspectors before this happened, I said, "The only way we can save this is" -- "we don't need the interview anyway. So if they don't" -- "if we can't come to an agreement, we're going to have to just work this without an interview. We're not going to compel an interview. We're not going to charge insubordination, any of that. We'll just have to work with what we have, and we'll move on."

So they left. I told Virgil -- I got to remember which was working which case. I told Virgil, I said, "You're going to have to do this without an interview because they're not going to agree to do it without a complainant, and they won't give us a valid complainant. They have the right to see it. We can't provide it. You just have to close the case."

So he closed his case.

Q. Which case is closed?

A. Frank Williams.

Q. Okay.

A. Kevin Davis comes in the next day. We all know what's going to happen. We have the same exact complaint, it's just a different officer. So guess what? It was a 112 yesterday. It's going to be a 112 today. I expressed that to the captain.

We had to go with what we had, so that evidence review takes place. We go into the room. She outlines all the same things, many of which I believe were frivolous; but I knew that one was a 112 violation, and we couldn't fix it.

We didn't get to discuss those either because I did not realize that Nancy, through a lack of training in OPS procedures -- she has come from a career of criminal investigations; and in criminal investigations, there is not an expectation of privacy when you're talking to somebody in a criminal case. So she came into OPS, and she was under the impression the same thing happens there.

So in one of her conversations with Bobi Frank, because it was contentious, she recorded it and did not tell Bobi. When she provided all the evidence in the Kevin Davis case, she provided that too because she didn't know she had done anything wrong.

So at the end of Bobi alleging all of her allegations, Bobi then, before we could discuss any of the problems, closed her notebook, said, "I want to ask you a question." And then she said, "Who do you think you are recording me without my knowledge?" And then she attacked Nancy over the recording.

I find out this happened as I'm sitting there listening to this.

So she goes off on Nancy; and her and Kevin stand up, and they storm out. So there was never a conversation of how to fix any of this because it turned in to her accusing her of a felony and recording her without her knowledge.

So when that was over, I called the undersheriff because the captain was not there. I said, "I want to make you aware this happened. Nancy did this. She was wrong. She didn't know she was wrong; but it's going to be a problem, and the interview didn't happen. We're going to do the same thing in this case that we did in Frank's. Because we can't fix the 112, you won't let us fix it, so we're going to close this case without an interview."

So Nancy got the direction to do the same. However, as you're probably aware, that case to this day is not closed, and I've got plenty to explain to you about why that is.

Q. Well, I do want you to do that. I do want to ask a couple of follow-up questions with regard to Nancy Marzouk, the issue with Nancy Marzouk.

A. Sure.

Q. What training was Nancy Marzouk given by the sheriff's office prior to being asked to perform the duties of an OPS investigator?

A. Zero.

Q. Would that -- the fact that you cannot do a surreptitious interview or conversation with someone be covered in that form of training?

A. Absolutely.

Q. So if Nancy Marzouk had been given proper training, it's your testimony that likely she would not have violated 934 of the Florida Statutes?

A. Exactly.

Q. And when you say -- I just want -- because I do not understand OPS stuff very well. When you closed without interview, that does not mean that you're not suggesting discipline. It just means that you're completing your investigation.

A. Closing the investigation. Because 112 says if you are subject to investigation that could possibly lead to discipline, demotion, termination, and subject to interrogation, that's when all these rights kick in. So if we don't conduct the interrogation, that's the only way to fix that these aren't happening.

Now, if you've got a case that you can't close without interview, so be it. Some cases on their face do not require you to interview a subject to prove or disprove.

Q. And this developed into the -- because this was a social media violation, right?

A. And we had the post.

Q. So you felt the interview wasn't necessary to complete the investigation.

A. Correct.

Q. So what is the officer's remedy here for the fact that now the officer is not being given the true identity of the person who is the complainant?

A. So I mentioned that this morning I had a conversation about this with Jake. We've never had meetings with him before.

But the subpoenas in reference to this investigation were served on Thursday of last week. On Friday afternoon, I got a calendar event, and so did everybody else in OPS, that for the next three weeks every Thursday morning at 10:00 a.m. we have a meeting with Jake Rush and Joel Decoursey. We've not had that once up to this point.

So this morning was the first. The undersheriff didn't show up; Jake Rush did. He come in. He's having basically like a little training session and explaining how he's building the defense of the 112s.

And Calhoun asked him a question about one of the cases and about the complainant and the fact that the office of the sheriff has been listed as the complainant in a case before. And Jake answered this question in such a way that it became clear to me what he was saying, and I immediately stopped him and said, "You are wrong."

He said, "What do you mean?"

I said, "I understand what you're telling him and what you're telling us to do in here. We can't do that." I said, "You're talking like this is a criminal case. You think that you can come in and be an anonymous complainant. For example, someone calls me and says, 'My neighbor is selling drugs out of his house. These are the people that come and buy it. These are the times they do it, but he's my neighbor. I don't want you to use my name. I don't want to be involved.'"

That's criminal all day long. We'll go, and we'll pull trash. We'll stop cars coming and going. We'll write a search warrant, we'll get the evidence, and they'll go to prison." I said, "You can't do that in this office."

And he stopped, and he looked at me, and he said, "What do you mean?"

I said, "You know how when you go to court, and you have the right to confront your accuser in a court of law?" I said, "That's what 112 gives officers a right to do in these cases. You have to reveal who the complainant is, period. You don't get to be anonymous."

He said, "Well, the way these things come in is, someone will come to the office, and they'll bring things; and I have to look at them, and I have to decide whether they are possibly First-Amendment protected or not. And then, if I decide that they're not First-Amendment protected, then I turn it over. And then you have to do the investigation; but I'm the attorney, and I can't be involved."

And I said, "And that's what happened in these cases. But what you need to do is, you need to turn around, and you need to tell us who brought it to you, and they need to be the complainant. And that's not what happened."

And he just said, "Thank you for the insight."

And about that time it was time for me to come here, and I left.

Q. Let's continue again with the process of what happens after Ms. Frank has had the vent in your office, and now these cases are heading towards closure because you can't get the interview, you can't cure the 112 violation. What happens after that with these two investigations?

A. So the Williams case is closed. They decide the discipline. He's served. Well, that case had -- I think he did maybe three different policy violations when he closed it.

The facts in Frank Williams' case and the post that he made and the facts in Kevin Davis' case and the posts that he made are not the same; however, they were clearly expecting the same result.

So when they got the result of Kevin's case, and it wasn't the same, and it didn't have conduct unbecoming on it, it was pushed back. "Why isn't this on here?"

"Because the facts aren't there."

"Well, you need to interview these people.

You need to do this. You need to do that," and they kept pushing it back.

Q. Who's the person that's doing this? Who's pushing it back?

A. So for me, my interaction is always with Kelvin Jenkins; but it's always that he goes to the suite, and then he comes back, and it's, "This isn't good enough. We need to do this. We need to do that."

And I'm constantly pushing back to him and saying, "We can't do that. We can't do it that way. We can't do this."

And he listens to me. I don't know how much he pushes back on the other end. I just know that when he comes back things are not changed.

So he comes back, "This needs to" -- "we need to do this. We need to do that."

Q. In your mind, did this -- who's the investigator on it? Is it Marzouk on Allen?

A. It was as this was first happening.

Q. So are they soliciting -- is someone soliciting these people, the investigators in OPS, to make a false statement about Kevin Allen or about the facts of the case?

A. No. They just clearly have an expectation at the start of how it's going to end; and if it doesn't end that way, it's not because the facts aren't there. It's because you haven't done a good enough job to make it that way.

Q. So how does this proceed?

A. It was not uncommon for them to come back and -- one time he came back, and he said, "They talked about they want us to do search warrants on their phones from Facebook," and my jaw dropped.

I said, "We don't do search warrants in administrative investigations. This is not criminal."

"Well, they said you can because it could be" -- "you know, it's work-related. They're posting about work."

I said, "First of all, you don't know what device they posted on. You can get on Facebook on a phone. You can get on Facebook on a computer. You can get on Facebook on a tablet."

I said, "If they used their agency phone, okay, we can go take that; but you can't write a search warrant for something because it's work-related. We can't go in their phone any more than we can walk in their house and start looking around in their house." I said, "This is work product."

That's the kind of direction that we were constantly getting.

Q. Are they aware -- does anybody bring up to them that the search warrant has to go through the state attorney's office, so there has to be a criminal investigation attached to it?

A. I only have those conversations with Kelvin Jenkins, because I -- he's the only one that's allowed to go there, so that has to come from him. I don't know how much of that he passes on, but that's the type of stuff that we are regularly being told.

Q. So just to clarify, they are suggesting a search warrant for Kevin Allen and Frank Williams both?

A. At this point we're only talking about Kevin Davis, because Frank Williams' case is closed because they were okay with the charges on that.

Q. Right.

A. They're not okay with the charges on Kevin Davis, so they're constantly throwing things at us that we're supposed to do to make Kevin Davis' case look like Frank Williams' case, and they're not the same.

Q. So what happens? How does it resolve?

A. So -- well, it doesn't. It's still open today. So one of the things that happens is, we're told that we're removing Nancy from the case and putting Virgil on the case because that will solve all the 112 problems that are alleged because now we've got a new fresh set of eyes on the case.

So Nancy gets removed. Virgil gets assigned. And then he's looking to me going, "What am I supposed to do with this? We have all these interviews."

The interviews we did, we didn't want to do. We interviewed his whole shift. We interviewed supervisors, we interviewed co-workers not because they provided anything with Facebook posts. We have the posts. We don't need to interview these people, but they wanted them interviewed because -- it was clear what they wanted to do, was they wanted to find out who agreed with it and who didn't.

Q. What was the nature of the questions during the OPS interview of these individuals?

A. Again, I'm having to tell -- this is Nancy's first case ever in IA. This is Virgil's first case ever in IA. Their cases, as I told them from the beginning, don't even need interviews, but we're being ordered to interview subordinates and co-workers to determine what effect it had on these people.

And I told them when they started, I said,

"I've got eight years in this job, and I don't know what questions to even tell you to ask; because what I'm concerned about is, we're going to be taking these supposed witnesses who are asking questions about this post, and we're going to be turning them into subjects based on the questions we ask."

If they reveal that they agree with anything that their sergeant said, then now they're going to be a subject because they're against the sheriff; the same thing with their supervisors.

If a supervisor -- at any time if it becomes -- they become aware that the supervisor knew that they were posting these things, or knew that they were saying these things, then they're going to want to go after that lieutenant for not doing something about that sergeant; and that's what has happened.

So we were asking questions, trying to be very careful what we asked. At one point I'm in an interview with Nancy. She asked a question of a deputy; and I looked at her, and I said, "No."

And she said I struck that from the record, and we didn't have him answer because I knew it was going to do nothing but put him in a bad position. It did not add to the case. None of the interviews added to the case. We didn't need to do them.

So when the case was written, and it was sent up -- and one of the times it bounced back, some of the notes on it were -- we had interviewed Lieutenant Phillips, and the question was -- she had testified that -- when asked has he ever said anything negative about the sheriff, and she said, "There have been times where it's just me and him, and he'll vent about things that concern him, or whatever; but it's always been just to me, and he doesn't say anything negative to the squad."

One of the things that came back was, they wanted to know why she didn't discipline him for saying negative things about the sheriff, and they -- they were listing questions of, why didn't you ask her this, this, and this.

And I'm in this conversation with Kelvin, and I said, "If you start asking her those questions, she's not a witness against Kevin anymore. She's answering questions because she's now the subject of why she didn't fail to supervise. So you can't ask her those questions unless you want to serve and then notice her and then give her interviews, and then you can start asking her why didn't you do this, why didn't you do that. Those are not appropriate questions if she's a witness against Kevin Davis."

So clearly that was the purpose of even making us do those interviews. That case is still not resolved.

Q. Can I just ask one question? So this concept that you're discussing now, which is that you can't cause an officer to become a subject through the interview process, is that something that's taught if you were to be trained on the proper --

A. Absolutely.

Q. -- OPS procedures?

A. Absolutely. You got to recognize, if they become a subject, you need to stop that questioning, and you need to separate that from what you're working.

Q. Is it your understanding that the captain, who runs the OPS division, has not had that training?

A. He has been trained, but he was a lieutenant in OPS many years ago himself for a very short period. So he went through some training years ago, but he didn't -- he wasn't there very long.

Q. Nancy Marzouk, who is at least in one instance the person who is making these questions, has not had that training.

A. No.

Q. And the people in the sheriff's suite, which is either, it's my understanding, Jake Rush, Joel Decoursey, or the sheriff, they have not had this training, and they're suggesting questions that would violate the officer's rights under the Officers Bill of Rights?

A. Correct.

Q. Continue.

A. Where was I?

MR. KRAMER: I apologize for interrupting. I think you were about to tell us what the current status of the Kevin Allen investigation is.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Can I ask one question?

MR. KRAMER: Yes.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Knowing that this is a training issue, especially since talking about the recording, have they made any effort now to schedule training?

A. Last night at 6:12 p.m. I got a calendar invite from the sheriff's secretary indicating that me and all the other invitees have a four-hour mandatory training next week, Wednesday, from 1:00 to 5:00 with Wayne Evans on employee labor relations. That's the first of any training.

Q. Who's Evans?

MR. WEBSTER: He's a lawyer with Alan Wood in Tallahassee.

A. He defended our prior sheriff in many cases over many years.

Q. But no schedule for a 40-hour ITPM class or Louisville internal affairs class?

A. Virgil Calhoun went to a class a month or two ago. He's the only that had any training so far that was put on by the FSA. He went to that class and sat next to Jake Rush. That's the first training that I know of that Jake Rush has had 112. They were together in February or March, and that was like a two-or three-day class.

Q. Let's finish where we were with the Kevin Allen investigation?

A. Kevin Davis.

Q. Kevin Davis. I'm sorry.

A. Yes. So one of the things I don't want to forget to say -- I've tried to say it a couple of times -- is that in a meeting within the past week or two -- and, again, this come from Kelvin. I don't hear these things myself because the first time, really, I had a direct one-on-one with Jake Rush is this morning right before I came here.

Jake Rush made the comment when Kelvin was telling him we're not going to be able to sustain a conduct unbecoming, it's not there; not only that, but we've gone back and forth on what is being included and not included in this case.

And, according to Kelvin, Jake Rush made the comment, "Well, if all we have is insubordination, how are we going to fire him?"

So, clearly, the outcome has been decided before they've ever seen the final product, which they continue to kick back. They don't feel like they've been given good enough reason to fire him; that's why it keeps coming back to our office.

Q. Okay. And so I'm not sure I should have to ask this question, but I'm going to. Is this unusual, in your eight years experience in OPS, that the administration would predetermine and dictate the outcome of an OPS investigation?

A. Every sheriff can run things their own way, do things different; I don't expect that they'll be the same. We can have opinions on who's right and who's wrong; but I can tell you that under Darnell, in the many years that I was there, never once, never once was I told an expected outcome, was I told how to conduct an investigation.

I can say maybe over the seven years once or twice a report would go up; and maybe there would be some follow-up questions where maybe she felt like we didn't go enough down an avenue, so she wanted someone else to be talked to or another interview done. Never once was there ever an expectation of an outcome, to include when I investigated two members of her command staff who were higher ranked than I was.

It has happened on every case I've been involved in, in the three months that I've been there.

Q. Can we go -- are you good with telling me about Kevin Davis? Because I want to go back to this affidavit for a moment.

A. Let me just check my notes and make sure I don't have something about it.

So on the topic of it being switched over. So it's been taken away from Nancy. It's been given to Virgil. We ask questions early on.

This has never happened before. How are we supposed to make this work? We have evidence that Nancy gathered, these interviews that she did; that they've already been presented, so they know that they're there. If and when we call him in a second time, which hasn't happened yet, we're going to have to provide all of that other evidence. It's still part of this case. It still exists.

Again, I was not there for this. This is coming from Kelvin Jenkins, but they said, "Oh, no, you absolutely don't need to provide that."

Well, it's still there. They know it. What are we supposed to do with it?

And we were told, "Just delete it."

Q. You were told to delete it?

A. The interviews.

Q. All of the interviews related to Kevin Allen?

A. Kevin Davis. It's just a draft.

Q. An interview?

A. I said, "The report is a draft. The interviews are not a draft. The interviews exist, and the interviews will continue to exist;" but on two different occasions we were told, "All we need to do is delete it."

Q. Does that include deleting the recorded phone call between --

A. Yes.

Q. -- Bobi Frank and --

A. Yes, that would be part of the evidence.

Q. Who said to delete that?

A. Jake Rush, according to Kelvin Jenkins. I was not there.

Q. Is that possible? Can you do that in the system?

A. It's possible, absolutely possible. It's all digital evidence. We can delete it.

Q. There are no safeguards within your system to prevent the loss, potential or otherwise, of evidence?

A. So another issue is, you might ask me questions about our system, but I couldn't answer those questions because that system was purchased and put in place, I'd say, two, call it, squads ago of OPS. It's been in place maybe a year or less; but there have been two complete turnovers at OPS in that amount of time, so none of us in there really know how to use the system.

So I have full admin rights; and I'm pretty sure I could go in there, and I could delete it all. But I'm not proficient in the system at all because normal practice, in all my other years of working in this career, especially in OPS, we always had four or five investigators, maybe a lead inspector, and then a captain. At most, the turnover at any one time would be two people.

And so when two new ones came in, you can't go to training the very first week. It doesn't happen all the time, but you were assigned someone who watched over you and would make sure that you didn't do anything really bad and make sure -- we had a whole process and procedure, a notebook that you had all these sections; and if I'm training somebody, I would go through, and I would sign off that I had gone through this with them, I had participated in an interview with them, we went and we served this type of paperwork. It was the same thing you'd do with a new deputy on the road going through field training. Well, none of that exists anymore.

So these people come in; and there's three of them brand new, and I'm the only one in the office that has experience. I'm not at work all day every day; and I can't be with three different people doing three different things, so they're left to fend for themselves.

And now, even the fact that I have prior experience, when it comes to this computer system, that does me no good because this system did not exist before.

Q. Let me go back. I appreciate it. I want to review the Nancy Marzouk incident, and then how did that information get back to you. So my understanding is that everyone becomes aware that this is a problem because Bobi Frank loses her mind in the middle of an interview, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Then, if I understand correctly, you were aware of that, and Nancy Marzouk aware of it, and obviously the other non-involved OPS people are aware of it, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You then communicate the fact that this interview exists to your supervisor, who is --

A. Well Kelvin was not there that day. I called him after the fact. I called and spoke directly to Joel Decoursey and Jake Rush, and I told them both what happened.

Q. And during the course of that conversation, do you tell them this is a felony?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So they are now on notice that you believe that there is evidence of a felony that is contained in the OPS --

A. Computer system.

Q. -- computer system.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Walk me through, again, when you become aware that anyone is suggesting that that piece of evidence that is evidence of a felony offense be deleted?

A. So the interview attempts occurred on, I think, March 1st or 2nd. So whichever day that was, as soon as Bobi walked out, I got on the phone because I'm now aware that this happened. I called, I said the interview did not happen, which, to me, was a side issue from what had just been revealed. I said, "We've got a problem," so they knew at that time.

And I said, "There's clearly zero intent here on Nancy's part to commit a crime. She surreptitiously recorded Bobi but then gave it to Bobi to listen to when Bobi came for evidence review, so clearly she's not doing this and trying to hide it from her. However, intent is not really part of this statute, so that's not going to get her out of it." I was like, "We need to deal with this."

They said it's fine, we got your back, you're covered, da, da, da, da.

So now it's probably maybe about two weeks, ten days, two weeks in, I think, is when she gets removed and Virgil gets put on. And it's sometime after that when we're trying to determine how is this even going to work. You just decided we're going to take her off, we're going to put him on, and we're going to act like none of that has ever happened and it's all okay now. We've taken her off. We're trying to understand out how this is going to work.

And in one of the conversations when we said, "What are we going to do with this evidence?" Jake says, "Just delete it."

Q. And Jake says that to who?

A. Kelvin Jenkins.

Q. And then Kelvin Jenkins comes back to you?

A. It was said in more than one meeting, as far as I'm aware. I know it was said once. I believe it was said in two meetings. And I believe that Virgil Calhoun was in attendance at one of those meetings where it was said, so he may have also been told that.

Q. So describe for me how you become aware of the content of those meetings?

A. Because almost daily Kelvin Jenkins, whether it be morning or afternoon, goes over -- we're housed in the jail, so we're in a different site. Almost daily the captain will go to the main office and have meetings with Decoursey and Jake Rush. So if he goes in the morning, we generally hear about what happened that afternoon. If he goes in the afternoon, we generally hear about it the following morning.

So he'll come in, and he'll say, "I went to the meeting yesterday, and this is what happened."

And it's almost on a daily basis where he will say something like this, and I fall over and say,

"We can't do this. You can't do this. You can't do this. That's illegal. You can't do this." It's almost daily that that happened.

So then I express these things to Kelvin. He goes to another meeting, and I kind of wait to hear, like, are we going to change our mind on any of this. And almost 100 percent of the time the course remains the same no matter what I say.

Q. I just need to understand this. Is it -- is there some idea that they're going to have Bobi Frank come back to the office and now have this same process with Kevin Davis and then show her that the evidence is gone?

A. My understanding of it is that just we will present evidence, but we will only present evidence from when Virgil got on forward. We just won't give anything from prior to that.

And we looked at him, and we said, "We can't do that," but we haven't gotten to the point yet where that will happen.

Even more disturbing is that I've been told multiple times when Kelvin Jenkins comes back from these meetings that we know that she throws frivolous 112 violations. So what we're going to do is, we're going to have a pre-printed letter from the sheriff that will say your 112 violations are without merit so that when they come in, and she says her 112 violations, we'll just give her the letter that was already drafted informing her that your complaints are invalid and that we will go ahead with the interview.

When they do not go ahead with the interview -- and it was specific enough that before any of that happens we have to make sure that, as soon as they come in, we got to read Garrity right away; we got to get that out there.

So we'll read them Garrity, give them the stuff. They'll allege 112. We'll give them a pre-printed letter that says your 112 is not valid. And then when they leave we'll charge them for insubordination for not participating in the interview. I've been told that at least six times.

Every time I've been told it -- I now have a copy of 112 that sits on my desk with highlights on it. Every time it's been said, I grab it, I throw it down, and I say, "There is a sentence in 112 that specifically says if you allege a 112 violation, and you leave, this does not constitute insubordination or any similar violation. That is illegal. We cannot do that.

Still to this day that is the plan of attack when he shows up. That has not changed.

Q. Is there some plan on what's going to happen when Bobi Frank says to whoever is the poor person who's going to have this interaction with her, "What happened to the evidence?"

A. I have no idea.

Q. You have no plan for that?

A. We can delete it. That's -- just delete it; that's the answer. We can delete it.

MR. KRAMER: Anyone want to follow-up on that?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I want to back up again and talk about Nancy Marzouk.

Let's assume for a moment that this person isn't working in OPS; that this is an officer or a deputy or a lieutenant in the regular unit, and they unlawfully record someone. Is that person -- and you find out about it, and there's at least probable cause to believe that this is a criminal offense because, as you have appropriately noted, there is no intent provision within 943, is this person going to be allowed to continue to work?

A. It's -- I can't explain. I can't explain it.

Q. My question is, if they weren't in OPS, and somebody has informed the undersheriff that an officer within the agency has committed a felony, would that person normally be -- is there some way to emergency suspend someone as -- like, can you do that?

A. Absolutely. We do it all the time, but there's no rhyme or reason to who we suspend or how we suspend them.

We had a -- we had a -- actually, it will become relevant to the OPS too, but let me tell you this story so I don't forget.

So we have a lieutenant of the drug task force, Rich Howell. He was the lieutenant of the task force at the time, and he had just been cleared of a shooting that occurred on the east side that he was a part of it where there was a death. So they are putting together an awards ceremony, and they're going to give the guys that were involved an award as being part of that event.

Rich Howell makes the statement to Kaylie Biel (phonetic) that he doesn't want an award for it. He doesn't feel like it's something that he should be given a medal for.

Q. That makes sense.

A. Kaylie expresses that to the undersheriff, and the undersheriff decides, based on that statement, when he says he's uncomfortable about having an award or going to an award ceremony about it, the undersheriff decides he needs to do a a fit-for-duty evaluation. It sounds like he might not be fit for the job. So that process starts.

In my entire career, if we ever have somebody that we are concerned might be not able to be carrying a gun because of their moral fitness, well, we'll take the gun from that person until we decide they are okay.

That fit for duty did not occur for three weeks. In the three weeks intervening where Joel Decoursey has decided that this person may not be mentally okay to carry a gun, he was the lieutenant of our drug task force, he is the commander of the SWAT team, and he led, as the supervisor, our out-of-county detachment that went to Charlotte County for the hurricane. All of that while he's not potentially fit for duty.

Q. Then there's a fit for duty?

A. Then there's a fit for duty. And, of course he's ruled to be fine; but we were concerned enough that we made him go to a doctor to tell us he's okay to carry a gun, but for three weeks in the middle he's in control of our SWAT team, in control of our drug task force, and is supervising a bunch of deputies in south Florida during a hurricane.

Q. Maybe I'm just not educated enough to understand this. Why would that occur? Like, why would you wait that long? It's not an OPS investigation. He's not in trouble, right?

A. No.

Q. So why wait?

A. I have no idea. I can only tell you that it happened. I cannot explain it.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Does your policy allow for someone to order someone into a fit-for-duty situation just because they made comment? Is there a policy on what, you know, would cause somebody to be removed for fit for duty?

A. There is. I couldn't quote it to you.

Do I believe that the statement that Rich Howell made would any way indicate he was not fit for duty? Absolutely, I do not. However, if I ever thought somebody was unfit, I certainly wouldn't allow them to continue to work for three weeks until I resolved that concern.

MR. KRAMER: Did I interrupt you? Was there something else you needed to cover?

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: May I ask a Nancy Marzouk question?

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Has there been an internal on her third-degree felony?

A. So I, again, expressed we need to deal with this. I then -- I want to say it happened on a Thursday. I don't think I worked on a Friday, and I think my next contact with Jenkins was on a Monday.

I told him I was concerned for what would happen to her. It was clearly unintentional. It was totally due to a lack of training, but I said we can't -- we have to address it.

And so he issued her a corrective counseling that Monday outlining why this is not correct and outlining that, you know, this is criminal versus administrative. So she was -- she was counseled formally on that the next week.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. But that's not discipline?

A. It's discipline. It's informal discipline. It stays in her file for a year. It wasn't formal. Formal discipline could be suspension, written reprimand that stays there forever. She got informal discipline over that matter.

Q. I know the answer to this question, but for the record I want to ask anyway.

Has anyone contacted the victim in the case, or the matter, because there is no case, and asked them do you want to prosecute? Do you not want to prosecute? Do you want to make a formal complaint?

A. Not that I know of. And everybody was kind of waiting to see what she was going to do, what she was going to say. It did not show up in her 112 allegations in the lawsuit; which it wasn't relevant, but I didn't know if she'd want to make it part of the case or not. She didn't address it in there.

I felt like the way that played out, I had the impression Bobi knew just like I did that she didn't do this on purpose, but I think she was using it to her advantage for Kevin's sake in the case.

So I didn't expect that she would ever do anything more with it; however, within the past week or two at one of these meetings I wasn't at, Jake made the statement that Bobi wanted Nancy arrested over it. That's news to me. So whether he's talked to her about it, I don't know, but no one in our office has.

MR. KRAMER: So unless you fellows have more follow-up, I'm going back to the affidavit, this subsection 9.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So my understanding from what you've told me so far is that Virgil Calhoun receives this affidavit, and subsection 9 is not truthful.

A. No. It indicates that he didn't interview him because he had no information; and we had been trying for two months to get him to be interviewed, and he was refusing, which is why Virgil got so upset when he read that and was expected to believe that that was factual and sign it.

Q. After Virgil Calhoun, to your knowledge, reads this and objects to it, is there anyone in the administration who says to him anything in the nature of we need you to sign it?

A. No. So the email was, here is the affidavit I drafted up for you. Review it, make any edits. If it's okay, sign it, send it back to me.

He pulls it up, pulls up his email. He opens the computer. He reacts. I come over. I said, "What is it?"

He reads it to me, and I said, "Well, first of all, that's a lie." I said, "Second of all, if" -- "he should know that if what he wrote in there was true, he has just admitted to the 112 violation that Bobi is alleging."

We only had two complainants: Kelvin Jenkins and Jake Rush. He just made a statement in that affidavit saying that neither one of them have material knowledge of the issue at hand; therefore, we have no complainant with knowledge of the allegation. You just admitted to Bobi's allegation in the thing you sent us.

So he didn't really know how to respond. So I'm standing over his shoulder, and I said, "Type this." So you'll see a corrected one with a comment to the side.

I explained to him, I said, "Type this and send it back to him." That was the response that was sent to Jake with the comment on the side.

Q. Which says "I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins as a complainant in this case because he had no independent information of the petitioner's conduct. Likewise, Counsel Rush had no witness material to add," and then there's a comment.

A. That's what he actually had sent him.

Q. Right.

A. This is his comment about it.

Q. "If there is no independent information from Captain Jenkins or yourself, then this admits that there was no complainant with material knowledge."

So that went back to the general counsel?

A. By email.

Q. And what happens after that?

A. About 15 minutes later -- so we all have -- we have one big room that we all have our cubicles in that we share. The captain has a separate office across the hall with a secretary.

About 15 minutes later the captain comes walking in. He says, "I don't know what happened, but you just fired up Jake Rush" to Virgil.

And he said, "What do you mean?"

"Well, he called me, and he was just all flustered." He's like, "I just don't understand. Is there some kind of problem?"

And Virgil was very upset about what had been sent. He said, "Absolutely, there's a problem. He sent me something that's untrue and expected me to sign it."

And I explained to Kelvin what happened. I explained to him that I told him, "Here's what you need to respond," and I'm sure he didn't like the response he got.

And so Jake Rush then sends him another version, which he also does not agree with. So I don't -- that should be in there. The next version that he sent him.

Q. Is it this one?

A. I told you this would be confusing, and I'd probably have to walk you through it. It was confusing to me trying to put it together.

So he sends him back and says that it's updated, and sends him this version. So in this version he says that as number 9, which Virgil also did not agree with.

Q. "I received the initial evidence from Chief Inspector Kelvin Jenkins."

That's not true because the initial evidence comes from Virgil.

A. Well, Virgil did receive it from Kelvin; that's true.

Q. "Who advised he received the information form the office of the sheriff" -- which is --

A. Which is not a person.

Q. It's obtuse.

-- "requesting an investigation into the petitioner's conduct. He assigned me to investigate a potential violation by the petitioner, which I did through my own investigation."

A. So this will be the one he actually ended up -- so he sent him -- if you look at the one from Virgil, it will show you what he didn't like, and then it will show you what he -- here.

So the one that Jake sent back said this, and then what you just read is what Virgil was willing to sign.

Q. Okay. So let's read that.

What Counsel Rush sent back was "I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins as a witness complainant in this case because he had no unique information regarding the petitioner's conduct."

Is that untrue?

A. He knew what he knew that he got from Jake because it was the packet of information that he had, so I'm not sure.

Q. Okay. "He assigned me to investigate a potential penal violation by petitioner, which I did, developing my own evidence independent of his lead."

Is that true?

A. Yes, and that's what reveals to you what Jake sees this as. He's describing it like a criminal case where you have an anonymous tip, and so now you go out on your own and build a case; and that's what I had to tell him this morning you cannot do.

Q. "Likewise, General Counsel Rush had no witness material to add," which is not true.

A. Which that's the part that was untrue that he did not agree with.

Q. The rest of it is the same.

A. So then that is the final version that Virgil wrote himself and was willing to sign.

Q. Which says "I received the initial evidence from Chief Inspector Kelvin Jenkins, who advised he received information from the office of the sheriff requesting an investigation into the petitioner's conduct," which is true but fails to identify the person who is a complainant under 112.

A. Correct.

Q. And that is going to be what's in the final and signed affidavit?

A. Correct.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Which admits the 112 violation.

A. Correct, which brings us back to then we have to rely on -- we didn't do an interview. So we didn't compel interrogation, so that's what ultimately we rely on; but if we had gone forward with an interrogation under those circumstances, all day long a 112 violation, all day long.

Q. Let me ask you this about the 112 violation. No matter how frivolous it may be, and that flag is thrown and the individual wishes to participate in an interrogation, what occurs?

A. So if they're willing to go forward, then that would be somewhat of a waiver.

Q. I mean, if they say, "There's a 112 violation. Correct it, and I will interview," are they given that opportunity?

A. Yes, which is what my plan was. They throw the 112 violation about this complaint, which we have repeatedly asked for and cannot get, and then I was going to join forces with Bobi and call the sheriff's suite and say, "They've raised a 112 violation about this complaint. We agree, and want to cure it. So we just need a statement from Jake Rush," but we never got that far in the process.

Q. So they're circumventing the entire investigation process by not curing the alleged 112?

A. Yes.

MR. KRAMER: Anything more on the affidavit? Because I really think I've beaten that to death.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Let's move on because I want to ask you just generally. You've made some broad statements about how certainly the discipline is being directed from the sheriff's office to OPS as opposed to the opposite. Is that true -- or are you familiar with Rebecca Butcher's investigation? Or is it because that happened outside of the OPS?

A. Correct. My involvement with that was that Kelvin Jenkins came in; and he told me he had had a conversation with Major Yaeger, and that Major Yaeger was planning to go forward with a case against Captain Butcher for insubordination. And he said that it was -- I don't remember the words he used. But he said it was very weak; and that he suggested to him that it was not a good idea to go forward, but that Yaeger was going to go forward anyway.

He said Yaeger was asking him some questions about how to do it correctly, and Kelvin's answer was, "Call Lead Inspector Anderson, and he'll walk you through the process."

So he told me to expect a call from the major from the next morning. That call never came.

It may have been later that day or the next day while Kelvin was in our office area, the major rang his phone, and he was asking him for a case number to put on his case. And Captain said, "Well, hang on a second. Inspector Anderson is here. He'll get you one."

So he put the phone on speaker. We went over to my computer. I opened up this program we were talking about earlier. I assign them a case number on the screen. I wasn't even the one actually talking to him. Captain Jenkins read the number off the screen, told him what it was, and they hung up.

So he had told Yaeger, who was inquiring to him about how to make things go properly, he had inquired with him about several different things. Jenkins never answered him, deferred him to me, but he never called me to ask me any of those things.

Q. To your knowledge, has Captain Yaeger ever been involved with OPS or internal affairs?

A. Not on the organizational chart, no.

Q. Has he, to your knowledge, had any training on how to properly conduct an OPS investigation?

A. No, he'll get his first four hours Wednesday of next week. He's on the same calendar invite.

Q. Did you have any other involvement at all in the investigation of Rebecca Butcher?

A. No.

Q. Have you had any involvement with the investigation of Travis DeVinny?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what has occurred with Travis DeVinny?

A. So he called me up --

Q. Travis DeVinny?

A. -- on my personal phone. Travis called me up on my personal phone, and he said, "You're not going to like it, but I need to come in. I've got to file a complaint."

I believe that was an on a Thursday, possibly. I told him that I was unavailable that day, and I wasn't working the next day. So I think I scheduled him to come in the following Monday. In the time in between, he actually completed a complaint intake form and sent it to me hard copy.

So I got this complaint intake form from him prior to any interview, but I had him scheduled. He came in. I interviewed him, recorded the interview. He made allegations that Major Yaeger was targeting him, harassing him.

I took the complaint. And I have independent knowledge, over the time that Yaeger has been a captain and major, of similar actions that he's done against several other employees.

I made the captain immediately aware that we have this complaint filed by Devinny, that I believed that it needed to be investigated; and that I also believed that as soon as it became knowledge in the agency that someone had filed this type of complaint against Yaeger, that you are going to have numerous people coming forward wanting to be complainants.

As I said, I knew about incidents that had occurred. I personally had made complaints against Yaeger when I worked directly for him that nothing was done with. So knowing that this was now in the office of professional standards, I said, "This is going to become large."

I worked a case against Captain Vermillion years ago. It was the same way. There were many people who had problems with him. They were afraid because of his status to make those complaints; but once the windshield was cracked, the spider grew quickly, and I ended up interviewing 55 people. So I told Kelvin, I said, "That's going to happen with this too."

So I said, "Based on just what's here, you probably need to make his supervisor, Colonel Scott, aware and ask him is he going to handle this himself or are we going to retain it in this office."

So he directed me to write an IOC to Colonel Scott saying here are the allegations, let us know how to proceed. So I drafted the IOC, and I emailed that to the colonel.

Probably a week went by. I wasn't hearing anything. I then hear that it's coming back to our office. When I heard it was coming back to our office -- you have a sergeant who's been there eight weeks; you have a lieutenant who's been there eight weeks that's from the jail, so he has zero investigative experience; and you have Eric Hutchinson, who's been there less time than the two of them. So I said, clearly, I will work this myself.

I was on vacation for spring break. I don't know why it happened, but they called DeVinny's sergeant while I was not there, after I already said I would work it, and Eric Hutchinson interviewed that sergeant.

I came back. He told me about the interview, and Captain Jenkins indicated that he wanted us to -- I had already written the allegations once and sent it to the colonel. He said he wanted us to write it and send it to the sheriff to ask about investigating it.

So Eric Hutchinson, at the captain's directions, started to put that together. Well, during that same time I get a phone call from Karyn O'Quinn at the courthouse. She doesn't know that this is brewing. She doesn't know that this complaint is happening.

She says, "Hey, I just got a call from Captain Maynard, and I don't feel comfortable with this. I want to know can they do this."

I said, "What do you mean?"

She said, "Well, Captain Maynard just called me and told me that Travis Devinny can't work overtime at the courthouse anymore. And when I asked why, he said he couldn't tell me."

So for perspective, the courthouse is extremely short. A lot of days there are more court events between the civil and the criminal courthouse than we have deputies to fill the courtrooms. So it is standard practice, as the courthouse lieutenant, you send out emails agency-wide, and you solicit people to work overtime on their days off.

There are quite a few people who do it on a regular basis, Travis being one of them. She's now been told he's not eligible anymore, and I don't know why.

Q. Is that a form of discipline?

A. To take someone's ability to make money, absolutely. So that's why she's calling me, saying, "Can they do this?"

And I said, "No."

And she said, "Good, because I told the captain absolutely not. I'm not doing that. Send it to me in writing."

So I said, "That was probably the right answer, but you don't realize that this is probably important information. I'm glad you called me."

So the next day she calls me back. "I just got another call from Captain Maynard, and he told me to forget about what I told him yesterday and not to tell anybody about it."

I said, "That's even more interesting."

So then a day or two later I find out that Captain Maynard called Lieutenant Gunn, told Lieutenant Gunn, "Travis Devinny can no longer work overtime at the courthouse, and I can't tell you why."

So I don't know if maybe, because he got resistance from Sergeant O'Quinn, he just now went to Gunn and did it with him; but we're now back to within a week, he can't, he can, he can't.

Hutchinson is about to print the IOC that he's supposed to send to the sheriff saying we need to investigate this, and I told him, I said -- all he had was, he had a basically a paragraph of Devinny's allegation, a paragraph of the sergeant's interview which corroborated the stuff that Devinny said.

I said, "You need to add three pieces of information to this: On such-and-such date, Karyn O'Quinn was ordered not to allow him to work the courthouse. On such-and-such date that order was rescinded, and on such-and-such date that order was reinstated. And we, to this day, do not why he's been singled out and excluded from working courthouse overtime."

That was added to the IOC. The last thing was him saying, "I believe this should be investigated." So I printed it, provided it to the captain.

Again, we're all waiting, wanting to know what's going to happen with this. I had Devinny calling me, asking me, "Where's my complaint?"

He's the complainant. He has the right to know what's going on.

I told him, "It's gone to the colonel. It's come back to our office. It's now in writing up to the sheriff, and it's in limbo. I can't tell you where it's at, but I'll let you know as soon as I do."

So in that time, Devinny is involved in a use of force, and the use of force is viewed by his sergeant. The same sergeant who is a witness in this case believes that the use of force is questionable, may be excessive. He does the right thing. He reports it. It goes up through the chain. It comes to our office the week after we've sent the IOC up where he's the complainant against the major.

So later that week Kelvin comes back from one of his many meetings with the undersheriff and Jake Rush. We're now almost two weeks past the initial allegation of use of force. Travis has not been suspended from duty. So he has this excessive force allegation that they know is out there, but he's continuing to work zones, he's continuing to work calls.

Kelvin goes to a meeting. This IOC where Travis is the complainant against Yaeger is in front of the undersheriff. The undersheriff is -- this is coming from Kelvin. I was not in the room.

He asks Kelvin, "What is this?" and he points at the IOC.

Kelvin says, "It documents a complaint against the major, and we're wanting direction on how to handle it."

And the undersheriff says, "We don't need this."

He said, "What do you mean? I don't understand."

He said, "We don't need this. We don't need employees taking sniping shots at command staff."

And Kelvin says, "Well, there's allegations in there that we think have merit, and we need to look into them."

And they went back and forth for five or ten minutes with the undersheriff telling Kelvin to take that complaint back, and Kelvin refused.

Q. What does that mean, "take it back"?

A. He wanted the document to go away. He did not want it in writing. He had already previously told him -- I forgot this part. This is important.

He had already told him days earlier verbally, he had told Kelvin, "That's horseshit. We're not dealing with that."

Kelvin came back from that and said he was uncomfortable allowing a complaint against a major to disappear without writing. That's why he directed Eric Hutchinson to document it, because he didn't want it to just go away by words only.

So now he's already told Kelvin, "We're not dealing with that."

Kelvin appears with it in writing to the sheriff, and Joel Decoursey wants Kelvin to take that document back because he doesn't want it documented.

Q. But it's in the system?

A. Correct.

Q. So is this a suggestion that the document be removed from the system?

A. The document is not in the system. The system lists Travis Devinny as a complainant. Yaeger is the subject, but there's no information in there yet.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. There's no evidence that was put in there, and that includes the document that was written?

A. I had already included my recorded interview, and his complaint intake was in there; but this document specifically stating here's what he says, here's what happens, he's being told he can't work at the courthouse, that document doesn't get put into the system until it's been acknowledged by everybody.

Joel Decoursey doesn't want to acknowledge it and have that land in the system, so he's trying to keep this document from going through him.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Where is this document now?

A. It has not made it back yet. We've been waiting.

Q. That's the original document? There's no copy of it?

A. Well, I'm sure he has a copy that he can produce off his computer, but there won't be any signatures.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. That document was never emailed?

A. No.

Q. Why was that?

A. We don't email them. That's something decided by the administration. They don't take those electronically. They want you to have to physically sign it and then write comments on it.

So you'll send it through, and then it comes back approved, disapproved, whatever. You end up with the original, and then the original is what would end up scanned into the system showing everybody's recommendations. So it's just never made it back. We're still waiting.

But -- so they have this ten-minute conversation. And Joel Decoursey says, "Well, I'm going to have to put my recommendation on here."

And Kelvin says okay. That's the point of this, right?

So once it's been established that that document is going to go forward, we're not just going to take it and act like it never happened, Joel

Decoursey says, "Well, is he still at work?"

Kelvin says, "Who?"

"Travis."

"Well, yes, he's still at work."

And the undersheriff, "Well, why isn't he suspended?"

Kelvin says, "OPS doesn't suspend people. The sheriff suspends people. That's the sheriff's decision."

"Well, go ahead and draft up the paperwork. I'm going to get with the sheriff. I'll be back in 20 minutes."

So he was accused of this excessive force. It's been two weeks, and he's at work. The moment that his complaint against Yaeger lands in front of Decoursey, and Decoursey doesn't want him on paper, that's the day we suspend for his complaint; he's been suspended since.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. When did the suspension occur?

A. He's been suspended for probably two weeks.

Q. And OPS has the use of force investigation?

A. Correct. Hutchinson is working that now.

Q. And if that investigation comes out that it was not excessive, what is the remedy for the suspension?

A. He's suspended with pay; so he's not lost anything other than the fact that you can't work overtime, you can't do all the other things, but that's standard practice. Somebody gets in a shooting, they're suspended with pay.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. But they're suspended with pay that day, correct?

A. Every other case I've ever seen, yes. This would be the first time that that didn't happen.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Is there some standard of when a use of force would warrant suspension or not? Or is that clearly the discretion of the sheriff?

A. It is. So past practice was always, if something came in to our office, and it was anything that we might think would warrant a suspension, the captain would go to the chief deputy or go to the sheriff and say, "We just got this in. Here's what we know. What do you want us to do?" and they would make a decision then and there.

Now, yes, there are times where, over the course of an investigation, maybe some new piece of information comes forward, and maybe you didn't suspend them; but now, with this new information, you do, but generally that would always happen on the outset. Like, this doesn't look good. We probably should suspend him until we know what's going on. That doesn't happen now. That doesn't happen now.

Q. Okay. So what is the current status of the Travis Devinny complaint against Major Yaeger?

A. We are still waiting for direction on whether to go forward or not. That IOC was sent asking what should we do, should we work this. We have yet to get a response.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. When was the initial sent to colonel?

A. Within a day of him coming in. I'd have to go look, but it's been a good month at least, at least.

Actually, I can tell you I was on spring break when they interviewed the sergeant, so it's been longer than that. It's probably been since the beginning of March.

Q. And then another document was drafted after that and sent to the sheriff?

A. Yes.

Q. Through the undersheriff?

A. Yes.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Again, forgive my lack of knowledge. Does the sheriff or command staff have the legal right to take a complaint from an officer and simply say no? Like, it's just a no. It's not going to be investigated. It's not going to be --

A. Our policy outlines what should be investigated, how it should be investigated. The sheriff can tell you to violate a policy; that's within their purview.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Was this a hostile work environment complaint?

A. Yes.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So is it also an allegation of concern, and your other policies -- I'm sure you have a policy on hostile work environments. So is there a separate procedure for sexual harassment, or is that also subject --

A. Sexual harassment, yes, because that can be reported to DC. That can be reported other ways. This wouldn't fall under that.

Q. So what you're saying is that, under the policy of the agency, every complaint by an officer against anyone in the agency would be investigated?

A. Correct.

Q. But that the sheriff could order you to violate the policy and close the investigation without conducting it?

A. He could.

Q. Has that occurred in any instance other than potentially the Travis Devinny complaint?

A. That I've heard. I have heard of cases being squashed. That has not happened since I've been there, but I get the impression it's about to.

Q. And what was the Pam James?

A. I've heard about that. I was not there for that. There have been others that I do know of that have been squashed going back to prior when I was in OPS.

We had an interview when I was -- I was in OPS for the three months at the start of the administration, transferred out of there in March in to criminal investigations. I'm now lieutenant in criminal investigations.

We hold an interview process. We interview nine, ten people. We selected -- we had three openings. We selected three people. We sent that forward. It came back. "You don't send us a list of three. You have to send us a list of everybody, and you need to attach photos of the people you interviewed."

So we made a list of everybody, but there were two in particular that we wanted to make clear they interviewed, but they cannot come here. So we had seven or eight listed in order of preference, and then we had two "do not recommend."

One was a deputy who was investigated for a child abuse allegation; and during the course of that investigation, he took a polygraph at GPD and failed it. I said, "We cannot have a detective with a failed polygraph in his background. I'm not going to sacrifice every case he works where that becomes the conversation instead of the evidence in the case. So he was one of the "do not recommends."

The other one was one who had a history, a long history in his short career, of multiple cases of discipline, to include one where I was back in OPS when it happened when he was on recording threatening to kill his baby's mother. We have the audio of that, so he was "do not recommend."

Q. Again, this is for a position in CID?

A. For a detective position.

Q. Okay.

A. When they transferred in people into the unit, they transferred that person, transferred him as a detective over the do not recommend, and here's some really good reasons why.

When he came in, I found out that there were active internals going on in patrol where they just transferred him from, and we didn't know what was the outcome of them. So he was transferred in. I was partners with John Schabruch. I was the lieutenant of major crimes. He was lieutenant of property. Fleagles was transferred under him.

When I became aware there were potential internals on him, I told John, "You need to find out what they're doing with that because they just can't disappear. The patrol supervisor may think that now that he's transferred, it's your problem. So you need to get with them and find out if they're going to finish whatever they're working on him; and if they're not, then we need to deal it."

So the allegation in the -- the one I remember was that he's on video. He's been canceled from driving lights and sirens to a call; however, after being canceled, he was still driving lights and siren. He gets near our main administration building. And on the video, once he gets close to the office, he turns off his lights and sirens, drives past the office, and then turns them back on and keeps going.

So John reached out to that supervisor and was told that that was not being investigated anymore, gone away. So that was the first time in this tenure that I heard of a case just being squashed. It's not a thing.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who was that supervisor?

A. The sergeant that was working it, it was whoever he worked for at the time, but I don't remember.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Real quick. The other individual that you did not recommend, did they not get transferred up?

A. They did not get transferred up.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Other than what we've talked about so far, are there any instances of illegal conduct that you have not discussed with me?

A. I don't believe so.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Are you familiar with Captain Jenkins being told to monitor any of the individuals that were in the room, in the interview room, with their PBA rep or with their attorney prior to any investigations commencing while they're going over the evidence?

A. I've never heard that, but I think the only two interviews we've even had since I've been there didn't happen. They were Frank and Kevin, and he wasn't there either of those days. So I've heard that that's a thing. I've not seen or heard any of that since I've been there.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. We've heard testimony from someone else that there's a hard drive that is daily uploaded with the status of OPS investigations, and the staff has -- or the suite has access to it so they can keep abreast of it daily.

MR. KRAMER: It's not a hard drive. It's an internal drive.

A. The only thing I know of is that system I described that we use, that we put all of our cases in. It's a case management system. So a patrol deputy, they'll go, and they'll use their case management to write their data report. We have basically an IA version of that, the IAPro.

I was directed a few weeks ago, or maybe month ago, to give Jake Rush access to that, so I did as I was directed. I gave him access to that.

Other than that, I don't know of anything that our -- that's where everything goes. I don't know of any hard drive or system or -- but he can see every case that's in it.

MR. KRAMER: We may need to follow up with you, but we do need to stop the statement at this point because of time constraints.

I'm going to tell you -- I know you know this is the case -- that my position that the recordings regarding the Kevin Allen case are evidence in a criminal investigation, and they should not be altered, changed, destroyed, or modified in any way, shape, or form. If you need to share that information with anyone, you are more than welcome to do so.

Good afternoon,

I filled out a framework of what I gathered for you to use as a template. I believe the Jenkins and Calhoun drafts are complete. Check for accuracy. The Anderson one can use a bit of copy/paste from the IOC talking about March 1.

Insp. Anderson, if you could include your pedigree, I believe that would be impressive.

I need these back ASAP. I'd like to file them tomorrow 4/18. Tune up the Word file and shoot it back to me for my review to make sure we're not leaving out anything important to the 112 response. I'll send you back the final for notarization.

Glad to defend your good work,

WILLIAM F. WILLIAMS, IV,
Petitioner,

CASE NO.: 01-2023-CA-910

vs.

CLOVIS WATSON, JR. in his official capacity as SHERIFF of ALACHUA COUNTY
Respondent.
_____/

AFFIDAVIT OF INSPECTOR VIRGIL CALHOUN

Affiant is currently employed as an Inspector at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office, supervising the Office of Professional Standards. Affiant attests with personal knowledge the following:

1. I, on all dates relevant to this action, was the Inspector, at the rank of Lieutenant, in the Office of Professional Standards ("OPS").
2. I conducted Petitioner's investigation.
3. I was present when Petitioner and his attorney came to OPS to review evidence in his case in anticipation of a subject interview of Petitioner on March 1, 2023. Petitioner and his attorney reviewed all the evidence.
4. When they were finished reviewing the material, Petitioner's counsel, Bobi Frank, announced that there were multiple 112 violations, some of which she said were not curable.
5. Present with me was Lead Inspector Scott Anderson. We both attempted to speak with Ms. Frank, but she cut us off and spoke over us in a rude and derogatory manner.
6. Ms. Frank did not appear interested in any genuine dialogue over her accusations or a response from me.
7. We did not compel an interview from Petitioner and he left with his counsel.

8. I read Petitioner's allegations in this writ case, and dispute two areas specifically.

   a. At paragraph 19-20 Petitioner states that he or his attorney brought a plethora of 112 violations to Lead Inspector Anderson and me and that we refused to cure them. That did not happen. Ms. Frank just yelled at us and left, behavior that shocked us. When we tried to talk, she talked over us and didn't let us speak.

   b. On page 26 of the petition, Petitioner complains about two body camera videos that were not included. Those are videos by Petitioner's supervisors of them collecting his equipment pursuant to suspension. They have nothing to do with the allegations of this case.

9. I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins as a complainant in this case because he had no independent information regarding the Petitioner's conduct. Likewise, General Counsel Rush had no witness material to add. He was routinely called upon for his legal opinion. I used direct sources such as witness interviews and my own independent investigation.

Further Affiant sayeth naught.

Good afternoon,

I filled out a framework of what I gathered for you to use as a template. I believe the Jenkins and Calhoun drafts are complete. Check for accuracy. The Anderson one can use a bit of copy/paste from the IOC talking about March 1.

Insp. Anderson, if you could include your pedigree, I believe that would be impressive.

I need these back ASAP. I'd like to file them tomorrow 4/18. Tune up the Word file and shoot it back to me for my review to make sure we're not leaving out anything important to the 112 response. I'll send you back the final for notarization.

Glad to defend your good work,

This statement is accurate and should be inserted into the affidavit:
9. I received the initial evidence from Chief Inspector Kelvin Jenkins who advised he received information from the Office of the Sheriff, requesting an investigation into the Petitioner's conduct. He assigned me to investigate a potential violation by the Petitioner, which I did, through my own investigation. I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins based on adequate information he provided to me to begin an investigation. WHEREUPON,

WILLIAM BECK

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE DEPONENT: Yes, ma'am.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Can you state your full name, please?

A. William Michael Beck.

Q. And how are you currently employed?

A. I'm a lieutenant with the Alachua County Sheriff's Office, lieutenant over property sections in the criminal investigation division.

Q. How long have you been employed by the sheriff's office?

A. This September will be 15 years.

Q. And have you had any other law enforcement background?

A. Yes, sir. I spent six years as a Florida highway trooper and a year as a secret service agent.

Q. Okay. What's your education?

A. A maters degree with a minor in criminology.

Q. What's the masters in?

A. Criminal justice.

Q. Okay. So with your current assignment, are you responsible for criminal investigations of officers who are employed by the sheriff's office?

A. If it's a criminal nature, yes, sir.

Q. Okay. Can you explain to me how that would come to you?

A. The complaint would go up to OPS, our office of professional standards. And then if there's a criminal allegation against the officer, they would then have to notify my chief detective, which is equivalent of a captain. He would then assign it to me or one of my sergeants depending on the ranking of the individual we're investigating.

Q. How long have you held this particular position?

A. Just over a year.

Q. And prior to that were you still in CID, but you didn't do this aspect of the work? Or were you somewhere else?

A. No, sir. I was with our juvenile relations bureau, the school resource.

Q. So have you conducted any of those investigations since you've been in CID, officer-involved criminal acts?

A. I have not done them, me personally; but my sergeants have, so I've been looped in on all of it.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Which investigations have you been a part of, or are you aware of?

A. Deputy Jack Miller. His ex-wife made an allegation that he committed domestic violence against her, and several other claims. However, when we did our criminal investigation, we found all her stuff false. And we actually found out that our patrol had went out during our investigation and done a domestic violence investigation; however, did not do it correctly, and we ended up having to arrest her for that case.

Also, there were several people out at the jail where there was an allegation that -- I don't remember what her name was, but there were basically people out at the jail having extramarital affairs. One of them -- one of the females had recorded another female, or tried -- attempted to during a conversation, and Sergeant Cook, who was under me at the time, was assigned that case.

Me and him had talked about it and whether it was an expectation of privacy or not based on where it was in the jail. And as we were investigating that, we were told, "All right. Shut down your investigation. We're going to give it back to Sergeant Marzouk because she already has a bigger investigation with all the parties involved with a similar case going on."

Q. Was that a criminal investigation with Sergeant Marzouk, or an OPS investigation?

A. It was a criminal investigation. We don't -- Sergeant Marzouk is now in OPS, but at the time she was in CID. So we don't do OPS investigations. We do strictly criminal investigations on our side.

Q. Do you remember the names of the individuals that were involved with the criminal investigation?

A. I think Tamieka Johnson or Tyrieka Johnson was one of them. I don't remember. I just remember we had the four of them, and the two -- like the guy and the girl were sleeping together, and this guy and girl were sleeping together; and they were all -- these two were married to each other at the same time. And then it became like this high school drama out there for a little bit. And I think there were allegations about domestic battery and stuff in between the two of them. I don't remember the full details of that.

Q. Were you involved in the Cleveland Cox investigation?

A. No, sir, I was not.

Q. Any other criminal investigations involving individuals with the sheriff's office or the jail?

A. Not that I can recall, sir.

Q. Do you send your criminal investigations to -- do they go through the suite prior to you doing anything? Is that approved through them? Or if there's probable cause, do you go out and make the arrest without confirming?

A. It varies. If there's probable cause for arrest, what I do is, I notify my chief detective. He and the chief inspector for OPS get together. They notify the suite. So, basically, from the major up, everybody is notified.

Then they go ahead and give us direction on whether or not we're going to go ahead and finish off the arrest, or if we're going to do a sworn complaint, or how it's going to be handled, really. And then I just wait for information to come back down to me.

Q. Are all those consistent? Do you see any difference depending on individuals?

A. I personally have not seen it. I personally have not been involved in anything where I've seen it.

Q. Are you aware of anything at the department that you believe may be unethical, immoral, or illegal?

A. Not illegal.

Q. Does that mean yes to the unethical or immoral?

A. I believe there's been some questionable orders that have been given that I did not follow, especially involved with Deputy Miller's investigation with Sergeant Cooper and myself when we were basically told by then Chief Detective Yaeger, "Well, if his ex-wife keeps making these complaints, and she's not getting back in touch with you guys, just threaten to go ahead and arrest her and see if she gets in touch with you then."

And I told him you can't do that, and then he eventually yielded to my saying that we weren't going to do that.

Q. So you're saying that -- so Yaeger was the chief detective?

A. At the time, yes, sir.

Q. And you were having an issue having somebody to respond to a complaint you were investigating?

A. The complainant herself.

Q. And Yaeger instructed you to --

A. Threaten to go ahead and arrest her if she doesn't respond, and if she wouldn't meet with us -- because we'd call her up, she couldn't meet. We'd get within an hour, she couldn't meet. She kept having excuse after excuse. And then finally we were able to get ahold of her and meet, but in between those times he was getting frustrated that the investigation was moving so slowly because we couldn't meet with her to get a full picture of what she was allegating.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Did you tell me that ultimately she does get arrested?

A. She got arrested on a separate case. So the internal case dealt with her and Deputy Miller. The other case while we were investigating this, based off some information she had provided to us, we looked into this part of the case because she was committing the domestic violence at the same --

Q. Against a different individual?

A. Against her other live-in boyfriend that she had left Deputy Miller for.

Q. Okay.

A. And then while we were investigating this, because all her character witnesses were involved in this as well, Sergeant Cooper looked at the video footage and said, "Hey, I got the video footage if you want to look at what happened in this case so we can see if there's anything dealing with" -- she had claimed that Deputy Miller came over there and caused issues over there.

So we reviewed all the video camera. And while we were watching all the video footage, we didn't see Deputy Miller. We didn't see anything that she claimed to have happened happen between him and her. However, everything over here -- at one point her friend is seen outside talking to the deputy on scene, looked up at the ceiling and looks back down at her feet and says, "If he would have hit me" -- or, "If he would have said those things to me, I would have hit him too," talking about the move-in boyfriend.

For whatever reason, patrol did not arrest her that night. They reverified it as just a regular domestic dispute; however, a physical contact had occurred.

So we actually got ahold of -- I got ahold of Sergeant Marzouk from our SVU, had her look into that independently. She went ahead and proceeded to make a physical arrest on that.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Are you aware of anything else that would be illegal, unethical, or immoral?

A. No, sir, not that I can say directly.

Q. Are you aware of any retaliatory discipline or anything along those lines that has occurred?

A. I can't say for 100 percent that it was retaliatory, but I know at one point Sergeant Cooper was my property sergeant. Sergeant Ferguson was moved over to be the persons sergeant, basically, our homicide sergeant.

I had been told by Sergeant Ferguson that at one point him and the other detectives were back in the back bay looking at a murder suspect car from a homicide we were currently working, and at one point Chief Detective Yaeger and, from my understanding, his wife came back there; and it's a secure area. And I guess when Sergeant Ferguson turned his head to look back towards to see who was coming in the door, Chief Detective Yaeger said he gave a look at him that was disrespectful and that he felt was disrespectful to the sheriff as well; because, I guess, the sheriff was walking with him, even though nothing to my knowledge has ever been said by the sheriff, the undersheriff, or the colonel to us about that.

The next day he moved Sergeant Cooper and Sergeant Ferguson, basically, a demotion in the ranks of a CID sergeant, moves a CID sergeant from a persons sergeant back to a property sergeant, and it had all the appearance of a retaliatory strike.

And then at one point our digital forensics, Detective Qualman, who has taken over our digital forensics, he wasn't there one day when our action unit, our old DTF unit, and he had dumped some phones; that was his RDO.

Anyhow, Detective Qualman wasn't there because it was his normal day off. Chief Detective Yaeger called me in his office, told me that he would like Detective Qualman to accept eight fives instead of our normal nines and one small eight day, and then you have an RDO off during the week, which is the detective off during the week.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Regular day off?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

A. So I went back, and I asked Detective Qualman; and he said he'd prefer to, but was that contingent on him staying in there.

I said, "At this point, I've been told that."

When I informed this to Chief Detective Yaeger, he had decided that he needed to switch Detective Qualman with Detective Guzman. And I informed him at that point Detective Guzman does not have the training or experience right now or the certifications to testify in court by moving those two. We need to leave them where they are.

He goes, "But Detective Guzman will work five eights for me every week."

So there was a point of tension right before Chief Detective Yaeger got promoted to major that he was more or less forcing the movement on his level to occur without any input, and I felt that was more of a targeting towards Detective Qualman for not working the five eights.

Q. Is there a contract that regulates what these deputies are required to work?

A. Yes, sir. It's actually written in our PBA contract, and it's written in our policies and procedures.

Q. And is that -- it's an acceptable work pattern, that he could make that move?

A. He could; but from my understanding, if he deviates from the policy in the contract, it has to go through the PBA again. That was my understanding from the chief detective, unless the detective is willing to actually do that.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. I think what he was asking is, is that -- did he violate policy or violate the contract by doing the move?

A. He never did it.

Q. Okay. So it didn't happen?

A. No, sir. He ended up promoting out to major. And when he promoted out, he did have Chief Shabruch then come and talk to me about moving him. At which time I told Chief Shabruch, I said, "Look, I really want to keep him there. I really want to keep this one here. There's no reason to move the two of them because, again, Detective Guzman does not have the training, experience, or the certifications to testify in Court. It's going to hurt us in the long run."

Detective Shabruch, he agreed with me. He told the then Major Yaeger, who said, "But Lieutenant Beck was on board with it."

And I told Chief -- I told my current chief, Chief Shabruch, I was never on board with it. I made that argument. I was just going to be outranked on it.

And there was a point where under the new administration they changed a way we do a lot of day-to-day applications. One of the things was that any time another agency requests assistance from us, we have to get permission all the way up to the sheriff, and it all has to come back down.

Detective Guzman -- and this is prior to him wanting to move him over in to Qualman's thing. Detective Guzman, while at a ceremony, basically, I guess, fist bumped the sheriff or something, which from my understanding Chief Detective Yaeger took offense towards that for the sheriff.

I don't understand how you do that, but he did. And then he got upset because Detective Guzman -- someone from another agency on a multiple case that he was working with multiple jurisdictions, Detective Guzman saw that a guy was looking for a suspect. So he's like, "Wait a minute. That guy's mom is up here."

And they were trying to verify down south what this guy's name was. He goes, "Why don't I just take the picture you have right here on the bulletin. I'll show it to Mom, see if his mom recognizes it as her son or not just for a verification."

They said, "Yeah."

Well, Detective Guzman innocently went out and did what we do as law enforcement. I get a call from the chief detective saying, "Did Detective Guzman go out and do something?"

And I had just gotten a call moments before this call from Sergeant Cooper that Detective Guzman had done that. And I was like, "Craig, you can't do that under the current procedures and everything that we've been given."

To me, Chief Detective Yaeger at that point basically told me, "It makes me look stupid and incompetent that I have my guys going off and doing stuff."

At which time I told him, I said, "I fully disagree with that."

He goes, "Well, you need to understand your place on this," and that's how the conversation ended.

At that point I said I'm not getting in an argument and a fight with him over something so petty. "Yes, sir. Okay, sir," moved on about my business.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So is it a written policy at the sheriff's office that you cannot perform and assist another agency without the sheriff's permission?

A. Yes, sir. I actually -- because we were having so much frustration in CID when I first got over there on how we could send -- whether we could send a detective out, how we can handle another agency, how we can assist another agency, there was so many rules always changing, I actually wrote out in black and white in an email, sent it to Chief Detective Yaeger, had him review it. He sent me back several revisions.

And at the end of it, I said, "Is this the finalized one we can work off of? What I can prove as a lieutenant, what the sergeant can approve at their level, what you can approve at your level, what we have to get approved from the sheriff himself?"

And after I got, I guess, it's about two or three pages long, and it outlines in detail what we can do it and how we can do it. It was never put into official policy, but it is in procedures for CID. We all have a copy of it as supervisors now.

Q. So an officer-involved shooting with another agency or an active shooter with another agency, who has to approve it?

A. To go assist them?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Sheriff.

Q. So the sheriff is unavailable.

A. Above my pay grade, sir. I know it has to go up to the chief detective, who then goes over to the major, who then goes to the colonel, undersheriff, up to the sheriff.

Q. Does this seem unsafe to you?

A. Yes, sir. As a -- for instance, I'm in charge of our bomb squad, which is a regional asset; which I get federal grant money for being part of the region security of it.

I have eight counties I'm supposed to cover; but in order for me to go from County A to County B, I have to wait until I get approval from further up than my captain. Whereas, in the past 14 years, my captain approves it, I go and do it; which basically is just, whoever, Johnny Law from Gilchrist County, the sheriff over there, was to call and say, "I got a suspicious package."

"All right. Hang on just a second, Sheriff."

"Hey, Captain, I need to go over here to a suspicious package."

"All right. Cool. Let me know when you're back in county."

That's what it used to be.

I've actually sat at county lines before for an hour waiting for approval.

Q. Does that seem safe to you?

A. No, sir, not for my line of work with the bomb stuff. Not for my line of work if I'm sending tactical bomb techs over for our squad operators, who are also a regional team, that need to go and deal with that.

Q. Is there a contract that you're under to receive the money that funds these regional assets?

A. There is. I don't know exactly what it looks like. I know it exists because it's the Regional Domestic Security Task Force. We're under Region Three's, and we're the tier two bomb squad for them. Jacksonville Sheriff's Office is tier one. Marion County is a tier three. And then our SWAT team is the tier three team for the region, Marion is tier two, and Jacksonville is tier one.

Q. Is there some circumstance under which -- or, I guess, let me rephrase.

Have you ever told another agency, "No, I'm not going to respond" because it came from higher than you that the answer was no?

A. Not on the bomb side; but on the CID side, we've had to say, yes, "We can't assist you on that at this time."

Q. In any form of national -- I forget what you said -- regional asset situation, or is this just --

A. No, that's just on the CID side. The regional asset, to my knowledge, as far as I can remember back, I've not been denied. There's just been a lag of time.

Q. And which, in your opinion, was unsafe?

A. Yes, sir.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Do you know if the SWAT team has ever been denied going to assist?

A. I believe so. I just can't remember what it was.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Warrant service?

A. I believe so, something like that, because I remember I was told -- because what our SWAT will do is, any time they're going to go out of county, the SWAT commander will normally let me know, give me a heads-up that, hey, we got an op that's going to be out of the area, just to FYI you in case they need to call me.

Because if they -- a lot of times if they get an armed barricade, they'll contact me to come in with our bomb robots and stuff. Or if they think they're going to do a high risk entry, we put our tactical bomb tech inside the stack with the SWAT team in case they come across any type of booby traps or anything.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Do you know of -- does them being denied for a request for them to go assist Nassau County to search for a homicide suspect, does that sound familiar?

A. Yes, sir, I do remember they got -- because there was a lot of people scratching their head on that one as to why every agency in Florida basically was sending people, but we were not; and we were much more closer and at that time a much more robust SWAT team. The only ones that were more robust than us at that time was JSO in the region.

And I believe at that time we had better equipment than Marion County, even, and they would have been the next ones to call up. And to my knowledge, if I remember correctly, talking to their bomb commander, their SWAT team did send two elements up there.

Q. And that was a homicide suspect that had killed an officer?

A. Yes, sir.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Do you know why it was denied?

A. I don't know. I know the rumors I heard, but that was it.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Are you aware of any criminal investigation into an OPS member at this time?

A. Into an OPS member?

Q. Yes.

A. No, sir.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. If an OPS officer committed a felony offense while on duty, would you be the unit that would be assigned to handle that investigation?
A. Yes, sir. We do that for the separation, because OPS, if we start having them dive into the gray area of now they're doing criminal investigations, then you have -- you don't have that check and balances of criminal versus policy and procedure. And that's the whole reason why our policy is written like that.
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Is there anything else you think may be important? Anything that you would like to tell us that we haven't specifically asked you?
A. Not that I can think of.
MR. KRAMER: Very well. That's all. Thank you.

WHEREUPON,

KYLE SALMAN

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I swear.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER?

Q. Could you state your name, please?

A. Kyle Douglas Salman.

Q. And can I call you Kyle?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Kyle, before we get started, since you're no longer a member of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office, and you don't have a lawyer, I just want to explain a couple things to you just to make sure you understand.

Although you haven't received your subpoena, you indicated, we did issue a subpoena for you; which means you are, in my opinion, under subpoena, and that gives you certain rights and also certain responsibilities. And the rights are that nothing that you tell me today can be used against you in any future proceeding.

A. Okay.

Q. So essentially you have immunity from anything that you might tell me. And we are definitely going to ask you about things that we believe are criminal acts, and I want you to feel comfortable to tell me anything you know about them without concern that you're -- that there's going to be a form of retribution against you because of those things. You have that immunity, meaning we can't use what you say today against you in any way, shape, or form.

Of course, you know your responsibility, which is to answer all questions truthfully.

A. Absolutely.

Q. Okay. Do you have any questions for us before we begin?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Great. So I just want to start with your education.

A. I graduated high school, and I have some college at the University of Florida but did not finish.

Q. Okay. And are you currently a certified law enforcement officer in the State of Florida?

A. Law enforcement and corrections.

Q. Okay. And how long have you been certified as a law enforcement officer?

A. Law enforcement was 2010. Corrections was 2008.

Q. And can you review your corrections and law enforcement history with me? When did you start, and where did you work?

A. I was hired at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office in January 2008 as a correctional officer recruit. I put myself through the crossover academy while still working at the jail in 2010, continued to work at the jail -- at the sheriff's office until I resigned February of this year.

During that time I was promoted from detention officer to sergeant to lieutenant. I was assigned as an inspector in the office of professional standards at two various points for around a year each, or a little less, and back to lieutenant, back to inspector.

Q. Were you always on the corrections side, or were you on the law enforcement side also?

A. I've never worked in a law enforcement, like, patrol capacity. So they call it a detention deputy if you're certified to work at the jail, but I never worked --

Q. The road?

A. -- specifically like the road, yeah.

Q. Have you ever supervised the road-type individuals?

A. No.

Q. So essentially most of your history is corrections?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Can you explain, to whatever degree you're comfortable with, why you are separated from service with the sheriff's office?

A. Sure. So I have 15 years in FRS, all of it with the Alachua County sheriff's office. When I started working at the sheriff's office in 2008 I lived in Gainesville. My wife, who I met in Gainesville, got her job in Jacksonville.

We've been living in Jacksonville since 2010, but I loved my job so much that I continued to drive back and forth. I just felt like the Alachua County Sheriff's Office was an agency that just fit me very well, and honestly, I was successful there. I got promoted twice. And I just felt like the ethics aligned with mine, and all my friends worked there, and it's just where I wanted to work.

But over the last couple of years I just didn't enjoy working there that much; and it just wasn't worth it to me anymore to continue to sacrifice my personal life and my relationship with my wife to drive back and forth, so it was a decision that we came to, I would just not work there anymore.

Q. And is that because of the change of administration that would have occurred in January of 2021?

A. I don't see how I would have come to that same conclusion if that administration hadn't changed like that, sure.

Q. Understood. So when you were in OPS, were you a lieutenant?

A. So my title was inspector. My rank was lieutenant, yes.

Q. And who would have been your -- I don't know if they call it chief inspector or --

A. Chief inspector.

Q. Okay. Who would have been your chief inspector?

A. When I first went to the office of professional standards, it was Todd Kelly. That was when Sheriff Darnell was the sheriff. That was in like October of whatever that last year before the administration change would have been, 2020.

And then shortly after the new administration took over, it was Captain Richmond, and then it was Captain Brandon Kutner. And then there was a period where Brett Rhodenizer was kind of like the acting chief, even though he was the lead inspector. And then it was John Shabruch, was the last chief inspector I had.

Q. Were you in OPS when you parted -- separated from service?

A. No, I had maybe a month or so been sent back to the jail a second time.

Q. Okay. So were you responsible for the investigation of allegations against Latrell Simmons?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Were you a part of an audit? Did you participate in an audit that Brandon Kutner did upon coming into OPS or taking over OPS of the current pending cases?

A. An audit of --

Q. Like going through them and working -- I don't know if I'm saying it right. You're in there when Brandon Kutner comes in?

A. I'm trying to remember the timeline. Yes. So when he first went to OPS was when Richmond left. I was there. Brandon Kutner came in. At some point while Kutner was there, I got sent back to the jail and then brought back while Kutner was still there.

Q. Okay.
A. So I was there while he came, and he was there while I came back, if that makes sense.
Q. Do you know who did the investigation on Latrell Simmons?
A. I believe it was Sherry French.
Q. Okay.
A. And I think I was a witness; but at the time I had just been sent to the jail where Simmons would have been my direct supervisor, but I think the day before I started was the day he got suspended. So I never really worked for him, so I wasn't able to give them anything or tell them anything when they asked me questions.
Q. So they questioned you in the Latrell Simmons investigation, but you had no relevant knowledge.
A. Correct.
Q. And you don't recall any kind of like -- when Brandon Kutner comes in, any kind of like review being conducted of all the files that are pending in OPS at that time?
A. It could be your terminology throwing me off.
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Did Captain Kutner talk to you about cases that he had discovered involving individuals that should have been sent to FDLE?

A. Oh, yeah. Yeah. And if that's what you're talking about --

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. That's what I'm talking about, yeah.

A. Okay.

Q. What happened with that?

A. If I recall correctly, he was going through whatever files were in his office or his administrative assistant's office, trying to just catch up, I think, what the status of that office was. And I know he came across a case that had a lot of back and forth between him and administration.

It was a detention officer, Camiel Rowe, was one that I recall being a big discussion topic where she had been sustained that she left a housing unit in the female infirmary at the jail where you have a suicidal inmate that is on, you know, direct observation, somebody needs to watch them so they don't kill themselves, with documented 15-minute checks. So you have to fill out a little check box that says at, you know, 1:15 p.m. I looked at this inmate, this is what they were doing. 1:30 a.m., I looked at the person, and this is what they were doing.

Well, on video, she's gone. She leaves with nobody in there, no adult supervision, for 17 minutes, but yet her check sheets reflects that all the 15-minute checks had been done. How is it truthful that you are saying that you done 15-minute checks when you're gone for 17 minutes?

He saw it as a perjury-type situation, or whatever you want to call it, and thought that it should have been sent to FDLE and CGSTC. And I believe it was administration saying, "We don't want to send it."

And I believe Kutner's opinion was that it statutorily or by rule had to be assigned, and they were kind of blocking it.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Was there also -- did he bring to your attention something about the admin specialist Kris Allfrey?

A. Kris Allfrey?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. I mean, I think in general he was not particularly happy with her performance, but specifically as to something she did other than --

Q. Do you know of any files that she got rid of or purged that shouldn't have been?

A. No. As far as files, I think she may have been a little sloppy in her recordkeeping abilities. I know, for instance, she had like a file in her computer that she labeled "pending" where she was like, you know, organizing files, but it wasn't on the drive that we have access to. So I think he was getting frustrated when he couldn't find something, and she's like, "Oh, it's in this. I haven't filed it yet."

But her purging files, I don't think so. I don't recall anything like that.

Q. When he came up as chief inspector, did he sit down with everybody and have a meeting and tell you what he expected, what a typical supervisor would do?

A. Yeah.

Q. And who was in there with you at that time?

A. Oh, man.

Q. Was Sherry French in there?

A. Sherry French, Brett Rhodenizer, Matt Beck, and me, I believe.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Were you at all involved in the investigation of Pam James?

A. I was not directly -- I mean, I was involved because -- so in the office of professional standards, an inspector would have cases that they work, right? I'm doing an investigation, I'm interviewing people, gathering all the evidence, typing it up, right?

And then you would have assistance cases where, really, the bulk of the work -- most of the cases in the agency are inspected or investigated by supervisors. So, you know, this sergeant or lieutenant has something that they need to investigate. They're doing the work, but they may ask OPS for assistance. We would call that an assistance case.

So Lieutenant Scott was actually investigating that case, but I was assigned as the assisting inspector. So yeah, I was -- anytime Jamie needed help, Lieutenant Scott needed help, I would help them with that case.

Q. Was there anything done that was unusual with that case as far as how Pam James was interviewed?

A. Extremely unusual. Very unusual.

Q. In what respect?

A. So when Pam James was called in for her subject employee interview, she essentially stopped the interview and said, "I have a prepared statement that I want to submit in lieu of an interview."

And at the time the captain, the chief inspector, was John Shabruch, and he was new to the position.

Well, Jamie Scott, Lieutenant Scott, she was already nervous for this investigation. That, I think, was her first real full investigation she'd ever done; and I think she felt a lot of pressure from work, and she really was uncomfortable with it. So she exited the interview and came to me.

I said, "No, she doesn't have the option to not do an interview. You're the investigating supervisor, go in there and tell her that she needs to answer your questions. She's compelled to do it; otherwise, it's insubordination. That's our way our policy reads, and that's how it's always been done."

Pam James again said, "I'm not answering questions," something along those lines. "I'm not answering questions. I'm submitting a written statement in lieu of doing this interview."

So Lieutenant Scott comes out again. This time I went and got Shabruch. I said, "Hey, here's what's happening."

And he wasn't comfortable saying you need to make her sit down and answer these questions, which is my understanding of how we've done it, and allowed her to submit that written statement.

That was very unusual. And I think Shabruch later did some research and found out, yeah, we should have made her answer the questions.

Q. Was she cited for insubordination?

A. The original investigation was for insubordination. I think that was insubordinate, also; and somehow, when it's all said and done, the original insubordination case was all but tossed and lost forever.

I think, luckily, it was completed, but I want to say the undersheriff -- and I didn't hear the undersheriff say it himself, said that the investigation is canceled. When you have a complainant, a victim, so to speak, saying that they were harassed, how is that possible?

Q. Well, that was going to be my question. Is that possible?

A. Clearly, it was. I don't know how because I feel like, you know, you still have a victim, Jamie Scott, and there's no closure for her.

Q. Within the policies of the agency, as far as you understood it, was that a potential outcome of an investigation, simply that someone in the administration simply said this investigation is over?

A. I know tracking numbers can be canceled, but I've never heard of a complaint existing on something and it just disappear like that, no.

Q. Are you aware of any other similar circumstance where that has occurred other than the Pam James case?

A. Where a case is just --

Q. Somebody from the administration has just reached down and said this investigation is canceled? I'm not saying that there is. I'm just asking.

A. I'm trying to think back and -- excuse me. I haven't been working for the last couple of months, and I'm kind of like a "stay at home husband" brain; but I can't think of anything off the top of my head like that.

Q. Okay. Well, then, I'm going to ask you the opposite question, which is, have you -- do you have any experience with the administration reaching down to OPS and directing the outcome of an investigation?

A. I will tell you that I had a case where a subject employee had been in a YouTube video that a third party filmed, and the YouTube video made it look like this patrol sergeant did certain things that would have been unfavorable or what have you.

And I was assigned that case, and I was able to show without doing interviews -- you have an administrative inquiry or an administrative investigation. Administrative inquiry is where you're able to kind of show without doing interviews, and there's no discipline attached to it, here's what happened.

I was able to do one of those and say the YouTube video was edited. This person didn't do what it looks like they did, and I'm asking for this case to be closed. And I've done that before as a supervisor, I've done that before in OPS, and it's always been signed off, good to go.

Well, this time I submitted it, and I think Captain Shabruch -- I don't think I ever saw it, but he told me he put an addendum on top of that and turned it in saying, yeah, case closed. You know, there's nothing to see here.

And then it got a sent back to me. And, of course, I didn't hear anybody from admin say it because I'm just getting this through Captain Shabruch, nope, you need to dig further. You need to look at this, that, and the other.

Well, next thing I know, I'm doing a 35-page investigation, interviewing, it seems like, half the agency to again come to the same conclusion. But why was I directed by admin to do that when I was able to show that without doing all that?

So to answer your question, have I ever seen admin have their hands in things like that, that would be an example of it, yeah.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Right. But specifically to say that he -- I get that, and thank you for sharing that -- but to say the outcome of this is going to be that they violated that policy, being sort of the opposite of squashing it? Saying you're going to do this investigation, and you're going to find a reason to discipline this person, fire this person, demote this person?

A. No, but I also didn't have any real contact with admin. It always came filtered through a chief inspector.

But I did an investigation on Howard Adams. He was a lieutenant at the jail. I was told to investigate these three charges even though what I have investigated, if I hadn't had any input from anybody else, would have been just our social media policy. I was told to also investigate insubordination and conduct unbecoming. This is when Captain Kutner was the chief inspector.

So what Howard Adams did -- he was a lieutenant at the jail. There is a former employee Ray Swallows, Raymond Swallows, he posted some stuff on Facebook that painted current admin in a bad light. Howard Adams not only gave the like on Facebook, but he also, I think, shared it and added some other, you know, of his own words to it.

So I did that investigation, and I sustained the social media policy violation. And I think I also sustained the insubordination because, inside of Ray Swallows Facebook post, it criticized Howard Adams' direct supervisor and other people in his chain of command; but I did not sustain conduct unbecoming because there was nothing there that was racist, sexist, homophobic, or anything else that made me question his ability to perform his job, be fair, be honest, any of those things.

So I submitted my investigation with those findings, you know, two sustained, one not sustained, and administration sustained all of it.

So that's the only time I can say that I can think of off the top of my head where those findings were kind of dictated because I didn't find it, but they found it in my investigation.

I was never told you will sustain this, that, or the other, but I was told not to -- Howard Adams, which I wasn't a big fan of, he was out of town on vacation, and I was told, "Complete your investigation without interviewing the subject employee."

Q. Did Captain Kutner sustain all three, or did Captain Kutner send it up with two and one, if you recall?

A. I think Kutner sustained all three; but without looking at the case, I couldn't say for sure. I think he did.

Q. I want to turn then Captain Kutner. First of all, just as background, it's my understanding that there is an audio recording system that's used in OPS, the audio video recording system that's used in the OPS suite.

A. In the interview room in there, yeah.

Q. Okay. And you're familiar with its operation?

A. Barely.

Q. Meaning you can turn it on and off?

A. I can turn it on and off. I don't know if I could tell you how to get it off the server.

Q. Or how all that works, right?

A. Right. But I can -- I can turn the TV and system on and click the record and the stop button.

Q. Okay. You're familiar -- or are you familiar with the fact that you can monitor, meaning that you're seeing and hearing what's going on in the room without recording it?

A. Yeah, you can.

Q. And you also could see, hear, and record.

A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that there's multiple places within OPS where you can do that?

A. So there's the main setup that's got a flat-screen TV and all that, but you can also log in on a computer in there, any of the work station computers in there, and also look. That's the part I don't think I ever figured out how to use.

Q. Okay. It's my understanding that there were times when officers who were in that room were monitored while they were conducting their review of evidence, of the file. Do you know what I'm talking about, where they have an opportunity to do a file review?

A. Yeah, they get to see all the evidence against them.

Q. They might be in there by themself. They might be in there with a representative.

A. Right.
Q. Or they might be in there with a lawyer, right?
A. Right.
Q. And that while it may not have been recorded, that there were instances where they were monitored. Are you familiar with that?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see anybody talk about that or did you ever see that occur?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
A. And I can understand where somebody would be concerned about that, because that is the room that -- I mean, they would have the option to go somewhere else, but that's the room where they're doing it. And sure, there's a camera there, and there's audio there, but I don't recall anybody ever flipping it on or looking at it or listening to it.
Q. Do you ever make -- did you ever make any effort to let the individuals using that room know this is a recorded room, but you're not being recorded?
A. That's what I would always tell them when it was my case.

Q. And would the system be on to where at that time, while they were in that room, to the point where all you would have had to do is turn the volume up, and you'd hear what was going on? Or was it fully shut down?

A. I believe -- well, I'll say this. I don't think there's a way to really fully shut it off to where somebody in, let's say, the chief inspector's office couldn't log in to the system; but the setup for the office is open like this, and I can see all four inspectors' screens from where I'm standing, and I've never seen anybody logged in or looking at it.

Q. Okay. But the chief inspector's office, someone could be using it, listening to it, hearing it inside that office, and you'd have no knowledge?

A. I think that would be possible.

Q. Okay. Have you ever been told that that occurred?

A. No, and I've never suspected anything like that either.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Did you ever go into the ceiling and disconnect any of the wiring or cables that would be attached to any of the cameras?

A. No.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Do you ever hear any sort of talk or any idea that Brandon Kutner was promoted to captain in order to avoid him becoming the president of the union?

A. I heard a rumor.

Q. What was that, and who did you hear it from?

A. Oh, gosh. I don't recall who I heard it from, but I did hear somebody or a couple people say, "Oh, he got promoted so that he couldn't bargain for the bargaining unit," or something like that. I know he was at some point some way involved in it.

Q. Were you or did you become aware of anyone ever being directed to change the content of an investigation once it had been recorded to the file?

A. Change the content of an investigation?

Q. For instance, there's a description of an interview -- I don't know how you describe interviews, but a description of an interview, and somebody comes in and says, "No, change that."

A. No.

Q. Have you ever been made aware of anybody deleting any recorded interviews or content from the, I think it's called, OPS tracking system?

A. No. And I will say that that software -- now that you're trying to mention the name of it --

MR. KRAMER: What's the name of it?

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: iRecord?

THE WITNESS: iRecord is the recording system for the room.

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: IAPro?

A. IAPro. That software came during my time there. Actually, I think it came during my break, when I wasn't there.

So my first stint in OPS was just like an Excel spreadsheet system. And then we got the IAPro. And I don't have knowledge of anybody deleting anything from either of them. But just so you're aware, I was in there during like two different kind of systems.

Q. Do you believe you were transferred out of OPS because of an investigation you conducted?

A. I feel like that, but I don't have any evidence to show that that's what happened. But I do feel like that's what --

Q. What investigation was it?

A. Well, I think it happened to me twice. The Howard Adams investigation that I talked about earlier where I didn't sustain the conduct unbecoming, my transfer was like right at the conclusion when I had my findings. And I got transferred to that poor guy's old shift on nights while, you know, his office still had his stuff in it. I'm the guy that did the investigation, and his stuff is still in there.

Q. I guess the step I missed is, they fired him over this?

A. Oh, he got fired over that. And I don't know how you can justify firing a guy for making a statement, you know, on Facebook that, like I said, wasn't racist, sexist, homophobic, didn't cause you to doubt the guy's ability to do his job no more.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Were the two that you sustained, were they fireable offenses?

A. I think it would have given them enough points to do it, sure, I think. Without going back and looking, I wouldn't be able to tell you for sure, but they sure sealed the deal when they sustained the rest of it.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Because conduct unbecoming in and of itself is fireable?

A. I think it's a Level 5, which would be enough, yeah.

And then it happened to me again. So I described earlier the sergeant that had the Facebook -- or YouTube video. I concluded that, and I didn't sustain any of the stuff that they were wanting me to look at, or that I was looking at.

I did sustain like a Level 1 basic violation because the sergeant's body camera wasn't on his chest; it was on his seat in the car, so all the interaction from this was from like the dash cam and the backup deputy's body cam. So it was like a Level 1 for not having had his body camera on.

Q. And this is Kevin Davis?

A. Kevin Davis. I forgot. Yeah. And very shortly after I finished that investigation, I got transferred out again and then sent to night shift.

Q. Is that considered punishment in the world of corrections?

A. I considered it a punishment considering, especially, that I was the senior lieutenant in the department. Why is the senior lieutenant, the guy with the most experience, being sent to night shift like that?

And I found out I was going to night shift because an agency-wide email was sent out telling everybody I was going to night shift. And I get a text on my phone "You're going to nights. You're going to nights."

Well, why I wasn't told? Why couldn't I be told in person I'm going to night shift? Why couldn't somebody mention it and reach out to tell me I'm going to night shift?

And when you asked me earlier why I left, things like that. And also, they're forcing to people at the jail to work overtime and not paying them for it, and I had a problem with that.

Q. Sure. Can you explain?

A. So they're short staffed. They have mandatory overtime. So what that means is, these detention officers are required to one overtime shift per month. And I'm not exactly sure what system they're using as far as picking those shifts, but suffice to say at some point you may not get a shift you want depending on when you get to pick that shift.

So if you work -- and let's be clear about what mandatory overtime is. You're being ordered by the agency, supervisors, hey, you must work this shift, right? And there's the threat, whether it's perceived or real or verbalized, that if you don't do what we're telling you to do, well, we all know what insubordination is. That's a fireable offense as we are all aware. If you don't do it, there's workplace discipline for it, right?

So you're forced to give your labor; but if you happen to have vacation time during that same pay period, well, we're not going to pay you for the overtime. We're just going to have you flex that vacation time away, and that way you don't get paid any overtime.

I think that's wrong. And, in fact, our written policy says that's not how it's done, but that's how this administration is having it done. So people are being forced to work overtime and not actually getting paid any overtime for it if they have vacation time during the same period.

And oh, by the way, depending on what team you're on, because the period is in the middle of the weekend, if you take a weekend off, you're going to have to be flexed out for one of those days.

Q. What does that mean, "flexed out"?

A. It means that you get vacation time sent back to your vacation pool so you're not burning it, but you're also not getting paid the overtime rate for the forced overtime that you worked. It's supposed to be protected overtime so that you are paid for it, but they're not treating it that way. It's our written -- it's in their written policy.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. So you work an 80-hour --
A. 84.
Q. 84?
A. Uh-huh. And let's say you work that overtime, that's 96, but you burn 12 hours vacation. Instead of being paid 96 hours and burning 12 hours vacation, you give those 12 hours vacation back, and you get paid straight time.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And you're not getting those vacation hours back at time and a half?
A. Correct. And based on how short the place is, you're probably not ever going to really get to use it. It will just roll over to your sick leave.
Q. Does it roll over at a rate of one-to-one?
A. It does; but when you go to retire, resign, whatever, if you have ten years, you can sell it back at only half your rate.
Q. Did this happen to you personally?
A. It never happened to me personally. The lieutenants were never forced. But when I got re-assigned to night shift, and I'm looking around that this is going on, and I'm going to be responsible for time and payroll, I said I'm not doing that. I don't believe in that. That doesn't agree with, you know, my philosophy. And like I said, when that happened, and I don't have to do this anymore, I'm out. I'm not involved in that. I'm not doing it.

Q. So when you said, "I didn't do it," meaning you never got to the point of having to be insubordinate because you left?

A. I left.

Q. But had you stayed, you would have been required to utilize this procedure?

A. Well, my sergeants would have had to do it. I mean, they're responsible for doing their squad's payroll, and I always had a habit of checking behind them to make sure it's all right.

So yeah, I'd be putting myself in a position where I'm looking at it, I'm seeing it happen; and I'm either going to do something about it and probably get in some kind of trouble or ignore, and I wasn't comfortable with that.

Q. So those individuals who didn't take any time off during the pay period, they did get the time and a half?

A. They did, yeah, but what are we saying? These people that are being worked more than they ever had been and being forced to work overtime shouldn't have vacation time? That's a recipe for disaster.

Q. Oh, for sure. For sure. No, I'm just making sure I understand. But they're still getting paid for it?

A. They're still getting paid for it. Absolutely, they are.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. How short is the jail?

A. I know at one point when I was the commander, I had 49, and I think other shifts had maybe 51; and I think they're all in the low 30s, maybe high 20s. I mean, it is like dangerous, scary, ugly bad right now.

I know they don't have outside security ever. There are a lot of days and nights where they have no escorts, which means the only people that can really respond to emergencies are the supervisors.

Well, some of these shifts don't even have all the supervisors they're supposed to have. And, you know, if you got a supervisor doing an outside security check, another one using the restroom, who's coming when you're getting choked out?

And, you know, D Zone is max zone. They're running that with one officer instead of two sometimes; C Zone, same thing.

They're having at nights at least the 4-H officer also cover 3-H, so you have an officer running two pods.

Q. Just for the record, there are four Hs in a hall?

A. Two Hs in a hall. And I don't think it's been run with less than two if they're doing their job.

So I will have -- I was look -- I was asked by security to look into how some fast food containers got into 1-H, and I was able to see on video where that fast food was in the 2-H officer area. They were eating, I think it was, Waffle House or something like that. And at the conclusion, I think they threw their containers in the trash, and then the trustee doing the trash was able to get the containers in there.

But what I observed -- and I was working as the admin lieutenant at the jail for a brief period before I got sent to nights. I was able to observe by reviewing video that these two officers that were assigned to 2-H were logging counts that they weren't doing. They were sitting in their chairs. And to do a count you have to get up and walk around and look in all these windows and count the inmates; there's no other way to do it. And all those inmates run 15-minute checks. And just like the female officer I was talking about earlier, here they are logging 15-minute checks that they weren't doing. In my mind, that's untruthful. That's performance of duty also.

I summarized all this in an email, and next thing I know it was just handled by CC, a notice of written corrective counseling.

Q. Who did that email go to?

A. I think I sent it to Matt Beck and Richie Watkins, and both of those guys got demoted like right after that. Beck got demoted from captain back to lieutenant, and Richie got demoted from lieutenant to sergeant.

Q. And is there a correlation, in your mind, to the email and the demotion?

A. I don't know. I don't know.

Q. Is there any other activity that you observed that you would have classified while you were there as illegal, immoral, or unethical?

A. I don't think I ever saw anything illegal, not that I know of, anyway. Probably things that aren't ethical, yeah. I think there are things that are unethical. I think that's part of why I left, because the ethics just don't align with mine anymore.

Yeah, I think there's a couple of investigations open right now. I'm not -- I don't work there anymore; so I don't know what the status is, but I think Lieutenant Glen Stanley has a couple cases that are being investigated against him where the conclusion is just like out of whack with reality. I mean, it sure looks, from the outside looking in, like they're just trying to fire the guy and find anything they can to do it. I don't know if you've talked to him yet, Glen Stanley.

And then Matt Beck, when you do talk to him, I mean, I feel like he's been written corrective counselings that when you look at them, the person writing the corrective counseling has the policy wrong and is counseling him for doing something the right way. And then he got demoted. So yeah, that's not -- doesn't make sense to me.

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: Who would that be that wrote the counseling?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. We can ask him. If we just remember to ask him, we can ask Matt Beck that. If you know, you can tell us. I just --

A. Well, I think Dorian Keith and John Hoover have written -- have both done corrective counselings on him.

That's another thing. John Hoover was fired by the grievance administration for being untruthful, and then he was my captain. He got rehired and got promoted from detention officer to my captain. It was sustained untruthfulness, and now he's my boss. It's kind of tough.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Was his file -- do you know if that was sent to FDLE?

A. I don't know.

Q. Pam James' interview, was that recorded?

A. What happened of it, I think so.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

All right. That's the end.

Good afternoon,

I filled out a framework of what I gathered for you to use as a template. I believe the Jenkins and Calhoun drafts are complete. Check for accuracy. The Anderson one can use a bit of copy/paste from the IOC talking about March 1.

Insp. Anderson, if you could include your pedigree, I believe that would be impressive.

I need these back ASAP. I'd like to file them tomorrow 4/18. Tune up the Word file and shoot it back to me for my review to make sure we're not leaving out anything important to the 112 response. I'll send you back the final for notarization.

Glad to defend your good work,

Petitioner,

CASE NO.: 01-2023-CA-910

vs.

CLOVIS WATSON, JR. in his official capacity as SHERIFF of ALACHUA COUNTY
Respondent.
_____ _____ ____/

AFFIDAVIT OF INSPECTOR VIRGIL CALHOUN

Affiant is currently employed as an Inspector at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office, supervising the Office of Professional Standards. Affiant attests with personal knowledge the following:

1. I, on all dates relevant to this action, was the Inspector, at the rank of Lieutenant, in the Office of Professional Standards ("OPS").
2. I conducted Petitioner's investigation.
3. I was present when Petitioner and his attorney came to OPS to review evidence in his case in anticipation of a subject interview of Petitioner on March 1, 2023. Petitioner and his attorney reviewed all the evidence.
4. When they were finished reviewing the material, Petitioner's counsel, Bobi Frank, announced that there were multiple 112 violations, some of which she said were not curable.
5. Present with me was Lead Inspector Scott Anderson. We both attempted to speak with Ms. Frank, but she cut us off and spoke over us in a rude and derogatory manner.
6. Ms. Frank did not appear interested in any genuine dialogue over her accusations or a response from me.
7. We did not compel an interview from Petitioner and he left with his counsel.

8. I read Petitioner's allegations in this writ case, and dispute two areas specifically.

   a. At paragraph 19-20 Petitioner states that he or his attorney brought a plethora of 112 violations to Lead Inspector Anderson and me and that we refused to cure them. That did not happen. Ms. Frank just yelled at us and left, behavior that shocked us. When we tried to talk, she talked over us and didn't let us speak.

   b. On page 26 of the petition, Petitioner complains about two body camera videos that were not included. Those are videos by Petitioner's supervisors of them collecting his equipment pursuant to suspension. They have nothing to do with the allegations of this case.

9. I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins as a complainant in this case because he had no independent information regarding the Petitioner's conduct. Likewise, General Counsel Rush had no witness material to add. He was routinely called upon for his legal opinion. I used direct sources such as witness interviews and my own independent investigation.

Further Affiant sayeth naught.

7. Due to Petitioner's counsel raising uncurable 112 violations ~~W~~we were ~~did~~ not ~~compel~~ able to an interview from Petitioner and he left with his counsel.

8. I read Petitioner's allegations in this writ case, and dispute two areas specifically.

   a. At paragraph 19-20 Petitioner states that he or his attorney brought a plethora of 112 violations to Lead Inspector Anderson and me. I. Petitioner statesand ~~that~~ we refused to cure them.    b. On page 26 of the petition, Petitioner complains about two body camera videos that were not included. Those are videos by Petitioner's supervisors of them serving notice of administrative investigation and collecting his equipment pursuant to suspension. They have nothing to do with the allegations of this case as required by 112.

9. I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins as a complainant in this case because he had no independent information regarding the Petitioner's conduct. Likewise, General Counsel Rush had no witness material to add. He was routinely called upon for his legal opinion. I used direct sources such as witness interviews and my own independent investigation.

Commented [CV2]: If there is no independent information from Capt. Jenkins or yourself, then this admits there was no complainant with material knowledge.

9. I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins as a witness complainant in this case because he had no unique information regarding the Petitioner's conduct. He assigned me to investigate a potential violation by Petitioner, which I did, developing my own evidence independent of his lead. Likewise, General Counsel Rush had no witness material to add. He was routinely called upon for his legal opinion, which was not evidence in this case. I used direct sources such as witness interviews and my own independent investigation.

This statement is accurate and should be inserted into the affidavit:
9. I received the initial evidence from Chief Inspector Kelvin Jenkins who advised he received information from the Office of the Sheriff, requesting an investigation into the Petitioner's conduct. He assigned me to investigate a potential violation by the Petitioner, which I did, through my own investigation. I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins based on adequate information he provided to me to begin an investigation. I used direct sources such as witness interviews and my own independent investigation.

b. On page 26 of the petition, Petitioner complains, claiming a 112 violation, about two body camera videos that were not included. Those are videos by Petitioner's supervisors of them serving notice of administrative investigation and collecting his equipment pursuant to suspension. They have nothing to do with the allegations of this case as evidence contemplated by 112.

9. I received the initial evidence from Chief Inspector Kelvin Jenkins who advised he received information from the Office of the Sheriff, requesting an investigation into the Petitioner's conduct. He assigned me to investigate a potential violation by the Petitioner, which I did, through my own investigation. I did not interview Chief Inspector Jenkins based on adequate information he provided to me to begin an investigation. I used direct sources such as witness interviews and my own independent investigation.

Further Affiant sayeth naught.

WHEREUPON,

KRISTEN ALLFREY

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, ma'am.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you tell us your full name, please?

A. It's Kristin Allfrey.

Q. How are you employed?

A. I work for the office of professional standards as the administrative specialist.

Q. Is that at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Well, we were. Now I'm out at the jail.

Q. Very good. But your employer is ACSO?

A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been an employee of Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Twenty-five years.

Q. Okay. And do you have any -- you're not a sworn law enforcement officer?

A. No. No.

Q. Do you have any other job experience prior to coming to the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Yes. I worked for the Bureau of Emergency Communications with the State of New Hampshire, and I also worked for the Port Smith Naval Shipyard in New Hampshire.

Q. My guess is that over 25 years you've probably held a lot of positions at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

A. No.

Q. No?

A. Actually, I have not. I started as a secretary in the juvenile relations bureau, and then I went over to the jail as the support services assistant, and then OPS.

Q. And how long have you been in OPS?

A. Just two years.

Q. Okay. So you're really --

A. Just recent.

Q. -- quite recent to it?

A. Yeah.

Q. So can you just tell us which OPS -- I think they call them chief inspectors?

A. Yes.

Q. Which chief inspectors have you worked for?

A. Let's see. Todd Kelly was first. John Richmond, Brandon Kutner, John Shabruch, and now

Calvin Jenkins. Is that five? It should be five.

Q. That's one of the great things about having a court reporter, is I don't have to take notes.

Have you ever worked with the sheriff, the undersheriff, or the major?

A. Yes.

Q. And in what capacity did you work for them?

A. The undersheriff I worked with in juvenile relations. He actually was on the board, my interview board, and he was the sergeant at that time.

Lance Yaeger I had known for years. I had known him as a deputy all the way through.

And now the sheriff I don't know. I don't know him at all.

Q. Have you ever worked for him?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Since you've been at the OPS, have you been asked by anyone to purge or delete any computer records within the agency?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain that?

A. Well, there's been some cases that we initiated; and we wanted to investigate them, but we had been told by the undersheriff to purge them, to just close them out.

We were also told at one point to delete a case, which we did.

Q. Okay. So let's go through those as best you remember one by one.

A. Well, that's -- yeah. My memory is not the greatest, so I tried to write things down so that I would remember.

The case that was deleted was a detention officer, James Lemon. He was actually a sergeant, and a sexual harassment case was brought against him. And the detention officer -- one of the detention officers that had done an interview, after the case was closed, Sergeant Lemon was dropped to a detention officer.

This detention officer, Cory Short, had posted his interview on YouTube. And we all felt that -- my whole office felt that that was a violation of our social media policy because it had everybody in uniform, and it was the total interview. And when they pursued that, for some reason, the undersheriff ordered us to delete the case.

Q. I want to make sure I understand, and I want you to tell me exactly what that entails.

A. Sure.

Q. Because when you tell me that you're deleting a case, this is what I understand. An entry has been made into the computer system that documents an event at the sheriff's office.

A. Okay. Well, let's -- we now have a new system; it's called IAPro. So everything is going into that system, all the documents, interviews, and whatnot. We will not delete anything from that.

Prior to that, we were scanning documents, and then we were just putting them into folders. And we had paper copies that would be in the file, and we had an Excel spreadsheet that we would just keep track of the numbers; which wasn't a very good system. Now with IAPro it is much better, but then is when this case happened.

Q. Okay.

A. So it just -- it went away.

Q. And when you say it went away, what all went away? Would it be the entry into the computer? Were there interviews? Were there items?

A. Yes, there were interviews. They were items. Because it just didn't go anywhere, then it got purged. And we only keep it for a year, so it's gone. We just closed it per the undersheriff, now it's gone.

Q. It remained in the system for one year?

A. Yes. The documents did, yes.

Q. What's the next?

A. Let's see what else we had. The Kevin Davis complaint.

Back in January Kevin Davis had brought to us a complaint against General Counsel Jake Rush, and he brought a folder of documents and handed it to Captain Brandon Kutner then at the time. And his complaint was that the general counsel didn't really know his job.

When Captain Kutner took that folder to the undersheriff. The undersheriff took all that paperwork, and he felt there was no case. He didn't want to look into it. He just thought it was frivolous.

So Kevin Davis kept calling us and asking us what was the story on this case. And the file was never -- never returned to us, and they just told us that we were not to look into it.

And this happens to us on a lot of these cases. We'll get complaints, and we'll take it to them. And they basically will tell us whether we can or whether we can't. Which I understand, I mean, they can do that, but a lot of times they want us to like take our drafts and give it to the general counsel and let the general counsel kind of do a checks and balances so that we don't get into litigation. Well, that's not common practice. We don't normally do that.

Q. Right. But if these become records of the agency --

A. Yes.

Q. -- and they're destroyed by the undersheriff --

A. Yes. Yes, he asked us to destroy it, the Kevin Davis case that we've now started the third case. We've started all over again from scratch.

Q. Because Kevin Davis has made this complaint three times?

A. No. His original case that he's in litigation with right now, that started with Inspector Marzouk, who wasn't there very long. None of my inspectors have been there very long.

They didn't particularly like the way she did her case, and apparently there -- I don't know. There was an issue with a phone call between her and Bobi Frank, and so they took her off the case.

Then they gave it -- well, they took her part and gave it to Inspector Calhoun, and Calhoun did his part and submitted it. Well, they didn't like that either because Calhoun and Marzouk didn't feel that conduct unbecoming was sustained.

In their investigation, they just didn't feel that that was something that was a sustainable charge, and the general counsel and the undersheriff didn't like that. They wanted that sustained, and Virgil Calhoun refused. He just didn't feel that that was right.

And the undersheriff and the general counsel are constantly saying out loud that they're not trying to run the cases, they're not trying to influence it, yet every time we submit it, they send it back.

Now, the thing is, they can take that case, and they can make their own recommendations. It doesn't really matter what the inspector says. At the end of the day, he can look at that, the sheriff can, and say, "No, you're terminated. I don't care. You know, that is sustained."

But they wouldn't do that. They wanted Virgil Calhoun to sustain that charge.

Q. Has any portion of any investigation as it relates to Kevin Allen been --

A. Kevin Davis.

Q. -- Kevin Davis been altered, deleted, or changed at the direction of any person?

A. Not that I can't answer for certain.

Q. Is it in the --

A. It is in the IAPro. It's just that it's -- General Counsel and Undersheriff wanted us to get rid of what Nancy Marzouk had done because they didn't want her name associated with it, and the general counsel had made mention that they were going to try to figure out a legal way to delete that case and start over.

Q. So --

A. That's all I know.

Q. If you were to go back today at the end of this interview and go look for the phone call that is the problem between Nancy Marzouk between Bobi Frank, is it there?

A. I don't -- I've never seen it; so I don't believe so, but I never really looked.

Q. Do you have access to IAPro?

A. I do. I have do have access, but I never -- I never thought to look. I'm going to say it's probably not.

Q. Then who could have deleted it?

A. I don't know that it ever got there.

Q. Oh, it got there.

A. Oh, it did get there? Well, then, maybe it's still there. I've not looked; and I didn't even think about looking, so I'm not sure. I could go back in my office, pull it up, and then maybe there it is.

Q. Do you have the ability to delete something like that from the system?

A. I do not, no. There are only two people that have that right, and that would be Scott Anderson and Kelvin Jenkins in my office. Neither one of them, I know, would do that, but there are others. I know our IT people, I'm sure, have access to do that, but not my office.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. How about anybody in the suite?

A. As far as I know, no. I think General Counsel Rush has access to look at things, but I think that's it. In fact, he's going to training with me on IAPro next week, so --

Q. So let's go back to anything else that has been altered, changed, or deleted. Can we focus on anything in IAPro that you're aware of?

A. No, I don't. No, not in IAPro.

Q. So prior to IAPro, is there anything else that you've been directed to alter, change, or delete at the instruction of the --

A. Only that we have closed a few cases per the undersheriff; whereas, we pull a tracking number, we start the paperwork, and then all of a sudden, no, we're not going to -- we're not pursuing that.

Q. At any time are those cases -- are you being told to preserve them for the period of time that they're required to be preserved; but then, once that period of time lapses, they can go away?

A. That I do, yes, and I've always done that. That's been common practice even in the past administration. So if it's not sustained, I keep it for one year. If it is sustained, and that employee leaves, we keep that. I mean, that's in our file-bound system with HR. And now it's also in our IAPro, and then that file is stored off site.

Q. Is there any time where you've been asked to delete something from the system, prior to IAPro, prior to one the year?

A. No, not to my knowledge. No, I don't believe I have.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. What about the James Lemon, Cory Short?

A. The James Lemon, Cory Short just kind of went away. That one just -- I don't know.

Q. Was that on the Excel spreadsheet or was that in IAPro?

A. That was closed on the Excel spreadsheet. That case was just closed.

Q. Is there still a record of that spreadsheet?
A. Actually, yes, I do still have a record of that. Yes, I do. I should have printed it out. I didn't even think of it.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. Are you aware of anyone from the suite directing -- other than what you've already described, directing the outcome of an investigation with directions to fire or demote anyone?
A. No.
Q. Are you the person who would be responsible to transmit the case -- there are certain investigations that are required to go to FDLE.
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. Are you the person who would make that transmission?
A. Yes.
Q. And have you ever been told not to transmit a case to FDLE that required transmission?
A. No. No.
Q. Have you ever been told the opposite, to transmit a case to FDLE that did not require transmission?
A. No.
BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Were you told to send the Annie Waller investigation?

A. Yes. Yes.

I guess I should say, to my knowledge, I have not. I mean, sometimes I'm not -- I'm just the assistant. I'm just do as I'm told. So I'm not really sure, you know, if that indeed had to go or did not have to go. I just --

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Is there any other instance that you have noted there that occurred?

A. I just have kept all kinds of just different things, but it's -- a lot of it is kind of -- that's the YouTube one.

And Major Stafford sent Chief Inspector Shabruch an email stating the undersheriff told -- Decoursey ordered him to cancel the investigation.

Let's see. Just when Matt Beck got demoted when he was captain of security. Kyle Salman had been transferred in and out of OPS. And a lot of that was just because of people who disliked them. We've had a lot of that.

And that's the Kevin Davis thing we just went over.

Joshua -- oh, yeah. The Joshua Scarborough incident. I did write this down, and I don't know if this is pertinent; but Scarborough filed a complaint on November 16th, for excessive force, of last year. He was tased when he refused to comply, and the complaint was investigated and reviewed by Colonel Chad Scott and Kelvin Jenkins, who is in patrol at the time. He was not in OPS. And it resulted in no findings, case was closed on the 16th.

General Counsel Jake Rush provided information to OPS that he received and checked as a result of the pending litigation filed on behalf of Scarborough. Nancy Marzouk was assigned the case as a result of the complaint, and her findings concurred with the previous investigation; that there were no findings, and that the deputies in question acted fine.

Scarborough retained Attorney Robert Rush. General Counsel Jake Rush has been constantly pressing Captain Jenkins to find merit to Scarborough's claim even though we've said that there was no excessive force.

It's things like that that have been happening in my office.

We just -- oh, yes. We just had a detention officer, Tiaquandra Johnson. She met with McDougall on February 2nd. OPS was notified that she might be under the influence of narcotics.

She was kind of caught up in this love triangle, and there was an investigation that was going on. They were not able to come up with any findings on this investigation. And while she was with McDougall, she was told to go get a 12-panel drug screen. She was suspended immediately.

The drug panel was negative, and all of a sudden everybody was asking me for her disciplinary file. She did not have but just one complaint in her file. It was a couple years ago. And even the major had no idea what was going on.

The next day she was terminated, no paperwork, no nothing; I don't know why.

Q. Could you give the name again?

A. Her name is Tiaquandra, T-I-A-Q-U-A-N-D-R-A, Johnson. Her ex-husband was Detention Officer Johnny Echeverri, E-C-H-E-V-E-R-R-I. And another detention officer, Clyde Berringer, who was her live-in boyfriend, that was the love triangle. There was a domestic dispute.

Q. I want to go back to the issue with Counsel Rush. I want to make sure I understand the facts. The name of the officer -- there's a defendant who's made a claim of excessive force.

A. Yes, his name is Scarborough. They arrested him.

Q. And he makes a claim of excessive force. It gets investigated initially by who? Who's the first to investigate it?

A. I believe it was Nancy Marzouk.

Q. So that investigation is complete, no findings?

A. Yes, it came up with no findings.

Q. And then at some point somebody from the suite says reopen it and do it again?

A. No, that's -- that's the Kevin Davis one that's reopening. No. Scarborough retained -- because he didn't like the investigation, so now he's retained Attorney Robert Rush and has filed a lawsuit against the sheriff's office.

Q. So has that investigation ever been reinvestigated?

A. No.

Q. Has any of the findings been changed?

A. No.

Q. And Counsel Rush has then contacted -- is it Kelvin Jenkins?

A. Well, he wanted Kelvin to get Nancy Marzouk to say that it was an excessive force, and they wouldn't do it; they refused, my office refused.

Q. And there are time limitations on how long?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Six months?

A. Yeah.

Q. And were you still within the time limitations?

A. Yes.

Q. So it would still be possible to -- without any further proceeding, simply just change the result of the investigation from unfounded to sustained?

A. No, because she has closed it. Unless they decided to -- well, no, they couldn't because it has been closed. I believe that case has been closed.

Q. So how could this request of Counsel Rush be fulfilled?

A. Before it was closed, he wanted it -- he wanted it to be -- he kept alluding to the fact that he wanted us to find excessive force; and they just kept going around and around until they finally said, "This is done. We're not doing it," and it was over.

Q. And if I understand correctly, the investigation happens, then Nancy Marzouk would make her findings?

A. Yes.

Q. And then her findings, because she says unfounded, she's not going to then suggest discipline. So then it goes up to her supervisor, which would have been?

A. Kelvin Jenkins.

Q. Kelvin Jenkins, who then reviews it and says, "I agree. Unfounded," and then it goes on?

A. Right. It goes on and on.

Q. All the way to the sheriff?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And where in that process is Mr. Rush interjecting himself?

A. Just in conversation.

Q. I mean, has the -- Nancy has already signed off on it?

A. Well, before she signed off on it, the office -- the suite and my office kept going back and forth, back and forth. And a lot of times -- like right now she is on her fourth revision on a case that she's doing right now because every time it goes over, they send it back.

Q. How many times was this case sent back?

A. That I don't know. I can't tell you exactly. I'm sure it was, but I can't tell you how many times.

I just know my -- my captain is constantly going to the sheriff's office and constantly coming back with the same paperwork and very, very frustrated.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Why have there been five different chief inspectors since you've been there?

A. I can't say for sure, but my guess would be because each time we get a case, and they don't like what is going on, it seems like I get a whole new -- and it happens, the notice will come out on a Wednesday or Thursday, and it's done by Monday.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. You said they're changing the --

A. They changed the whole office. They -- the first time they left me, who had only been there for a few months; and Inspector Kyle Salman, who had only been there for a very short time; and it was just the two of us. They took all the seasoned inspectors. They just took them out and transferred them. So we had no direction, none whatsoever.

Q. And then they replaced them with --

A. Replaced them with Richmond and a whole new crew of inspectors.

Q. And Brandon Kutner?

A. Brandon Kutner and, again, all new inspectors.

Q. So you said that when Kevin Davis came up with this folder of documents, and that was provided, you don't know if that was ever scanned in?

A. It was not handed to me. I know that that day Brandon Kutner had come out of his office and said, "I thought that Kevin's claim was frivolous," and he said, "but apparently not."

So I don't know what was all in those documents. I just know he took that document -- that folder and went straight to the suite. And when he left, my captain that I have now, Kelvin Jenkins, was in patrol at the time. Brandon Kutner had gone to his office and did not have that folder with him and expressed his frustrations to Captain Jenkins, and it wasn't -- it wasn't pretty. He was very upset.

Q. So Kutner took it to Decoursey?

A. Yes.

Q. When he went to --

A. When he went to visit Kelvin he had no folder, and he had no folder when he came back to me.

Q. Would he be the one to determine whether or not a complaint was going to be opened or --

A. Our chief inspector is, yes. And we have a checklist. So when somebody calls us, the inspectors will talk to that person. They go over this checklist just to make sure, you know, that this is -- this rises to the level of OPS. Because a lot of times your investigations can be handled at the division level, and that's what they do; and they take it to the captain, and then they say, okay, here's what we've got. And he says, yes, we need to do this.

And then previously we never -- with the past administration, T.K. never -- or Todd Kelly never had to go to the, you know, Huckstep or Sadie Darnell to ask permission to proceed with a case; now we do.

Q. Would that packet of -- that folder of papers, what would happen to that whether or not there was a -- if you're not going to open a case, what's going to happen to that packet? Is that going to come back to you? Is it going to go back to the complainant?

A. If we were going to open a case, that packet should have come back to me to scan in. And then we should have been able to start the paperwork, but we were told -- we were told nothing.

Q. Okay. So if a case is not going to be opened, what happens with the folder?

A. We don't usually get anything. That was just an isolated incident where Kevin Davis just brought all of this documentation because he thought for sure we were going to be investigating this.

And Brandon thought that it was pertinent for him to take that to the undersheriff seeings where it was a complaint against his general counsel, and he wasn't expecting that folder to be taken.

The undersheriff told him he wanted to look it over, called him up and said nope, and never saw it again. Obviously, Kevin Davis still has those documents, I'm sure.

Q. Would an entry be made that Kevin Davis came up for a tracking number or anything?

A. No, because it didn't -- it didn't get that far.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Are you aware of any other issue?

A. No, I don't think so.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Have you been asked to go back and tell anybody what was discussed today?

A. No. No.

Q. Any other immoral or unethical issues that you're aware of, or criminal issues?

A. No, no criminal issues. I'm sure there's all kinds of, I mean, frivolous bullying. You have a lot of that.

I don't know if you've heard about the Devinny.

MR. KRAMER: Yes, Travis Devinny.

THE WITNESS: Okay. So I don't need to tell you about that. I knew you'd probably heard most of it.

MR. KRAMER: All right. That will be it. Thank you.

WHEREUPON,

JOSHUA CREWS

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, ma'am.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your full name, please.

A. Joshua Crews.

Q. And how are you employed?

A. I'm a deputy sheriff with the rank of captain over the special operations bureau, or division, sorry, at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

Q. I want to start by asking you your educational background.

A. High school education, some college, and tons of certifications and other law enforcement-related qualifications.

Q. And how -- you're obviously a sworn certified law enforcement in the State of Florida. How long have you been so?

A. Since -- so I was a correctional officer from 1997 to September 11th of 2000, and then I was hired at the sheriff's office from 2000 to present. So sworn law enforcement officer only about 23 years, just shy.

Q. Very good. And could you briefly review the positions you've held at the sheriff's office?

A. Obviously, patrol deputy. Interdiction deputy, which was assigned to the narcotics unit. Training deputy. I was promoted to sergeant May of 2008. I held the rank of sergeant in patrol. Training, narcotics, juvenile relations bureau.

I may be missing something, but -- and then I was promoted to the rank of lieutenant May 11th of 2018. I held that rank, and I served in patrol, criminal interdiction unit, where I worked with violent gang -- violent -- help me out, violent task force.

Q. Violent crimes?

A. Violent crimes, yeah, task force, with Chris Ellsey. And then court security as a lieutenant, narcotics as a lieutenant, and then promoted to the rank of captain in August of this past year.

Q. And in what role have you served as captain?

A. I've been in special operations the entire time. I guess that's worth noting. I've been assigned to the SWAT team -- or was assigned to the SWAT team throughout the majority of my career at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office, December of 2002, with an 11-month break, finally effectively retiring or resigning from the team August 28th upon my promotion to captain this past year.

Q. Is that because as the captain you're not allowed --

A. Yes, sir, that's a matter of practice.

Q. Okay. Is there a captain of the SWAT team?

A. So the SWAT teams falls under special operations. It would fall in my department -- my division.

Q. So while you're no longer a member of the team, you now supervise the entire squad division?

A. Yes, sir. I have all the special teams. So I have your bomb team, your SWAT team, negotiations, I have all of them, aviation, K-9.

Q. Okay.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So I do want to come back to that, but I want to ask you this question first. Prior to coming to this interview for which you've been subpoenaed, were you asked by any member of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office any question regarding content or reason for you coming here?

A. They asked me -- asked me to come down to the suite and talk to them about what I was being subpoenaed for, what the subpoena looked like, and I read it to them. There wasn't much to it, no style number. And they speculated what it could possibly be, which is -- they speculated some jail incidents that had taken place.

Q. Meaning the deaths at the jail?

A. Correct.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who is "they"?

A. Sheriff, Undersheriff, Colonel, they were all --

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Legal counsel?

A. Yes, he was in the room. It was in the sheriff's suite. So keep in mind this subpoena arrived the day after they promoted me. So common practice for majors to be in the suite is kind of a thing, so it wasn't like, hey, you know, calling me out of a position that's uncomfortable or whatever. I had started mingling in that area to try to get things accomplished around the sheriff's office.

Q. Okay. Fair enough.

A. They didn't -- they asked me to call Darry Lloyd, because that's what the subpoena said. And I left a message with his executive assistant.

And I told them, you know, I'd tell them what I know once I found out. Of course, I told them what I knew, and they were puzzled.

I ended up getting called at 8:30 that night by Lance Yaeger, and he said, "I've been thinking about the people that you're in that group with" -- And my group of nine, I could pull it up and find it. Well, not right now. My computer is not working in your building -- but "that group of nine that you're with," which is -- it was like me, Billy Beck, Dorian Keith, Brett Rhodenizer -- how many did I have? Anyways, he knew the group of nine.

I told him who the batches were in my email group. So he said, "Based on that, I really think it is the Ashley Miller case," which was a case -- and I don't remember all the particulars, but it was a case where OPS, CID, and my division, JRB, which is juvenile relations bureau, worked together to investigate it because it was a domestic between -- allegations between a deputy and his wife, and kids were involved.

And so he said, "I think that's it."

And I said, "Yes, sir. It sounds like you got it all figured out."

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Who was the deputy?

A. Jack Miller. Deputy Jack Miller. But I don't think anything was done inappropriate with that investigation. I think it was handled appropriately.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Let me ask you this. What's the current policy in the sheriff's office for your teams that you supervise when you're being -- if there's a request to assist another agency?

A. The other agency needs to -- their sheriff needs to contact our sheriff.

Q. Have you had instances where that has occurred?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And have there been instances where that necessity has caused significant delay?

A. So early on I do believe there was significant delay in our response to assisting other agencies, but that kind of plays into my 11-month hiatus from SWAT.

Since Colonel Chad Scott has come on, working with him, he has given us approval at his level to go ahead and start them while he gets that final communication piece fixed. So of recent I don't think it's really slowed anything down.

Q. Is that true of bombs?
A. Up until August, I didn't have view of them. Does that make sense?
Q. Yes.
A. And I was in narcotics. And you probably know from cases we generated, we were very busy.
Yeah, I don't -- I haven't seen anything where I can recall where I was like, yeah, that's definitely unnecessary.
If I get an out-of-county response, I go ahead -- so they have to go to the station, get the bomb truck and go that way. So I just got to get approval before they break the county line. Well, it takes them a while to get there, so I get them -- we get them going.
Q. All right.
A. But that's been -- like I said, I've been captain since August this past year.
Q. This is a little bit uncomfortable question. Are you aware of any promotions that are due to political favor or promises within the agency?
A. Say it again.
Q. Political favor or promises. Promotions that are not being based on merit, qualifications for the position, but are being done because of political promises or favoritism within the agency?

A. I have no specific recollection or view of that. There's nothing that I've seen where that's happened, including myself.

Q. You're highly qualified to hold the rank of captain, and you're highly qualified to hold the rank of major, correct?

A. I believe I am qualified to hold the rank of captain. If I'm being one thousand percent honest, I think that I should probably hold that rank for a year or more.

I believe in learning each position as you go through. And as much as I'm very humbled by the opportunity, I know my shortcomings, and I could have seasoned more in that position.

Q. Fair enough.

A. But I'm way more qualified than the previous major.

Q. Who was?

A. Lance Yaeger.

Q. And he's now not a major?

A. Well, previous major in the department that I'll be in.

Q. Understood. So your qualifications to lead the department that you are going to lead -- or, I guess, it's now division?

A. It's department. So you go bureau, division, department.

Q. Okay.

A. So I'll have the department which houses judicial services and training division and the criminal investigations division.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Who's the current captain at the jail?

A. So we had a major over the jail. Her name is Dorian Keith. We have Captain John Hoover and Captain Corey Warren. I believe that's it.

Q. How long has the captain been there?

A. Not very long, sir. Well, it depends. Do you use all this time together? Because he was fired by the previous administration for lying during an administrative investigation, internal investigation.

Q. When was he brought back?

A. I don't have the exact date, sir. I want to say it's been like the last year.

Q. With the new administration?

A. Oh, yes, sir, 100 percent with the new administration. And then he was promoted directly from detention officer to captain.

Q. Does that seem unusual to you?

A. It does, but I had -- again, I've got no direct visual of -- I can assume that there was probably a political payback in that. I've heard rumors that he was involved in the campaign; but I don't know or talk to John Hoover, and I'm not involved in the jail at all.

Q. Understood. So to sort of ask you the opposite of that question, which is, are you aware of anybody being demoted or disciplined for reasons that are other than conduct for perhaps disqualification from the office or rank that they hold?

A. Say it one more time.

Q. Are you aware of anyone within the agency who's been demoted or has been sanctioned through OPS or what have you for actions other than that they did something wrong?

A. Well, yeah.

Q. Can you describe that?

A. Well, myself. I was removed from the SWAT team for speaking up on behalf of an appointment of Cleveland Cox to the SWAT team. And there was no investigation, there's no documentation, no nothing. I was just removed.

And I was told when I contacted the PBA that that was within the sheriff's managerial rights; that he could pick his SWAT commander, and there was no obligation to keep appointments.

Q. Okay. Anyone other than yourself?

A. Matt Yakubsin was demoted while he was in his probationary period; he was never given a reason, as far as I know. It was speculated that he liked a Facebook post, and that's why he was demoted. He was also removed from his command position of the honor guard unit as well.

Q. Is there anyone else that you're aware of?

A. I'm sure, but realize it's been a crazy 28 months.

Q. I do understand.

A. There were 69 transfers, promotions, movements from March to July of '21.

Q. That's unusual?

A. Three major personnel orders. Never in all of Sheriff Darnell's history do I ever remember having a personnel order that had 29 on one order.

Q. Does that cause significant disruption to the agency?

A. Well, yeah.

Q. Are you aware of circumstances where individuals who are unqualified to hold the position have been put into position in place of individuals who are qualified to hold the position?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And can you give an example or more than one example?

A. Well, Lance Yaeger is the easiest one. He was made a captain. This guy had been -- had left multiple positions because of conflict with his supervisors at those positions and had found himself at Newberry High School as a school resource officer. And I believe, because of his relationship with Jake Rush, he was made captain over the criminal investigation division.

He's got no supervisor, no law enforcement supervisor background. He does have military supervisor background; but his institutional knowledge of supervising people and managing all that goes into that, including payroll and property and equipment assignments, all that, he didn't get that.

He didn't get that first-line supervisor as a sergeant, you know, how to do a line inspection and what that entails, or, you know, managing a squad on the road as a lieutenant or any of that. He missed it all.

He never tested; which what that means, too, is the thing that I do believe in the test is, is that if you pass the test, you read the policy at least once in your career. In order to pass the testing, you got to know what's going to be on the test, which all comes from the policy, which is a ton of studying.

I studied for probably 45 days doing anywhere from two to six hours a day to prepare for the two times that I took the sergeant's test and the two times I took the lieutenant's test in order to get promoted.

Q. Other than Lance Yaeger, are there individuals -- let me give you an example. My understanding is that experienced long-term members of the CID division responsible for the most serious crimes, investigations of the most serious crimes that the sheriff's office handles, were summarily removed and replaced with individuals who had no investigating experience.

A. That's accurate. Folks like Robbie Parker, Robert Campbell and other detectives that have been in the bureau were removed and replaced by folks like Cleveland Cox and other unexperienced deputies under the guise of we want to give other people an opportunity to gain experience; but there was no rotation schedule, there was no nothing.

It was just, you know, large blocks of people replaced all at once, which also has caused a ton of problems with trying to get them trained and certified, and created financial impacts as well due to getting those training and certifications back up to date.

One of the probably most egregious acts to me was, we went without a specialist for pulling phone data; which in today's day and age in law enforcement, everything is verified through geofencing and phone information, text messaging, telephone calls. And all that is from the smartphone.

And we moved detectives that were trained in that position from CID and left it with trying to get people trained up.

Q. So in the interim you have essentially no availability to conduct a proper investigation if that investigation required a detective who had those training and certifications?

A. In fact, there was -- I remember during the time -- Mike Moore was one of those detectives. They were -- they would ask -- the detective supervisors would ask for the ability to borrow Mike Moore, and they would refuse them that ability to even borrow him.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Because he had that expertise?

A. He's certified. He's got the certifications. It doesn't matter where he's assigned, he can still do it. He's got the certifications. And I'm not the tech guy. It's a very common phone data extraction program used, Cellebrite. So he was certified in Cellebrite, I believe, is what the biggest issue was.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And explain to me how that refusal occurred? I don't understand how that would -- you have a sergeant who's asking another sergeant and saying, hey --

A. Oh, no. At the time you couldn't go out of your division without going through your chain of command. You have to make that request up through, you know, Captain Yaeger, and Captain Yaeger would either reach over to patrol and ask or he would refuse it at his level.

I can't tell you -- again, this was wasn't something I was directly involved in. It's just something I was hearing was happening, so --

Q. Understood.

A. I'm sure Mike Moore can answer more those questions directly to his removal. I heard that his request was to step down from reviewing the ICAC-type photographs; that he felt like he had seen enough in his time, which I wholeheartedly agree with that. There's a separation date. We shouldn't expose folks to that kind of egregious imagery. I thought it was reasonable.

He asked to go to a property position and still help with cell phones and other technology, but he just didn't want to have to look at the photos; and he was transferred to patrol.

Q. Was he questioned for fitness for duty?

A. I don't know. I don't believe so.

Q. Has anybody given you directions regarding not utilizing email or text messaging to make communications within the sheriff's office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who would that be, and what are the directions?

A. It was -- I've heard it multiple times from Undersheriff Decoursey, "I wish y'all would quit sending these emails. Why do you have to put everything in writing? Just go have a conversation."

It's kind of a general -- I've heard him as recently -- Sergeant Mike Hurlocker submitted a request to get a training car, older training car, from fleet to be assigned to the K-9 unit. So he submitted an IOC explaining why he would need that, which is general practice for our agency. We've done that kind of thing for -- he's asking for something extra, especially a vehicle, extra vehicle to be assigned to his unit as a mainstay so that we can potentially cause destruction.

Not to get too deep in the weeds on this, but during that the undersheriff called a meeting where the chief of staff, Danielle Judd; I; Steve King; and Sergeant Hurlocker were all present.

And he kind of starts off the meeting like, "You know, I don't know why we have to do all this writing. Why can't y'all just go and have a conversation? I really need y'all to quit doing that. Go have a conversation with somebody."

Q. So let's say you do have that conversation, and this car gets moved from one division to another. Is there now going to be -- what happens if that's -- somebody doesn't like that?

A. So that's contradictory to previous practice. You can't just go and ask fleet for a car because you're talking -- you're asking them for something outside of an oil change; and you're not in their division, so you would have to go through the chain of command through Ms. Judd and then back down to the fleet manager in order to get that. So you would be potentially facing some type of discipline.

Q. So if I understand you correctly, what the chief deputy is --

A. Undersheriff.

Q. -- the undersheriff is suggesting to you is an action that, if your officers took it, could result in discipline?

A. Could.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Do you have like annual audits that -- where, for look of a better term, that bean counters want to know where everything is, to include a car?

A. Yes, sir. I think we have biannual, what we call, line inspections where everything on our fixed asset has to be accounted for. So I think at this time that's everything that's more than $5,000 they have to lay their hands on and inspect it.

And then, of course, everything that you're assigned, your supervisor is supposed to check on you and make sure that you got it, it's in working order, check the expiration dates and all that jazz.

Q. Which requires a paper trail?

A. Yes, sir. We have an automated line inspection system that's very easy to use and understand.

BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. Does anybody -- did you push back to the undersheriff and say, "Hey, these things are necessary for the conduct of" -- "to conduct the agency's proper business"?
A. No, sir.
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Is there a reason why you didn't?
A. He's the undersheriff.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. So is this just a lack of ability to understand the way the agency functions?
A. From --
Q. The undersheriff?
A. I don't know, sir.
Q. Are you familiar with the term "misfeasance"?
A. You can explain it. I think I know what it means.
Q. It means that you're doing something that is -- you're just unqualified. You don't know what you're doing. You're negligent in the way that you're conducting yourself. Is this misfeasance?
A. Potentially.
Q. Okay. Have you ever -- are you aware of or have you ever been part of any conversation where the administration is looking for a reason to demote or fire someone, or is directed, for instance, to say to you, Captain Crews, you need to find a reason to fire this employee?

A. That's never happened to me.

Q. Are you aware of that occurring to any employee?

A. The only person that I feel -- there's only two that I feel like that they would have probably had a conversation so bold with, and that's Lance Yaeger and George Corwine. They know me well enough, they wouldn't come to me and ask me that.

Q. So you're -- I want to see if I understand what you're saying. You're saying those are the two people who might do that?

A. Correct.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Or might have been told that?

A. Correct. If that's ever happened, those are the only two that I think are -- I mean, other than conversations amongst themselves, excluding them, then that's the only two that I know that have done things that are just -- seem off.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And what you're also saying is that because of the person that the agency knows you to be, and your reputation within the agency, no one would say that to you because the response they would get from you would be negative?

A. Correct. They know me well enough that that's not -- that's not in my character. You're not going to -- I've had supervisors that I've worked for that didn't like some -- I'll give you an example.

Captain John Richmond. When I was moved to the patrol criminal interdiction unit -- and he'll tell you this -- he was not a fan of Sergeant Kevin Davis, and he wanted to replace him. And I told him that everybody gets a fair shake with me. I will set my expectations for Sergeant Davis, and if he can't meet them, then that's what will happen; but I'm going to do my best to make the best out of him.

And so I set expectations for Sergeant Davis and asked him to meet them; he was unable, and that's unfortunate. And we did have to replace him, but that was only after a well documented and much discussed counseling, trying to get him better that that happened.

Q. Understood.

A. I'm just -- that's not who I am.

Q. Understood. Are you aware of why there have been so many changes within the OPS staff at the sheriff's office?

A. No. I am aware there have been a ton of changes with the OPS staff.

Q. But you do not know the reasons why?

A. It doesn't seem like I can apply logic to it.

Q. Right. Is this another circumstance where they've removed experienced OPS investigators, who understand 112 and the rights of officers, and replaced them with people who know nothing?

A. You know, I think initially, yes; but then if you look at the personnel orders, they're replacing folks that are starting to gain experience in the job with people who don't have any experience at all.

Q. Correct.

A. So like initially they had a group over there that was -- had been there for a while, knew their way around. They replaced all but one and left one. And then a little while later they did the same thing.

And so in a little while later, you know, there's been -- I can't even keep up with it, but I believe there was a total of -- I think we've had six different inspectors since they took office. So you've got -- when I say six different, chief inspectors, the head of OPS.

So you had Todd Kelly, I think it was, who was there when they took office.

Q. John Richmond?

A. John Richmond. Todd Kelly, John Richmond, Brandon Kutner, Brett Rhodenizer, John Shabruch, and Kelvin Jenkins.

Q. Out of all of those individuals, are any of them experienced in OPS that you know of?

A. Todd Kelly.

Q. Correct. But if I understand correctly, Todd Kelly was the OPS chief inspector under the Darnell administration.

A. Correct.

Q. And was there for three months before he was removed?

A. Accurate.

Q. And then maybe John Shabruch has been an OPS inspector at some point?

A. I do not believe so. I mean, he served there as a captain, and he was a -- he supervised CID as a lieutenant. I don't remember him being an inspector. I mean, I can be wrong.

Q. Have you been spoken to or spoken to anyone in OPS who was concerned about the manner in which the OPS investigations were being handled?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you describe that?

A. Me and Captain Shabruch are pretty tight, and so I'm sure everything he told you that we discussed.

Q. Are there specific instances of individuals who you feel like OPS has used as a weapon, for lack of a better term, to damage them or drive them out of the agency or unfairly remove them from service?

A. I think we have got a ton of inconsistent practices going on. We're not applying the rules the same across the board.

Q. Is there a pattern to who the rules are being applied to in a pleasant manner and who the rules are being applied to unfairly?

A. I'd have to think on it. It's really -- sometimes it's really hard to figure that pattern out. The only pattern that I do see is if you are against -- you are vocally against the administration, they are heavier handed on that person. If you are in support of administration, then they're probably even to the opposite; they're lenient.

Q. Are you aware of any actions that have occurred in the administration that you believe are illegal, in violation of Florida Statute, or in violation of 119 or 112?

A. Illegal?

Q. I'll expand it. The next is going to be in any way unethical.

A. Yes. Illegal, I don't know. I don't know. Maybe. You know, one of the things I'm bold enough to say is, I don't know all the laws. As much as I try to stay abreast of the criminal laws, I haven't been a huge student of the type of law that we're talking about here.

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I never thought I'd have to do this or have to really focus a whole bunch on that, but here we are.

Unethical? Yeah. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you describe any instance of unethical conduct that you've been witness to?

A. So I would go back to Cleveland Cox. I was SWAT commander when they took office. We held tryouts in the spring of '21. At the completion of the tryouts, I submitted an IOC, inneroffice correspondence, explaining who tried out, who was selected, who wasn't selected, and why the ones that weren't selected weren't selected. And, in fact, I think I even included why the ones were selected, gave an explanation for everybody.

I submitted that IOC through the chain of command. Jayson Levy signs it, who's executive lieutenant at the time assigned to Captain Blizzard. Captain Blizzard signs it, sends it to Major Corwine.

I received an email back from Shannon Gillis, who's the executive assistant to George Corwine, and she says "There's no need to include the explanation why you didn't select someone. Please redo your IOC and submit it with, basically, who tried out, who's recommended, who's not recommended, date of tryouts, that kind of thing."

So I did as I was told and submitted it and held on to my original. And I was contacted on a SWAT training day sometime later, June-ish, and I was told your -- Cleveland Cox and Atilius Balvis (phonetic) were going to be placed on the SWAT team.

So in my recommendation, I recommended Kaifa Tyson as my number one pick, who finished number one on our selection process; Atilius Balvis. And the not recommended were Cleveland Cox and Stephen Sultanian (phonetic).

And then I had two that didn't make the tryout. They failed the physical portion, and they were Caroline Whittington and one of the Litzkow boys;

I think it may have been Carlton, but I'm not 100 percent sure.

I get -- basically, Lieutenant VanGorder drives to SWAT training, pulls me aside, says, "Hey, I'm being told" -- "I got an OIC back, and this is what it says." It shows that Atilius Balvis is selected for SWAT. And then down on the unrecommended spot, it says Cleveland Cox is appointed to SWAT.

So I call my captain, Bella Blizzard. She's my captain over special ops, so she's sitting in the seat I'm in now. I call her, "Hey, I strongly disagree with this. Could you please meet with the undersheriff since George is out town?"

He was in Notre Dame finishing some portion of college. He was there for multiple weeks; and while he was gone, Lori Stoffel (phonetic) was made the acting major over his division.

She says, "I'm willing to go meet with the undersheriff. Let me talk to Lori Stoffel. I'll get back you."

She calls me back, she says, "Lori is calling George. She'll let me know in a little bit."

She calls me back again, "Hey, I've been told that I cannot, and that it's strongly recommended that you don't."

Well, again, I strongly believe that this was an improper selection. It was circumventing how we have done it since the invention of the team, since the original concept started, which I believe was in 1978-ish. The team has always selected their team members. It's a vote based on the totality of everything, so work history, physical ability, mental ability, peer respect. Those are the big, you know, four-prong tests on that.

He was voted down because of mostly the peer respect and his history. His work history was terrible. He had a couple of ongoing investigations that were being done at a sergeant level during the selection process; and I had inquired about those, which is a matter of practice that I had been doing for all my selections.

I would send -- if I got my applicants, I would send an email to their direct supervisor. Tell me what's going on with this person, let me know what you think. I got a very colorful email back on Cleveland Cox. And so there was a lot of reasons why. It wasn't just one thing.

So I went in, I took my original IOC which documented some of the reasons why, one of which was he had posted a TikTok video in uniform on duty in his patrol car expressing his opinion of child support. He was basically using a social media platform in his uniform to basically state that he didn't think it was fair -- that his child support situation and others like his wasn't fair. It's not overly hateful either direction, but by policy it is absolutely directly in violation of our current policy. That's one of -- there's several issues.

I go and meet with the undersheriff in spite of what George had told me, and I have a good meeting. The meeting goes well. Undersheriff is finishing my sentences. "Man, it sounds like, you know, this guy would be a square peg in a round hole. Yeah, you know, you don't want a guy on your team that's got all these troubles," this and that.

So at the end of the conversation, I felt like I was going to get what I was asking for. So I looked at him, and I said, "Undersheriff" -- he says, "I'm going to take all this information you've given me. I'm going to go talk to the sheriff about it, and we'll get back to you."

And I said, "Okay." I said, "Well, I heard they're going to cut this personnel order here in a little bit," like that day. "Do you want me to go to HR and ask them to hold on that?

He said, "No, no. You don't need to do that. I'll handle everything from here."

So the personnel order came out, and the personnel order reflected that Cleveland Cox was going on the SWAT in spite of my best effort.

I was driving home after that personnel order came out, and George Corwine called me and said, "Hey, did you see this personnel order?"

I said, "Yes, sir, I did."

He said, "Well, not everything is on there yet. There's some that affects you."

And I said, "Okay. What's that?"

He says, "You're being removed from the SWAT team."

And I said, "Removed from the SWAT commander, or the SWAT team?"

He says, "Yes, all of it."

And I said, "Can I ask why?"

He says, "Was is it not relayed to you not to" -- "that it was recommended that you not meet with the undersheriff about Cleveland Cox?"

And I said, "Yes, sir."

And then he asked me a follow-up question, and I don't remember it. I just remember my response was, "You know, at this time I feel like it's in my best interest not to answer any more of your questions unless you're ordering me to."

And he said, "I'm not."

I said, "Okay, then. You have a nice day," and I hung up the phone.

Q. And does Cleveland Cox remain on the SWAT team to this day?

A. He does.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Was this before or after he was transferred to CID also?

A. He gets transferred to CID, I think, two months afterwards.

Q. Does he get promoted?

A. That's a year later, I think. That's actually with me. He got promoted to captain with me, so over a year later.

Q. Cleveland Cox got promoted to captain?

A. Sergeant.

Q. Oh, okay.

A. August 28th, yes, sir. He was promoted the same day as me.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So he's a sergeant in CID?

A. No, sir, he went back to patrol as a sergeant. He's actually on military leave. I think he's doing officer candidate school or something along those lines.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. What discipline -- is there a matrix or policy that states what should be investigated by OPS versus what you can do as a line supervisor? Can you handle investigation of one of your subordinates that ends up in him getting fired?

A. Technically, yes, you could. As a sergeant or lieutenant, you definitely could still handle an internal investigation that could result in a termination.

It would most likely be because -- it's not necessarily a super egregious investigation of itself, but they have what we call carryover points. So it's the totality of all of their carryover points that would get them terminated. It's rare, but yeah.

Q. It would be the straw that broke the camel's back?

A. Yes, sir.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. What dictates what has to go to OPS as opposed to handle at a command level?

A. Can I circumvent your question, try to get to where you're trying to go?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Okay. So in the midst of all this, I knew of an internal investigation in reference to Cleveland running code through downtown Gainesville, and in fact I went and reviewed the video of it because I wanted to know exactly what we were talking about and -- but he had advised over the radio that he was going to drive priority.

Priority is, you drive the speed limit, but you use your lights and siren to break intersections; and then you turn them back off again, and you drive the speed limit. You might be able to leave your lights on. You still drive the speed limit. Anyways, it's not code response.

He is in the video, from my memory, he is somewhere right around our dry cleaners on Main Street. I don't remember the name. Those dry cleaners, I think they're in the video as soon as it kicks on. He drives to University Avenue, heads east to Hawthorne Road. His speeds are as high as, I believe, 84 miles an hour at one point in time. He's running code all the way to Hawthorne Road and then turns his lights and sirens off. And while no lights and sirens are on, he's driving 84 miles an hour for a while.

He has a terrible history of driving. He had served a 28-day suspension from his vehicle because of an at-fault crash. And he was basically on like a, you know, extra -- like "watch him every month" kind of thing. So anytime he ran code or advised priority, his supervisor at the time was spot checking him, which was Sergeant Cranes.

So Sergeant Cranes notifies Lieutenant VanGorder. All these personnel orders come out. Sergeant Cranes goes to the courthouse, along with myself. Sergeant VanGorder goes to the special operations division, and the investigation is kind of in limbo because nobody is directly supervising him now.

So I get with Sergeant Cranes, "Show me this video. Let me look at it." He works for me at the time at the courthouse.

He shows me the video. Like, that's really bad. He's basically lying on the radio. I mean, driving like a very unsafe person. He's advised that he's doing something he's not. So, to me, he's lying. It's kind of black and white, but whatever.

I said, "Yeah, that needs to be looked into. You need to look into that."

He says to me, "Well, I've been directed by Lieutenant Sims that we're not looking into this any more. So I'm fine looking it, if that's what you want me to do. And I'll go ahead and do the internal investigation, but would you do me favor? Would you give it to Lieutenant Sims?"

So as Josh would do, I tried to get a face-to-face with Chris. And I meet with him and said, "Hey, are you familiar with this thing, this driving issue with Cleveland Cox and the TikTok video?

He says, "Yes, sir, I am."

I said, "I guess you directed Cranes not to investigate it. Can you give me some clarity?"

He says something along the lines of he's been given a clean slate. That was handled by Captain Stafford, and you need to walk away from that. It's going to get you in trouble.

Q. Is that what you did?

A. Yeah. It wasn't my investigation. I couldn't investigate it because I had no span of control over Cleveland Cox. So if I went and did an investigation at that point in time, I'd be conducting an unauthorized investigation because he doesn't work for me. So my hands were tied at that point. I couldn't do anything with it.

Q. Could you make an OPS complaint? Could you be the complainant in an OPS complaint?

A. OPS?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. I mean, technically, I could have done that, but I was being told that Captain Stafford had already verbally counseled him. So, I mean, knowing how that's works, he's been disciplined.

Does that make sense?

Q. It does?

A. So discipline has been rendered. Double jeopardy. It would be a violation of 112 to then investigate him again.

So I played that game myself out of protection for my subordinates. If they do something that's mediocre, or at least stupid, but it's their first offense, I give them a corrective counseling and let it go.

I'm like, "This could have been formal. I'm giving you this. Now you've been disciplined. I'm trusting that this will never happen again."

It could have been driving too fast or whatever. They've got a clean history, but I'm willing to take that chance to try to get it corrected at that level. It wouldn't be out of place -- I'm not saying that -- it's just saying that I want them to get disciplined because I don't want somebody to come behind me and discipline them again. And so, in order to protect my subordinate, I will do that; but this was not something I would have done that for.

Q. Correct.

A. This is for that deputy that generally does the right things, and he had a lapse in judgment this one time and has no OPS record; that's who I would do that for.

MR. KRAMER: Understood.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. I appreciate you circumventing my question, but that's not where I was trying to go.

A. Okay. Now go.

Q. My question was, what determines when it's going to be investigated by a sergeant or a lieutenant as opposed to OPS doing the investigation?

A. That's kind of a tricky thing. So we are supposed to consult with them on any tracking number pulled for an internal investigation, and they hold the ultimate authority of taking that. So it's really up to OPS.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. They have a right to first refusal?

A. Correct. Yes, sir.

Q. I don't know that you mentioned it. When he turned the lights off, did he turn them back on at some point?

A. I can't recall if he turned them back on. I just know he drove with his lights on on Hawthorne Road and then drove 84 miles an hour past the sheriff's office with no lights and siren almost as if he knew he was doing something wrong but didn't want to cause attention from the office.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Ultimately, the reason this is unethical, if I understand you correctly, is that this is egregious conduct that could subject the public to harm if he has a history of poor driving behavior; and that, instead of handling it in a manner that's consistent with how the agency might handle this for some other individual, which could be significant discipline that could be up and to include termination, it was handled by a verbal warning, which is wholly inappropriate for the circumstance and the safety of the public and other officers?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Understood. Is there any other instance of unethical conduct that you can -- that you recall as we sit here today that comes to your mind?

A. Yes, and I'm having a really hard time recalling it, the details of it, but Richard Howell promoted to the rank of lieutenant. It's coming to me.

I nominated him amongst all the other deputies for an award for the Southeast 45th Street shooting where they went in and got between the victims and were shot at and returned fire, were able to subdue the subject. It was quite -- I mean, you remember doing -- you did the debrief at the courthouse. You know all about it; but it was quite the incident and quite a display of heroism, so I wrote up a nomination.

Almost a solid year later, if not more, they were recognized for that after I submitted it maybe twice. They were recognized for it, and he was given a medal of valor.

At the time he was a brand new lieutenant assigned to the drug unit. He had a conversation with the -- when they're giving out the awards, he has a conversation with -- so prior to -- I'm trying to get all this right.

Prior to the award ceremony he has a conversation over the water cooler with our at the time PIO, Kaylie Biel (phonetic), and says, "Hey, you know, I'm in narcotics. So whatever pictures you take, I'd really not like them to be put on social media. You know, it's hard enough going through something like this, and it just happening, but being recognized for it in the public eye isn't that great either."

It's just like a "I don't feel comfortable getting recognized in the public eye."

So they go in there, and they take pictures. He gets in the picture. He walks up, says, "Hey, can you take a picture without me in it? I'd like the picture with me in it, but please don't post that."

They take another picture. They then post the picture without him in it to social media. It comes to the sheriff's attention that he's not in the picture, and it seems as if he took offense that he didn't want to be associated with the sheriff in this picture.

And so I -- Kaylie goes and talks to the sheriff and says, "Listen, he didn't want to be in the picture because he said that he's in narcotics, but also because it's hard enough getting recognized" -- "it's hard enough being in a shooting, and being recognized for it makes it all raw."

And so there's a bunch of discussion on how they're going to handle it. I think there was some discussion about potential demotion and other issues that come out of it.

I felt obligated to go try to speak on his behalf, so I did, to the colonel. And I ended up speaking with the undersheriff about it, and the undersheriff ordered me to get him a fit for duty test done.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe he was unfit for duty?

A. Absolutely 100 percent I did not.

Q. And you were working with him on a regular basis?

A. Yes. We had been on the SWAT for multiple years. If Rich was struggling, I am a confidant that he would confide in.

Q. He was not struggling?

A. He was not struggling. He just does not like public attention for shooting and killing someone, which I think is admirable.

Q. Of course.

A. I attempted to explain that, and I was still ordered to do that. I contacted Dr. McDougall myself and told him my thoughts on it, but that it had to be done. And so he did it for us.

Additionally, on this -- and I think this plays into just how unethical this is. A fit for duty evaluation, generally speaking, is done for that law enforcement that you are absolutely worried that they're going to hurt themselves or someone else. Do we agree?

Q. Yes.

A. He is deployed on a hurricane detail in -- it starts with a "C."

INSPECTOR RIDDICK: Charlotte?

A. Charlotte County. Thank you.

He is over -- he is the lieutenant over my deploy team and is reporting directly back and forth with me.

Grant McDougall is traveling to Charlotte County because he has a practice there. So I call Grant. I'm like, "Hey, are you in Charlotte County?"

He's like, "I am."

I said, "Well, can you set up an appointment at your practice there to get this done and get us an answer?"

He's like, "I can do it as soon as tomorrow."

I said, "Perfect. Let's get it done."

So I go and make contact with HR, tell her,

"Listen, this is what we have scheduled. Grant is willing to do it."

She says, "Okay. I'll let the undersheriff know."

I'm then called back later on by Reshawn that the undersheriff is not good with that. Let him continue to finish out his deployment, and we can get it done when he gets back.

So my biggest heartburn with all that was, you can't have it both ways. He either needs a fit for duty or he doesn't. He can't get a fit for duty when it's convenient for the sheriff's office.

MR. KRAMER: Understood.

Any other questions?

INSPECTOR SNOWDEN: No, sir.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Anything else that I've missed that you're aware of that I haven't asked you about?

A. Sure. I'm sure.

Q. Okay. Well, we'll be conducting further interviews. If you think of something that you -- would have qualified as an answer in this interview that you need to supplement, if you'll let your lawyer know, then --

THE WITNESS: Is there anything that --

MR. WEBSTER: We'll talk.

MR. KRAMER: There's not a problem. You can come back.

THE WITNESS: It's been a long 28 months.

MR. KRAMER: I understand. And we'll just come back, and we'll continue the interview. It's just we have another person who's here.

THE WITNESS: I understand.

MR. KRAMER: I just don't want to keep him here. I may want to reschedule him, depending on the situation.

But no, there's no worries. I just want to conclude for today. We'll just say that.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

WHEREUPON,

PETER KING

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Sergeant, my name is Brian Kramer. I'm the state attorney. I want to start by asking you to state your name.

A. Peter King.

Q. How are you currently employed?

A. Employed at the Alachua County Sheriff's Office.

Q. And how long have you been a sworn certified law enforcement officer?

A. Twenty-two years. It will be 23 at the end of July.

Q. Do you have any experience other than the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. No, sir.

Q. And what's your educational background?

A. High school only and some college just based on the training I got from the police academy and from there.

Q. And training --
A. Yes, sir.
Q. -- with the agency?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. All right. Very good. I want to ask you, if you could, just briefly describe the positions that you've held within the Alachua County Sheriff's Office.
A. First, it was patrol. After that, it was school resource and JRB, but I was a deputy at the time. From there I went to the warrants bureau, and I did 12 years over there as a warrants investigator, serving the arrest warrants. And then I got promoted to sergeant and moved from warrants into OPS, which is the office of professional standards, as an inspector. After that, about a year and a half there, I was transferred into the training bureau. I spent two weeks and transferred to school resource, JRB, juvenile relations bureau, as a supervisor; and that's where I've been for the last couple months.
Q. All right. Were you in OPS during the time that Brandon Kutner was the OPS --
A. Yes, sir. I came in up under Brandon when I got promoted in 2021, October of 2021.
Q. What training did you receive when you went into OPS?

A. Prior, I didn't have any training; but once I got over there, they sent me to the internal affairs office of professional standards training. It was -- I think it's put -- it's put on by the state attorney's office, and then it was -- it was at the Gulf Resort in St. Augustine.

Q. Understood. When you came in to OPS, are you aware of OPS files that were required to have been sent to FDLE because of the nature of the allegation being sustained that had not been sent to FDLE?

A. Well, there was some talk about some files that were supposed to go that they didn't know if they did or not. One of those files -- now that you mentioned that, one of those files was now Captain Hoover. There were sustained allegations of untruthfulness, and I think he got terminated.

And they were saying his stance was supposed to go up before the board; I don't know if it did or not. Turn around years later, he's back at the sheriff's office, and now he's the captain.

But I don't know what files -- that was just like hearsay, because that was all a new world to me, being up in internal affairs.

Q. Understood. When you were in internal affairs, were you familiar with the iRecord system?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you at the jail or were you at the main sheriff's office?

A. Our office is out at the jail on the second floor.

Q. It's moved from time to time.

A. Right. At first it was at the sheriff's office, and then it got moved out of there when the sheriff took office. He took that area. He remodeled that area and moved internal affairs, office of OPS, out to the jail, and they live on the second floor up there.

Q. Are you familiar with the iRecord system that's there?

A. The record? Yes.

Q. And are you aware that it can essentially either be monitoring the room, meaning that no recording is being made, but the camera is active and the microphone is active? Or it could be recorded, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Are you aware of that system being used to monitor individuals who are in the room while they were in there?

A. With the attorney?
Q. Uh-huh.
A. Like when they would come in with their attorney and doing their preview of all the evidence, stuff like that?
Q. Right.
A. You can't do that. You're not supposed to do that. I know it didn't happen when I was in there that I know of.
Q. Do you know -- I'm not asking if you did it.
A. Oh, no, no. No, sir, I don't know -- I don't have any idea or heard of anything happening like that.
Q. Are you aware of any recordings being done with individuals who were in that room were unaware that they were being recorded?
A. No, sir. No. The only recordings I'm aware of is when we were actually doing investigations, doing our interview. Once everything was good to go, and we had to start our investigation with our target employee and their representative there, that's the recordings I know about.
Q. Okay. There is a way to monitor that system that is outside of the general area of OPS but inside the OPS chief inspector's office. Are you aware of that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not Brandon Kutner was utilizing that system to listen in on conversations between employees who are under investigation and their representatives?

A. During the investigation when I -- like if I was the one questioning?

Q. Like, would they think that they were having a conversation?

A. Oh, no, I don't know. I don't -- I don't know anything about that.

Q. You never heard of that occurring?

A. No, sir.

Q. Would you have been aware that that would be unlawful?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just checking.

A. That was one of the things they told me -- because when I went over to internal affairs, like I say, I had no knowledge. I hadn't went to school or training or anything. So they were explaining to me that whenever they go in and have their -- reviewing the information for the investigation, that you can't record any of that. And so that was like, okay, that's good. At least I know.

And so when I went to my training I was like ahead of the game because I was learning some stuff, like on-the-job training, when I got there.

Q. Understood.

A. Yeah, so --

Q. Were you advised when you got there that it wasn't lawful to record someone like on the phone, if you were interviewing them by phone, unless you informed them that you were going to record that interview?

A. I wasn't -- I knew I had to ask them and let them know it was being recorded. That was part of our policy, to inform them, "Hey, you're being recorded."

And then I would tell them who I had there with me when I was recording, and I put it on one of our sheets.

Q. You were trained to make those disclosures --

A. Yes.

Q. -- to any person who you were recording by telephone?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of any circumstances in which a case that had been entered into your tracking system was deleted or ordered to be deleted?

A. No, sir.
Q. Are you aware of any circumstance where any information that had been entered into the system had been ordered to be altered or changed?
A. No, sir. Not being entered in?
Q. Right. So, for instance, you've made a report.
A. Right.
Q. And I'm just going to use you. It doesn't have to be you.
A. Okay. That's fine.
Q. You've made a report, and you've entered it into the -- I think it's called IAPro?
A. IAPro, yes.
Q. And then someone says -- from above you, somebody of higher rank says, "I don't like what you put in there. Change it"?
A. Let me see how to put that.
There were some investigations that were done; and based on some of the findings, they -- I don't know if they were happy with the findings of the investigation. And then so they were sent back and said, "Hey, look into this further."
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. What did that mean to you?

A. Go back in and try and find some more stuff to go on that report, to me.

So like if you -- we did an investigation, and the investigation was under complete; and if they were looking for something else, and it wasn't there, what they were looking for, then that's when it goes back and see if you can find something, look in there for something else. That's what it meant to me.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Were you ever directed to reach a particular conclusion in an investigation?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever directed to select a particular discipline as a result of the conclusion you did reach?

A. No, sir. I can tell you, based on my investigations, the ones that I did, I had -- let's say I had -- I had two investigations, I know, for sure, that I investigated. I came out with my findings.

So I had an investigation for Deputy Vickers. It was a criminal investigation that came to our office for a criminal violation. I got assigned that investigation. We named it the Cat Caper.

He actually -- it was a -- the guy had -- deputy had shot some cats in his property because they were urinating and messing up his yard; and his wife and kids were sick, and he had went through several measures to try and get the cats from coming over there.

The county responded because the neighbor had called and saw the guy -- a deputy carrying a cat. The county responded. In the report he says that, you know, the cats were everywhere. He could see the cats. And they did an investigation. They did necropsies on the cats and found out that nothing was inhumane and everything was legit. And they didn't file any charges, and they weren't going to pursue any charges.

Based on their investigation, I closed my case not sustained on criminal conduct based on Clay County's information. And so I didn't sustain anything. It was closed, and I sent my case up.

Then later I was told that it was -- they looked back into it, and the deputy was supposed to end up getting like two days' suspension because of the way it will look, because his vehicle was in the yard, an ASO vehicle was in the yard.

So that -- my case had got -- I will say my charges got amended. My -- the way I closed it was the same, but it was a separate amendment written for the -- I don't know if it was unfavorable conduct or conduct unbecoming; but that's what happened with one of my cases. It was changed after I did it. I don't know about going in and changing stuff, but it was changed after I did it.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Did you change it, or did somebody else change it?

A. No, somebody else changed it. I didn't change any of my investigations.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Are you aware of any person who's been -- or any kind of conversation where someone says, "We need to find a reason to discipline this person"?

A. To say find a reason to discipline, I don't know; but I can tell you, my -- it would be my first full day in OPS, is when they launched the investigation on, at the time, Captain Latrell Simmons.

So how the day went -- if you don't mind me explaining to you.

It was like my second day there. I have no idea what's going on in OPS. We go and get the ID card from -- and keys from one of the lieutenants at the jail that had got suspended, that was under investigation.

When we returned back to the office, the captain brings us in. Captain Kutner brings us in and says, "Hey, here's what's going on now. Latrell Simmons is under investigation."

I can't remember the allegation of what they charged him -- what they were, but it was like shocking to me.

And Captain goes, "French," he said, "Sherry, you're going to run first chair. And, P.K., you got second chair."

And so it's shocking because I'm -- this is about like my first full day in there, and I'm getting in the deep end, thrown in the deep end. And I don't know if they knew how close Latrell and I were, or are, and I'm getting put in on second chair on that.

So that was something that was like, hey, now we looking at this, and I don't know or heard anything that he did anything wrong other than --

Q. But he's disciplined?

A. After that investigation, he got disciplined, yes.

Q. Did you participate in the investigation?

A. I don't think I did anything in that investigation. So that was handed to Inspector French. And like I said, it was my first day there.

Inspector French, once she got it, and they told her they was investigating, she had that case, she kind of like went off, like, "I'm not" -- "that's so much bull crap. I'm not doing that. You know they're looking for something, and it ain't there. I'm not going to do it."

And Brandon was like, "Sherry, you have this case. You have to investigate it."

So she calmed down and said, "Look, I'll do it. I'll investigate it; but if nothing is there, nothing is there. I'm not trying to make up anything. I'm not going to like fabricate anything. I'm just going to do the investigation," and she did it. Which was -- you know, me watching her talk to the captain like that, I was like, okay, Sherry, I'm down. That's good, you know.

So Sherry did the investigation. Whatever they were trying to find, if there was something there, it wasn't there. Sherry end up finding -- the only thing she found in that investigation, as I remember, is that he didn't sign off his DMS; that's it.

And so from that, he end up getting demoted, and then he got transferred to the road.

Q. And was it your impression that the outcome of that investigation was predetermined, that they were going to discipline him no matter what?

A. Yeah, I kind of felt that way.

Q. Have you been ordered to report or asked to report the content of this interview with anybody at the sheriff's office?

A. No, sir.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Did you put in to go to OPS, or were you just told you're going to OPS?

A. Oh, no, I was told. So I got -- when I promoted, the sheriff called me down, you know, said, "Hey, I want to congratulate you on promoting you to sergeant. Now you'll be going from here, from warrants, and you're being transferred to OPS."

I was like, "OPS? What I'm doing in OPS?"

He said, "The same thing you're doing now. You investigate."

I was like, "Investigate? Okay."

So that's how I got promoted. When I got my stripes, then went back to the office, and the next pay period I was transferred over to OPS.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Is there anything else that you're aware of that we haven't discussed that was illegal or immoral or unethical?

A. Those are some big words. That's some bad stuff.

I can't think of anything. I mean, there was some investigations that we thought probably should have went on that didn't get looked into.

Q. Which were?

A. There was an investigation -- so it wasn't in our house, as an OPS house. There was a Pam James. Sergeant James had a -- she was getting written up for insubordination. And the lieutenant that was conducting that investigation, that was on their side of the house, so she wasn't very familiar with the process.

So she started that, and she would come up to -- she come up to OPS and got with Lieutenant Salman because he was from the jail side, and he was in OPS. That's whose spot I took when I went to OPS. He got moved out, and then I came in, and then he later come back.

So she came up and talked to him to get like guidance on how to do the investigation and stuff like that. And during that time, that process, it came down from, as we say, the suite, that they had to stop that investigation. And it just -- we ended it. We didn't do it, but it was ended by the jail side.

Q. Any others?

A. That was one. And then there was one with Cory Short. Whatever that investigation was, it was going, and then it came down from the suite to stop investigating that.

And the thing about that was that he -- they said he's always trying to sue you, and that was the thing. They didn't want to get another lawsuit, so that investigation like stopped there too.

MR. KRAMER: Anything you want to confer about?

MS. WEBSTER: Just a minute.

(Off-the-record discussion between witness and his counsel.)

THE WITNESS: Oh, okay. So I had a case -- and I meant to go to that one.

Hollingsworth, Erica Hollingsworth. That was assigned to me after I came back from -- I think I was off a few days, or a day or so, but that case was assigned to me. And she was noticed by whoever I think it was working on Monday, which could have been Lieutenant Kyle Salmon, or Inspector Kyle Salman at the time, but she got notice for insubordination and untruthfulness.

The basis of that case was that she -- so the county commissioners gave the sheriff's office funds to give the agency seven percent raises across the board. She was told by -- during the shift briefings by Major Stafford that if you only had a certain number of years, based on the scale, two years or less, you will only be getting a certain percent.

And so she was under the impression that the county commissioners gave us enough money for everyone to get the seven percent across the board, so it raised questions. So she asked questions during her roll call. She asked the sergeants, and she asked -- she took it up the chain. And the major, you know, told them again, if you're under two years, you're only getting this percentage for the COLA.

And so she was concerned. She, in turn, reaches out to the county commissioners via email and said, "Hey, my name is" -- she identified herself as Erica Hollingsworth. "I work at the jail. I'm being told that because I only have two years in, I can't" -- "I'm not getting the full seven percent raise. I'm only getting the COLA," which was like three or four percent. I don't know which way it went at the time. "Do you have any answers for this?"

So that, in turn, came down to the sheriff's office. You know, the county commission wants to know why, if we're giving you funds to give everybody seven percent, why this person is only -- why is she asking why she's going to get this amount. What's going on?

So I think that sparked an investigation from the suite. It came over to us. She got notice. I got handed the case. During that, I didn't clearly identify who my complainant was.

I did my investigation. They wanted the list of who I was going to talk to for -- my witness list. They wanted to know who my witnesses was, will be, and that would include all the commissioners that were seated at the time and the ones that wasn't seated, which was one, and then the lieutenant and the sergeant, and then the major.

So I conducted my investigation, and it was determined, based on what I concluded with my facts and based on the policy, she didn't have any policy violations.

So the unfavorable conduct and the untruthfulness, I'm guessing they were trying to see if she said something that wasn't true or if somebody ordered her and she went against her order. So that -- that was not founded at all.

Reading the possible policies, I did look at an unfavorable conduct, which was a level one, which is a level violation where if you represent the sheriff's office or speak on behalf of the sheriff's office, you have to get permission.

And based on my interview with the commissioners and how she communicated with them via the email, you know: My name is so-and-so. I'm a correctional officer at the jail. We need these raises, then this is why. Staff is so short. We're losing people left and right.

She was giving them an inside look of what was going on and why it was crucial that we needed the raises, and she was wondering why she wasn't getting hers.

So from there they contacted the sheriff's office about, hey, why isn't everybody getting this raise? Why is hers going to be short? We need some answers.

So that came over to Danielle Judd. She told the sheriff that this might -- you need to look at this. There's some concerns. And then it came to OPS.

When it came to OPS, I didn't know how it came, so I had to -- I didn't even put down a complainant at first. I just had all my witnesses and my allegations.

And when I went for my interview, it was brought to my attention after she met with -- she was with an attorney, and they did the review -- that there was a possible 112 violation. So she identified, hey, you don't have a witness -- I mean, you don't have a complainant. I'm sorry. You don't have a complainant.

So I'm like, okay. We close it down for a couple of days. And I had to go back and talk to Ms. Judd and figure out how to determine who was the complainant in this. And after talking to her, she had the concerns of, you know, what might be happening.

So she told the sheriff, the undersheriff, and they told her -- I don't know how it went, but my recollection of me talking to her, I got out of her that it was her concern that it could be an issue that needed to be looked into by OPS. So I listed her as my complainant, but it was coming from there to look into this investigation. That's my interpretation of it, the best I can remember.

So I did my investigation. I found -- I didn't sustain any allegations. And for the one that could be close to it, which was unfavorable conduct, I did not sustain that either. And that was based because, as I said earlier, she made contact with the commissioners not representing the sheriff's office and not speaking on behalf of the sheriff. She did it based on her as an individual on her time off, on her own computer, and which you have that right to contact the county commissioners.

And during my investigation, my facts of it for me and my interpretation was that -- when I talked to the county commissioners, they didn't see her as speaking for the sheriff's office or on behalf for the sheriff. They saw her as an individual giving an insight of what was going on and speaking on behalf of her herself; that was it.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And what happens with that investigation?

A. So that got reviewed. So once I closed it out with not sustained, I turn it in to the chief inspector. And then the chief inspector reviewed it, and he -- I think he determined that unfavorable conduct was fitting for the allegation to be sustained. So that was changed, and that one got sent up; but once I did it --

Q. Did it stay that way, or did it get changed again?

A. I don't know if it got changed again. So I know it -- I think it got the unfavorable conduct changed by chief inspector and forwarded up the chain of command.

MR. KRAMER: Thank you so much. We sure appreciate it.

WHEREUPON,

SCOTT SHELPMAN

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Good morning, sir. My name is Brian Kramer. I'm the state attorney. Would you state your full name for the record, please?

A. Scott Allen Shelpman.

Q. Mr. Shelpman, how are you employed?

A. I'm employed at Alachua County Sheriff's Office, and I'm technical support adviser over radios and cell phones.

Q. Okay. And how long have you been doing that job?

A. I've been supervisor for three years. I've been in the radio shop for eight years. I've been at the sheriff's office for a little over 15 years.

Q. And did you have any other law-enforcement-related experience prior to that?

A. Law enforcement, no.

Q. What was your background prior to --

A. I worked at ShandsCair as a dispatcher.

Q. So that would have been -- you've been at the sheriff's office, then, for 20 years?

A. No, the sheriff's office, February 18th was 15 years.

Q. Fifteen years. Okay. Sorry. My math isn't great.

A. That's okay.

Q. I can't do it that fast.

So I would like for you to explain, if you could. Does the sheriff's office utilize any computer programming or service on its cell phones that the sheriff's office owns to record and preserve things that might occur on those cell phones that are required to be preserved by Florida Statutes?

A. Well, I am not familiar with Florida Statute, but we do have a program named Smarsh or Mobile Guard which captures all texts on cell phones.

Q. Is it Smarsh, S-M-A-R-S-H?

A. Correct.

Q. And that program, its only function is to caption all text messaging?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you would explain, how would one find that text messaging at the sheriff's office if it was needed for an investigation or if it was needed for case-related materials?

A. There would be a records request. I put -- I enroll most phones at the sheriff's office, but I do not have access to go in and pull records from Smarsh. Only the IT director has the ability to actually go and pull records.

Q. Okay. There is essentially an interface between the computer system and the Smarsh program that the IT director has that a request could come to the IT director, and the IT director could access that interface and find those text messages, correct?

A. That is correct, if you were opted in to Smarsh.

Q. And with the sheriff's office telephones, assuming that Smarsh is not active, for what period of time would text messaging be preserved on the device itself?

A. Well, for as long as the user of the phone kept the text messages there.

Q. And are they Apple devices?

A. They are Apple devices.

Q. So there's settings in Apple that could cause those to automatically delete after a certain period of time?

A. You could set it up like that.

Q. And just so I'm clear, if Smarsh is active on a phone, and a user of a sheriff's office phone attempted to go in and delete a text message from the phone, it would be on the Smarsh server?

A. That's correct.

Q. So you're the person who is responsible for installing these on all the phones at the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And how do you know whether or not Smarsh has been activated on a phone?

A. Well, I get alerts from Smarsh every day. I usually check it in the morning. It will literally tell you these people have missed heartbeats. They call them heartbeats.

So you just look at that person. And you take a look, and you see, hey, we've tried 15 times. They still haven't opted in. And then, you know, as the weeks go by, you can take a look again; and we've tried X amount of times, and they still haven't opted in.

Q. To your knowledge, is it the policy at the sheriff's office that all of the phones at the sheriff's office are to be connected to this Smarsh program?

A. To my knowledge, it's a policy of the sheriff's office.

Q. To your knowledge, other than the sheriff himself, are all the phones at the sheriff's office connected to Smarsh?

A. No. I do believe that the colonel has never opted in either.

Q. So is it your understanding that the sheriff has a phone that is issued by the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you're aware of that because you were the person who issued it?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. That's correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that phone is not registered to the Smarsh system?

A. It is not.

Q. And are you aware that the colonel, who is Chad Scott --

A. Correct.

Q. -- has a phone that's issued by the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And are you aware that -- whether or not that phone is connected to the Smarsh system?

A. I do not believe it is connected.

Q. And you would know this because you would get a notification that it's been properly activated?

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a procedure or protocol that you would follow if, let's say, it's a deputy that was issued a sheriff's office phone and they did not connect to the Smarsh system?

A. If a deputy did not connect, I would normally harass him until he does.

Q. So it's not a disciplinary issue?

A. It is not.

Q. Eventually if the person -- this may be a hypothetical question, and it's fine. If the person said to you, "I'm never going to," what would you then do?

A. Well, I would just let them know that it is policy of the sheriff's office; and that I really don't want to contact your superior, but I will.

Q. Okay. So you wouldn't contact your superior. You would contact their superior.

A. Normally speaking, I may talk to mine; but quite frankly, I don't usually have this problem.

So just to elaborate. Most of the time with a deputy or somebody who's not called the sheriff or the colonel or the undersheriff, we normally would do that. I won't even give them their phone until I've opted it in for them.

So I literally set it up in Smarsh. And anywhere from 15 minutes to an hour later, a text will come from Verizon asking you to just reply back "yes." I just reply back "yes" for them, and I would opt them in.

When I give out a new phone to a new person, I just let them know, "Hey, all your texts are being recorded. Be careful what you send and text."

Q. Of course. And I'm assuming you tell them, "Please don't use your text messaging for personal business."

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a policy that you're aware of at the sheriff's office that their phones cannot be used for personal business?

A. I think it's more of a suggestion. It's a good practice not to use them for personal business, but I don't believe it outright states that you can't use any personal business on the phone.

Q. Has anyone offered you any explanation or given any reason why the sheriff and the colonel are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever inquired of any person to ask why they are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. So I sent multiple emails at first to my chain of command, which would have been Michelle Clement, and I also sent it to the IT director, John Moorehouse, at the time. I just took snippets of the Smarsh and said, "Hey, 222 attempts, still hasn't opted in. Hey, here's a copy of an email sent to his secretary where she says she's going to opt him in."

Those things never happened. I believe Michelle said that she forwarded one of them to Chief of Staff Judd, but that's a remembrance that I have in conversation with Michelle.

Q. Okay. When you used the number 222, was that just a figure of speech? Or is that the actual number of attempts that you recall?

A. I believe there's actually a snippet with 222 attempts on it.

Q. I just wanted to clarify because it's a large number and --

A. So this program tries daily.

Q. Okay. Right. So 222 attempts also equates to 222 days?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Gentlemen, are there any follow-up questions with regard to the Smarsh system?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. So the app alerts the individual that has the phone that you need to opt in. If you haven't opted in, it does that daily?

A. Quite frankly, I don't know that he's gotten 222 texts. It's just letting me know there's been 222 attempts. And he's certainly gotten at least a few texts about opting in; but without having his phone, I couldn't tell you.

Q. Was there a specific reason that when you issued him his phone it wasn't already --

A. That I just didn't opt it in?

Q. Right.

A. Number one, the sheriff, as you know, writes policy. We normally would allow the sheriff and his command staff to do it.

Number two, it was kind of a weird situation. I was basically home, and I got a call from Director Moorehouse saying, "Hey, you need to come back, and you need to put phones and radios together for the new sheriff. He wants to pick up all his stuff as midnight."

So I turned around, came back. I put their stuff together, and, you know, I think I left around 8:00, 8:30 that night.

And I was told that these phones that he had right now were probably not going to be his forever phone, they're just -- you know, they're older models. Normally speaking, we allow the sheriff to pick whatever model of iPhone or Android he would want, and that's what happened like a week later.

So I put those together. And being as it's a policy, and he's the policymaker, I usually allow them -- I don't just go ahead and put them in to something like that. I tell them what it is, and then I ask them to opt in, and then I allow them to do the opt-in. I don't do it for them because I don't want, frankly, something like this coming back. I don't usually give regular deputies that choice; but the sheriff being the sheriff, we have always given that choice.

Q. Who's the current IT director?

A. Currently it's Mike Robinson.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Other than the sheriff and the colonel,

anybody else in the command staff that hasn't opted in?

A. No, just those two, to my knowledge.

Q. So we know if you don't opt in on the Smarsh system, you don't get the texts. How about the emails that are done from an agency phone?

A. All emails are connected to our email server, so that would be a function of IT anyway. They have all that whether it's on their phone or they're synched.

Q. But as far as you know, there's not a way to opt out of that?

A. Oh, no. For emails?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Not to my knowledge.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So let's move on, then, and I'm going to ask you about the placement of radios in vehicles at the sheriff's office. Is that part of your responsibility?

A. It is.

Q. And do you have people who work underneath you who also do that?

A. I do.

Q. And is the normal course of business that there is a maintenance plan or a maintenance operation that occurs with vehicles and radios that they get regularly maintenance?

A. There is.

Q. And did that occur with the sheriff's vehicle?

A. It did.

Q. And was there some form of incident that occurred or some kind of something that was unusual about maintenancing the radio for the sheriff?

A. Well, fleet had his vehicle for a PM, probably an oil change or something on his vehicle. And while my guy, Robert Glen, was down there PMing another radio in a deputy's vehicle, it came up in conversation with the guys at fleet that, "Hey, do you need to look at the sheriff's radio while it's here?"

He said, "Yeah, it's due next month. Let's go ahead and get it done since I'm here."

So he started working on that. I don't remember the whole story, but somehow the sheriff came down, saw that Robert was in his -- so his radio package was in the back underneath the floor of his Tahoe, and he has a remote head up front, hand-held head, that he can maneuver the radio with.

So Robert was in the back with his computer, doing a PM on the radio, and was essentially asked, "What are you doing? Why are you in my vehicle."

And he explained why he was there. And again, I wasn't there, but words were said. And I got a call from Robert, who basically said, "You need to come down here right now, or I'm going to give this man a piece of mind" sort of thing.

Which Robert was a 30-, 31-year-old veteran at Alachua County Fire Rescue. He had retired. This was a job that he did because he liked doing radios. So I certainly believed that he may give the sheriff a piece of his mind, so I went down there.

When I got there, Robert was cleaning his stuff out of the back of the sheriff's vehicle. The sheriff was standing there. I said hello. The sheriff said hello back. We gathered up Robert's stuff, and nothing was said to me at that time.

Later on, I don't know if it was the same day or the next day, but my boss, Michelle Clement, called me in and said, "Hey, what happened?"

And I told her the story to the best of my ability. And then we were asked to come to a meeting at Chief of Staff Judd's office with Steve King from fleet, his boss at the time -- sorry, I forgot her name -- but Michelle and myself.

So anyway, at that meeting we were told that we are never to get in the sheriff or the undersheriff's vehicle without making an appointment with their secretary, Tara Malone, at the time, and that, frankly, we weren't to get in anybody's vehicle without their permission.

So we said, understood. And then we were asked --

Q. Is that unusual?

A. That is unusual.

Q. Is it unusual because it's actually your job to get in people's vehicles and perform maintenance on the things that make the sheriff's office be able to function?

A. That's correct.

Q. And so it's now the policy of the office that you have to have the permission of a deputy before you go into their vehicle to maintenance a radio?

A. We basically don't go into a deputy's vehicle anymore without them asking us to for some specific reason. So like a deputy will come by and say, "Hey, I'm having this issue with my radio in my vehicle," to which we will then take care of his radio; but we do not any longer go and search down vehicles for deputies unless they have a problem.

Q. So you just have eliminated planned maintenance?

A. You've got it. We do their portables, of course; but with the mobiles, it just seemed like it would be more of a hassle to do things the way -- like fleet wasn't being super cooperative about it because they didn't want to get in trouble. We didn't want to get in trouble. So I just said, "You know what, Michelle? When the guys have a problem, they'll come to us and we'll take care of their problem."

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is that the only radio that's been in the been sheriff's vehicle?

A. It is. After this incident I was asked by Chief of Staff Judd if I had any radios that were still in boxes that were not opened, to which I said that is not our normal practice; because when radios come in, we take them out of the boxes. We take everything out, separate it. We put the radio on a computer, and we program it because it comes as a brick.

So we program our frequencies into the radio at that time and then put them in our Camlock cabinet so that they're ready for install when they're ready for them. I told her I didn't have any brand new ones in the box, but I had an order coming in probably within another month or two.

So I was asked to set two aside still in boxes, unopened, and they sit on the shelf to this day. When they came in, I let her know that they were here. I think the plan was for us to walk the boxes over, open the boxes, program the radios there and install them into the vehicles, but when I asked her -- you know, I told her that the radios were in, they're in boxes. She said, "Okay. I'll get back with you," and then I never heard anything back. So they still sit on my shelf in the box, ready.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who was the other one for?

A. The undersheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

All right. Very good that's the end of your statement. Thank you for being here. We appreciate it. We'll let you know if we need you further.

(The statement concluded at 9:35 a.m.)

WHEREUPON,

SCOTT SHELPMAN

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Good morning, sir. My name is Brian Kramer. I'm the state attorney. Would you state your full name for the record, please?

A. Scott Allen Shelpman.

Q. Mr. Shelpman, how are you employed?

A. I'm employed at Alachua County Sheriff's Office, and I'm technical support adviser over radios and cell phones.

Q. Okay. And how long have you been doing that job?

A. I've been supervisor for three years. I've been in the radio shop for eight years. I've been at the sheriff's office for a little over 15 years.

Q. And did you have any other law-enforcement-related experience prior to that?

A. Law enforcement, no.

Q. What was your background prior to --

A. I worked at ShandsCair as a dispatcher.

Q. So that would have been -- you've been at the sheriff's office, then, for 20 years?

A. No, the sheriff's office, February 18th was 15 years.

Q. Fifteen years. Okay. Sorry. My math isn't great.

A. That's okay.

Q. I can't do it that fast.

So I would like for you to explain, if you could. Does the sheriff's office utilize any computer programming or service on its cell phones that the sheriff's office owns to record and preserve things that might occur on those cell phones that are required to be preserved by Florida Statutes?

A. Well, I am not familiar with Florida Statute, but we do have a program named Smarsh or Mobile Guard which captures all texts on cell phones.

Q. Is it Smarsh, S-M-A-R-S-H?

A. Correct.

Q. And that program, its only function is to caption all text messaging?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you would explain, how would one find that text messaging at the sheriff's office if it was needed for an investigation or if it was needed for case-related materials?

A. There would be a records request. I put -- I enroll most phones at the sheriff's office, but I do not have access to go in and pull records from Smarsh. Only the IT director has the ability to actually go and pull records.

Q. Okay. There is essentially an interface between the computer system and the Smarsh program that the IT director has that a request could come to the IT director, and the IT director could access that interface and find those text messages, correct?

A. That is correct, if you were opted in to Smarsh.

Q. And with the sheriff's office telephones, assuming that Smarsh is not active, for what period of time would text messaging be preserved on the device itself?

A. Well, for as long as the user of the phone kept the text messages there.

Q. And are they Apple devices?

A. They are Apple devices.

Q. So there's settings in Apple that could cause those to automatically delete after a certain period of time?

A. You could set it up like that.

Q. And just so I'm clear, if Smarsh is active on a phone, and a user of a sheriff's office phone attempted to go in and delete a text message from the phone, it would be on the Smarsh server?

A. That's correct.

Q. So you're the person who is responsible for installing these on all the phones at the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And how do you know whether or not Smarsh has been activated on a phone?

A. Well, I get alerts from Smarsh every day. I usually check it in the morning. It will literally tell you these people have missed heartbeats. They call them heartbeats.

So you just look at that person. And you take a look, and you see, hey, we've tried 15 times. They still haven't opted in. And then, you know, as the weeks go by, you can take a look again; and we've tried X amount of times, and they still haven't opted in.

Q. To your knowledge, is it the policy at the sheriff's office that all of the phones at the sheriff's office are to be connected to this Smarsh program?

A. To my knowledge, it's a policy of the sheriff's office.

Q. To your knowledge, other than the sheriff himself, are all the phones at the sheriff's office connected to Smarsh?

A. No. I do believe that the colonel has never opted in either.

Q. So is it your understanding that the sheriff has a phone that is issued by the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you're aware of that because you were the person who issued it?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. That's correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that phone is not registered to the Smarsh system?

A. It is not.

Q. And are you aware that the colonel, who is Chad Scott --

A. Correct.

Q. -- has a phone that's issued by the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And are you aware that -- whether or not that phone is connected to the Smarsh system?

A. I do not believe it is connected.

Q. And you would know this because you would get a notification that it's been properly activated?

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a procedure or protocol that you would follow if, let's say, it's a deputy that was issued a sheriff's office phone and they did not connect to the Smarsh system?

A. If a deputy did not connect, I would normally harass him until he does.

Q. So it's not a disciplinary issue?

A. It is not.

Q. Eventually if the person -- this may be a hypothetical question, and it's fine. If the person said to you, "I'm never going to," what would you then do?

A. Well, I would just let them know that it is policy of the sheriff's office; and that I really don't want to contact your superior, but I will.

Q. Okay. So you wouldn't contact your superior. You would contact their superior.

A. Normally speaking, I may talk to mine; but quite frankly, I don't usually have this problem.

So just to elaborate. Most of the time with a deputy or somebody who's not called the sheriff or the colonel or the undersheriff, we normally would do that. I won't even give them their phone until I've opted it in for them.

So I literally set it up in Smarsh. And anywhere from 15 minutes to an hour later, a text will come from Verizon asking you to just reply back "yes." I just reply back "yes" for them, and I would opt them in.

When I give out a new phone to a new person, I just let them know, "Hey, all your texts are being recorded. Be careful what you send and text."

Q. Of course. And I'm assuming you tell them, "Please don't use your text messaging for personal business."

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a policy that you're aware of at the sheriff's office that their phones cannot be used for personal business?

A. I think it's more of a suggestion. It's a good practice not to use them for personal business, but I don't believe it outright states that you can't use any personal business on the phone.

Q. Has anyone offered you any explanation or given any reason why the sheriff and the colonel are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever inquired of any person to ask why they are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. So I sent multiple emails at first to my chain of command, which would have been Michelle Clement, and I also sent it to the IT director, John Moorehouse, at the time. I just took snippets of the Smarsh and said, "Hey, 222 attempts, still hasn't opted in. Hey, here's a copy of an email sent to his secretary where she says she's going to opt him in."

Those things never happened. I believe Michelle said that she forwarded one of them to Chief of Staff Judd, but that's a remembrance that I have in conversation with Michelle.

Q. Okay. When you used the number 222, was that just a figure of speech? Or is that the actual number of attempts that you recall?

A. I believe there's actually a snippet with 222 attempts on it.

Q. I just wanted to clarify because it's a large number and --

A. So this program tries daily.

Q. Okay. Right. So 222 attempts also equates to 222 days?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Gentlemen, are there any follow-up questions with regard to the Smarsh system?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. So the app alerts the individual that has the phone that you need to opt in. If you haven't opted in, it does that daily?

A. Quite frankly, I don't know that he's gotten 222 texts. It's just letting me know there's been 222 attempts. And he's certainly gotten at least a few texts about opting in; but without having his phone, I couldn't tell you.

Q. Was there a specific reason that when you issued him his phone it wasn't already --

A. That I just didn't opt it in?

Q. Right.

A. Number one, the sheriff, as you know, writes policy. We normally would allow the sheriff and his command staff to do it.

Number two, it was kind of a weird situation. I was basically home, and I got a call from Director Moorehouse saying, "Hey, you need to come back, and you need to put phones and radios together for the new sheriff. He wants to pick up all his stuff as midnight."

So I turned around, came back. I put their stuff together, and, you know, I think I left around 8:00, 8:30 that night.

And I was told that these phones that he had right now were probably not going to be his forever phone, they're just -- you know, they're older models. Normally speaking, we allow the sheriff to pick whatever model of iPhone or Android he would want, and that's what happened like a week later.

So I put those together. And being as it's a policy, and he's the policymaker, I usually allow them -- I don't just go ahead and put them in to something like that. I tell them what it is, and then I ask them to opt in, and then I allow them to do the opt-in. I don't do it for them because I don't want, frankly, something like this coming back. I don't usually give regular deputies that choice; but the sheriff being the sheriff, we have always given that choice.

Q. Who's the current IT director?

A. Currently it's Mike Robinson.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Other than the sheriff and the colonel,

anybody else in the command staff that hasn't opted in?

A. No, just those two, to my knowledge.

Q. So we know if you don't opt in on the Smarsh system, you don't get the texts. How about the emails that are done from an agency phone?

A. All emails are connected to our email server, so that would be a function of IT anyway. They have all that whether it's on their phone or they're synched.

Q. But as far as you know, there's not a way to opt out of that?

A. Oh, no. For emails?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Not to my knowledge.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So let's move on, then, and I'm going to ask you about the placement of radios in vehicles at the sheriff's office. Is that part of your responsibility?

A. It is.

Q. And do you have people who work underneath you who also do that?

A. I do.

Q. And is the normal course of business that there is a maintenance plan or a maintenance operation that occurs with vehicles and radios that they get regularly maintenance?

A. There is.

Q. And did that occur with the sheriff's vehicle?

A. It did.

Q. And was there some form of incident that occurred or some kind of something that was unusual about maintenancing the radio for the sheriff?

A. Well, fleet had his vehicle for a PM, probably an oil change or something on his vehicle. And while my guy, Robert Glen, was down there PMing another radio in a deputy's vehicle, it came up in conversation with the guys at fleet that, "Hey, do you need to look at the sheriff's radio while it's here?"

He said, "Yeah, it's due next month. Let's go ahead and get it done since I'm here."

So he started working on that. I don't remember the whole story, but somehow the sheriff came down, saw that Robert was in his -- so his radio package was in the back underneath the floor of his Tahoe, and he has a remote head up front, hand-held head, that he can maneuver the radio with.

So Robert was in the back with his computer, doing a PM on the radio, and was essentially asked, "What are you doing? Why are you in my vehicle."

And he explained why he was there. And again, I wasn't there, but words were said. And I got a call from Robert, who basically said, "You need to come down here right now, or I'm going to give this man a piece of mind" sort of thing.

Which Robert was a 30-, 31-year-old veteran at Alachua County Fire Rescue. He had retired. This was a job that he did because he liked doing radios. So I certainly believed that he may give the sheriff a piece of his mind, so I went down there.

When I got there, Robert was cleaning his stuff out of the back of the sheriff's vehicle. The sheriff was standing there. I said hello. The sheriff said hello back. We gathered up Robert's stuff, and nothing was said to me at that time.

Later on, I don't know if it was the same day or the next day, but my boss, Michelle Clement, called me in and said, "Hey, what happened?"

And I told her the story to the best of my ability. And then we were asked to come to a meeting at Chief of Staff Judd's office with Steve King from fleet, his boss at the time -- sorry, I forgot her name -- but Michelle and myself.

So anyway, at that meeting we were told that we are never to get in the sheriff or the undersheriff's vehicle without making an appointment with their secretary, Tara Malone, at the time, and that, frankly, we weren't to get in anybody's vehicle without their permission.

So we said, understood. And then we were asked --

Q. Is that unusual?

A. That is unusual.

Q. Is it unusual because it's actually your job to get in people's vehicles and perform maintenance on the things that make the sheriff's office be able to function?

A. That's correct.

Q. And so it's now the policy of the office that you have to have the permission of a deputy before you go into their vehicle to maintenance a radio?

A. We basically don't go into a deputy's vehicle anymore without them asking us to for some specific reason. So like a deputy will come by and say, "Hey, I'm having this issue with my radio in my vehicle," to which we will then take care of his radio; but we do not any longer go and search down vehicles for deputies unless they have a problem.

Q. So you just have eliminated planned maintenance?

A. You've got it. We do their portables, of course; but with the mobiles, it just seemed like it would be more of a hassle to do things the way -- like fleet wasn't being super cooperative about it because they didn't want to get in trouble. We didn't want to get in trouble. So I just said, "You know what, Michelle? When the guys have a problem, they'll come to us and we'll take care of their problem."

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is that the only radio that's been in the been sheriff's vehicle?

A. It is. After this incident I was asked by Chief of Staff Judd if I had any radios that were still in boxes that were not opened, to which I said that is not our normal practice; because when radios come in, we take them out of the boxes. We take everything out, separate it. We put the radio on a computer, and we program it because it comes as a brick.

So we program our frequencies into the radio at that time and then put them in our Camlock cabinet so that they're ready for install when they're ready for them. I told her I didn't have any brand new ones in the box, but I had an order coming in probably within another month or two.

So I was asked to set two aside still in boxes, unopened, and they sit on the shelf to this day. When they came in, I let her know that they were here. I think the plan was for us to walk the boxes over, open the boxes, program the radios there and install them into the vehicles, but when I asked her -- you know, I told her that the radios were in, they're in boxes. She said, "Okay. I'll get back with you," and then I never heard anything back. So they still sit on my shelf in the box, ready.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who was the other one for?

A. The undersheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

All right. Very good that's the end of your statement. Thank you for being here. We appreciate it. We'll let you know if we need you further.

(The statement concluded at 9:35 a.m.)

WHEREUPON,

SCOTT SHELPMAN

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Good morning, sir. My name is Brian Kramer. I'm the state attorney. Would you state your full name for the record, please?

A. Scott Allen Shelpman.

Q. Mr. Shelpman, how are you employed?

A. I'm employed at Alachua County Sheriff's Office, and I'm technical support adviser over radios and cell phones.

Q. Okay. And how long have you been doing that job?

A. I've been supervisor for three years. I've been in the radio shop for eight years. I've been at the sheriff's office for a little over 15 years.

Q. And did you have any other law-enforcement-related experience prior to that?

A. Law enforcement, no.

Q. What was your background prior to --

A. I worked at ShandsCair as a dispatcher.

Q. So that would have been -- you've been at the sheriff's office, then, for 20 years?

A. No, the sheriff's office, February 18th was 15 years.

Q. Fifteen years. Okay. Sorry. My math isn't great.

A. That's okay.

Q. I can't do it that fast.

So I would like for you to explain, if you could. Does the sheriff's office utilize any computer programming or service on its cell phones that the sheriff's office owns to record and preserve things that might occur on those cell phones that are required to be preserved by Florida Statutes?

A. Well, I am not familiar with Florida Statute, but we do have a program named Smarsh or Mobile Guard which captures all texts on cell phones.

Q. Is it Smarsh, S-M-A-R-S-H?

A. Correct.

Q. And that program, its only function is to caption all text messaging?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you would explain, how would one find that text messaging at the sheriff's office if it was needed for an investigation or if it was needed for case-related materials?

A. There would be a records request. I put -- I enroll most phones at the sheriff's office, but I do not have access to go in and pull records from Smarsh. Only the IT director has the ability to actually go and pull records.

Q. Okay. There is essentially an interface between the computer system and the Smarsh program that the IT director has that a request could come to the IT director, and the IT director could access that interface and find those text messages, correct?

A. That is correct, if you were opted in to Smarsh.

Q. And with the sheriff's office telephones, assuming that Smarsh is not active, for what period of time would text messaging be preserved on the device itself?

A. Well, for as long as the user of the phone kept the text messages there.

Q. And are they Apple devices?

A. They are Apple devices.

Q. So there's settings in Apple that could cause those to automatically delete after a certain period of time?

A. You could set it up like that.

Q. And just so I'm clear, if Smarsh is active on a phone, and a user of a sheriff's office phone attempted to go in and delete a text message from the phone, it would be on the Smarsh server?

A. That's correct.

Q. So you're the person who is responsible for installing these on all the phones at the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And how do you know whether or not Smarsh has been activated on a phone?

A. Well, I get alerts from Smarsh every day. I usually check it in the morning. It will literally tell you these people have missed heartbeats. They call them heartbeats.

So you just look at that person. And you take a look, and you see, hey, we've tried 15 times. They still haven't opted in. And then, you know, as the weeks go by, you can take a look again; and we've tried X amount of times, and they still haven't opted in.

Q. To your knowledge, is it the policy at the sheriff's office that all of the phones at the sheriff's office are to be connected to this Smarsh program?

A. To my knowledge, it's a policy of the sheriff's office.

Q. To your knowledge, other than the sheriff himself, are all the phones at the sheriff's office connected to Smarsh?

A. No. I do believe that the colonel has never opted in either.

Q. So is it your understanding that the sheriff has a phone that is issued by the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you're aware of that because you were the person who issued it?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. That's correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that phone is not registered to the Smarsh system?

A. It is not.

Q. And are you aware that the colonel, who is Chad Scott --

A. Correct.

Q. -- has a phone that's issued by the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And are you aware that -- whether or not that phone is connected to the Smarsh system?

A. I do not believe it is connected.

Q. And you would know this because you would get a notification that it's been properly activated?

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a procedure or protocol that you would follow if, let's say, it's a deputy that was issued a sheriff's office phone and they did not connect to the Smarsh system?

A. If a deputy did not connect, I would normally harass him until he does.

Q. So it's not a disciplinary issue?

A. It is not.

Q. Eventually if the person -- this may be a hypothetical question, and it's fine. If the person said to you, "I'm never going to," what would you then do?

A. Well, I would just let them know that it is policy of the sheriff's office; and that I really don't want to contact your superior, but I will.

Q. Okay. So you wouldn't contact your superior. You would contact their superior.

A. Normally speaking, I may talk to mine; but quite frankly, I don't usually have this problem.

So just to elaborate. Most of the time with a deputy or somebody who's not called the sheriff or the colonel or the undersheriff, we normally would do that. I won't even give them their phone until I've opted it in for them.

So I literally set it up in Smarsh. And anywhere from 15 minutes to an hour later, a text will come from Verizon asking you to just reply back "yes." I just reply back "yes" for them, and I would opt them in.

When I give out a new phone to a new person, I just let them know, "Hey, all your texts are being recorded. Be careful what you send and text."

Q. Of course. And I'm assuming you tell them, "Please don't use your text messaging for personal business."

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a policy that you're aware of at the sheriff's office that their phones cannot be used for personal business?

A. I think it's more of a suggestion. It's a good practice not to use them for personal business, but I don't believe it outright states that you can't use any personal business on the phone.

Q. Has anyone offered you any explanation or given any reason why the sheriff and the colonel are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever inquired of any person to ask why they are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. So I sent multiple emails at first to my chain of command, which would have been Michelle Clement, and I also sent it to the IT director, John Moorehouse, at the time. I just took snippets of the Smarsh and said, "Hey, 222 attempts, still hasn't opted in. Hey, here's a copy of an email sent to his secretary where she says she's going to opt him in."

Those things never happened. I believe Michelle said that she forwarded one of them to Chief of Staff Judd, but that's a remembrance that I have in conversation with Michelle.

Q. Okay. When you used the number 222, was that just a figure of speech? Or is that the actual number of attempts that you recall?

A. I believe there's actually a snippet with 222 attempts on it.

Q. I just wanted to clarify because it's a large number and --

A. So this program tries daily.

Q. Okay. Right. So 222 attempts also equates to 222 days?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Gentlemen, are there any follow-up questions with regard to the Smarsh system?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. So the app alerts the individual that has the phone that you need to opt in. If you haven't opted in, it does that daily?

A. Quite frankly, I don't know that he's gotten 222 texts. It's just letting me know there's been 222 attempts. And he's certainly gotten at least a few texts about opting in; but without having his phone, I couldn't tell you.

Q. Was there a specific reason that when you issued him his phone it wasn't already --

A. That I just didn't opt it in?

Q. Right.

A. Number one, the sheriff, as you know, writes policy. We normally would allow the sheriff and his command staff to do it.

Number two, it was kind of a weird situation. I was basically home, and I got a call from Director Moorehouse saying, "Hey, you need to come back, and you need to put phones and radios together for the new sheriff. He wants to pick up all his stuff as midnight."

So I turned around, came back. I put their stuff together, and, you know, I think I left around 8:00, 8:30 that night.

And I was told that these phones that he had right now were probably not going to be his forever phone, they're just -- you know, they're older models. Normally speaking, we allow the sheriff to pick whatever model of iPhone or Android he would want, and that's what happened like a week later.

So I put those together. And being as it's a policy, and he's the policymaker, I usually allow them -- I don't just go ahead and put them in to something like that. I tell them what it is, and then I ask them to opt in, and then I allow them to do the opt-in. I don't do it for them because I don't want, frankly, something like this coming back. I don't usually give regular deputies that choice; but the sheriff being the sheriff, we have always given that choice.

Q. Who's the current IT director?

A. Currently it's Mike Robinson.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Other than the sheriff and the colonel,

anybody else in the command staff that hasn't opted in?

A. No, just those two, to my knowledge.

Q. So we know if you don't opt in on the Smarsh system, you don't get the texts. How about the emails that are done from an agency phone?

A. All emails are connected to our email server, so that would be a function of IT anyway. They have all that whether it's on their phone or they're synched.

Q. But as far as you know, there's not a way to opt out of that?

A. Oh, no. For emails?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Not to my knowledge.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So let's move on, then, and I'm going to ask you about the placement of radios in vehicles at the sheriff's office. Is that part of your responsibility?

A. It is.

Q. And do you have people who work underneath you who also do that?

A. I do.

Q. And is the normal course of business that there is a maintenance plan or a maintenance operation that occurs with vehicles and radios that they get regularly maintenance?

A. There is.

Q. And did that occur with the sheriff's vehicle?

A. It did.

Q. And was there some form of incident that occurred or some kind of something that was unusual about maintenancing the radio for the sheriff?

A. Well, fleet had his vehicle for a PM, probably an oil change or something on his vehicle. And while my guy, Robert Glen, was down there PMing another radio in a deputy's vehicle, it came up in conversation with the guys at fleet that, "Hey, do you need to look at the sheriff's radio while it's here?"

He said, "Yeah, it's due next month. Let's go ahead and get it done since I'm here."

So Robert was in the back with his computer, doing a PM on the radio, and was essentially asked, "What are you doing? Why are you in my vehicle."

And he explained why he was there. And again, I wasn't there, but words were said. And I got a call from Robert, who basically said, "You need to come down here right now, or I'm going to give this man a piece of mind" sort of thing.

So we said, understood. And then we were asked --

Q. Is that unusual?

A. That is unusual.

Q. Is it unusual because it's actually your job to get in people's vehicles and perform maintenance on the things that make the sheriff's office be able to function?

A. That's correct.

Q. And so it's now the policy of the office that you have to have the permission of a deputy before you go into their vehicle to maintenance a radio?

A. We basically don't go into a deputy's vehicle anymore without them asking us to for some specific reason. So like a deputy will come by and say, "Hey, I'm having this issue with my radio in my vehicle," to which we will then take care of his radio; but we do not any longer go and search down vehicles for deputies unless they have a problem.

Q. So you just have eliminated planned maintenance?

A. You've got it. We do their portables, of course; but with the mobiles, it just seemed like it would be more of a hassle to do things the way -- like fleet wasn't being super cooperative about it because they didn't want to get in trouble. We didn't want to get in trouble. So I just said, "You know what, Michelle? When the guys have a problem, they'll come to us and we'll take care of their problem."

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is that the only radio that's been in the been sheriff's vehicle?

A. It is. After this incident I was asked by Chief of Staff Judd if I had any radios that were still in boxes that were not opened, to which I said that is not our normal practice; because when radios come in, we take them out of the boxes. We take everything out, separate it. We put the radio on a computer, and we program it because it comes as a brick.

So we program our frequencies into the radio at that time and then put them in our Camlock cabinet so that they're ready for install when they're ready for them. I told her I didn't have any brand new ones in the box, but I had an order coming in probably within another month or two.

So I was asked to set two aside still in boxes, unopened, and they sit on the shelf to this day. When they came in, I let her know that they were here. I think the plan was for us to walk the boxes over, open the boxes, program the radios there and install them into the vehicles, but when I asked her -- you know, I told her that the radios were in, they're in boxes. She said, "Okay. I'll get back with you," and then I never heard anything back. So they still sit on my shelf in the box, ready.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who was the other one for?

A. The undersheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

All right. Very good that's the end of your statement. Thank you for being here. We appreciate it. We'll let you know if we need you further.

Q. So that would have been -- you've been at the sheriff's office, then, for 20 years?

A. No, the sheriff's office, February 18th was 15 years.

Q. Fifteen years. Okay. Sorry. My math isn't great.

A. That's okay.

Q. I can't do it that fast.

So I would like for you to explain, if you could. Does the sheriff's office utilize any computer programming or service on its cell phones that the sheriff's office owns to record and preserve things that might occur on those cell phones that are required to be preserved by Florida Statutes?

A. Well, I am not familiar with Florida Statute, but we do have a program named Smarsh or Mobile Guard which captures all texts on cell phones.

Q. Is it Smarsh, S-M-A-R-S-H?

A. Correct.

Q. And that program, its only function is to caption all text messaging?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you would explain, how would one find that text messaging at the sheriff's office if it was needed for an investigation or if it was needed for case-related materials?

A. There would be a records request. I put -- I enroll most phones at the sheriff's office, but I do not have access to go in and pull records from Smarsh. Only the IT director has the ability to actually go and pull records.

Q. Okay. There is essentially an interface between the computer system and the Smarsh program that the IT director has that a request could come to the IT director, and the IT director could access that interface and find those text messages, correct?

A. That is correct, if you were opted in to Smarsh.

Q. And with the sheriff's office telephones, assuming that Smarsh is not active, for what period of time would text messaging be preserved on the device itself?

A. Well, for as long as the user of the phone kept the text messages there.

Q. And are they Apple devices?

A. They are Apple devices.

Q. So there's settings in Apple that could cause those to automatically delete after a certain period of time?

A. You could set it up like that.

Q. And just so I'm clear, if Smarsh is active on a phone, and a user of a sheriff's office phone attempted to go in and delete a text message from the phone, it would be on the Smarsh server?

A. That's correct.

Q. So you're the person who is responsible for installing these on all the phones at the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And how do you know whether or not Smarsh has been activated on a phone?

A. Well, I get alerts from Smarsh every day. I usually check it in the morning. It will literally tell you these people have missed heartbeats. They call them heartbeats.

So you just look at that person. And you take a look, and you see, hey, we've tried 15 times. They still haven't opted in. And then, you know, as the weeks go by, you can take a look again; and we've tried X amount of times, and they still haven't opted in.

Q. To your knowledge, is it the policy at the sheriff's office that all of the phones at the sheriff's office are to be connected to this Smarsh program?

A. To my knowledge, it's a policy of the sheriff's office.

Q. To your knowledge, other than the sheriff himself, are all the phones at the sheriff's office connected to Smarsh?

A. No. I do believe that the colonel has never opted in either.

Q. So is it your understanding that the sheriff has a phone that is issued by the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you're aware of that because you were the person who issued it?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. That's correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that phone is not registered to the Smarsh system?

A. It is not.

Q. And are you aware that the colonel, who is Chad Scott --

A. Correct.

Q. -- has a phone that's issued by the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And are you aware that -- whether or not that phone is connected to the Smarsh system?

A. I do not believe it is connected.

Q. And you would know this because you would get a notification that it's been properly activated?

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a procedure or protocol that you would follow if, let's say, it's a deputy that was issued a sheriff's office phone and they did not connect to the Smarsh system?

A. If a deputy did not connect, I would normally harass him until he does.

Q. So it's not a disciplinary issue?

A. It is not.

Q. Eventually if the person -- this may be a hypothetical question, and it's fine. If the person said to you, "I'm never going to," what would you then do?

A. Well, I would just let them know that it is policy of the sheriff's office; and that I really don't want to contact your superior, but I will.

Q. Okay. So you wouldn't contact your superior. You would contact their superior.

A. Normally speaking, I may talk to mine; but quite frankly, I don't usually have this problem.

So just to elaborate. Most of the time with a deputy or somebody who's not called the sheriff or the colonel or the undersheriff, we normally would do that. I won't even give them their phone until I've opted it in for them.

So I literally set it up in Smarsh. And anywhere from 15 minutes to an hour later, a text will come from Verizon asking you to just reply back "yes." I just reply back "yes" for them, and I would opt them in.

When I give out a new phone to a new person, I just let them know, "Hey, all your texts are being recorded. Be careful what you send and text."

Q. Of course. And I'm assuming you tell them, "Please don't use your text messaging for personal business."

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a policy that you're aware of at the sheriff's office that their phones cannot be used for personal business?

A. I think it's more of a suggestion. It's a good practice not to use them for personal business, but I don't believe it outright states that you can't use any personal business on the phone.

Q. Has anyone offered you any explanation or given any reason why the sheriff and the colonel are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever inquired of any person to ask why they are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. So I sent multiple emails at first to my chain of command, which would have been Michelle Clement, and I also sent it to the IT director, John Moorehouse, at the time. I just took snippets of the Smarsh and said, "Hey, 222 attempts, still hasn't opted in. Hey, here's a copy of an email sent to his secretary where she says she's going to opt him in."

Those things never happened. I believe Michelle said that she forwarded one of them to Chief of Staff Judd, but that's a remembrance that I have in conversation with Michelle.

Q. Okay. When you used the number 222, was that just a figure of speech? Or is that the actual number of attempts that you recall?

A. I believe there's actually a snippet with 222 attempts on it.

Q. I just wanted to clarify because it's a large number and --

A. So this program tries daily.

Q. Okay. Right. So 222 attempts also equates to 222 days?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Gentlemen, are there any follow-up questions with regard to the Smarsh system?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. So the app alerts the individual that has the phone that you need to opt in. If you haven't opted in, it does that daily?

A. Quite frankly, I don't know that he's gotten 222 texts. It's just letting me know there's been 222 attempts. And he's certainly gotten at least a few texts about opting in; but without having his phone, I couldn't tell you.

Q. Was there a specific reason that when you issued him his phone it wasn't already --

A. That I just didn't opt it in?

Q. Right.

A. Number one, the sheriff, as you know, writes policy. We normally would allow the sheriff and his command staff to do it.

Number two, it was kind of a weird situation. I was basically home, and I got a call from Director Moorehouse saying, "Hey, you need to come back, and you need to put phones and radios together for the new sheriff. He wants to pick up all his stuff as midnight."

So I turned around, came back. I put their stuff together, and, you know, I think I left around 8:00, 8:30 that night.

And I was told that these phones that he had right now were probably not going to be his forever phone, they're just -- you know, they're older models. Normally speaking, we allow the sheriff to pick whatever model of iPhone or Android he would want, and that's what happened like a week later.

So I put those together. And being as it's a policy, and he's the policymaker, I usually allow them -- I don't just go ahead and put them in to something like that. I tell them what it is, and then I ask them to opt in, and then I allow them to do the opt-in. I don't do it for them because I don't want, frankly, something like this coming back. I don't usually give regular deputies that choice; but the sheriff being the sheriff, we have always given that choice.

Q. Who's the current IT director?

A. Currently it's Mike Robinson.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Other than the sheriff and the colonel,

anybody else in the command staff that hasn't opted in?

A. No, just those two, to my knowledge.

Q. So we know if you don't opt in on the Smarsh system, you don't get the texts. How about the emails that are done from an agency phone?

A. All emails are connected to our email server, so that would be a function of IT anyway. They have all that whether it's on their phone or they're synched.

Q. But as far as you know, there's not a way to opt out of that?

A. Oh, no. For emails?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Not to my knowledge.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So let's move on, then, and I'm going to ask you about the placement of radios in vehicles at the sheriff's office. Is that part of your responsibility?

A. It is.

Q. And do you have people who work underneath you who also do that?

A. I do.

Q. And is the normal course of business that there is a maintenance plan or a maintenance operation that occurs with vehicles and radios that they get regularly maintenance?

A. There is.

Q. And did that occur with the sheriff's vehicle?

A. It did.

Q. And was there some form of incident that occurred or some kind of something that was unusual about maintenancing the radio for the sheriff?

A. Well, fleet had his vehicle for a PM, probably an oil change or something on his vehicle. And while my guy, Robert Glen, was down there PMing another radio in a deputy's vehicle, it came up in conversation with the guys at fleet that, "Hey, do you need to look at the sheriff's radio while it's here?"

He said, "Yeah, it's due next month. Let's go ahead and get it done since I'm here."

So he started working on that. I don't remember the whole story, but somehow the sheriff came down, saw that Robert was in his -- so his radio package was in the back underneath the floor of his Tahoe, and he has a remote head up front, hand-held head, that he can maneuver the radio with.

So Robert was in the back with his computer, doing a PM on the radio, and was essentially asked, "What are you doing? Why are you in my vehicle."

And he explained why he was there. And again, I wasn't there, but words were said. And I got a call from Robert, who basically said, "You need to come down here right now, or I'm going to give this man a piece of mind" sort of thing.

Which Robert was a 30-, 31-year-old veteran at Alachua County Fire Rescue. He had retired. This was a job that he did because he liked doing radios. So I certainly believed that he may give the sheriff a piece of his mind, so I went down there.

When I got there, Robert was cleaning his stuff out of the back of the sheriff's vehicle. The sheriff was standing there. I said hello. The sheriff said hello back. We gathered up Robert's stuff, and nothing was said to me at that time.

Later on, I don't know if it was the same day or the next day, but my boss, Michelle Clement, called me in and said, "Hey, what happened?"

And I told her the story to the best of my ability. And then we were asked to come to a meeting at Chief of Staff Judd's office with Steve King from fleet, his boss at the time -- sorry, I forgot her name -- but Michelle and myself.

So anyway, at that meeting we were told that we are never to get in the sheriff or the undersheriff's vehicle without making an appointment with their secretary, Tara Malone, at the time, and that, frankly, we weren't to get in anybody's vehicle without their permission.

So we said, understood. And then we were asked --

Q. Is that unusual?

A. That is unusual.

Q. Is it unusual because it's actually your job to get in people's vehicles and perform maintenance on the things that make the sheriff's office be able to function?

A. That's correct.

Q. And so it's now the policy of the office that you have to have the permission of a deputy before you go into their vehicle to maintenance a radio?

A. We basically don't go into a deputy's vehicle anymore without them asking us to for some specific reason. So like a deputy will come by and say, "Hey, I'm having this issue with my radio in my vehicle," to which we will then take care of his radio; but we do not any longer go and search down vehicles for deputies unless they have a problem.

Q. So you just have eliminated planned maintenance?

A. You've got it. We do their portables, of course; but with the mobiles, it just seemed like it would be more of a hassle to do things the way -- like fleet wasn't being super cooperative about it because they didn't want to get in trouble. We didn't want to get in trouble. So I just said, "You know what, Michelle? When the guys have a problem, they'll come to us and we'll take care of their problem."

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is that the only radio that's been in the been sheriff's vehicle?

A. It is. After this incident I was asked by Chief of Staff Judd if I had any radios that were still in boxes that were not opened, to which I said that is not our normal practice; because when radios come in, we take them out of the boxes. We take everything out, separate it. We put the radio on a computer, and we program it because it comes as a brick.

So we program our frequencies into the radio at that time and then put them in our Camlock cabinet so that they're ready for install when they're ready for them. I told her I didn't have any brand new ones in the box, but I had an order coming in probably within another month or two.

So I was asked to set two aside still in boxes, unopened, and they sit on the shelf to this day. When they came in, I let her know that they were here. I think the plan was for us to walk the boxes over, open the boxes, program the radios there and install them into the vehicles, but when I asked her -- you know, I told her that the radios were in, they're in boxes. She said, "Okay. I'll get back with you," and then I never heard anything back. So they still sit on my shelf in the box, ready.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who was the other one for?

A. The undersheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

All right. Very good that's the end of your statement. Thank you for being here. We appreciate it. We'll let you know if we need you further.

case-related materials?

A. There would be a records request. I put -- I enroll most phones at the sheriff's office, but I do not have access to go in and pull records from Smarsh. Only the IT director has the ability to actually go and pull records.

Q. Okay. There is essentially an interface between the computer system and the Smarsh program that the IT director has that a request could come to the IT director, and the IT director could access that interface and find those text messages, correct?

A. That is correct, if you were opted in to Smarsh.

Q. And with the sheriff's office telephones, assuming that Smarsh is not active, for what period of time would text messaging be preserved on the device itself?

A. Well, for as long as the user of the phone kept the text messages there.

Q. And are they Apple devices?

A. They are Apple devices.

Q. So there's settings in Apple that could cause those to automatically delete after a certain period of time?

A. You could set it up like that.

Q. And just so I'm clear, if Smarsh is active on a phone, and a user of a sheriff's office phone attempted to go in and delete a text message from the phone, it would be on the Smarsh server?

A. That's correct.

Q. So you're the person who is responsible for installing these on all the phones at the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And how do you know whether or not Smarsh has been activated on a phone?

A. Well, I get alerts from Smarsh every day. I usually check it in the morning. It will literally tell you these people have missed heartbeats. They call them heartbeats.

So you just look at that person. And you take a look, and you see, hey, we've tried 15 times. They still haven't opted in. And then, you know, as the weeks go by, you can take a look again; and we've tried X amount of times, and they still haven't opted in.

Q. To your knowledge, is it the policy at the sheriff's office that all of the phones at the sheriff's office are to be connected to this Smarsh program?

A. To my knowledge, it's a policy of the sheriff's office.

Q. To your knowledge, other than the sheriff himself, are all the phones at the sheriff's office connected to Smarsh?

A. No. I do believe that the colonel has never opted in either.

Q. So is it your understanding that the sheriff has a phone that is issued by the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you're aware of that because you were the person who issued it?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. That's correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that phone is not registered to the Smarsh system?

A. It is not.

Q. And are you aware that the colonel, who is Chad Scott --

A. Correct.

Q. -- has a phone that's issued by the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And are you aware that -- whether or not that phone is connected to the Smarsh system?

A. I do not believe it is connected.

Q. And you would know this because you would get a notification that it's been properly activated?

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a procedure or protocol that you would follow if, let's say, it's a deputy that was issued a sheriff's office phone and they did not connect to the Smarsh system?

A. If a deputy did not connect, I would normally harass him until he does.

Q. So it's not a disciplinary issue?

A. It is not.

Q. Eventually if the person -- this may be a hypothetical question, and it's fine. If the person said to you, "I'm never going to," what would you then do?

A. Well, I would just let them know that it is policy of the sheriff's office; and that I really don't want to contact your superior, but I will.

Q. Okay. So you wouldn't contact your superior. You would contact their superior.

A. Normally speaking, I may talk to mine; but quite frankly, I don't usually have this problem.

So just to elaborate. Most of the time with a deputy or somebody who's not called the sheriff or the colonel or the undersheriff, we normally would do that. I won't even give them their phone until I've opted it in for them.

So I literally set it up in Smarsh. And anywhere from 15 minutes to an hour later, a text will come from Verizon asking you to just reply back "yes." I just reply back "yes" for them, and I would opt them in.

When I give out a new phone to a new person, I just let them know, "Hey, all your texts are being recorded. Be careful what you send and text."

Q. Of course. And I'm assuming you tell them, "Please don't use your text messaging for personal business."

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a policy that you're aware of at the sheriff's office that their phones cannot be used for personal business?

A. I think it's more of a suggestion. It's a good practice not to use them for personal business, but I don't believe it outright states that you can't use any personal business on the phone.

Q. Has anyone offered you any explanation or given any reason why the sheriff and the colonel are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever inquired of any person to ask why they are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. So I sent multiple emails at first to my chain of command, which would have been Michelle Clement, and I also sent it to the IT director, John Moorehouse, at the time. I just took snippets of the Smarsh and said, "Hey, 222 attempts, still hasn't opted in. Hey, here's a copy of an email sent to his secretary where she says she's going to opt him in."

Those things never happened. I believe Michelle said that she forwarded one of them to Chief of Staff Judd, but that's a remembrance that I have in conversation with Michelle.

Q. Okay. When you used the number 222, was that just a figure of speech? Or is that the actual number of attempts that you recall?

A. I believe there's actually a snippet with 222 attempts on it.

Q. I just wanted to clarify because it's a large number and --

A. So this program tries daily.

Q. Okay. Right. So 222 attempts also equates to 222 days?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Gentlemen, are there any follow-up questions with regard to the Smarsh system?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. So the app alerts the individual that has the phone that you need to opt in. If you haven't opted in, it does that daily?

A. Quite frankly, I don't know that he's gotten 222 texts. It's just letting me know there's been 222 attempts. And he's certainly gotten at least a few texts about opting in; but without having his phone, I couldn't tell you.

Q. Was there a specific reason that when you issued him his phone it wasn't already --

A. That I just didn't opt it in?

Q. Right.

A. Number one, the sheriff, as you know, writes policy. We normally would allow the sheriff and his command staff to do it.

Number two, it was kind of a weird situation. I was basically home, and I got a call from Director Moorehouse saying, "Hey, you need to come back, and you need to put phones and radios together for the new sheriff. He wants to pick up all his stuff as midnight."

So I turned around, came back. I put their stuff together, and, you know, I think I left around 8:00, 8:30 that night.

And I was told that these phones that he had right now were probably not going to be his forever phone, they're just -- you know, they're older models. Normally speaking, we allow the sheriff to pick whatever model of iPhone or Android he would want, and that's what happened like a week later.

So I put those together. And being as it's a policy, and he's the policymaker, I usually allow them -- I don't just go ahead and put them in to something like that. I tell them what it is, and then I ask them to opt in, and then I allow them to do the opt-in. I don't do it for them because I don't want, frankly, something like this coming back. I don't usually give regular deputies that choice; but the sheriff being the sheriff, we have always given that choice.

Q. Who's the current IT director?

A. Currently it's Mike Robinson.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Other than the sheriff and the colonel,

anybody else in the command staff that hasn't opted in?

A. No, just those two, to my knowledge.

Q. So we know if you don't opt in on the Smarsh system, you don't get the texts. How about the emails that are done from an agency phone?

A. All emails are connected to our email server, so that would be a function of IT anyway. They have all that whether it's on their phone or they're synched.

Q. But as far as you know, there's not a way to opt out of that?

A. Oh, no. For emails?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Not to my knowledge.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So let's move on, then, and I'm going to ask you about the placement of radios in vehicles at the sheriff's office. Is that part of your responsibility?

A. It is.

Q. And do you have people who work underneath you who also do that?

A. I do.

Q. And is the normal course of business that there is a maintenance plan or a maintenance operation that occurs with vehicles and radios that they get regularly maintenance?

A. There is.

Q. And did that occur with the sheriff's vehicle?

A. It did.

Q. And was there some form of incident that occurred or some kind of something that was unusual about maintenancing the radio for the sheriff?

A. Well, fleet had his vehicle for a PM, probably an oil change or something on his vehicle. And while my guy, Robert Glen, was down there PMing another radio in a deputy's vehicle, it came up in conversation with the guys at fleet that, "Hey, do you need to look at the sheriff's radio while it's here?"

He said, "Yeah, it's due next month. Let's go ahead and get it done since I'm here."

So he started working on that. I don't remember the whole story, but somehow the sheriff came down, saw that Robert was in his -- so his radio package was in the back underneath the floor of his Tahoe, and he has a remote head up front, hand-held head, that he can maneuver the radio with.

So Robert was in the back with his computer, doing a PM on the radio, and was essentially asked, "What are you doing? Why are you in my vehicle."

And he explained why he was there. And again, I wasn't there, but words were said. And I got a call from Robert, who basically said, "You need to come down here right now, or I'm going to give this man a piece of mind" sort of thing.

Which Robert was a 30-, 31-year-old veteran at Alachua County Fire Rescue. He had retired. This was a job that he did because he liked doing radios. So I certainly believed that he may give the sheriff a piece of his mind, so I went down there.

When I got there, Robert was cleaning his stuff out of the back of the sheriff's vehicle. The sheriff was standing there. I said hello. The sheriff said hello back. We gathered up Robert's stuff, and nothing was said to me at that time.

Later on, I don't know if it was the same day or the next day, but my boss, Michelle Clement, called me in and said, "Hey, what happened?"

And I told her the story to the best of my ability. And then we were asked to come to a meeting at Chief of Staff Judd's office with Steve King from fleet, his boss at the time -- sorry, I forgot her name -- but Michelle and myself.

So anyway, at that meeting we were told that we are never to get in the sheriff or the undersheriff's vehicle without making an appointment with their secretary, Tara Malone, at the time, and that, frankly, we weren't to get in anybody's vehicle without their permission.

So we said, understood. And then we were asked --

Q. Is that unusual?

A. That is unusual.

Q. Is it unusual because it's actually your job to get in people's vehicles and perform maintenance on the things that make the sheriff's office be able to function?

A. That's correct.

Q. And so it's now the policy of the office that you have to have the permission of a deputy before you go into their vehicle to maintenance a radio?

A. We basically don't go into a deputy's vehicle anymore without them asking us to for some specific reason. So like a deputy will come by and say, "Hey, I'm having this issue with my radio in my vehicle," to which we will then take care of his radio; but we do not any longer go and search down vehicles for deputies unless they have a problem.

Q. So you just have eliminated planned maintenance?

A. You've got it. We do their portables, of course; but with the mobiles, it just seemed like it would be more of a hassle to do things the way -- like fleet wasn't being super cooperative about it because they didn't want to get in trouble. We didn't want to get in trouble. So I just said, "You know what, Michelle? When the guys have a problem, they'll come to us and we'll take care of their problem."

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is that the only radio that's been in the been sheriff's vehicle?

A. It is. After this incident I was asked by Chief of Staff Judd if I had any radios that were still in boxes that were not opened, to which I said that is not our normal practice; because when radios come in, we take them out of the boxes. We take everything out, separate it. We put the radio on a computer, and we program it because it comes as a brick.

So we program our frequencies into the radio at that time and then put them in our Camlock cabinet so that they're ready for install when they're ready for them. I told her I didn't have any brand new ones in the box, but I had an order coming in probably within another month or two.

So I was asked to set two aside still in boxes, unopened, and they sit on the shelf to this day. When they came in, I let her know that they were here. I think the plan was for us to walk the boxes over, open the boxes, program the radios there and install them into the vehicles, but when I asked her -- you know, I told her that the radios were in, they're in boxes. She said, "Okay. I'll get back with you," and then I never heard anything back. So they still sit on my shelf in the box, ready.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who was the other one for?

A. The undersheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

All right. Very good that's the end of your statement. Thank you for being here. We appreciate it. We'll let you know if we need you further.

Q. And just so I'm clear, if Smarsh is active on a phone, and a user of a sheriff's office phone attempted to go in and delete a text message from the phone, it would be on the Smarsh server?

A. That's correct.

Q. So you're the person who is responsible for installing these on all the phones at the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And how do you know whether or not Smarsh has been activated on a phone?

A. Well, I get alerts from Smarsh every day. I usually check it in the morning. It will literally tell you these people have missed heartbeats. They call them heartbeats.

So you just look at that person. And you take a look, and you see, hey, we've tried 15 times. They still haven't opted in. And then, you know, as the weeks go by, you can take a look again; and we've tried X amount of times, and they still haven't opted in.

Q. To your knowledge, is it the policy at the sheriff's office that all of the phones at the sheriff's office are to be connected to this Smarsh program?

A. To my knowledge, it's a policy of the sheriff's office.

Q. To your knowledge, other than the sheriff himself, are all the phones at the sheriff's office connected to Smarsh?

A. No. I do believe that the colonel has never opted in either.

Q. So is it your understanding that the sheriff has a phone that is issued by the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you're aware of that because you were the person who issued it?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. That's correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that phone is not registered to the Smarsh system?

A. It is not.

Q. And are you aware that the colonel, who is Chad Scott --

A. Correct.

Q. -- has a phone that's issued by the sheriff's office?

A. I am.

Q. And are you aware that -- whether or not that phone is connected to the Smarsh system?

A. I do not believe it is connected.

Q. And you would know this because you would get a notification that it's been properly activated?

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a procedure or protocol that you would follow if, let's say, it's a deputy that was issued a sheriff's office phone and they did not connect to the Smarsh system?

A. If a deputy did not connect, I would normally harass him until he does.

Q. So it's not a disciplinary issue?

A. It is not.

Q. Eventually if the person -- this may be a hypothetical question, and it's fine. If the person said to you, "I'm never going to," what would you then do?

A. Well, I would just let them know that it is policy of the sheriff's office; and that I really don't want to contact your superior, but I will.

Q. Okay. So you wouldn't contact your superior. You would contact their superior.

A. Normally speaking, I may talk to mine; but quite frankly, I don't usually have this problem.

So just to elaborate. Most of the time with a deputy or somebody who's not called the sheriff or the colonel or the undersheriff, we normally would do that. I won't even give them their phone until I've opted it in for them.

So I literally set it up in Smarsh. And anywhere from 15 minutes to an hour later, a text will come from Verizon asking you to just reply back "yes." I just reply back "yes" for them, and I would opt them in.

When I give out a new phone to a new person, I just let them know, "Hey, all your texts are being recorded. Be careful what you send and text."

Q. Of course. And I'm assuming you tell them, "Please don't use your text messaging for personal business."

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a policy that you're aware of at the sheriff's office that their phones cannot be used for personal business?

A. I think it's more of a suggestion. It's a good practice not to use them for personal business, but I don't believe it outright states that you can't use any personal business on the phone.

Q. Has anyone offered you any explanation or given any reason why the sheriff and the colonel are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever inquired of any person to ask why they are not connected to the Smarsh system?

A. So I sent multiple emails at first to my chain of command, which would have been Michelle Clement, and I also sent it to the IT director, John Moorehouse, at the time. I just took snippets of the Smarsh and said, "Hey, 222 attempts, still hasn't opted in. Hey, here's a copy of an email sent to his secretary where she says she's going to opt him in."

Those things never happened. I believe Michelle said that she forwarded one of them to Chief of Staff Judd, but that's a remembrance that I have in conversation with Michelle.

Q. Okay. When you used the number 222, was that just a figure of speech? Or is that the actual number of attempts that you recall?

A. I believe there's actually a snippet with 222 attempts on it.

Q. I just wanted to clarify because it's a large number and --

A. So this program tries daily.

Q. Okay. Right. So 222 attempts also equates to 222 days?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Gentlemen, are there any follow-up questions with regard to the Smarsh system?

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. So the app alerts the individual that has the phone that you need to opt in. If you haven't opted in, it does that daily?

A. Quite frankly, I don't know that he's gotten 222 texts. It's just letting me know there's been 222 attempts. And he's certainly gotten at least a few texts about opting in; but without having his phone, I couldn't tell you.

Q. Was there a specific reason that when you issued him his phone it wasn't already --

A. That I just didn't opt it in?

Q. Right.

A. Number one, the sheriff, as you know, writes policy. We normally would allow the sheriff and his command staff to do it.

Number two, it was kind of a weird situation. I was basically home, and I got a call from Director Moorehouse saying, "Hey, you need to come back, and you need to put phones and radios together for the new sheriff. He wants to pick up all his stuff as midnight."

So I turned around, came back. I put their stuff together, and, you know, I think I left around 8:00, 8:30 that night.

And I was told that these phones that he had right now were probably not going to be his forever phone, they're just -- you know, they're older models. Normally speaking, we allow the sheriff to pick whatever model of iPhone or Android he would want, and that's what happened like a week later.

So I put those together. And being as it's a policy, and he's the policymaker, I usually allow them -- I don't just go ahead and put them in to something like that. I tell them what it is, and then I ask them to opt in, and then I allow them to do the opt-in. I don't do it for them because I don't want, frankly, something like this coming back. I don't usually give regular deputies that choice; but the sheriff being the sheriff, we have always given that choice.

Q. Who's the current IT director?

A. Currently it's Mike Robinson.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Other than the sheriff and the colonel,

anybody else in the command staff that hasn't opted in?

A. No, just those two, to my knowledge.

Q. So we know if you don't opt in on the Smarsh system, you don't get the texts. How about the emails that are done from an agency phone?

A. All emails are connected to our email server, so that would be a function of IT anyway. They have all that whether it's on their phone or they're synched.

Q. But as far as you know, there's not a way to opt out of that?

A. Oh, no. For emails?

Q. Uh-huh.

A. Not to my knowledge.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. So let's move on, then, and I'm going to ask you about the placement of radios in vehicles at the sheriff's office. Is that part of your responsibility?

A. It is.

Q. And do you have people who work underneath you who also do that?

A. I do.

Q. And is the normal course of business that there is a maintenance plan or a maintenance operation that occurs with vehicles and radios that they get regularly maintenance?

A. There is.

Q. And did that occur with the sheriff's vehicle?

A. It did.

Q. And was there some form of incident that occurred or some kind of something that was unusual about maintenancing the radio for the sheriff?

A. Well, fleet had his vehicle for a PM, probably an oil change or something on his vehicle. And while my guy, Robert Glen, was down there PMing another radio in a deputy's vehicle, it came up in conversation with the guys at fleet that, "Hey, do you need to look at the sheriff's radio while it's here?"

He said, "Yeah, it's due next month. Let's go ahead and get it done since I'm here."

So he started working on that. I don't remember the whole story, but somehow the sheriff came down, saw that Robert was in his -- so his radio package was in the back underneath the floor of his Tahoe, and he has a remote head up front, hand-held head, that he can maneuver the radio with.

So Robert was in the back with his computer, doing a PM on the radio, and was essentially asked, "What are you doing? Why are you in my vehicle."

And he explained why he was there. And again, I wasn't there, but words were said. And I got a call from Robert, who basically said, "You need to come down here right now, or I'm going to give this man a piece of mind" sort of thing.

Which Robert was a 30-, 31-year-old veteran at Alachua County Fire Rescue. He had retired. This was a job that he did because he liked doing radios. So I certainly believed that he may give the sheriff a piece of his mind, so I went down there.

When I got there, Robert was cleaning his stuff out of the back of the sheriff's vehicle. The sheriff was standing there. I said hello. The sheriff said hello back. We gathered up Robert's stuff, and nothing was said to me at that time.

Later on, I don't know if it was the same day or the next day, but my boss, Michelle Clement, called me in and said, "Hey, what happened?"

And I told her the story to the best of my ability. And then we were asked to come to a meeting at Chief of Staff Judd's office with Steve King from fleet, his boss at the time -- sorry, I forgot her name -- but Michelle and myself.

So anyway, at that meeting we were told that we are never to get in the sheriff or the undersheriff's vehicle without making an appointment with their secretary, Tara Malone, at the time, and that, frankly, we weren't to get in anybody's vehicle without their permission.

So we said, understood. And then we were asked --

Q. Is that unusual?

A. That is unusual.

Q. Is it unusual because it's actually your job to get in people's vehicles and perform maintenance on the things that make the sheriff's office be able to function?

A. That's correct.

Q. And so it's now the policy of the office that you have to have the permission of a deputy before you go into their vehicle to maintenance a radio?

A. We basically don't go into a deputy's vehicle anymore without them asking us to for some specific reason. So like a deputy will come by and say, "Hey, I'm having this issue with my radio in my vehicle," to which we will then take care of his radio; but we do not any longer go and search down vehicles for deputies unless they have a problem.

Q. So you just have eliminated planned maintenance?

A. You've got it. We do their portables, of course; but with the mobiles, it just seemed like it would be more of a hassle to do things the way -- like fleet wasn't being super cooperative about it because they didn't want to get in trouble. We didn't want to get in trouble. So I just said, "You know what, Michelle? When the guys have a problem, they'll come to us and we'll take care of their problem."

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Is that the only radio that's been in the been sheriff's vehicle?

A. It is. After this incident I was asked by Chief of Staff Judd if I had any radios that were still in boxes that were not opened, to which I said that is not our normal practice; because when radios come in, we take them out of the boxes. We take everything out, separate it. We put the radio on a computer, and we program it because it comes as a brick.

So we program our frequencies into the radio at that time and then put them in our Camlock cabinet so that they're ready for install when they're ready for them. I told her I didn't have any brand new ones in the box, but I had an order coming in probably within another month or two.

So I was asked to set two aside still in boxes, unopened, and they sit on the shelf to this day. When they came in, I let her know that they were here. I think the plan was for us to walk the boxes over, open the boxes, program the radios there and install them into the vehicles, but when I asked her -- you know, I told her that the radios were in, they're in boxes. She said, "Okay. I'll get back with you," and then I never heard anything back. So they still sit on my shelf in the box, ready.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Who was the other one for?

A. The undersheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

All right. Very good that's the end of your statement. Thank you for being here. We appreciate it. We'll let you know if we need you further.

WHEREUPON,

DIANA JACOBS

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your name, please?

A. Diana Jacobs.

Q. Ms. Jacobs, at any time during your life have you been an employee of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Yes.

Q. For what period of time were you employed?

A. 1990 to 2021.

Q. Are you retired?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you retired from the sheriff's office?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any employment related to law enforcement?

A. I was in the military for a brief stint, in 1980 to 1990. Oh, and I worked for the Collier County Sheriff's Office.

Q. Okay. I'm guessing over that period of time you held several roles with the sheriff's office. Is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. And what roles did you hold with the sheriff's office? You don't have to be chronological, but if you could tell me the last one last.

A. The last one last. Okay. I started out at the sheriff's office as a 911 dispatcher, worked my way up through the ranks and became a Telecommunicator Five, which is the most that you can get when you learn all of the positions within the sheriff's office.

I then got promoted to supervisor. Then I became a commander. Then I was transferred and went to work as the fleet manager. The fleet manager had retired, so I got put in charge of fleet.

Then I went to work as the risk manager of the sheriff's office. From there, I was promoted to bureau chief. And during my rein as bureau chief, I held a lot of different positions.

At one point I was in charge of support services: The CAD unit, fleet unit, evidence unit, property unit, like I said, building maintenance, capital projects, CAD GIS projects, and QA Specialist.

So pretty much the only area I didn't work at the sheriff's office was the jail.

Q. So your last position at the sheriff's office, your title was?

A. Bureau chief.

Q. And at all times were you a civilian employee with the sheriff's office, or were you a sworn officer?

A. I was a civilian employee, but I was a special risk. My retirement was special risk; because being in charge of evidence, the majority of the items that we handled were biohazard in nature.

Q. Understood. So which administrations did you work for in that time period?

A. All of it?

Q. Yes. Who did you start with, and who did you finish with?

A. Henry, Oelrich, Gainey, Darnell, Wise, Watson. I think that's it.

Q. So, I guess, what I'd like to start with is -- because we've spoken briefly before this happened. Was your treatment as an employee under the Watson administration prior to retirement different than your treatment as an employee under the former administrations?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. In what way?

A. The encounters were very hostile in nature, just, you know, butting heads. We had a lot of conflict. He didn't like what I had to say a lot of times.

As I said, my responsibilities put me in daily contact with his office until Ms. Judd -- until Daniel Judd got there. So I was in his office so often that the secretaries were like, "We're just moving you out of your office and putting you in here." I mean, that's how often I was in that office.

And a lot of my responsibilities were whenever he came into term was the transition itself, and he wanted a lot of things done. And some things were possible, some things weren't. Some things were budget, some things weren't.

Q. Can you give me some examples? You said some things were possible, some things weren't. Can you give me an example of each?

A. Yes. He started what was called the Beautification Project at the sheriff's office, which he wanted signs put up all over the sheriff's office -- not just at the sheriff's office, but out at the jail, all the substations -- with his name, which is fine. You know, that's not an issue, but he -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, there is -- one of the biggest things or the conflicts that we had is that there's -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, by the records unit, there's this large wall. It's called "The Sheriffs Wall," and it has a picture of all the sheriffs on there, all the previous sheriffs from way back when.

One of the first -- one of the conflicts was the fact that he didn't want Sheriff Darnell's picture up there. So we went -- well, she is sheriff. She was a sheriff. You know, her face should be up there.

And -- but the wall itself is a large wall. It's 176 inches. And he wanted all the items moved from that wall to a wall that was 152 inches, and it just wouldn't fit. And I kept explaining to him that all the pictures would not fit within that space, and he got very upset.

I mean, I think I met with him four or five times about this and tried to give him different examples where we can put the pictures different lengths, heights, but I just -- his words, "I just want my damned wall."

I said, "I'm trying to get you your damned wall, but it's going from 172 to 152 inches. I don't have 16 other inches."

He just didn't understand, like, logistically how things worked, or he didn't like to hear them.

And we finally were able to modify the pictures, and he wanted the wall painted and repainted and repainted. I had to have my staff repaint that wall 13 times; that's how many times he wanted that wall repainted.

And there was an issue with the wall in general. It had been repaired at some point, and the drywall had been -- what's the word I'm looking for? There had been a big leak, so half the drywall had been taken out and put back in. Well, unless you do drywall over the whole wall, then whenever you paint, you're going to still see different textures. Does that make sense?

Q. Yes, ma'am.

A. He didn't understand that, and so he didn't understand why there was a difference in the textures.

I said, "Well, we can re-drywall the whole wall, but that's the only way you're not going to get that difference in the texture."

It wasn't bad; and it would have been covered with the pictures or whatever, but we had to paint the wall 13 times.

Q. And you mentioned there were things he was requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom, and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

WHEREUPON,

DIANA JACOBS

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your name, please?

A. Diana Jacobs.

Q. Ms. Jacobs, at any time during your life have you been an employee of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Yes.

Q. For what period of time were you employed?

A. 1990 to 2021.

Q. Are you retired?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you retired from the sheriff's office?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any employment related to law enforcement?

A. I was in the military for a brief stint, in 1980 to 1990. Oh, and I worked for the Collier County Sheriff's Office.

Q. Okay. I'm guessing over that period of time you held several roles with the sheriff's office. Is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. And what roles did you hold with the sheriff's office? You don't have to be chronological, but if you could tell me the last one last.

A. The last one last. Okay. I started out at the sheriff's office as a 911 dispatcher, worked my way up through the ranks and became a Telecommunicator Five, which is the most that you can get when you learn all of the positions within the sheriff's office.

I then got promoted to supervisor. Then I became a commander. Then I was transferred and went to work as the fleet manager. The fleet manager had retired, so I got put in charge of fleet.

Then I went to work as the risk manager of the sheriff's office. From there, I was promoted to bureau chief. And during my rein as bureau chief, I held a lot of different positions.

At one point I was in charge of support services: The CAD unit, fleet unit, evidence unit, property unit, like I said, building maintenance, capital projects, CAD GIS projects, and QA Specialist.

So pretty much the only area I didn't work at the sheriff's office was the jail.

Q. So your last position at the sheriff's office, your title was?

A. Bureau chief.

Q. And at all times were you a civilian employee with the sheriff's office, or were you a sworn officer?

A. I was a civilian employee, but I was a special risk. My retirement was special risk; because being in charge of evidence, the majority of the items that we handled were biohazard in nature.

Q. Understood. So which administrations did you work for in that time period?

A. All of it?

Q. Yes. Who did you start with, and who did you finish with?

A. Henry, Oelrich, Gainey, Darnell, Wise, Watson. I think that's it.

Q. So, I guess, what I'd like to start with is -- because we've spoken briefly before this happened. Was your treatment as an employee under the Watson administration prior to retirement different than your treatment as an employee under the former administrations?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. In what way?

A. The encounters were very hostile in nature, just, you know, butting heads. We had a lot of conflict. He didn't like what I had to say a lot of times.

As I said, my responsibilities put me in daily contact with his office until Ms. Judd -- until Daniel Judd got there. So I was in his office so often that the secretaries were like, "We're just moving you out of your office and putting you in here." I mean, that's how often I was in that office.

And a lot of my responsibilities were whenever he came into term was the transition itself, and he wanted a lot of things done. And some things were possible, some things weren't. Some things were budget, some things weren't.

Q. Can you give me some examples? You said some things were possible, some things weren't. Can you give me an example of each?

A. Yes. He started what was called the Beautification Project at the sheriff's office, which he wanted signs put up all over the sheriff's office -- not just at the sheriff's office, but out at the jail, all the substations -- with his name, which is fine. You know, that's not an issue, but he -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, there is -- one of the biggest things or the conflicts that we had is that there's -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, by the records unit, there's this large wall. It's called "The Sheriffs Wall," and it has a picture of all the sheriffs on there, all the previous sheriffs from way back when.

One of the first -- one of the conflicts was the fact that he didn't want Sheriff Darnell's picture up there. So we went -- well, she is sheriff. She was a sheriff. You know, her face should be up there.

And -- but the wall itself is a large wall. It's 176 inches. And he wanted all the items moved from that wall to a wall that was 152 inches, and it just wouldn't fit. And I kept explaining to him that all the pictures would not fit within that space, and he got very upset.

I mean, I think I met with him four or five times about this and tried to give him different examples where we can put the pictures different lengths, heights, but I just -- his words, "I just want my damned wall."

I said, "I'm trying to get you your damned wall, but it's going from 172 to 152 inches. I don't have 16 other inches."

He just didn't understand, like, logistically how things worked, or he didn't like to hear them.

And we finally were able to modify the pictures, and he wanted the wall painted and repainted and repainted. I had to have my staff repaint that wall 13 times; that's how many times he wanted that wall repainted.

And there was an issue with the wall in general. It had been repaired at some point, and the drywall had been -- what's the word I'm looking for? There had been a big leak, so half the drywall had been taken out and put back in. Well, unless you do drywall over the whole wall, then whenever you paint, you're going to still see different textures. Does that make sense?

Q. Yes, ma'am.

A. He didn't understand that, and so he didn't understand why there was a difference in the textures.

I said, "Well, we can re-drywall the whole wall, but that's the only way you're not going to get that difference in the texture."

It wasn't bad; and it would have been covered with the pictures or whatever, but we had to paint the wall 13 times.

Q. And you mentioned there were things he was requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom,

and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

WHEREUPON,

DIANA JACOBS

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your name, please?

A. Diana Jacobs.

Q. Ms. Jacobs, at any time during your life have you been an employee of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office?

A. Yes.

Q. For what period of time were you employed?

A. 1990 to 2021.

Q. Are you retired?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you retired from the sheriff's office?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any employment related to law enforcement?

A. I was in the military for a brief stint, in 1980 to 1990. Oh, and I worked for the Collier County Sheriff's Office.

Q. Okay. I'm guessing over that period of time you held several roles with the sheriff's office. Is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. And what roles did you hold with the sheriff's office? You don't have to be chronological, but if you could tell me the last one last.

A. The last one last. Okay. I started out at the sheriff's office as a 911 dispatcher, worked my way up through the ranks and became a Telecommunicator Five, which is the most that you can get when you learn all of the positions within the sheriff's office.

I then got promoted to supervisor. Then I became a commander. Then I was transferred and went to work as the fleet manager. The fleet manager had retired, so I got put in charge of fleet.

Then I went to work as the risk manager of the sheriff's office. From there, I was promoted to bureau chief. And during my rein as bureau chief, I held a lot of different positions.

At one point I was in charge of support services: The CAD unit, fleet unit, evidence unit, property unit, like I said, building maintenance, capital projects, CAD GIS projects, and QA Specialist.

So pretty much the only area I didn't work at the sheriff's office was the jail.

Q. So your last position at the sheriff's office, your title was?

A. Bureau chief.

Q. And at all times were you a civilian employee with the sheriff's office, or were you a sworn officer?

A. I was a civilian employee, but I was a special risk. My retirement was special risk; because being in charge of evidence, the majority of the items that we handled were biohazard in nature.

Q. Understood. So which administrations did you work for in that time period?

A. All of it?

Q. Yes. Who did you start with, and who did you finish with?

A. Henry, Oelrich, Gainey, Darnell, Wise, Watson. I think that's it.

Q. So, I guess, what I'd like to start with is -- because we've spoken briefly before this happened. Was your treatment as an employee under the Watson administration prior to retirement different than your treatment as an employee under the former administrations?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. In what way?

A. The encounters were very hostile in nature, just, you know, butting heads. We had a lot of conflict. He didn't like what I had to say a lot of times.

As I said, my responsibilities put me in daily contact with his office until Ms. Judd -- until Daniel Judd got there. So I was in his office so often that the secretaries were like, "We're just moving you out of your office and putting you in here." I mean, that's how often I was in that office.

And a lot of my responsibilities were whenever he came into term was the transition itself, and he wanted a lot of things done. And some things were possible, some things weren't. Some things were budget, some things weren't.

Q. Can you give me some examples? You said some things were possible, some things weren't. Can you give me an example of each?

A. Yes. He started what was called the Beautification Project at the sheriff's office, which he wanted signs put up all over the sheriff's office -- not just at the sheriff's office, but out at the jail, all the substations -- with his name, which is fine. You know, that's not an issue, but he -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, there is -- one of the biggest things or the conflicts that we had is that there's -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, by the records unit, there's this large wall. It's called "The Sheriffs Wall," and it has a picture of all the sheriffs on there, all the previous sheriffs from way back when.

One of the first -- one of the conflicts was the fact that he didn't want Sheriff Darnell's picture up there. So we went -- well, she is sheriff. She was a sheriff. You know, her face should be up there.

And -- but the wall itself is a large wall. It's 176 inches. And he wanted all the items moved from that wall to a wall that was 152 inches, and it just wouldn't fit. And I kept explaining to him that all the pictures would not fit within that space, and he got very upset.

I mean, I think I met with him four or five times about this and tried to give him different examples where we can put the pictures different lengths, heights, but I just -- his words, "I just want my damned wall."

I said, "I'm trying to get you your damned wall, but it's going from 172 to 152 inches. I don't have 16 other inches."

He just didn't understand, like, logistically how things worked, or he didn't like to hear them.

And we finally were able to modify the pictures, and he wanted the wall painted and repainted and repainted. I had to have my staff repaint that wall 13 times; that's how many times he wanted that wall repainted.

And there was an issue with the wall in general. It had been repaired at some point, and the drywall had been -- what's the word I'm looking for? There had been a big leak, so half the drywall had been taken out and put back in. Well, unless you do drywall over the whole wall, then whenever you paint, you're going to still see different textures. Does that make sense?

Q. Yes, ma'am.

A. He didn't understand that, and so he didn't understand why there was a difference in the textures.

I said, "Well, we can re-drywall the whole wall, but that's the only way you're not going to get that difference in the texture."

It wasn't bad; and it would have been covered with the pictures or whatever, but we had to paint the wall 13 times.

Q. And you mentioned there were things he was requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom,

and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

you held several roles with the sheriff's office. Is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. And what roles did you hold with the sheriff's office? You don't have to be chronological, but if you could tell me the last one last.

A. The last one last. Okay. I started out at the sheriff's office as a 911 dispatcher, worked my way up through the ranks and became a Telecommunicator Five, which is the most that you can get when you learn all of the positions within the sheriff's office.

I then got promoted to supervisor. Then I became a commander. Then I was transferred and went to work as the fleet manager. The fleet manager had retired, so I got put in charge of fleet.

Then I went to work as the risk manager of the sheriff's office. From there, I was promoted to bureau chief. And during my rein as bureau chief, I held a lot of different positions.

At one point I was in charge of support services: The CAD unit, fleet unit, evidence unit, property unit, like I said, building maintenance, capital projects, CAD GIS projects, and QA Specialist.

So pretty much the only area I didn't work at the sheriff's office was the jail.

Q. So your last position at the sheriff's office, your title was?

A. Bureau chief.

Q. And at all times were you a civilian employee with the sheriff's office, or were you a sworn officer?

A. I was a civilian employee, but I was a special risk. My retirement was special risk; because being in charge of evidence, the majority of the items that we handled were biohazard in nature.

Q. Understood. So which administrations did you work for in that time period?

A. All of it?

Q. Yes. Who did you start with, and who did you finish with?

A. Henry, Oelrich, Gainey, Darnell, Wise, Watson. I think that's it.

Q. So, I guess, what I'd like to start with is -- because we've spoken briefly before this happened. Was your treatment as an employee under the Watson administration prior to retirement different than your treatment as an employee under the former administrations?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. In what way?

A. The encounters were very hostile in nature, just, you know, butting heads. We had a lot of conflict. He didn't like what I had to say a lot of times.

As I said, my responsibilities put me in daily contact with his office until Ms. Judd -- until Daniel Judd got there. So I was in his office so often that the secretaries were like, "We're just moving you out of your office and putting you in here." I mean, that's how often I was in that office.

And a lot of my responsibilities were whenever he came into term was the transition itself, and he wanted a lot of things done. And some things were possible, some things weren't. Some things were budget, some things weren't.

Q. Can you give me some examples? You said some things were possible, some things weren't. Can you give me an example of each?

A. Yes. He started what was called the Beautification Project at the sheriff's office, which he wanted signs put up all over the sheriff's office -- not just at the sheriff's office, but out at the jail, all the substations -- with his name, which is fine. You know, that's not an issue, but he -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, there is -- one of the biggest things or the conflicts that we had is that there's -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, by the records unit, there's this large wall. It's called "The Sheriffs Wall," and it has a picture of all the sheriffs on there, all the previous sheriffs from way back when.

One of the first -- one of the conflicts was the fact that he didn't want Sheriff Darnell's picture up there. So we went -- well, she is sheriff. She was a sheriff. You know, her face should be up there.

And -- but the wall itself is a large wall. It's 176 inches. And he wanted all the items moved from that wall to a wall that was 152 inches, and it just wouldn't fit. And I kept explaining to him that all the pictures would not fit within that space, and he got very upset.

I mean, I think I met with him four or five times about this and tried to give him different examples where we can put the pictures different lengths, heights, but I just -- his words, "I just want my damned wall."

I said, "I'm trying to get you your damned wall, but it's going from 172 to 152 inches. I don't have 16 other inches."

He just didn't understand, like, logistically how things worked, or he didn't like to hear them.

And we finally were able to modify the pictures, and he wanted the wall painted and repainted and repainted. I had to have my staff repaint that wall 13 times; that's how many times he wanted that wall repainted.

And there was an issue with the wall in general. It had been repaired at some point, and the drywall had been -- what's the word I'm looking for? There had been a big leak, so half the drywall had been taken out and put back in. Well, unless you do drywall over the whole wall, then whenever you paint, you're going to still see different textures. Does that make sense?

Q. Yes, ma'am.

A. He didn't understand that, and so he didn't understand why there was a difference in the textures.

I said, "Well, we can re-drywall the whole wall, but that's the only way you're not going to get that difference in the texture."

It wasn't bad; and it would have been covered with the pictures or whatever, but we had to paint the wall 13 times.

Q. And you mentioned there were things he was requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom,

and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

the sheriff's office was the jail.

Q. So your last position at the sheriff's office, your title was?

A. Bureau chief.

Q. And at all times were you a civilian employee with the sheriff's office, or were you a sworn officer?

A. I was a civilian employee, but I was a special risk. My retirement was special risk; because being in charge of evidence, the majority of the items that we handled were biohazard in nature.

Q. Understood. So which administrations did you work for in that time period?

A. All of it?

Q. Yes. Who did you start with, and who did you finish with?

A. Henry, Oelrich, Gainey, Darnell, Wise, Watson. I think that's it.

Q. So, I guess, what I'd like to start with is -- because we've spoken briefly before this happened. Was your treatment as an employee under the Watson administration prior to retirement different than your treatment as an employee under the former administrations?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. In what way?

A. The encounters were very hostile in nature, just, you know, butting heads. We had a lot of conflict. He didn't like what I had to say a lot of times.

As I said, my responsibilities put me in daily contact with his office until Ms. Judd -- until Daniel Judd got there. So I was in his office so often that the secretaries were like, "We're just moving you out of your office and putting you in here." I mean, that's how often I was in that office.

And a lot of my responsibilities were whenever he came into term was the transition itself, and he wanted a lot of things done. And some things were possible, some things weren't. Some things were budget, some things weren't.

Q. Can you give me some examples? You said some things were possible, some things weren't. Can you give me an example of each?

A. Yes. He started what was called the Beautification Project at the sheriff's office, which he wanted signs put up all over the sheriff's office -- not just at the sheriff's office, but out at the jail, all the substations -- with his name, which is fine. You know, that's not an issue, but he -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, there is -- one of the biggest things or the conflicts that we had is that there's -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, by the records unit, there's this large wall. It's called "The Sheriffs Wall," and it has a picture of all the sheriffs on there, all the previous sheriffs from way back when.

One of the first -- one of the conflicts was the fact that he didn't want Sheriff Darnell's picture up there. So we went -- well, she is sheriff. She was a sheriff. You know, her face should be up there.

And -- but the wall itself is a large wall. It's 176 inches. And he wanted all the items moved from that wall to a wall that was 152 inches, and it just wouldn't fit. And I kept explaining to him that all the pictures would not fit within that space, and he got very upset.

I mean, I think I met with him four or five times about this and tried to give him different examples where we can put the pictures different lengths, heights, but I just -- his words, "I just want my damned wall."

I said, "I'm trying to get you your damned wall, but it's going from 172 to 152 inches. I don't have 16 other inches."

He just didn't understand, like, logistically how things worked, or he didn't like to hear them.

And we finally were able to modify the pictures, and he wanted the wall painted and repainted and repainted. I had to have my staff repaint that wall 13 times; that's how many times he wanted that wall repainted.

And there was an issue with the wall in general. It had been repaired at some point, and the drywall had been -- what's the word I'm looking for? There had been a big leak, so half the drywall had been taken out and put back in. Well, unless you do drywall over the whole wall, then whenever you paint, you're going to still see different textures. Does that make sense?

Q. Yes, ma'am.

A. He didn't understand that, and so he didn't understand why there was a difference in the textures.

I said, "Well, we can re-drywall the whole wall, but that's the only way you're not going to get that difference in the texture."

It wasn't bad; and it would have been covered with the pictures or whatever, but we had to paint the wall 13 times.

Q. And you mentioned there were things he was requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom,

and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

Q. In what way?

A. The encounters were very hostile in nature, just, you know, butting heads. We had a lot of conflict. He didn't like what I had to say a lot of times.

As I said, my responsibilities put me in daily contact with his office until Ms. Judd -- until Daniel Judd got there. So I was in his office so often that the secretaries were like, "We're just moving you out of your office and putting you in here." I mean, that's how often I was in that office.

And a lot of my responsibilities were whenever he came into term was the transition itself, and he wanted a lot of things done. And some things were possible, some things weren't. Some things were budget, some things weren't.

Q. Can you give me some examples? You said some things were possible, some things weren't. Can you give me an example of each?

A. Yes. He started what was called the Beautification Project at the sheriff's office, which he wanted signs put up all over the sheriff's office -- not just at the sheriff's office, but out at the jail, all the substations -- with his name, which is fine. You know, that's not an issue, but he -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, there is -- one of the biggest things or the conflicts that we had is that there's -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, by the records unit, there's this large wall. It's called "The Sheriffs Wall," and it has a picture of all the sheriffs on there, all the previous sheriffs from way back when.

One of the first -- one of the conflicts was the fact that he didn't want Sheriff Darnell's picture up there. So we went -- well, she is sheriff. She was a sheriff. You know, her face should be up there.

And -- but the wall itself is a large wall. It's 176 inches. And he wanted all the items moved from that wall to a wall that was 152 inches, and it just wouldn't fit. And I kept explaining to him that all the pictures would not fit within that space, and he got very upset.

I mean, I think I met with him four or five times about this and tried to give him different examples where we can put the pictures different lengths, heights, but I just -- his words, "I just want my damned wall."

I said, "I'm trying to get you your damned wall, but it's going from 172 to 152 inches. I don't have 16 other inches."

He just didn't understand, like, logistically how things worked, or he didn't like to hear them.

And we finally were able to modify the pictures, and he wanted the wall painted and repainted and repainted. I had to have my staff repaint that wall 13 times; that's how many times he wanted that wall repainted.

And there was an issue with the wall in general. It had been repaired at some point, and the drywall had been -- what's the word I'm looking for? There had been a big leak, so half the drywall had been taken out and put back in. Well, unless you do drywall over the whole wall, then whenever you paint, you're going to still see different textures. Does that make sense?

Q. Yes, ma'am.

A. He didn't understand that, and so he didn't understand why there was a difference in the textures.

I said, "Well, we can re-drywall the whole wall, but that's the only way you're not going to get that difference in the texture."

It wasn't bad; and it would have been covered with the pictures or whatever, but we had to paint the wall 13 times.

Q. And you mentioned there were things he was requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom,

and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, there is -- one of the biggest things or the conflicts that we had is that there's -- whenever you walk into the sheriff's office, by the records unit, there's this large wall. It's called "The Sheriffs Wall," and it has a picture of all the sheriffs on there, all the previous sheriffs from way back when.

One of the first -- one of the conflicts was the fact that he didn't want Sheriff Darnell's picture up there. So we went -- well, she is sheriff. She was a sheriff. You know, her face should be up there.

And -- but the wall itself is a large wall. It's 176 inches. And he wanted all the items moved from that wall to a wall that was 152 inches, and it just wouldn't fit. And I kept explaining to him that all the pictures would not fit within that space, and he got very upset.

I mean, I think I met with him four or five times about this and tried to give him different examples where we can put the pictures different lengths, heights, but I just -- his words, "I just want my damned wall."

I said, "I'm trying to get you your damned wall, but it's going from 172 to 152 inches. I don't have 16 other inches."

He just didn't understand, like, logistically how things worked, or he didn't like to hear them.

And we finally were able to modify the pictures, and he wanted the wall painted and repainted and repainted. I had to have my staff repaint that wall 13 times; that's how many times he wanted that wall repainted.

And there was an issue with the wall in general. It had been repaired at some point, and the drywall had been -- what's the word I'm looking for? There had been a big leak, so half the drywall had been taken out and put back in. Well, unless you do drywall over the whole wall, then whenever you paint, you're going to still see different textures. Does that make sense?

Q. Yes, ma'am.

A. He didn't understand that, and so he didn't understand why there was a difference in the textures.

I said, "Well, we can re-drywall the whole wall, but that's the only way you're not going to get that difference in the texture."

It wasn't bad; and it would have been covered with the pictures or whatever, but we had to paint the wall 13 times.

Q. And you mentioned there were things he was requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom,

and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

He just didn't understand, like, logistically how things worked, or he didn't like to hear them.

And we finally were able to modify the pictures, and he wanted the wall painted and repainted and repainted. I had to have my staff repaint that wall 13 times; that's how many times he wanted that wall repainted.

And there was an issue with the wall in general. It had been repaired at some point, and the drywall had been -- what's the word I'm looking for? There had been a big leak, so half the drywall had been taken out and put back in. Well, unless you do drywall over the whole wall, then whenever you paint, you're going to still see different textures. Does that make sense?

Q. Yes, ma'am.

A. He didn't understand that, and so he didn't understand why there was a difference in the textures.

I said, "Well, we can re-drywall the whole wall, but that's the only way you're not going to get that difference in the texture."

It wasn't bad; and it would have been covered with the pictures or whatever, but we had to paint the wall 13 times.

Q. And you mentioned there were things he was requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom,

and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

requesting out of budget. What is an example of that?

A. The entire Beautification Project was all out of budget.

Q. When you say "out of the budget," do you mean it exceeded the budget that was available, or there was no budget for this?

A. There was no budget for it.

Q. Okay.

A. In fact, Patty Judd, the chief financial officer, she had to create a separate line item that was titled "The Beautification Project" because he didn't just want simple things like that one wall. He wanted new stars. He wanted his name on the side of the building.

At the time that we were in the midst of this, one of my capital projects was we were repainting the entire administration building. That was a project that I'd been working on for three or four years. And it wasn't just the admin building. It was the admin building, the fleet building, and the 911 center.

And he wanted his name on the side of the building, and he wanted his name to be larger than the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office"; but you only have a certain amount of real estate to put different things, and he wanted his name to be 24 inches versus the 20 inches of the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Well, his name is very long because he wants the entirety of it spelled out, including periods, the colons, etc.

So I explained to him that if you remove the letters from the wall, which had to be done in order to move all of that up to include his name -- I know this sounds really boring. I'm sorry. But the way that the letters are put in the wall, they're sautered in with rebar. It's not a simple fix. It isn't as if it's a magnet on a refrigerator that you just have to move around. You have to take everything off and then move it up. And he was insistent that that was not the case.

I'm like, "No, that is the case. I've done this for 20 years. This is the case."

So we painted the entirety of the admin office, and then he wanted his name moved, wanted his name put in there. So we ordered the letters. I don't remember how much it cost off the top of my head.

He was insistent that he wanted a particular size star and it to look like a particular star, not just a regular sheriff's office star. So he took me to an area of the sheriff's office and asked me to duplicate a specific 36-inch star.

So I had the draft put in and had it mapped out to 36 inches, and then he approved that design. And not only did he approve it, he -- because we had a lot of conflict where he would say that he had said something or did approve or didn't approve something; so I had gotten in the habit of asking him to initial and date what he approved, and he approved the star to be placed there.

And so we went ahead and ordered it. I believe it was $2,800 because it was a custom design; but whenever we went to move the letters, it did exactly what I said it was going to do. The concrete came off the wall, and there were holes that were bigger than my fist all throughout that area of the sheriff's office. He had a fit, and he was very upset and very agitated.

And I explained to him this is exactly what I said was going to happen. That's the reason why I didn't want to do this right now.

So I contacted a concrete mason that I work with up in High Springs. He came over on a Saturday, redid the concrete. Then came back on Sunday -- because the concrete had to cure, he came back on Sunday and sanded the concrete.

And then I had the painting company come back. We got the letters the way that he wanted the letters after about, you know, five or six times of just trying to place them in different areas to his satisfaction.

And so, in order for us to get the letters on, we were able to mount them again, and then the painting company had to come back in. So this was an additional expense for the painting company because they had already painted the building. I mean, it was outside now of their scope of work, if that makes any sense, so it was extra.

So in order for them to protect the letters, we had to tape every single one of those letters with painter's tape so that the new paint wouldn't get on the letters.

Well, we did that to protect the letters, and he got very upset and said it was unacceptable because I had used blue painter's tape. So I had to take all the tape off.

So we went ahead and did that, and then he wanted the tape -- this was all the same day -- put back on at 5:30 after close of business in order to prep for the painters. My staff stayed until probably

6:30 or 7:00 that night to re-tape the letters with the same blue tape. And then, because they didn't want to pay for actual new letters, we had to hand paint all of the letters.

So we finally got it up. I ordered the sign, like I said, or the star. I believe it was 25, 2,600 dollars. And it finally came in, and I took it to the undersheriff, to Chief of Staff Judd, the secretaries. They all thought it looked really nice.

We went to mount the star, and he said it was not the star that he ordered.

And I said, "It's exactly the star that you ordered," and I even showed him where he had approved it.

And he said I didn't know what I was talking about. I didn't listen. He wanted a different star. He wanted a star that was identical to the one on the Hawthorne Road sign.

So I don't know where that star is now. Whenever I left, it was still sitting in my office. So we had a lot of conflicts like this.

Q. In the course of those conflicts, did he ever refer to you in any manner that was inappropriate?

A. There was a couple times. We had -- and this was whenever he first started there. Probably within the first two or three weeks, one of his priorities was the Beautification Project. And so he took me around to different areas of the sheriff's office that he wanted, you know, improved upon.

And I guess he used to be a landscaper before he went into politics or anything like that, so he was explaining to me the trees he wanted. He wanted all the knock-out roses taken out, you know, an island put in at the memorial area.

But whenever we were first walking around the sheriff's office, I had told them that there was already a project in place to correct the directional signs on the interior of the sheriff's office. Whenever I say "directional signs," when you drive in the sheriff's office, there's little signs around the property that will say "Property area this way, deliveries this way, fleet this way."

And I explained to him that there was already a project in place, a P.O. had already been cut to replace all the directional signs; it happened before his arrival. Sheriff Darnell and Chief Huckstep had instructed me that they wanted those things replaced, touched up, you know, that kind of thing.

So the vendor contact -- and this was done -- because it takes months to get it done. So it was done, the P.O. was cut, and then the vendor contacted us and said that they were ready for pick-up. I had contacted the chief of staff, Danielle Judd, to let her know what time they were coming to install these things.

And she called me into the suite, in the sheriff's suite, and -- well, it was her office, and the sheriff was there. Sheriff Watson was there, and he was very visibly angry and asked why I thought I had the authority to order these signs, these directional signs.

I told him that I had explained to him, yeah, this had been put in place prior to him becoming sheriff. It had been -- the P.O. was cut under the previous administration, and it had nothing to do with him. His name wasn't on any of the directional signs. Sheriff Darnell's names wasn't on any of the signs.

And again, he was visibly angry, and he stated that I disrespected him by moving forward with that.

And I said, "Well, no, sir. I didn't even know you. I was instructed by my chain at that time to place this order."

And the chief of staff, Danielle, she'd only been there for about a week and a half, and she saw how angry he was. And she even told him, "Sheriff Watson, I've only worked with a Diana for a week, week and a half, but I can tell you she would not have done this unless somebody had told her to."

And I said, "I've got the emails that say that this was my instruction."

And he just kept reiterating that I had disrespected him by following those orders, and I kept trying to explain to him that it was prior to his time and tenure at that office.

And whenever I say he was visibly angry, he was holding onto the back of a chair so hard that whenever he left there was still fingerprints in the chair, and he was -- he was shaking. He was sweating. He was yelling. He was very angry.

Q. Did he use any language to refer to you that was inappropriate?

A. The only thing he said to me was -- he told Danielle, "Well, get up. I'm going to walk around with you, and maybe you'll know what I'm talking about because she doesn't. I can't stand to look at her right now."

And I said, "Okay."

And Danielle had just made the statement that -- she said, "I just need to run to the restroom,

and I'll be right there. Let me grab my notepad."

And he stated, "No, now."

Then he told me that he didn't want to look at me anymore. And Danielle -- as soon as he left, Danielle said, "Please, Diana, find that email that authorized this."

It took maybe five, ten minutes for me to find the email. And not only did I have written authority to make that purchase, but at that time Major Clark and Undersheriff Decoursey were in the email string. They were all carboned in the email string that said that this was going on, that that ship had sailed. The P.O. had already been cut under the previous administration. We couldn't stop production because they had already started the printing.

So that was one of my first encounters where he was really, really visibly angry.

Q. At any time has he ever used derogatory language towards you?

A. He's --

Q. Such as calling you inappropriate names?

A. Yeah, he called me a bitch.

Q. What are the circumstances that he used that language towards you?

A. We had gone to a new fuel system. One of the things that Sheriff Watson wanted done whenever he first got into office is -- our then vendor for fuel was Lewis Oil. And Sheriff Darnell, myself, and Chief Huckstep had worked for quite a long time to get Lewis Oil to be our fuel vendor because we wanted to stay local. They have a large practice, and they've always helped us out, whether they were our vendor, with like hurricanes and things like that. Even if they weren't our vendor, if we were running low on fuel, they would help us out.

Well, he was adamant upon the first week that he wanted to review the fuel contract with Lewis Oil. He stated that he didn't want the Lewis Oil contract anymore because they hung the wrong sign on their fence. They were an advocate for Sheriff Darnell. And he said that if they wanted to have the contract -- and it was a large contract -- that they should have had a different sign.

Anyway, long story short, we went to a few different fuel vendors. I believe it's Rapid Fuel, but I'm not certain. Anyway, it was a little bit more expensive than Lewis Oil, but not terribly so. It did offer us a lot of different locations within the state.

He would never use the Lewis Oil fob. He just -- he wouldn't. A fob is what they use to get fuel.

So we went through all of the contracts, etc., just elected a different fuel vendor. And we had to -- throughout the agency, we had to switch out everybody's fuel cards in order for them to work.

Well, the fuel cards work on a PIN. You know how that works. His PIN, he wanted it to be, you know, the number one for sheriff, which is fine; but because his number was so short, it required five zeros in front of it. It was 000001, and he knew that.

Well, one time he was in Alachua. It was on a Saturday, and apparently he was traveling to Tallahassee. And Danielle Judd called me on a Saturday, and she was very upset and said that the sheriff had tried to get fuel and couldn't get fuel, and he was up in Alachua, he was stranded, etc.

And I said, "Well, he must have used the wrong PIN. And I checked the PIN myself. I knew it worked. I had fueled up with it. I knew it worked.

So he had ordered her -- she was at Lowe's getting flowers or something. He ordered her to leave the flowers, get on the phone with me and figure out what was going on with his gas.

And she was talking to him on her personal cell phone and called me on the agency cell phone, and so I could hear what he was saying to her on the phone. And he was -- he was yelling at her. He was obviously very agitated. And he said that he didn't put the wrong PIN in, and this went back and forth.

He told me to go to the sheriff's office and -- you know, which is a drive for me. I live north of Lacrosse, so I knew he was going to be waiting for at least 35 minutes. So I told him to use my PIN to at least get gas to be able to go to Tallahassee.

He made the statement that I heard on the phone, "I don't want to use her damned PIN. You tell that bitch to fix my PIN."

And it turned out to be exactly what I thought it was, is he had put in the wrong PIN number. He had done one less zero, and it wound up canceling out the system. After you hit the error code so many times, it just won't work.

So he called me a bitch then that I heard him on the phone.

Q. While you're looking at that, was there ever any irregularities in the amount of fuel that the sheriff was using that you were aware of?

A. Only one time. One of the things that I did, being in charge of fleet, and I've done as long as I was in charge of fleet is, I always kept records every quarter of how much -- we actually run reports on how much mileage is being used by all the agency vehicles, the average miles per gallon. That's how we budget for fuel.

And so we have had occurrences in the past where the numbers did not add up for an employee's fuel. Their miles per gallon was significantly less than the average, you know, 19 miles per gallon average, or whatever, based on their speed. So we kept track of their odometers, how much they got gas, how much, you know, they were traveling, they're average speed, blah, blah, blah.

And whenever we went to the new fuel company, and we had a new fleet software, I ran a report. And his number -- his gas mileage was lower than an average by a significant amount. Well, it was a brand new vehicle, and so I wanted to make sure there was nothing wrong with the vehicle.

So I contacted the secretary, which was Tara Malone, and asked her to bring the vehicle over to fleet so that we could take a look because the mileage wasn't adding up. I think it showed he was getting like five to seven miles per gallon, which was a lot lower than the average vehicles.

So he did, and to my knowledge that's the only thing that I'm aware of.

Q. Would the miles per gallon -- were you able to determine that all of the fuel that he had purchased went into the vehicle? So those miles per gallon, if that fuel had been put into a separate container or put into a vehicle --

A. It wouldn't have shown.

Q. It wouldn't show that, but it would have caused the overall miles per gallon to be shown as lower?

A. Yes. And that's one of the reasons why we ran the report; not for him specifically, but we have had, especially during recessions and stuff like that, where, you know, deputies unfortunately have filled up their wife's vehicle, and they ended up getting like seven miles to the gallon.

That's one of the reasons why I run the report, is to make sure that it's fiscally responsible.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And is that only that one time?

A. In my experience, yes.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And were you involved in a meeting with Scott Shelpman and Michelle Clement and yourself and some other members of the administration to inform Scott's staff that no one was to access the sheriff's vehicle?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you explain what happened there?
A. Yes. The sheriff was very particular about his vehicle, and it took us a long time to get those vehicles. And apparently, the radio within the sheriff's vehicle -- I'm trying to remember this exactly.

The radio within the sheriff's vehicle needed to have an upgrade done. And so, rather than ask the sheriff to take his vehicle over to get it done, I believe it was Shelpman and fleet had contacted the secretary and verified if the sheriff was going to be going anywhere so that they could have 15 to 20 minutes.
Q. We actually -- because we're running out of time, I kind of need to finish up. Was there -- so we're aware of what the content of the meeting was.

In your mind, was that an unusual action on the part of the sheriff based on your history and experience with other sheriffs?

A. Yes. He made the statement that he believed that we may have altered his vehicle in some way. And then he went to our fleet department and retrieved all of his agency keys, which is very unusual because we always keep a spare vehicle key.

Q. And also, was there anything unusual about the type of vehicle that was purchased for the sheriff?

A. Yes, he purchased High Country vehicles.

Q. Is that not within the normal operating procedures of the sheriff's office?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Why is it not?

A. It's a very expensive vehicle, and he was -- he and the undersheriff were very specific about the type of vehicles that they wanted. They wanted all-black Tahoes with black interiors, and they wanted High Countries. Well, that in itself is a limited vehicle, but he wanted them to have no sunroofs, which are all-custom vehicles. So it took us a long time to get the vehicle.

They're expensive vehicles. They're several thousand dollars more than what we would normally pay for a Tahoe; I couldn't tell you the exact difference.

But upon arrival of the vehicle -- we pretty much got the only two in the state -- he had us remove the words "High Country" off of it because he stated that he didn't want the citizens to think that he was not being frugally responsible, or fiscally responsible, and didn't want them to know that they were High Country vehicles.

Q. Was there ever a time when the sheriff directed that the uniforms that the deputies wear be altered to remove the word "sheriff"?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in that?

A. Yes, it was my department.

Q. And did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain what happened?

A. We had ordered all new uniforms for the sheriff's office; they were covers, and whenever we ordered them they had the words "Alachua County Sheriff's Office," or "Deputy Sheriff," I believe it said. That's the way that we ordered them.

So whenever they started arriving, he didn't like the fact that they had the word "sheriff" on them. And he stated that he was the only sheriff, and he wanted them sent back and the word "sheriff" removed.

Q. Did that occur?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that cause additional expense?

A. I believe so, but I'm not 100 percent certain on that. You would have to check with actual A and B on that, fiscal, because we may have worked out something with the uniform company like if you do this, we'll be able to modify this.

I don't remember off the top of my head if it cost us more money. It cost us a lot more time because we had to re-issue all the uniforms, but he did not want anyone else to have the word "sheriff" on their uniform.

Q. Was that true with vehicles also, or was that only with the uniforms?

A. Uniforms.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Let's go back to the Beautification Project. You said that he came in, he created this project, and it was out of budget. It had not been budgeted, so you had to create a line item for this.

Where did the money -- usually when you do that, you've got to get the money from some other line item budget. Where did the money come from to do what he did?

A. I don't know. I was just told that, I believe it was, either 50 or 75,000 dollars that had been put into that account.

During the whole Beautification Project, whenever I say he wanted his name on his everything, he and I had a conflict because he wanted his name on the courthouse. I told him, "You can't have it on the courthouse. It's not your building. You can have it like where the civil department is or our particular bailiff areas for the criminal courthouse and the civil courthouse," but he was insistent he wanted it on the actual courthouses. And so we had a disagreement about that.

The retiree wall was a whole different project.

Q. Did they use the whole 75,00 as far as you know --

A. No. No, at least not whenever I was still there.

Q. Do you recall how much of it was used?

A. No, not off the top of my head because shortly after the whole -- where he was walking me around, he wanted these plants puts in, and I had to figure out different landscaping, I called different landscapers and all of that. An OIC came out shortly thereafter that said to immediately cease and desist the Beautification Project.

And I'm like, okay, that was fine with me, but it was -- it was opposite of what he had just instructed me to do, actually, within the same day.

Q. Okay.

A. The only thing -- I know that I'm running short with you, but I'll make this quick. Within his first week of office he asked me to hire a company to go in and search for listening devices at the administration building. Then it came back with a negative report, and he did not trust that report and then hired a different company to come in and specifically look for listening devices.

Q. Do you recall the cost associated with those companies?

A. No.

Q. Would those be invoices that would have been invoiced to the sheriff's office?

A. The first company was DKI, and Jonathan is the owner. I had a relationship. They had done a lot of work for us. I was able to call him and say, "Hey, this is what we're doing."

I don't remember who the second company was.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Thank you so much. We appreciate your time.

WHEREUPON,

GEORGE CORINE

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your full name?

A. George John Corine.

Q. Mr. Corine, we're here again for continuation of our prior interview after the interview in which we ran out of time due to our scheduling and not really understanding the full breath of the information that you had.

Did you have an opportunity to review the questions that were asked by me and the officers to you during the interview?

A. I did.

Q. And thinking it through, were there other instances that would have been responsive to our questions that you didn't have an opportunity to provide?

A. Yes. And then I think there were some other things that -- notes were made, but we had skipped back and forth. We were moving forward and back and forward and back in time, and I don't know if I discussed them or not. If I did, I apologize. It would be a duplicate.

Q. That's fine.

A. But if not --

Q. Where would you prefer to start? You want to start with things that you're concerned about that we just skipped over, or do you want to start with more -- the question, I believe, was, is there anything that occurred at the sheriff's office that was illegal, unethical, or immoral that you observed that you could tell us about, and I think that might be the area where there were additional responses.

A. Yeah. I think the other -- the things that I have highlighted here may just clean up my previous notes.

Q. All right. Let's start with that.

A. And again, I don't know if I got these things on the record last time.

One of my notes that I had made that nothing can be decided until the sheriff has made final decision. So it seems as if he is the sole decision maker, and nobody in the chain of command has the ability to make any types of decisions.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did you get that from him?

A. That's just the perception.

And let me say that we have forms that, obviously, go up to certain levels, and some of the forms go to the sheriff. For instance, if you have a -- if you win a prize, for example -- I'm sure you guys have heard of SWAT Roundup.

We had an incident where a couple of guys won some rifles at SWAT Roundup, and guns, which I'm sure you're familiar always happens. And history has always been when that item comes back, that the sheriff has allowed the person to keep it. We fill out a form that basically says, "Hey, I received this as essentially gratuity. What do you want to do with it?" and history had always been ever since I've been there that the employee was just allowed to keep it.

Those forms sat for months and months and months, and we continuously asked and asked and asked; and the paper was never being processed, which seemed to be the history of things like secondary employment forms.

In other words, I work for Home Depot. I have to fill out a form saying I work for Home Depot, I work five to ten hours a week. You know, it doesn't conflict, I won't be doing any law enforcement action, blah, blah, blah, and it gets approved all the way up to the sheriff. Those type of forms just sit.

It's like there's a neglect to fill those forms out and get them back to people, especially when it comes to the folks that live in reduced rent apartments; because those reduced rent apartments are really considered secondary employment, and now we have people who come back and fill out the form, say, "Hey, I have this secondary employment. I live at ABC Apartment Complex," and those forms never get processed.

Lately -- I've been gone, but lately -- I'm sure you guys can follow up with it -- some secondary employment has been approved, but it's been very sporadic; and then others, it's been straight-up denied. And those denials have come on the backs of years and years and years of approval.

In other words, I might be teaching at the academy. I taught at the academy for 15 years, let's say, and then all of a sudden this year it's a denial for no reason, and there's no reason given.

Q. Is that detrimental to the functioning of the sheriff's office?

A. The academy, absolutely, because we have an agreement with the academy that we're going to provide people to teach the recruits.

Q. Well, maybe I'm being too obtuse. If employees are being mistreated and treated very differently than they have been by prior administrations without any explanation, does that create an environment where employees are likely to remain?

A. Absolutely not. What happens is too often -- I'm sure you guys are aware that law enforcement salaries are not that high, and almost everybody has got some sort of secondary employment whether it be at the academy or whether they have a business. Like we have several folks that have lawn maintain businesses, you know, and they thrive on those businesses, especially during the summer months when grass cutting is frequent. And when those forms aren't being approved, then you get into a situation where am I allowed to continue my business that I invested all this capital in, or what do I need to do? Do I need to quit and just move on?

And I'm sure if you pull the vacancy rate, the FT vacancies on January 5th of 2021, you pull the FT vacancy rate as of today, you'll see that they're vastly different.

Q. Just so I understand, do those supplemental employment forms have to be yearly?

A. They do.

Q. So even if you've had the same position for years and years, it has to be approved every year?

A. Every calendar year.

Q. Is it October 1? January 1?

A. January 1, if my memory recalls. I think it's January 1.

Q. Would your understanding be, there would be individuals who would resubmit after January 1 and would not get an answer for five, six, seven months?

A. Lengthy amounts of times or outright denials with no excuse, or no response, really. And, you know, the academy relies on those folks to teach recruits.

Q. Right.

A. I do believe we discussed that it could be found in one of the audio recordings that the undersheriff said that nothing is final until it's in green ink.

Q. Correct.

A. So that just kind of plays into that.

Q. And, also, I want to follow up on that issue. I want to make sure I understand what you're telling me, which is that -- and I'll use my organization as an example. We have -- I delegate control out to supervisors because I am physically incapable of making timely decisions in 20,000 cases of prosecution per year, and that is necessary for the proper functioning of the agency.

A. That is correct. I felt as if I had less decision-making authority as a major than I did as a lieutenant under the Darnell administration, which chokes the entire operation.

Q. So the same is true at the sheriff's office, and probably on a much larger scale than my organization. I have 135 employees, and the sheriff's office has how many employees?

A. About 960.

Q. Nine hundred sixty employees, and then essentially day-to-day decision making is being made by the sheriff?

A. Essentially.

Q. And that has prevented the sheriff's office's proper functioning because decision-making is delayed, and this -- what you've been talking about, this example of additional employment, is just maybe one example of delay.

A. It is one example, yes.

Q. And there are many others?

A. Right.

Q. And I don't know if you can speak to this, but is one of those examples, would it be assisting other agencies?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you aware during the time you were at the sheriff's office of a change in the decision-making process by which the sheriff's office decided whether or not to assist other agencies?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And if you could clarify. Does the sheriff's office have obligations, contractual and grant-oriented obligations, to provide assistance to regional agencies with equipment and expertise that those agencies would not have?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And could you explain what happened while you were there? What was the change from the prior administration? How did that affect things?

A. So operationally when I was the patrol support lieutenant, which was over all the special teams, Bradford County would call and say, "Hey, we've got an incident up here. We need the SWAT team."

So we're part of a region. The SWAT team is a regional team. There's funding that comes out of --

I can't remember the abbreviation, but it is -- there's funding that comes out. They fund some equipment, and that is really meant so that when Bradford County calls, or Union County folks that don't have a SWAT team, we go up there and we handle it.

And usually the protocol was, they would call. The captain would say, "Hey, Union County has a SWAT call-out." I would notify the SWAT guys, and then they would go.

The captain would then turn around and notify the chain upwards, "Hey, this is what's happened. I'm just kind of letting you know that Bradford County has called, or Union County has called, and they need the SWAT team."

That's been the practice for years. I mean, time was of the essence when you're talking about calling out a SWAT team. If we're not calling them for some preplanned event three days from now, then we don't have time to sit around and talk and have approval. It's go.

That completely changed under the Watson administration. He simply demanded that, in order for any asset to leave this county, that that sheriff that was requesting or that chief that was requesting the equipment called him first, which severely choked the response time.

So it was a complete spin. It was something we weren't used to, but he wanted the sheriff of Bradford County, Union County to call him and ask for the equipment before we were authorized.

Q. And what if he wasn't available?

A. (Shrugs shoulders.)

Q. You're holding up your hands and saying there's no answer for that?

A. There's no answer for that because we weren't authorized to proceed.

Q. So, for instance, just an instance that I was personally involved in was, there was an officer-involved shooting in Levy County, and they only have maybe four deputies on the road at any one time. I don't know if you're aware of this incident.

A. Correct.

Q. And when three of the officers were involved in a shooting, then they had no -- essentially, one deputy remaining on the road. They requested assistance from the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Would that assistance request have to go through the sheriff himself?

A. It would.

Q. Would you agree that under those circumstances where a county was essentially now --

A. Vacant.

Q. -- had no law enforcement available, that time is of the essence?

A. Yeah, it is essential. And I'll follow up with another example.

The two deputies that were shot in Gilchrist County under the Darnell administration. As soon as that happened, everybody started rolling. We rolled the command -- I mean, we had the mobile command bus. We had schedules done to start covering the county, and then we just started notifying the sheriff, "Hey, this is what we're doing. This is how we're taking care of them." It was almost the information was flowing upward rather than flowing downward.

And under the Watson administration it's completely immerse. It's not allowed to happen in that manner. And the folks who may call 911 in Gilchrist County, now that there's no deputies available, they rely on our assistance. And we have the resources to provide to Gilchrist County or to Union County that Union County or Gilchrist County doesn't otherwise have.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Let's go back to things that you may -- unless you wanted to follow up. I'm sorry.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Has he ever denied one of those requests that you know of?

A. Yes.

Q. Which one?

A. There was an incident where University of Florida had called and requested the use of the jail vans. There was something going on at the Reitz Union. I think Darren Baxley had called and requested the jail vans. Don't quote me. I think it was Darren Baxley, deputy chief. Sheriff Watson refused to let them utilize the jail vans.

All that is, is a transport function. It's not like we were sending personnel. You know, we send in a couple of people to operate the vans, but we weren't sending crowd management. We weren't getting involved with their business on campus. They were just simply asking for assistance because, again, the university, you know, they've only got 80 FTEs, you know, somewhere in there. They don't have the capacity to deal with 15 or 20 arrestees at the same time. It would impact them severely to have to deal with that, and we had the resources. I didn't understand what the purpose of withholding a jail van was.

Q. When you say impact severely, would that mean creating an unsafe environment for the remainder of the students and faculty on campus?

A. Potentially. I mean, it depends on how the incident goes. If you got all your guys on the incident tied up with 10-15, or arrestees, if you will, and then they need to focus their attention somewhere else, next thing you know, you divert your attention to the people that need to go. Now you have an unsafe number of officers with the arrestees; or do the officers stay with the arrestees, and now you've neglected this? You have to make a decision.

You've only got so many personnel. The jail van would have been very quick, easy. You bring the jail vans over, put them in the jail vans, pat them down, get them in there, at least hold them there for a few minutes or get them out of there, whatever they decided to do. It was a relatively simple request.

There was some issues surrounding the drug task force, which I'm sure you're aware of, and the sheriff not wanting anyone to operate in the county.

Q. Were you an employee of the sheriff's office at the time that the sheriff directed the removal of all the equipment from the drug task force?

A. No, but my understanding is it was done in the middle of the night under some covert operation, was the rumor.

Q. Correct. I just didn't know if you were personally involved.

A. I was not.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Were you there when Nassau County requested assistance on an officer-involved shooting, and it was denied?

A. Actually, yes. I believe I was.

Q. Do we know why?

A. I don't know why.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. But that denial would have come from the sheriff?

A. It come from the sheriff. No cop, working cop, like even coming up through the ranks, when they had something like that, would deny that type of assistance. Those are the things -- when things were choked, it chokes to the point where it doesn't -- it doesn't run efficiently.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And for the record, let me correct that. It may have been an officer-involved shooting, but actually the deputy had been shot; and they had a subject cornered, and they were asking for assistance from SWAT teams.

A. Correct. Correct.

MR. KRAMER: Anything further on what he's said so far?

THE WITNESS: One of the things that -- you know, you talk about assets. The SWAT team is one of them, but more frequently the helicopter is something that -- you know, we have an aviation unit. And folks in Putnam County and Columbia County, you know, they rely on that air support. You know, one helicopter there, arguably, is equivalent of 15 or 20 units on the ground.

Those requests were frequently -- we ran into problems where there would be a pursuit at, say, 2:00 in the morning, and they're calling and asking for our assistance. And then you have to make the decision, do I say, okay, go ahead and go, and then get chewed out the next day because they didn't -- because that sheriff didn't call our sheriff at 2:00 in the morning?

I mean, that's the type of slow-down we're talking about, to the point where you might as well not even send them at that point. It's almost rendering it useless.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And it's 2:00 in the morning. Is Sheriff Watson available to answer another sheriff's call?

A. I don't know. I never called him at 2:00 in the morning.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. You mentioned earlier about the funding. If I recall from my days with RDS --

A. RDSTF, yeah, that's it.

Q. Regional Domestic Security Task Force. That's where a lot of Alachua's money came from. Or I say a lot. That's basically --

A. A significant amount of money.

Q. They were given a lot of money to create those regional units in case of -- for the region.

A. Right.

Q. And that was the understanding, that the money is given to you, but you need to be available if the region needs you.

A. The BearCat. I believe the BearCat was portioned with RDSTF money; or a portion of it was purchased with it, and you know how expensive those are.

The bomb team is another RDSTF, you know.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Let me ask you this. Are these requests reduced in any way to writing, or would there be any evidence of the request existing at all?

A. Usually -- from my recollection, usually when something breaks off, it's a phone call saying, "We need SWAT."

Q. Let me ask you this --

A. There could be a Teletype follow-up, though. I don't know.

Q. Would there be text messaging? Like, for instance, might you send a text message to the sheriff "We've received request from Scott for SWAT in Union County"?

A. Oh, I'm sure, but I never really directly contacted the sheriff. That was the undersheriff. I would call him, the undersheriff. I mean, he would answer his phone.

Q. But if -- you would agree those communications would be records at the agency?

A. There should be records at the agency.

Q. But if those records were not being -- they may not be preserved.

A. They should be preserved. Because there was a point in time when we all got iPhones -- you get into the debate of the iPhone or the Android, right? The iPhone is a blue, which is MMS; and then you have the Android, which is an SMS message. From my understanding, the SMS messages are recorded through your carrier, but the MMS are not because they're run on data and not run on cellular.

Q. But if the sheriff didn't allow the recording devices on his phone, there would be no record of those requests being made to the sheriff, correct?

A. I know that the phone that I had had recording because that was all enabled by Scott Shelpman, if my memory serves me correctly.

Q. Understood. Let's move on to the next item that you were concerned that we had missed due to our time constraints.

A. We discussed briefly Michelle Shirfield last time. She had posted some items on Facebook that could be seen by some folks as slanted to one racial side, if you will. That was brought to Watson's attention, and our understanding is that she was given a corrective counseling for that. Nobody ever saw the corrective counseling.

And then the order was basically given, you know, for Facebook or for violations of social media, that was -- that was the -- what should be done, give them a corrective counseling and go through progressive discipline.

And I think there's a couple open cases right now -- or I don't know if they're open or closed.

So Frank Williams and Kevin Davis are under investigation, or open at the moment, for things that I think were far less controversial, and they were placed on admin suspension and been sitting at the house for months.

Q. And let me ask you because I don't know the answer to this. This individual -- and you said her name was Michelle?

A. Shirfield.

Q. Shirfield? Is she African American?

A. She is.

Q. And the posts that you're referencing, they were -- I don't know the posts. Were they racially inappropriate?

A. It was more of a supporting a racial position, and I believe Kevin Davis could speak more on that.

Q. Is it your understanding that a formal complaint was made either to her supervisor or to the office of professional standards so that discipline should have been initiated?

A. I told the sheriff directly about the violation, and Bobby Stafford told the sheriff directly about the violation.

Q. But as far as I understand -- and my understanding of discipline is developing -- is that the way the discipline would be initiated, it would be either through the office of professional standards or through her supervisor.

A. Correct.

Q. So you gave that information to the sheriff?

A. Correct.

Q. And your understanding is that no discipline was initiated; or if there was any discipline, it was informal in the form of a corrective counseling?

A. It was informal in the form of a corrective counseling, but nobody seen that. I'm sure if you pull her file you would either see a corrective counseling or not see a corrective counseling, but she reported directly to the sheriff.

Q. When someone receives corrective counseling, is it discipline?

A. It's considered informal discipline.

Q. But it should remain in the employee file for one year?

A. That's correct. Oftentimes it's not removed. You have to go back in there and say, hey, that needs to come out.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Do you know if Kevin Davis made a complaint about that to OPS or through the sheriff suite?

A. I don't think so because he had already known that it was brought to the attention of the sheriff and Bobby Stafford.

Q. Do you know about any complaint that Kevin Davis took to OPS?

A. I know he made a complaint. I don't remember what it surrounded; but I do remember him taking a complaint, and it was basically like disregarded.

Q. If somebody takes a complaint to OPS, should a case number be drawn?

A. Oh, absolutely, or they say this is really not -- there's a list of standards that OPS will investigate these certain things or as directed by the sheriff.

So they'll look at it, and they'll say we'll take and we're going to pull a case number, or they'll say we're going to defer it back to the division commander and let the employee supervisor handle it.

MR. KRAMER: Any other questions on that particular issue?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Thank you for the clarification. Was there anything else?

A. Did we discuss the bargaining process with the re-openers and the unfair labor practice?

Q. You did. You informed us that one of the reasons why you left the sheriff's office was that you advised them, essentially, that what they were doing was in violation of the National Labor Standards Act.

A. Oh, that's right. I gave you the form. Okay.

So I gave the set of text messages last time between the undersheriff and I.

Q. Yes.

A. The sergeants and lieutenants ratified their contract. The deputies did not ratify their contract. And there was an extended period of time; I don't recall the exact settlement dates, maybe July, August the following year. So we're talking about ten, eleven months later that ultimately we were going to go to a hearing at the sheriff's office.

And right before that began and the sheriff was coming to sit down and testify, if my memory serves me correctly, he wanted to have a discussion. And then that was ultimately settled, and a substantial check was written for attorney's fees. You may want to pull a copy of that.

Q. Who was the attorney that would have received the fees?

A. It would be the PBA.

Q. Would it be the PBA itself, or would it be paid directly to a particular attorney?

MS. WEBSTER: Do you want me to answer?

MR. KRAMER: No, you can tell him.

THE WITNESS: The check was written to the PBA.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. For the attorney's fees?

A. For the attorney's fees.

Q. Incurred because of the actions that you've already described in your previous testimony where the sheriff was essentially acting in violation of the National Labor Standards Act of essentially just refusing to negotiate in good faith.

A. That is correct. And that surrounded the take-home cars, which I believe we talked about last time.

Q. Correct.

A. All those things wrapped up.

Q. He withdrew all the articles. That's the phraseology you used.

A. Everything was TA'd. We were getting ready to go to a vote on Thursday and Friday. On Monday, October 18th, I got a call that he withdrew all the articles.

I said, "Wait a minute. We know this vote is coming. We can't do this."

I brought it to his attention, and the sheriff made the unilateral decision to pull that. I said, "You can't do that. You're going to refuse to sign a contract after it's already been agreed upon."

And in his text messages, which I presented to you last time, I was told that my interpretation was not consistent with the decision of the sheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Next.

A. We talked about the SWAT rifles.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Where are those rifles now, Major?

A. So those rifles were not given to the employee personally. They were issued to the employee that won them with the understanding that when they retire they will be able to keep them. That was the decision that was made, if my memory serves me correctly; but that's probably not in writing anywhere, I promise you that, because nothing hardly ever gets reduced to writing.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Well, they wouldn't have gone to the inventory? Doesn't every officer have an inventory?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And if they're not on the inventory, and they're in the officer's possession --

A. No, they're issued to the officer. They're going to be on the inventory.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. They were taken into the sheriff's office inventory and then issued to the officer that won it.

A. That's correct.

Did I touch on the fact that Watson will make a decision regardless whether it's against policy or procedure?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I think in general that was clear, but are there specific instances that you can reference that you didn't reference last time?

A. No. I just want to make sure I hit that --

Q. You did.

A. It's so frequent, though, that --

Q. What is the effect on the agency when the sheriff doesn't follow the agency's own policy?

A. Well, what it does is, it sets the tone of the only consistency is inconsistency, right? And when the sheriff isn't following his own policies and procedures, what message is that sending down to the troops?

It sends a horrible message down saying I don't have to follow policy and procedure, but I'm going to hold you to it; and when you aren't held to it, when you violate that, I'm going to write you up.

Q. Would it also lead people to the conclusion that -- wouldn't it also lead to the natural conclusion that if you follow a policy, that the sheriff might still discipline you or you might meet criticism or demotion or job problems because you followed policy that the sheriff no longer wants to have be the policy?

A. It's almost as if you're expected to think like him. And if it is any perceived disrespect or embarrassment, you're going to be talked to about it, if not hit with some sort of discipline.

We just had a recent case, the Glen Stanley internal investigation, which is closed -- which I suggest you pull a copy of that -- where the sheriff goes outside the disciplinary matrix.

We have a matrix that says this is Level Two, Level Three, Level Four or Five, and this is -- you know, you got a Level Two, you get this many points. This many points is from A to B, and he'll just add C in there.

Q. And in this particular investigation was it to the officer's detriment?

A. Yes.

Q. Is this recourse for the officer under those circumstances? Can the officer appeal that decision? Do they have -- do they enforce the matrix as it exists, or are they simply subject to the sheriff's rulings?

A. Only if they meet the standards set forth in the sheriff's board, which is greater than a two-day suspension. In this case it was one-day suspension, but they put the guy on 12 months of disciplinary probation. And I believe, if you go back and you look at what a Level Three violation is, 12 months of disciplinary probation is not allowed.

And then what you do when you put somebody on disciplinary probation is, the next time they wear the wrong color socks or doing something that's in violation, then they're not eligible for a career service board.

It's almost like you're setting up them for the next violation, to render them ineffective in a career service board.

Q. And because it's a one-day suspension, it's not appealable?

A. Correct.

We touched on changing past practice without really any discussion with anyone.

Q. Correct. Yes.

A. We touched on Watson and Decoursey routinely holding paperwork and not signing it, essentially neglecting the duties of moving the institution along.

And we -- I know we discussed not reducing things to writing, and we discussed the staffing shortages. So I think that kind of cleans up what I can remember from the last one.

Q. Was there anything additional in response to the question, are you aware of anything immoral, unethical, or illegal, that occurred in the sheriff's office while you were there --

A. Well --

Q. -- that we didn't cover last time?

A. I think that's where we're going to move in to the next section.

Q. Okay.

A. So the sheriff is a steward of the taxpayer's money. Would you agree with that?

Q. Agreed.

A. When he came into office, there were two vehicles that were provided that were left by Darnell and Huckstep. They were not happy with those vehicles even though they were functioning vehicles, and they immediately purchased two black Tahoes; and they were high-end Tahoes to the tune of in the mid 70s. And then, of course, all the equipment and everything had to go in on top of that, so you're talking probably upwards of 90-plus thousand dollars just because they wanted new vehicles. That was kind of like the first thing. Everybody kind of questioned that.

And then he had the badges removed from them that say like "High Country" to make it look like it wasn't, you know, an expensive vehicle as it was, but everybody knew what time of day it was. They saw the badges on there. Everybody knew what was going on. You could see it.

So that was kind of, in my opinion, something that the fleet department should have set back and assessed and advised the sheriff, "Hey, if we want new vehicles, this is where our budget is. This is how much money we have left. If we make this purchase, then we can't purchase these four cars instead of these two Tahoes."

That didn't happen. He immediately ordered the vehicle. I don't think they came off state contract. I think they got one at the local Chevrolet dealership. Or I don't know where they got them form; you'd have to pull that. One was 74. The other one was 77 or somewhere in there. They were both in the mid 70s. So that was one thing that kind of came up.

So there were some Nissans that were purchased, and I believe they were for the drug task force or somebody, I think, after I had left. And there was an allegation they were purchased from Gainesville Nissan, and his son is one of the sales managers at Gainesville Nissan.

Q. Those type of contract purchases would be normally not done through Gainesville Nissan? They'd be done through state contract?

A. Generally, yes, unless there is a specific reason. Like, I know Darnell, when we purchased Harleys, the state contract price was, say -- I'm just throwing a number out there -- 17,000, but Gainesville

Harley said, hey, we'll sell them to you for 15.5. The sheriff felt we should keep our money local, and she was actually saving money and was being a good steward of the taxpayers' money and purchased the Harleys there.

But as far as going outside of that, the only thing I know of going outside was that some vehicles were purchased from Southeast Car Agency, especially when it came to things like the trucks for the aviation unit, where we could get something that was used; we didn't buy them new. They weren't new vehicles. They were used vehicles.

But there was some allegations that the Nissans came purchased from his son; and I don't have any evidence to substantiate that, but you could certainly run that down.

One of the tasks that I was given fairly early on was -- the office of professional standards was housed within the main sheriff's office at 2621 Southeast Hawthorne Road. And the office of professional standards has a door that goes right into the sheriff's suite, and that was so that the captain of OPS could go in and confer with the sheriff because the captain was direct report to the sheriff. It had been set like that since I've been there. That was always OPS. Some years prior to that, it was at the jail.

He had me -- he directed me to have OPS relocated back to the office -- the department of the jail, and he then commanded those offices for himself and had them remodeled where he made a rather large office for himself and spent a significant amount of money remodeling that office and then purchased some furniture to fill that office.

Q. Was the furniture purchased off of state contract?

A. I was told it was purchased offline. He went online and bought it because he got a better deal. To what that was, what that P.O. looked like, I have no idea.

Q. Would that be unusual?

A. That would be unusual.

Q. Outside the standard procedures of the sheriff's office to purchase furniture?

A. Correct, because every time we've purchased furniture -- like we purchased tables like these, chairs like these that sit in the squad room that I'm sure you've been to. All those were purchased through a vendor that we've got. And every time we've had to purchase something, A and B has to come to us with a book like this and said, here's what's available. This is what we can purchase. So to purchase furniture outside that realm, to my knowledge, had never been done.

Q. Okay.

A. There was a lot of controversy surrounding expenditures plastering his name on the building.

Q. Where are those?

A. On one occasion it didn't look right, and he bought it again.

Okay. You're aware of it. We'll move on.

On the back of everybody's vest said "sheriff" just like the cars say "sheriff" on it. It doesn't mean that you are the sheriff. It just indicates like police, sheriff. All those were ordered to be removed and replaced with deputies.

Q. Was it on the cars as well as the uniforms?

A. It was not on the cars. It was just on the uniforms.

Q. Did anybody -- with regard to this, did anybody confer or look at the Florida Statutes to ensure that the officers would be properly marked for the purposes of fleeing or attempting to elude or resisting arrest with or without violence, to ensure that the standards that are set forth in the statutes would be met?

A. I brought that specific statute that you're referring to to the attention of the undersheriff and said, "There's really no reason for this. It doesn't designate them as the sheriff, but, you know, it's for the purposes of authority."

And the response was, "There's only one sheriff, and that's the guy that signs in green ink. Everybody else is a deputy," and that was the reason for the switch.

But again, you have whatever those patches were, ten, eight, twelve dollars times how many, 300 patches. Again, it's just another tick of expenditures that didn't need to happen.

Q. Understood.

A. The sheriff and the undersheriff has continued to disregard Florida Statute 112 on numerous occasions, which obviously stemmed from the lawsuits that are out there pending.

Q. Do you have any information to indicate whether their disregard of 112 procedures and rights that are contained in Florida Statute 112 are based upon ignorance, that they don't understand them? Or is it based on an intentional act that they don't care to provide those rights and meet their responsibilities?

A. Personally, I believe they don't care.

Q. So at the time these violations have occurred, are the rights of the officers and responsibilities of the agency being brought to the attention of the individuals who are doing this and being told we don't care?

A. My understanding was 112 violation was raised; and then when the interview was stopped, that individual was charged with insubordination. And 112 clearly says that that can't happen.

Q. Which officer was charged with insubordination because they refused to be interviewed?

A. I believe it was Frank Williams, but I would have to go back and look. I'd have to do some additional research on that.

Q. I may need you to follow up on that if you can identify any particular officer who was -- I'm saying charged, but that's probably not the right word -- was given -- an OPS investigation was instituted for insubordination or insubordination was added to the current charged violations?

A. I believe if you pull the Glen Stanley case, and you pull a recording of the Loudermill that went along with the Glen Stanley case, the general counsel -- essentially, the argument was being made that truthfulness did not occur, that the officer actually -- it was alleged that the officer did not -- and I don't have first-hand knowledge of it, but from my understanding, is that the officer didn't do something and, in the actual packet, said that they had done it, they had sent an email.

The undersheriff indicated on his recommendation that it was truthfulness, that it didn't occur; and when the disciplinary rep went to make the argument that it was not truthfulness, the general counsel said, "Well, what charge do you think was appropriate?"

So I would encourage you to go back and listen to that audio recording of that Loudermill. In other words, you're going to get charged with something, and we're going to find something to fit.

Q. Okay. Understood.

A. I would encourage you to probably pull his calendar, Watson's calendar, and his gas receipts. On the very early part of his tenure he was there a lot. I know he was there a lot because I was there a lot, and I saw him a lot from very early in the morning, 5:00, 6:00 -- I think we discussed that last time -- until 8:00, 9:00 at night.

It got to the point where we needed the sheriff to approve something or do something, again, because we couldn't approve anything, the sheriff is not here. The sheriff is not here. The sheriff is not here. Where is he? Is he working? Is he not working? It seemed like he was never around.

So I would encourage you to probably pull his calendar for --

Q. What month and years?

A. I would say July '21 and after.

Q. Is there some incident you can point to where his attendance to the office stopped? Was it sudden, or was it gradual?

A. It was gradual. It seemed like he gradually was not there more and more, and he was unavailable, which then just stalemated --

Q. Right, because everything has to go through him.

A. Everything has to go through him, and then everything just slows to a crawl, at best a crawl.

The sheriff's son, Clovis Watson, IV, was the subject of numerous traffic stops and some criminal acts with GPD. This information was forwarded to the sheriff, but he never seemed to rectify it with his son. It continued to happen.

He was stopped a couple of times by our deputies for traffic violations. We did a DUI checkpoint down on South 13th Street where his son was completely irate and completely out of line just coming to pick somebody up that we had dealt with. I called the sheriff and he said, okay, and that was the end of it.

It was like his son could just do whatever he wanted to because his dad was the sheriff. There was no -- it was a very poor reflection on the sheriff, very poor reflection on the sheriff.

We talked about fails to process paperwork.

I think Ed Bennett -- you might want to talk to Ed Bennett about the disapproval of secondary employment at the academy.

Q. With regard to that, are you aware that the academy became short of staff because of the sheriff disapproving secondary employment?

A. I can't swear to that.

Q. We'd have to check with the academy?

A. You'd have to check with the academy. I would imagine it severely impacted it; but to what extent, I can't speculate.

Q. Understood.

A. The sheriff seems to make decisions based on emotion quite a bit rather than, you know, actual facts. The sheriff demoted Mat Yakubsin from lieutenant back to sergeant for essentially liking a Facebook post. Let me back up.

He demoted him, but he ordered me to demote him. So I had to call him and tell him, "Hey, look, you're demoted because you liked a Facebook post."

Q. Was that formal discipline?

A. He was on probation.

Q. So he was already on disciplinarian probation?

A. No, he was on new-hire -- promotional probation.

Q. I see. So he could be demoted back to his prior rank without any discipline occurring?

A. Correct.

Q. And does that cause him to lose pay?

A. It does cause him to lose pay.

Q. How much, roughly?

A. I'd have to go back and look at the scales. I mean, you can make a request for the pay changes in HTE. A minimum of five percent; but Yakubsin was not that tenured of a sergeant, so potentially ten percent more. I don't know the exact numbers on Yakubsin.

Q. And you know the basis for that demotion was liking a Facebook post because you were instructed to tell him why he was being demoted by the sheriff?

A. I was instructed by the sheriff to demote him back to sergeant; and the sheriff had told me that, "He liked that Facebook post, and I'm going to demote him."

Now, keep in mind everybody else that also liked that Facebook post -- it surrounded a lieutenant Facebook post from the jail that was subsequently terminated. Howard, I believe, is his name, received corrective counseling for that, but Yakubsin was demoted.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did that go through an OPS review?

A. Oh, no.

Q. So there's no documentation on any of it?

A. No.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Did Yakubsin get corrective counseling?

A. I believe he may have, but he was hit with a demotion and the corrective counseling where everybody else was just hit with the corrective counseling. In other words, I felt as if the demotion was excessive in comparison to what had been handed out to everybody else. That's kind of where I was going with that.

We discussed the negligent promotions last time.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. While we're on that topic --

A. Which topic?

Q. Negligent promotion. You mentioned Cleveland Cox. Talk about your knowledge about what happened when he tried out for the SWAT team?

A. He tried out for the SWAT team. He wasn't recommended, and then he was appointed by recommendation of the undersheriff.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Also, what the consequence was to the person who did not want him appointed to the SWAT team.

A. Oh, he adamantly opposed it. He was -- I can't remember if it was Josh Crews or Rich Howell at the time.

Q. Josh Crews.

A. Josh Crews absolutely did not want him to the point he wanted to go meet with the undersheriff, and I think he did meet with undersheriff about it; but the decision was made that he did not get his number one and number two picks, and he got Cleveland Cox. And Cleveland Cox was almost promoted at the recommendation of the sheriff.

Q. What happened with Josh Crews with his relationship with the SWAT team after he didn't want Cleveland Cox on there?

A. I'd have to go back and scroll and think about the timeline, but I can tell you, if you're referring to his removal from the SWAT team, his removal from the SWAT team, I do not believe, was tied to that incident.

We had a SWAT call-out in Monteoca, and the sheriff and undersheriff were there. And Josh Crews was insubordinate to me; and the sheriff found out about it, and the sheriff removed him from the SWAT team based on that incident.

Q. Were those two things occurring closely in time, the Cleveland Cox incident and Monteoca incident?

A. I believe the Cleveland Cox thing was a couple months afterwards. It could have been pretty close. It could have been pretty close.

Q. I don't know the answer, but my understanding is that the delivery of the information that Cleveland Cox would be assigned to the SWAT team and the removal of then lieutenant -- captain, sergeant, I'm not sure --

A. Lieutenant Josh Crews.

Q. -- Lieutenant Crews were delivered at the same time.

A. It may have been. It could have been in close proximity, and I can see how maybe he could correlate that if it was in close proximity, but my knowledge of the incident, it was really based on Lieutenant Crews' insubordination. Because I was ordered by the sheriff to conduct -- to basically put gas on the house with the hopes that the guy would come out, and Josh Crews came over to me and said, "I hope it's not a tactic," and he was rather nasty about it.

I'm not on the SWAT team. I've never been on the SWAT team, and I don't pretend to be on the SWAT team. So when it comes to SWAT-related matters, I would defer to Josh. Josh has got the knowledge. He's been on there a long time, along with his brother. His brother is no longer with us. He's retired. But I had a direct order from the sheriff that this is the way we're going to proceed, and Josh didn't agree with it.

Q. Let me make sure I understand the sheriff is directing a tactic to remove an individual from a home that a SWAT team is doing?

A. To put gas in there, yes.

Q. But is the sheriff qualified to make a decision about a tactic to remove a barricaded subject?

A. In my opinion, no, and that just falls on the back of what I just said. I'm a major. And even when I was a captain over those units, if I called you as my SWAT commander, and you said, "This is what we need to do," I'm going to defer to you. As long as we're not violating policy, we're not violating the law, and we're not creating some additional liability for the sheriff, I'm going to defer to you because that's your area of expertise.

Q. But doesn't it create liability if the sheriff, who is not qualified, is directing a tactic to be used in an extremely dangerous situation?

A. Oh, absolutely. The direction should not have come from the sheriff. The sheriff should have let Josh Crews run the incident, is what it comes down to.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. What was the barricaded subject?

A. There was another individual in the house. I think it was domestic.

Q. So the bad guy wasn't the only one in the house?

A. Correct.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I guess you're probably the wrong person to ask, but do we put gas in the house when there's more than one person in the house?

A. Generally, no, but I would defer to Josh Crews and let him discuss that incident in greater detail.

Q. And the insubordination that Josh demonstrated during that incident, was he ever a subject of formal discipline? Or was it just we're going to discipline him by removing him from the SWAT team?

A. He got a corrective counseling from me for his insubordination, but then the sheriff removed him as the SWAT team commander.

Q. Did they put gas in the house?

A. I don't remember. That was very early on in the tenure of the administration.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did the sheriff give a reason why he wanted the gas? Did he have some place to go?

A. Uh-uh. It was clear he was trying to direct the incident where he didn't have the experience to direct the incident.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Was the sheriff at the scene?
A. He was, and the undersheriff. They both showed up. And, you know, to be fair, normally the sheriff and the undersheriff, the major does not show up to SWAT teams. You know, normally we're behind the phone somewhere, and we're letting those people run those operations; but that's not the way the sheriff wanted it run.
The captain was there. I was there. Captain Bella Blizzard was there. I was there. Decoursey was there. The sheriff was there. And I think probably Josh felt like he wasn't being allowed to operate under the parameters that he normally operates because his decision-making was being impeded by us.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And that's what lead to his insubordination.
A. Correct.
Q. That's also consistent with what you've previously testified to, that all the decisions are being made by the sheriff to operational and tactical decisions.
A. That is correct.
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Were you familiar or did we talk about it last time, about the Cleveland Cox investigation that went through the office of professional standards?

A. I was aware.

Q. Do you know what happened with that eventually, or why it was terminated?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Is there some connection or familial connection between the undersheriff and Cleveland Cox?

A. We speculated that there was, but we -- I don't know of one, but it seemed to be really out of character that he was placed on the SWAT team and he was promoted against the objections of essentially everyone.

Q. Was he also assigned to CID?

A. He was.

Q. Against the objections?

A. He was. It was a pattern existing with Cleveland Cox, but I don't know what the connection is.

MR. KRAMER: I want to talk about time.

We can go off the record.

(An off-the-record discussion was had.)

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. All we were discussing is how much time we have remaining before our other witnesses to need to appear.

A. Eric Hutchison was promoted to the rank of acting lieutenant when he wasn't on the eligibility list. I would suggest you pull the employee profile and the eligibility list. When that was called to the sheriff's attention, that he wasn't eligible for promotion, the sheriff did act and rescinded that; but then here recently Scott Bonafide has been promoted to an active lieutenant, and he's been moved to civil.

As you're aware, civil is a completely different animal than any other part of the sheriff's office. You deal with evicting people and serving papers that can and cannot be served at certain times of day. To my knowledge, Scott has no knowledge of the civil process.

I did mention Rashawn Flanders. I do not have that paperwork that I thought I had.

The last one is Pat Ford Thomas. Michelle Clement was the division manager, and she was removed for seemingly no reason and moved over to the contract monitor at the jail, which she's got zero experience at. She was removed from her role as a division manager, and she was replaced with Pat Ford Thomas.

Pat Ford Thomas is the wife of Dave Thomas, who, interestingly enough, was one of the very core group of people in Watson's campaign.

Q. We're going to speak with Michelle Clement. We just haven't gotten her scheduled yet.

A. Okay. I have for you a copy of one of the personnel orders that went out, and as you can see, the quantity of moves that were made at one time are significant; and that's not one of them, but the reason why that's significant is because I have this to go along with it, which is completely out of character, which has everybody's picture and where they're going, where you can definitely see folks --

MR. KRAMER: All right. We'll make this an exhibit to your statement.

That's all I have. I'm sure if something else comes up, I may think of something or whatever.

(Exhibit 1 was marked for identification.)

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. One last question I've got. When transfers and things were made, were the positions that they went to, were they resumed made for? Or were persons just told, you're going here, and you're going here?

A. Under the Darnell administration, generally, what would happen would be, an open position announcement would come out: Any interested deputy sheriff that wishes to apply to be a detective, please submit your name to ISIS, which is our internal system. Interviews are conducted, and then somebody would be selected from the list.

Under the Watson administration, that pretty much went out the window. He just made moves willie-nillie as he felt necessary with no rhyme or reason is really the short answer.

MR. KRAMER: Thank you. We may be talking to you further.

WHEREUPON,

GEORGE CORINE

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your full name?

A. George John Corine.

Q. Mr. Corine, we're here again for continuation of our prior interview after the interview in which we ran out of time due to our scheduling and not really understanding the full breath of the information that you had.

Did you have an opportunity to review the questions that were asked by me and the officers to you during the interview?

A. I did.

Q. And thinking it through, were there other instances that would have been responsive to our questions that you didn't have an opportunity to provide?

A. Yes. And then I think there were some other things that -- notes were made, but we had skipped back and forth. We were moving forward and back and forward and back in time, and I don't know if I discussed them or not. If I did, I apologize. It would be a duplicate.

Q. That's fine.

A. But if not --

Q. Where would you prefer to start? You want to start with things that you're concerned about that we just skipped over, or do you want to start with more -- the question, I believe, was, is there anything that occurred at the sheriff's office that was illegal, unethical, or immoral that you observed that you could tell us about, and I think that might be the area where there were additional responses.

A. Yeah. I think the other -- the things that I have highlighted here may just clean up my previous notes.

Q. All right. Let's start with that.

A. And again, I don't know if I got these things on the record last time.

One of my notes that I had made that nothing can be decided until the sheriff has made final decision. So it seems as if he is the sole decision maker, and nobody in the chain of command has the ability to make any types of decisions.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did you get that from him?

A. That's just the perception.

And let me say that we have forms that, obviously, go up to certain levels, and some of the forms go to the sheriff. For instance, if you have a -- if you win a prize, for example -- I'm sure you guys have heard of SWAT Roundup.

We had an incident where a couple of guys won some rifles at SWAT Roundup, and guns, which I'm sure you're familiar always happens. And history has always been when that item comes back, that the sheriff has allowed the person to keep it. We fill out a form that basically says, "Hey, I received this as essentially gratuity. What do you want to do with it?" and history had always been ever since I've been there that the employee was just allowed to keep it.

Those forms sat for months and months and months, and we continuously asked and asked and asked; and the paper was never being processed, which seemed to be the history of things like secondary employment forms.

In other words, I work for Home Depot. I have to fill out a form saying I work for Home Depot, I work five to ten hours a week. You know, it doesn't conflict, I won't be doing any law enforcement action, blah, blah, blah, and it gets approved all the way up to the sheriff. Those type of forms just sit.

It's like there's a neglect to fill those forms out and get them back to people, especially when it comes to the folks that live in reduced rent apartments; because those reduced rent apartments are really considered secondary employment, and now we have people who come back and fill out the form, say, "Hey, I have this secondary employment. I live at ABC Apartment Complex," and those forms never get processed.

Lately -- I've been gone, but lately -- I'm sure you guys can follow up with it -- some secondary employment has been approved, but it's been very sporadic; and then others, it's been straight-up denied. And those denials have come on the backs of years and years and years of approval.

In other words, I might be teaching at the academy. I taught at the academy for 15 years, let's say, and then all of a sudden this year it's a denial for no reason, and there's no reason given.

Q. Is that detrimental to the functioning of the sheriff's office?

A. The academy, absolutely, because we have an agreement with the academy that we're going to provide people to teach the recruits.

Q. Well, maybe I'm being too obtuse. If employees are being mistreated and treated very differently than they have been by prior administrations without any explanation, does that create an environment where employees are likely to remain?

A. Absolutely not. What happens is too often -- I'm sure you guys are aware that law enforcement salaries are not that high, and almost everybody has got some sort of secondary employment whether it be at the academy or whether they have a business. Like we have several folks that have lawn maintain businesses, you know, and they thrive on those businesses, especially during the summer months when grass cutting is frequent. And when those forms aren't being approved, then you get into a situation where am I allowed to continue my business that I invested all this capital in, or what do I need to do? Do I need to quit and just move on?

And I'm sure if you pull the vacancy rate, the FT vacancies on January 5th of 2021, you pull the FT vacancy rate as of today, you'll see that they're vastly different.

Q. Just so I understand, do those supplemental employment forms have to be yearly?

A. They do.

Q. So even if you've had the same position for years and years, it has to be approved every year?

A. Every calendar year.

Q. Is it October 1? January 1?

A. January 1, if my memory recalls. I think it's January 1.

Q. Would your understanding be, there would be individuals who would resubmit after January 1 and would not get an answer for five, six, seven months?

A. Lengthy amounts of times or outright denials with no excuse, or no response, really. And, you know, the academy relies on those folks to teach recruits.

Q. Right.

A. I do believe we discussed that it could be found in one of the audio recordings that the undersheriff said that nothing is final until it's in green ink.

Q. Correct.

A. So that just kind of plays into that.

Q. And, also, I want to follow up on that issue. I want to make sure I understand what you're telling me, which is that -- and I'll use my organization as an example. We have -- I delegate control out to supervisors because I am physically incapable of making timely decisions in 20,000 cases of prosecution per year, and that is necessary for the proper functioning of the agency.

A. That is correct. I felt as if I had less decision-making authority as a major than I did as a lieutenant under the Darnell administration, which chokes the entire operation.

Q. So the same is true at the sheriff's office, and probably on a much larger scale than my organization. I have 135 employees, and the sheriff's office has how many employees?

A. About 960.

Q. Nine hundred sixty employees, and then essentially day-to-day decision making is being made by the sheriff?

A. Essentially.

Q. And that has prevented the sheriff's office's proper functioning because decision-making is delayed, and this -- what you've been talking about, this example of additional employment, is just maybe one example of delay.

A. It is one example, yes.

Q. And there are many others?

A. Right.

Q. And I don't know if you can speak to this, but is one of those examples, would it be assisting other agencies?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you aware during the time you were at the sheriff's office of a change in the decision-making process by which the sheriff's office decided whether or not to assist other agencies?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And if you could clarify. Does the sheriff's office have obligations, contractual and grant-oriented obligations, to provide assistance to regional agencies with equipment and expertise that those agencies would not have?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And could you explain what happened while you were there? What was the change from the prior administration? How did that affect things?

A. So operationally when I was the patrol support lieutenant, which was over all the special teams, Bradford County would call and say, "Hey, we've got an incident up here. We need the SWAT team."

So we're part of a region. The SWAT team is a regional team. There's funding that comes out of --

I can't remember the abbreviation, but it is -- there's funding that comes out. They fund some equipment, and that is really meant so that when Bradford County calls, or Union County folks that don't have a SWAT team, we go up there and we handle it.

And usually the protocol was, they would call. The captain would say, "Hey, Union County has a SWAT call-out." I would notify the SWAT guys, and then they would go.

The captain would then turn around and notify the chain upwards, "Hey, this is what's happened. I'm just kind of letting you know that Bradford County has called, or Union County has called, and they need the SWAT team."

That's been the practice for years. I mean, time was of the essence when you're talking about calling out a SWAT team. If we're not calling them for some preplanned event three days from now, then we don't have time to sit around and talk and have approval. It's go.

That completely changed under the Watson administration. He simply demanded that, in order for any asset to leave this county, that that sheriff that was requesting or that chief that was requesting the equipment called him first, which severely choked the response time.

So it was a complete spin. It was something we weren't used to, but he wanted the sheriff of Bradford County, Union County to call him and ask for the equipment before we were authorized.

Q. And what if he wasn't available?

A. (Shrugs shoulders.)

Q. You're holding up your hands and saying there's no answer for that?

A. There's no answer for that because we weren't authorized to proceed.

Q. So, for instance, just an instance that I was personally involved in was, there was an officer-involved shooting in Levy County, and they only have maybe four deputies on the road at any one time. I don't know if you're aware of this incident.

A. Correct.

Q. And when three of the officers were involved in a shooting, then they had no -- essentially, one deputy remaining on the road. They requested assistance from the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Would that assistance request have to go through the sheriff himself?

A. It would.

Q. Would you agree that under those circumstances where a county was essentially now --

A. Vacant.

Q. -- had no law enforcement available, that time is of the essence?

A. Yeah, it is essential. And I'll follow up with another example.

The two deputies that were shot in Gilchrist County under the Darnell administration. As soon as that happened, everybody started rolling. We rolled the command -- I mean, we had the mobile command bus. We had schedules done to start covering the county, and then we just started notifying the sheriff, "Hey, this is what we're doing. This is how we're taking care of them." It was almost the information was flowing upward rather than flowing downward.

And under the Watson administration it's completely immerse. It's not allowed to happen in that manner. And the folks who may call 911 in Gilchrist County, now that there's no deputies available, they rely on our assistance. And we have the resources to provide to Gilchrist County or to Union County that Union County or Gilchrist County doesn't otherwise have.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Let's go back to things that you may -- unless you wanted to follow up. I'm sorry.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Has he ever denied one of those requests that you know of?

A. Yes.

Q. Which one?

A. There was an incident where University of Florida had called and requested the use of the jail vans. There was something going on at the Reitz Union. I think Darren Baxley had called and requested the jail vans. Don't quote me. I think it was Darren Baxley, deputy chief. Sheriff Watson refused to let them utilize the jail vans.

All that is, is a transport function. It's not like we were sending personnel. You know, we send in a couple of people to operate the vans, but we weren't sending crowd management. We weren't getting involved with their business on campus. They were just simply asking for assistance because, again, the university, you know, they've only got 80 FTEs, you know, somewhere in there. They don't have the capacity to deal with 15 or 20 arrestees at the same time. It would impact them severely to have to deal with that, and we had the resources. I didn't understand what the purpose of withholding a jail van was.

Q. When you say impact severely, would that mean creating an unsafe environment for the remainder of the students and faculty on campus?

A. Potentially. I mean, it depends on how the incident goes. If you got all your guys on the incident tied up with 10-15, or arrestees, if you will, and then they need to focus their attention somewhere else, next thing you know, you divert your attention to the people that need to go. Now you have an unsafe number of officers with the arrestees; or do the officers stay with the arrestees, and now you've neglected this? You have to make a decision.

You've only got so many personnel. The jail van would have been very quick, easy. You bring the jail vans over, put them in the jail vans, pat them down, get them in there, at least hold them there for a few minutes or get them out of there, whatever they decided to do. It was a relatively simple request.

There was some issues surrounding the drug task force, which I'm sure you're aware of, and the sheriff not wanting anyone to operate in the county.

Q. Were you an employee of the sheriff's office at the time that the sheriff directed the removal of all the equipment from the drug task force?

A. No, but my understanding is it was done in the middle of the night under some covert operation, was the rumor.

Q. Correct. I just didn't know if you were personally involved.

A. I was not.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Were you there when Nassau County requested assistance on an officer-involved shooting, and it was denied?

A. Actually, yes. I believe I was.

Q. Do we know why?

A. I don't know why.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. But that denial would have come from the sheriff?

A. It come from the sheriff. No cop, working cop, like even coming up through the ranks, when they had something like that, would deny that type of assistance. Those are the things -- when things were choked, it chokes to the point where it doesn't -- it doesn't run efficiently.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And for the record, let me correct that. It may have been an officer-involved shooting, but actually the deputy had been shot; and they had a subject cornered, and they were asking for assistance from SWAT teams.

A. Correct. Correct.

MR. KRAMER: Anything further on what he's said so far?

THE WITNESS: One of the things that -- you know, you talk about assets. The SWAT team is one of them, but more frequently the helicopter is something that -- you know, we have an aviation unit. And folks in Putnam County and Columbia County, you know, they rely on that air support. You know, one helicopter there, arguably, is equivalent of 15 or 20 units on the ground.

Those requests were frequently -- we ran into problems where there would be a pursuit at, say, 2:00 in the morning, and they're calling and asking for our assistance. And then you have to make the decision, do I say, okay, go ahead and go, and then get chewed out the next day because they didn't -- because that sheriff didn't call our sheriff at 2:00 in the morning?

I mean, that's the type of slow-down we're talking about, to the point where you might as well not even send them at that point. It's almost rendering it useless.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And it's 2:00 in the morning. Is Sheriff Watson available to answer another sheriff's call?

A. I don't know. I never called him at 2:00 in the morning.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. You mentioned earlier about the funding. If I recall from my days with RDS --

A. RDSTF, yeah, that's it.

Q. Regional Domestic Security Task Force. That's where a lot of Alachua's money came from. Or I say a lot. That's basically --

A. A significant amount of money.

Q. They were given a lot of money to create those regional units in case of -- for the region.

A. Right.

Q. And that was the understanding, that the money is given to you, but you need to be available if the region needs you.

A. The BearCat. I believe the BearCat was portioned with RDSTF money; or a portion of it was purchased with it, and you know how expensive those are.

The bomb team is another RDSTF, you know.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Let me ask you this. Are these requests reduced in any way to writing, or would there be any evidence of the request existing at all?

A. Usually -- from my recollection, usually when something breaks off, it's a phone call saying, "We need SWAT."

Q. Let me ask you this --

A. There could be a Teletype follow-up, though. I don't know.

Q. Would there be text messaging? Like, for instance, might you send a text message to the sheriff "We've received request from Scott for SWAT in Union County"?

A. Oh, I'm sure, but I never really directly contacted the sheriff. That was the undersheriff. I would call him, the undersheriff. I mean, he would answer his phone.

Q. But if -- you would agree those communications would be records at the agency?

A. There should be records at the agency.

Q. But if those records were not being -- they may not be preserved.

A. They should be preserved. Because there was a point in time when we all got iPhones -- you get into the debate of the iPhone or the Android, right? The iPhone is a blue, which is MMS; and then you have the Android, which is an SMS message. From my understanding, the SMS messages are recorded through your carrier, but the MMS are not because they're run on data and not run on cellular.

Q. But if the sheriff didn't allow the recording devices on his phone, there would be no record of those requests being made to the sheriff, correct?

A. I know that the phone that I had had recording because that was all enabled by Scott Shelpman, if my memory serves me correctly.

Q. Understood. Let's move on to the next item that you were concerned that we had missed due to our time constraints.

A. We discussed briefly Michelle Shirfield last time. She had posted some items on Facebook that could be seen by some folks as slanted to one racial side, if you will. That was brought to Watson's attention, and our understanding is that she was given a corrective counseling for that. Nobody ever saw the corrective counseling.

And then the order was basically given, you know, for Facebook or for violations of social media, that was -- that was the -- what should be done, give them a corrective counseling and go through progressive discipline.

And I think there's a couple open cases right now -- or I don't know if they're open or closed.

So Frank Williams and Kevin Davis are under investigation, or open at the moment, for things that I think were far less controversial, and they were placed on admin suspension and been sitting at the house for months.

Q. And let me ask you because I don't know the answer to this. This individual -- and you said her name was Michelle?

A. Shirfield.

Q. Shirfield? Is she African American?

A. She is.

Q. And the posts that you're referencing, they were -- I don't know the posts. Were they racially inappropriate?

A. It was more of a supporting a racial position, and I believe Kevin Davis could speak more on that.

Q. Is it your understanding that a formal complaint was made either to her supervisor or to the office of professional standards so that discipline should have been initiated?

A. I told the sheriff directly about the violation, and Bobby Stafford told the sheriff directly about the violation.

Q. But as far as I understand -- and my understanding of discipline is developing -- is that the way the discipline would be initiated, it would be either through the office of professional standards or through her supervisor.

A. Correct.

Q. So you gave that information to the sheriff?

A. Correct.

Q. And your understanding is that no discipline was initiated; or if there was any discipline, it was informal in the form of a corrective counseling?

A. It was informal in the form of a corrective counseling, but nobody seen that. I'm sure if you pull her file you would either see a corrective counseling or not see a corrective counseling, but she reported directly to the sheriff.

Q. When someone receives corrective counseling, is it discipline?

A. It's considered informal discipline.

Q. But it should remain in the employee file for one year?

A. That's correct. Oftentimes it's not removed. You have to go back in there and say, hey, that needs to come out.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Do you know if Kevin Davis made a complaint about that to OPS or through the sheriff suite?

A. I don't think so because he had already known that it was brought to the attention of the sheriff and Bobby Stafford.

Q. Do you know about any complaint that Kevin Davis took to OPS?

A. I know he made a complaint. I don't remember what it surrounded; but I do remember him taking a complaint, and it was basically like disregarded.

Q. If somebody takes a complaint to OPS, should a case number be drawn?

A. Oh, absolutely, or they say this is really not -- there's a list of standards that OPS will investigate these certain things or as directed by the sheriff.

So they'll look at it, and they'll say we'll take and we're going to pull a case number, or they'll say we're going to defer it back to the division commander and let the employee supervisor handle it.

MR. KRAMER: Any other questions on that particular issue?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Thank you for the clarification. Was there anything else?

A. Did we discuss the bargaining process with the re-openers and the unfair labor practice?

Q. You did. You informed us that one of the reasons why you left the sheriff's office was that you advised them, essentially, that what they were doing was in violation of the National Labor Standards Act.

A. Oh, that's right. I gave you the form. Okay.

So I gave the set of text messages last time between the undersheriff and I.

Q. Yes.

A. The sergeants and lieutenants ratified their contract. The deputies did not ratify their contract. And there was an extended period of time; I don't recall the exact settlement dates, maybe July, August the following year. So we're talking about ten, eleven months later that ultimately we were going to go to a hearing at the sheriff's office.

And right before that began and the sheriff was coming to sit down and testify, if my memory serves me correctly, he wanted to have a discussion. And then that was ultimately settled, and a substantial check was written for attorney's fees. You may want to pull a copy of that.

Q. Who was the attorney that would have received the fees?

A. It would be the PBA.

Q. Would it be the PBA itself, or would it be paid directly to a particular attorney?

MS. WEBSTER: Do you want me to answer?

MR. KRAMER: No, you can tell him.

THE WITNESS: The check was written to the PBA.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. For the attorney's fees?

A. For the attorney's fees.

Q. Incurred because of the actions that you've already described in your previous testimony where the sheriff was essentially acting in violation of the National Labor Standards Act of essentially just refusing to negotiate in good faith.

A. That is correct. And that surrounded the take-home cars, which I believe we talked about last time.

Q. Correct.

A. All those things wrapped up.

Q. He withdrew all the articles. That's the phraseology you used.

A. Everything was TA'd. We were getting ready to go to a vote on Thursday and Friday. On Monday, October 18th, I got a call that he withdrew all the articles.

I said, "Wait a minute. We know this vote is coming. We can't do this."

I brought it to his attention, and the sheriff made the unilateral decision to pull that. I said, "You can't do that. You're going to refuse to sign a contract after it's already been agreed upon."

And in his text messages, which I presented to you last time, I was told that my interpretation was not consistent with the decision of the sheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Next.

A. We talked about the SWAT rifles.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Where are those rifles now, Major?

A. So those rifles were not given to the employee personally. They were issued to the employee that won them with the understanding that when they retire they will be able to keep them. That was the decision that was made, if my memory serves me correctly; but that's probably not in writing anywhere, I promise you that, because nothing hardly ever gets reduced to writing.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Well, they wouldn't have gone to the inventory? Doesn't every officer have an inventory?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And if they're not on the inventory, and they're in the officer's possession --

A. No, they're issued to the officer. They're going to be on the inventory.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. They were taken into the sheriff's office inventory and then issued to the officer that won it.

A. That's correct.

Did I touch on the fact that Watson will make a decision regardless whether it's against policy or procedure?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I think in general that was clear, but are there specific instances that you can reference that you didn't reference last time?

A. No. I just want to make sure I hit that --

Q. You did.

A. It's so frequent, though, that --

Q. What is the effect on the agency when the sheriff doesn't follow the agency's own policy?

A. Well, what it does is, it sets the tone of the only consistency is inconsistency, right? And when the sheriff isn't following his own policies and procedures, what message is that sending down to the troops?

It sends a horrible message down saying I don't have to follow policy and procedure, but I'm going to hold you to it; and when you aren't held to it, when you violate that, I'm going to write you up.

Q. Would it also lead people to the conclusion that -- wouldn't it also lead to the natural conclusion that if you follow a policy, that the sheriff might still discipline you or you might meet criticism or demotion or job problems because you followed policy that the sheriff no longer wants to have be the policy?

A. It's almost as if you're expected to think like him. And if it is any perceived disrespect or embarrassment, you're going to be talked to about it, if not hit with some sort of discipline.

We just had a recent case, the Glen Stanley internal investigation, which is closed -- which I suggest you pull a copy of that -- where the sheriff goes outside the disciplinary matrix.

We have a matrix that says this is Level Two, Level Three, Level Four or Five, and this is -- you know, you got a Level Two, you get this many points. This many points is from A to B, and he'll just add C in there.

Q. And in this particular investigation was it to the officer's detriment?

A. Yes.

Q. Is this recourse for the officer under those circumstances? Can the officer appeal that decision? Do they have -- do they enforce the matrix as it exists, or are they simply subject to the sheriff's rulings?

A. Only if they meet the standards set forth in the sheriff's board, which is greater than a two-day suspension. In this case it was one-day suspension, but they put the guy on 12 months of disciplinary probation. And I believe, if you go back and you look at what a Level Three violation is, 12 months of disciplinary probation is not allowed.

And then what you do when you put somebody on disciplinary probation is, the next time they wear the wrong color socks or doing something that's in violation, then they're not eligible for a career service board.

It's almost like you're setting up them for the next violation, to render them ineffective in a career service board.

Q. And because it's a one-day suspension, it's not appealable?

A. Correct.

We touched on changing past practice without really any discussion with anyone.

Q. Correct. Yes.

A. We touched on Watson and Decoursey routinely holding paperwork and not signing it, essentially neglecting the duties of moving the institution along.

And we -- I know we discussed not reducing things to writing, and we discussed the staffing shortages. So I think that kind of cleans up what I can remember from the last one.

Q. Was there anything additional in response to the question, are you aware of anything immoral, unethical, or illegal, that occurred in the sheriff's office while you were there --

A. Well --

Q. -- that we didn't cover last time?

A. I think that's where we're going to move in to the next section.

Q. Okay.

A. So the sheriff is a steward of the taxpayer's money. Would you agree with that?

Q. Agreed.

A. When he came into office, there were two vehicles that were provided that were left by Darnell and Huckstep. They were not happy with those vehicles even though they were functioning vehicles, and they immediately purchased two black Tahoes; and they were high-end Tahoes to the tune of in the mid 70s. And then, of course, all the equipment and everything had to go in on top of that, so you're talking probably upwards of 90-plus thousand dollars just because they wanted new vehicles. That was kind of like the first thing. Everybody kind of questioned that.

And then he had the badges removed from them that say like "High Country" to make it look like it wasn't, you know, an expensive vehicle as it was, but everybody knew what time of day it was. They saw the badges on there. Everybody knew what was going on. You could see it.

So that was kind of, in my opinion, something that the fleet department should have set back and assessed and advised the sheriff, "Hey, if we want new vehicles, this is where our budget is. This is how much money we have left. If we make this purchase, then we can't purchase these four cars instead of these two Tahoes."

That didn't happen. He immediately ordered the vehicle. I don't think they came off state contract. I think they got one at the local Chevrolet dealership. Or I don't know where they got them form; you'd have to pull that. One was 74. The other one was 77 or somewhere in there. They were both in the mid 70s. So that was one thing that kind of came up.

So there were some Nissans that were purchased, and I believe they were for the drug task force or somebody, I think, after I had left. And there was an allegation they were purchased from Gainesville Nissan, and his son is one of the sales managers at Gainesville Nissan.

Q. Those type of contract purchases would be normally not done through Gainesville Nissan? They'd be done through state contract?

A. Generally, yes, unless there is a specific reason. Like, I know Darnell, when we purchased Harleys, the state contract price was, say -- I'm just throwing a number out there -- 17,000, but Gainesville

Harley said, hey, we'll sell them to you for 15.5. The sheriff felt we should keep our money local, and she was actually saving money and was being a good steward of the taxpayers' money and purchased the Harleys there.

But as far as going outside of that, the only thing I know of going outside was that some vehicles were purchased from Southeast Car Agency, especially when it came to things like the trucks for the aviation unit, where we could get something that was used; we didn't buy them new. They weren't new vehicles. They were used vehicles.

But there was some allegations that the Nissans came purchased from his son; and I don't have any evidence to substantiate that, but you could certainly run that down.

One of the tasks that I was given fairly early on was -- the office of professional standards was housed within the main sheriff's office at 2621 Southeast Hawthorne Road. And the office of professional standards has a door that goes right into the sheriff's suite, and that was so that the captain of OPS could go in and confer with the sheriff because the captain was direct report to the sheriff. It had been set like that since I've been there. That was always OPS. Some years prior to that, it was at the jail.

He had me -- he directed me to have OPS relocated back to the office -- the department of the jail, and he then commanded those offices for himself and had them remodeled where he made a rather large office for himself and spent a significant amount of money remodeling that office and then purchased some furniture to fill that office.

Q. Was the furniture purchased off of state contract?

A. I was told it was purchased offline. He went online and bought it because he got a better deal. To what that was, what that P.O. looked like, I have no idea.

Q. Would that be unusual?

A. That would be unusual.

Q. Outside the standard procedures of the sheriff's office to purchase furniture?

A. Correct, because every time we've purchased furniture -- like we purchased tables like these, chairs like these that sit in the squad room that I'm sure you've been to. All those were purchased through a vendor that we've got. And every time we've had to purchase something, A and B has to come to us with a book like this and said, here's what's available. This is what we can purchase. So to purchase furniture outside that realm, to my knowledge, had never been done.

Q. Okay.

A. There was a lot of controversy surrounding expenditures plastering his name on the building.

Q. Where are those?

A. On one occasion it didn't look right, and he bought it again.

Okay. You're aware of it. We'll move on.

On the back of everybody's vest said "sheriff" just like the cars say "sheriff" on it. It doesn't mean that you are the sheriff. It just indicates like police, sheriff. All those were ordered to be removed and replaced with deputies.

Q. Was it on the cars as well as the uniforms?

A. It was not on the cars. It was just on the uniforms.

Q. Did anybody -- with regard to this, did anybody confer or look at the Florida Statutes to ensure that the officers would be properly marked for the purposes of fleeing or attempting to elude or resisting arrest with or without violence, to ensure that the standards that are set forth in the statutes would be met?

A. I brought that specific statute that you're referring to to the attention of the undersheriff and said, "There's really no reason for this. It doesn't designate them as the sheriff, but, you know, it's for the purposes of authority."

And the response was, "There's only one sheriff, and that's the guy that signs in green ink. Everybody else is a deputy," and that was the reason for the switch.

But again, you have whatever those patches were, ten, eight, twelve dollars times how many, 300 patches. Again, it's just another tick of expenditures that didn't need to happen.

Q. Understood.

A. The sheriff and the undersheriff has continued to disregard Florida Statute 112 on numerous occasions, which obviously stemmed from the lawsuits that are out there pending.

Q. Do you have any information to indicate whether their disregard of 112 procedures and rights that are contained in Florida Statute 112 are based upon ignorance, that they don't understand them? Or is it based on an intentional act that they don't care to provide those rights and meet their responsibilities?

A. Personally, I believe they don't care.

Q. So at the time these violations have occurred, are the rights of the officers and responsibilities of the agency being brought to the attention of the individuals who are doing this and being told we don't care?

A. My understanding was 112 violation was raised; and then when the interview was stopped, that individual was charged with insubordination. And 112 clearly says that that can't happen.

Q. Which officer was charged with insubordination because they refused to be interviewed?

A. I believe it was Frank Williams, but I would have to go back and look. I'd have to do some additional research on that.

Q. I may need you to follow up on that if you can identify any particular officer who was -- I'm saying charged, but that's probably not the right word -- was given -- an OPS investigation was instituted for insubordination or insubordination was added to the current charged violations?

A. I believe if you pull the Glen Stanley case, and you pull a recording of the Loudermill that went along with the Glen Stanley case, the general counsel -- essentially, the argument was being made that truthfulness did not occur, that the officer actually -- it was alleged that the officer did not -- and I don't have first-hand knowledge of it, but from my understanding, is that the officer didn't do something and, in the actual packet, said that they had done it, they had sent an email.

The undersheriff indicated on his recommendation that it was truthfulness, that it didn't occur; and when the disciplinary rep went to make the argument that it was not truthfulness, the general counsel said, "Well, what charge do you think was appropriate?"

So I would encourage you to go back and listen to that audio recording of that Loudermill. In other words, you're going to get charged with something, and we're going to find something to fit.

Q. Okay. Understood.

A. I would encourage you to probably pull his calendar, Watson's calendar, and his gas receipts. On the very early part of his tenure he was there a lot. I know he was there a lot because I was there a lot, and I saw him a lot from very early in the morning, 5:00, 6:00 -- I think we discussed that last time -- until 8:00, 9:00 at night.

It got to the point where we needed the sheriff to approve something or do something, again, because we couldn't approve anything, the sheriff is not here. The sheriff is not here. The sheriff is not here. Where is he? Is he working? Is he not working? It seemed like he was never around.

So I would encourage you to probably pull his calendar for --

Q. What month and years?

A. I would say July '21 and after.

Q. Is there some incident you can point to where his attendance to the office stopped? Was it sudden, or was it gradual?

A. It was gradual. It seemed like he gradually was not there more and more, and he was unavailable, which then just stalemated --

Q. Right, because everything has to go through him.

A. Everything has to go through him, and then everything just slows to a crawl, at best a crawl.

The sheriff's son, Clovis Watson, IV, was the subject of numerous traffic stops and some criminal acts with GPD. This information was forwarded to the sheriff, but he never seemed to rectify it with his son. It continued to happen.

He was stopped a couple of times by our deputies for traffic violations. We did a DUI checkpoint down on South 13th Street where his son was completely irate and completely out of line just coming to pick somebody up that we had dealt with. I called the sheriff and he said, okay, and that was the end of it.

It was like his son could just do whatever he wanted to because his dad was the sheriff. There was no -- it was a very poor reflection on the sheriff, very poor reflection on the sheriff.

We talked about fails to process paperwork.

I think Ed Bennett -- you might want to talk to Ed Bennett about the disapproval of secondary employment at the academy.

Q. With regard to that, are you aware that the academy became short of staff because of the sheriff disapproving secondary employment?

A. I can't swear to that.

Q. We'd have to check with the academy?

A. You'd have to check with the academy. I would imagine it severely impacted it; but to what extent, I can't speculate.

Q. Understood.

A. The sheriff seems to make decisions based on emotion quite a bit rather than, you know, actual facts. The sheriff demoted Mat Yakubsin from lieutenant back to sergeant for essentially liking a Facebook post. Let me back up.

He demoted him, but he ordered me to demote him. So I had to call him and tell him, "Hey, look, you're demoted because you liked a Facebook post."

Q. Was that formal discipline?

A. He was on probation.

Q. So he was already on disciplinarian probation?

A. No, he was on new-hire -- promotional probation.

Q. I see. So he could be demoted back to his prior rank without any discipline occurring?

A. Correct.

Q. And does that cause him to lose pay?

A. It does cause him to lose pay.

Q. How much, roughly?

A. I'd have to go back and look at the scales. I mean, you can make a request for the pay changes in HTE. A minimum of five percent; but Yakubsin was not that tenured of a sergeant, so potentially ten percent more. I don't know the exact numbers on Yakubsin.

Q. And you know the basis for that demotion was liking a Facebook post because you were instructed to tell him why he was being demoted by the sheriff?

A. I was instructed by the sheriff to demote him back to sergeant; and the sheriff had told me that, "He liked that Facebook post, and I'm going to demote him."

Now, keep in mind everybody else that also liked that Facebook post -- it surrounded a lieutenant Facebook post from the jail that was subsequently terminated. Howard, I believe, is his name, received corrective counseling for that, but Yakubsin was demoted.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did that go through an OPS review?

A. Oh, no.

Q. So there's no documentation on any of it?

A. No.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Did Yakubsin get corrective counseling?

A. I believe he may have, but he was hit with a demotion and the corrective counseling where everybody else was just hit with the corrective counseling. In other words, I felt as if the demotion was excessive in comparison to what had been handed out to everybody else. That's kind of where I was going with that.

We discussed the negligent promotions last time.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. While we're on that topic --

A. Which topic?

Q. Negligent promotion. You mentioned Cleveland Cox. Talk about your knowledge about what happened when he tried out for the SWAT team?

A. He tried out for the SWAT team. He wasn't recommended, and then he was appointed by recommendation of the undersheriff.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Also, what the consequence was to the person who did not want him appointed to the SWAT team.

A. Oh, he adamantly opposed it. He was -- I can't remember if it was Josh Crews or Rich Howell at the time.

Q. Josh Crews.

A. Josh Crews absolutely did not want him to the point he wanted to go meet with the undersheriff, and I think he did meet with undersheriff about it; but the decision was made that he did not get his number one and number two picks, and he got Cleveland Cox. And Cleveland Cox was almost promoted at the recommendation of the sheriff.

Q. What happened with Josh Crews with his relationship with the SWAT team after he didn't want Cleveland Cox on there?

A. I'd have to go back and scroll and think about the timeline, but I can tell you, if you're referring to his removal from the SWAT team, his removal from the SWAT team, I do not believe, was tied to that incident.

We had a SWAT call-out in Monteoca, and the sheriff and undersheriff were there. And Josh Crews was insubordinate to me; and the sheriff found out about it, and the sheriff removed him from the SWAT team based on that incident.

Q. Were those two things occurring closely in time, the Cleveland Cox incident and Monteoca incident?

A. I believe the Cleveland Cox thing was a couple months afterwards. It could have been pretty close. It could have been pretty close.

Q. I don't know the answer, but my understanding is that the delivery of the information that Cleveland Cox would be assigned to the SWAT team and the removal of then lieutenant -- captain, sergeant, I'm not sure --

A. Lieutenant Josh Crews.

Q. -- Lieutenant Crews were delivered at the same time.

A. It may have been. It could have been in close proximity, and I can see how maybe he could correlate that if it was in close proximity, but my knowledge of the incident, it was really based on Lieutenant Crews' insubordination. Because I was ordered by the sheriff to conduct -- to basically put gas on the house with the hopes that the guy would come out, and Josh Crews came over to me and said, "I hope it's not a tactic," and he was rather nasty about it.

I'm not on the SWAT team. I've never been on the SWAT team, and I don't pretend to be on the SWAT team. So when it comes to SWAT-related matters, I would defer to Josh. Josh has got the knowledge. He's been on there a long time, along with his brother. His brother is no longer with us. He's retired. But I had a direct order from the sheriff that this is the way we're going to proceed, and Josh didn't agree with it.

Q. Let me make sure I understand the sheriff is directing a tactic to remove an individual from a home that a SWAT team is doing?

A. To put gas in there, yes.

Q. But is the sheriff qualified to make a decision about a tactic to remove a barricaded subject?

A. In my opinion, no, and that just falls on the back of what I just said. I'm a major. And even when I was a captain over those units, if I called you as my SWAT commander, and you said, "This is what we need to do," I'm going to defer to you. As long as we're not violating policy, we're not violating the law, and we're not creating some additional liability for the sheriff, I'm going to defer to you because that's your area of expertise.

Q. But doesn't it create liability if the sheriff, who is not qualified, is directing a tactic to be used in an extremely dangerous situation?

A. Oh, absolutely. The direction should not have come from the sheriff. The sheriff should have let Josh Crews run the incident, is what it comes down to.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. What was the barricaded subject?

A. There was another individual in the house. I think it was domestic.

Q. So the bad guy wasn't the only one in the house?

A. Correct.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I guess you're probably the wrong person to ask, but do we put gas in the house when there's more than one person in the house?

A. Generally, no, but I would defer to Josh Crews and let him discuss that incident in greater detail.

Q. And the insubordination that Josh demonstrated during that incident, was he ever a subject of formal discipline? Or was it just we're going to discipline him by removing him from the SWAT team?

A. He got a corrective counseling from me for his insubordination, but then the sheriff removed him as the SWAT team commander.

Q. Did they put gas in the house?

A. I don't remember. That was very early on in the tenure of the administration.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did the sheriff give a reason why he wanted the gas? Did he have some place to go?

A. Uh-uh. It was clear he was trying to direct the incident where he didn't have the experience to direct the incident.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Was the sheriff at the scene?
A. He was, and the undersheriff. They both showed up. And, you know, to be fair, normally the sheriff and the undersheriff, the major does not show up to SWAT teams. You know, normally we're behind the phone somewhere, and we're letting those people run those operations; but that's not the way the sheriff wanted it run.
The captain was there. I was there. Captain Bella Blizzard was there. I was there. Decoursey was there. The sheriff was there. And I think probably Josh felt like he wasn't being allowed to operate under the parameters that he normally operates because his decision-making was being impeded by us.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And that's what lead to his insubordination.
A. Correct.
Q. That's also consistent with what you've previously testified to, that all the decisions are being made by the sheriff to operational and tactical decisions.
A. That is correct.
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Were you familiar or did we talk about it last time, about the Cleveland Cox investigation that went through the office of professional standards?

A. I was aware.

Q. Do you know what happened with that eventually, or why it was terminated?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Is there some connection or familial connection between the undersheriff and Cleveland Cox?

A. We speculated that there was, but we -- I don't know of one, but it seemed to be really out of character that he was placed on the SWAT team and he was promoted against the objections of essentially everyone.

Q. Was he also assigned to CID?

A. He was.

Q. Against the objections?

A. He was. It was a pattern existing with Cleveland Cox, but I don't know what the connection is.

MR. KRAMER: I want to talk about time.

We can go off the record.

(An off-the-record discussion was had.)

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. All we were discussing is how much time we have remaining before our other witnesses to need to appear.

A. Eric Hutchison was promoted to the rank of acting lieutenant when he wasn't on the eligibility list. I would suggest you pull the employee profile and the eligibility list. When that was called to the sheriff's attention, that he wasn't eligible for promotion, the sheriff did act and rescinded that; but then here recently Scott Bonafide has been promoted to an active lieutenant, and he's been moved to civil.

As you're aware, civil is a completely different animal than any other part of the sheriff's office. You deal with evicting people and serving papers that can and cannot be served at certain times of day. To my knowledge, Scott has no knowledge of the civil process.

I did mention Rashawn Flanders. I do not have that paperwork that I thought I had.

The last one is Pat Ford Thomas. Michelle Clement was the division manager, and she was removed for seemingly no reason and moved over to the contract monitor at the jail, which she's got zero experience at. She was removed from her role as a division manager, and she was replaced with Pat Ford Thomas.

Pat Ford Thomas is the wife of Dave Thomas, who, interestingly enough, was one of the very core group of people in Watson's campaign.

Q. We're going to speak with Michelle Clement. We just haven't gotten her scheduled yet.

A. Okay. I have for you a copy of one of the personnel orders that went out, and as you can see, the quantity of moves that were made at one time are significant; and that's not one of them, but the reason why that's significant is because I have this to go along with it, which is completely out of character, which has everybody's picture and where they're going, where you can definitely see folks --

MR. KRAMER: All right. We'll make this an exhibit to your statement.

That's all I have. I'm sure if something else comes up, I may think of something or whatever.

(Exhibit 1 was marked for identification.)

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. One last question I've got. When transfers and things were made, were the positions that they went to, were they resumed made for? Or were persons just told, you're going here, and you're going here?

A. Under the Darnell administration, generally, what would happen would be, an open position announcement would come out: Any interested deputy sheriff that wishes to apply to be a detective, please submit your name to ISIS, which is our internal system. Interviews are conducted, and then somebody would be selected from the list.

Under the Watson administration, that pretty much went out the window. He just made moves willie-nillie as he felt necessary with no rhyme or reason is really the short answer.

MR. KRAMER: Thank you. We may be talking to you further.

WHEREUPON,

GEORGE CORINE

acknowledged having been duly sworn to tell the truth, and testified upon his or her oath as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Could you state your full name?

A. George John Corine.

Q. Mr. Corine, we're here again for continuation of our prior interview after the interview in which we ran out of time due to our scheduling and not really understanding the full breath of the information that you had.

Did you have an opportunity to review the questions that were asked by me and the officers to you during the interview?

A. I did.

Q. And thinking it through, were there other instances that would have been responsive to our questions that you didn't have an opportunity to provide?

A. Yes. And then I think there were some other things that -- notes were made, but we had skipped back and forth. We were moving forward and back and forward and back in time, and I don't know if I discussed them or not. If I did, I apologize. It would be a duplicate.

Q. That's fine.

A. But if not --

Q. Where would you prefer to start? You want to start with things that you're concerned about that we just skipped over, or do you want to start with more -- the question, I believe, was, is there anything that occurred at the sheriff's office that was illegal, unethical, or immoral that you observed that you could tell us about, and I think that might be the area where there were additional responses.

A. Yeah. I think the other -- the things that I have highlighted here may just clean up my previous notes.

Q. All right. Let's start with that.

A. And again, I don't know if I got these things on the record last time.

One of my notes that I had made that nothing can be decided until the sheriff has made final decision. So it seems as if he is the sole decision maker, and nobody in the chain of command has the ability to make any types of decisions.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did you get that from him?

A. That's just the perception.

And let me say that we have forms that, obviously, go up to certain levels, and some of the forms go to the sheriff. For instance, if you have a -- if you win a prize, for example -- I'm sure you guys have heard of SWAT Roundup.

We had an incident where a couple of guys won some rifles at SWAT Roundup, and guns, which I'm sure you're familiar always happens. And history has always been when that item comes back, that the sheriff has allowed the person to keep it. We fill out a form that basically says, "Hey, I received this as essentially gratuity. What do you want to do with it?" and history had always been ever since I've been there that the employee was just allowed to keep it.

Those forms sat for months and months and months, and we continuously asked and asked and asked; and the paper was never being processed, which seemed to be the history of things like secondary employment forms.

In other words, I work for Home Depot. I have to fill out a form saying I work for Home Depot, I work five to ten hours a week. You know, it doesn't conflict, I won't be doing any law enforcement action, blah, blah, blah, and it gets approved all the way up to the sheriff. Those type of forms just sit.

It's like there's a neglect to fill those forms out and get them back to people, especially when it comes to the folks that live in reduced rent apartments; because those reduced rent apartments are really considered secondary employment, and now we have people who come back and fill out the form, say, "Hey, I have this secondary employment. I live at ABC Apartment Complex," and those forms never get processed.

Lately -- I've been gone, but lately -- I'm sure you guys can follow up with it -- some secondary employment has been approved, but it's been very sporadic; and then others, it's been straight-up denied. And those denials have come on the backs of years and years and years of approval.

In other words, I might be teaching at the academy. I taught at the academy for 15 years, let's say, and then all of a sudden this year it's a denial for no reason, and there's no reason given.

Q. Is that detrimental to the functioning of the sheriff's office?

A. The academy, absolutely, because we have an agreement with the academy that we're going to provide people to teach the recruits.

Q. Well, maybe I'm being too obtuse. If employees are being mistreated and treated very differently than they have been by prior administrations without any explanation, does that create an environment where employees are likely to remain?

A. Absolutely not. What happens is too often -- I'm sure you guys are aware that law enforcement salaries are not that high, and almost everybody has got some sort of secondary employment whether it be at the academy or whether they have a business. Like we have several folks that have lawn maintain businesses, you know, and they thrive on those businesses, especially during the summer months when grass cutting is frequent. And when those forms aren't being approved, then you get into a situation where am I allowed to continue my business that I invested all this capital in, or what do I need to do? Do I need to quit and just move on?

And I'm sure if you pull the vacancy rate, the FT vacancies on January 5th of 2021, you pull the FT vacancy rate as of today, you'll see that they're vastly different.

Q. Just so I understand, do those supplemental employment forms have to be yearly?

A. They do.

Q. So even if you've had the same position for years and years, it has to be approved every year?

A. Every calendar year.

Q. Is it October 1? January 1?

A. January 1, if my memory recalls. I think it's January 1.

Q. Would your understanding be, there would be individuals who would resubmit after January 1 and would not get an answer for five, six, seven months?

A. Lengthy amounts of times or outright denials with no excuse, or no response, really. And, you know, the academy relies on those folks to teach recruits.

Q. Right.

A. I do believe we discussed that it could be found in one of the audio recordings that the undersheriff said that nothing is final until it's in green ink.

Q. Correct.

A. So that just kind of plays into that.

Q. And, also, I want to follow up on that issue. I want to make sure I understand what you're telling me, which is that -- and I'll use my organization as an example. We have -- I delegate control out to supervisors because I am physically incapable of making timely decisions in 20,000 cases of prosecution per year, and that is necessary for the proper functioning of the agency.

A. That is correct. I felt as if I had less decision-making authority as a major than I did as a lieutenant under the Darnell administration, which chokes the entire operation.

Q. So the same is true at the sheriff's office, and probably on a much larger scale than my organization. I have 135 employees, and the sheriff's office has how many employees?

A. About 960.

Q. Nine hundred sixty employees, and then essentially day-to-day decision making is being made by the sheriff?

A. Essentially.

Q. And that has prevented the sheriff's office's proper functioning because decision-making is delayed, and this -- what you've been talking about, this example of additional employment, is just maybe one example of delay.

A. It is one example, yes.

Q. And there are many others?

A. Right.

Q. And I don't know if you can speak to this, but is one of those examples, would it be assisting other agencies?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you aware during the time you were at the sheriff's office of a change in the decision-making process by which the sheriff's office decided whether or not to assist other agencies?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And if you could clarify. Does the sheriff's office have obligations, contractual and grant-oriented obligations, to provide assistance to regional agencies with equipment and expertise that those agencies would not have?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And could you explain what happened while you were there? What was the change from the prior administration? How did that affect things?

A. So operationally when I was the patrol support lieutenant, which was over all the special teams, Bradford County would call and say, "Hey, we've got an incident up here. We need the SWAT team."

So we're part of a region. The SWAT team is a regional team. There's funding that comes out of --

I can't remember the abbreviation, but it is -- there's funding that comes out. They fund some equipment, and that is really meant so that when Bradford County calls, or Union County folks that don't have a SWAT team, we go up there and we handle it.

And usually the protocol was, they would call. The captain would say, "Hey, Union County has a SWAT call-out." I would notify the SWAT guys, and then they would go.

The captain would then turn around and notify the chain upwards, "Hey, this is what's happened. I'm just kind of letting you know that Bradford County has called, or Union County has called, and they need the SWAT team."

That's been the practice for years. I mean, time was of the essence when you're talking about calling out a SWAT team. If we're not calling them for some preplanned event three days from now, then we don't have time to sit around and talk and have approval. It's go.

That completely changed under the Watson administration. He simply demanded that, in order for any asset to leave this county, that that sheriff that was requesting or that chief that was requesting the equipment called him first, which severely choked the response time.

So it was a complete spin. It was something we weren't used to, but he wanted the sheriff of Bradford County, Union County to call him and ask for the equipment before we were authorized.

Q. And what if he wasn't available?

A. (Shrugs shoulders.)

Q. You're holding up your hands and saying there's no answer for that?

A. There's no answer for that because we weren't authorized to proceed.

Q. So, for instance, just an instance that I was personally involved in was, there was an officer-involved shooting in Levy County, and they only have maybe four deputies on the road at any one time. I don't know if you're aware of this incident.

A. Correct.

Q. And when three of the officers were involved in a shooting, then they had no -- essentially, one deputy remaining on the road. They requested assistance from the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Would that assistance request have to go through the sheriff himself?

A. It would.

Q. Would you agree that under those circumstances where a county was essentially now --

A. Vacant.

Q. -- had no law enforcement available, that time is of the essence?

A. Yeah, it is essential. And I'll follow up with another example.

The two deputies that were shot in Gilchrist County under the Darnell administration. As soon as that happened, everybody started rolling. We rolled the command -- I mean, we had the mobile command bus. We had schedules done to start covering the county, and then we just started notifying the sheriff, "Hey, this is what we're doing. This is how we're taking care of them." It was almost the information was flowing upward rather than flowing downward.

And under the Watson administration it's completely immerse. It's not allowed to happen in that manner. And the folks who may call 911 in Gilchrist County, now that there's no deputies available, they rely on our assistance. And we have the resources to provide to Gilchrist County or to Union County that Union County or Gilchrist County doesn't otherwise have.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Let's go back to things that you may -- unless you wanted to follow up. I'm sorry.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Has he ever denied one of those requests that you know of?

A. Yes.

Q. Which one?

A. There was an incident where University of Florida had called and requested the use of the jail vans. There was something going on at the Reitz Union. I think Darren Baxley had called and requested the jail vans. Don't quote me. I think it was Darren Baxley, deputy chief. Sheriff Watson refused to let them utilize the jail vans.

All that is, is a transport function. It's not like we were sending personnel. You know, we send in a couple of people to operate the vans, but we weren't sending crowd management. We weren't getting involved with their business on campus. They were just simply asking for assistance because, again, the university, you know, they've only got 80 FTEs, you know, somewhere in there. They don't have the capacity to deal with 15 or 20 arrestees at the same time. It would impact them severely to have to deal with that, and we had the resources. I didn't understand what the purpose of withholding a jail van was.

Q. When you say impact severely, would that mean creating an unsafe environment for the remainder of the students and faculty on campus?

A. Potentially. I mean, it depends on how the incident goes. If you got all your guys on the incident tied up with 10-15, or arrestees, if you will, and then they need to focus their attention somewhere else, next thing you know, you divert your attention to the people that need to go. Now you have an unsafe number of officers with the arrestees; or do the officers stay with the arrestees, and now you've neglected this? You have to make a decision.

You've only got so many personnel. The jail van would have been very quick, easy. You bring the jail vans over, put them in the jail vans, pat them down, get them in there, at least hold them there for a few minutes or get them out of there, whatever they decided to do. It was a relatively simple request.

There was some issues surrounding the drug task force, which I'm sure you're aware of, and the sheriff not wanting anyone to operate in the county.

Q. Were you an employee of the sheriff's office at the time that the sheriff directed the removal of all the equipment from the drug task force?

A. No, but my understanding is it was done in the middle of the night under some covert operation, was the rumor.

Q. Correct. I just didn't know if you were personally involved.

A. I was not.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Were you there when Nassau County requested assistance on an officer-involved shooting, and it was denied?

A. Actually, yes. I believe I was.

Q. Do we know why?

A. I don't know why.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. But that denial would have come from the sheriff?

A. It come from the sheriff. No cop, working cop, like even coming up through the ranks, when they had something like that, would deny that type of assistance. Those are the things -- when things were choked, it chokes to the point where it doesn't -- it doesn't run efficiently.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And for the record, let me correct that. It may have been an officer-involved shooting, but actually the deputy had been shot; and they had a subject cornered, and they were asking for assistance from SWAT teams.

A. Correct. Correct.

MR. KRAMER: Anything further on what he's said so far?

THE WITNESS: One of the things that -- you know, you talk about assets. The SWAT team is one of them, but more frequently the helicopter is something that -- you know, we have an aviation unit. And folks in Putnam County and Columbia County, you know, they rely on that air support. You know, one helicopter there, arguably, is equivalent of 15 or 20 units on the ground.

Those requests were frequently -- we ran into problems where there would be a pursuit at, say, 2:00 in the morning, and they're calling and asking for our assistance. And then you have to make the decision, do I say, okay, go ahead and go, and then get chewed out the next day because they didn't -- because that sheriff didn't call our sheriff at 2:00 in the morning?

I mean, that's the type of slow-down we're talking about, to the point where you might as well not even send them at that point. It's almost rendering it useless.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And it's 2:00 in the morning. Is Sheriff Watson available to answer another sheriff's call?

A. I don't know. I never called him at 2:00 in the morning.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. You mentioned earlier about the funding. If I recall from my days with RDS --

A. RDSTF, yeah, that's it.

Q. Regional Domestic Security Task Force. That's where a lot of Alachua's money came from. Or I say a lot. That's basically --

A. A significant amount of money.

Q. They were given a lot of money to create those regional units in case of -- for the region.

A. Right.

Q. And that was the understanding, that the money is given to you, but you need to be available if the region needs you.

A. The BearCat. I believe the BearCat was portioned with RDSTF money; or a portion of it was purchased with it, and you know how expensive those are.

The bomb team is another RDSTF, you know.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Let me ask you this. Are these requests reduced in any way to writing, or would there be any evidence of the request existing at all?

A. Usually -- from my recollection, usually when something breaks off, it's a phone call saying, "We need SWAT."

Q. Let me ask you this --

A. There could be a Teletype follow-up, though. I don't know.

Q. Would there be text messaging? Like, for instance, might you send a text message to the sheriff "We've received request from Scott for SWAT in Union County"?

A. Oh, I'm sure, but I never really directly contacted the sheriff. That was the undersheriff. I would call him, the undersheriff. I mean, he would answer his phone.

Q. But if -- you would agree those communications would be records at the agency?

A. There should be records at the agency.

Q. But if those records were not being -- they may not be preserved.

A. They should be preserved. Because there was a point in time when we all got iPhones -- you get into the debate of the iPhone or the Android, right? The iPhone is a blue, which is MMS; and then you have the Android, which is an SMS message. From my understanding, the SMS messages are recorded through your carrier, but the MMS are not because they're run on data and not run on cellular.

Q. But if the sheriff didn't allow the recording devices on his phone, there would be no record of those requests being made to the sheriff, correct?

A. I know that the phone that I had had recording because that was all enabled by Scott Shelpman, if my memory serves me correctly.

Q. Understood. Let's move on to the next item that you were concerned that we had missed due to our time constraints.

A. We discussed briefly Michelle Shirfield last time. She had posted some items on Facebook that could be seen by some folks as slanted to one racial side, if you will. That was brought to Watson's attention, and our understanding is that she was given a corrective counseling for that. Nobody ever saw the corrective counseling.

And then the order was basically given, you know, for Facebook or for violations of social media, that was -- that was the -- what should be done, give them a corrective counseling and go through progressive discipline.

And I think there's a couple open cases right now -- or I don't know if they're open or closed.

So Frank Williams and Kevin Davis are under investigation, or open at the moment, for things that I think were far less controversial, and they were placed on admin suspension and been sitting at the house for months.

Q. And let me ask you because I don't know the answer to this. This individual -- and you said her name was Michelle?

A. Shirfield.

Q. Shirfield? Is she African American?

A. She is.

Q. And the posts that you're referencing, they were -- I don't know the posts. Were they racially inappropriate?

A. It was more of a supporting a racial position, and I believe Kevin Davis could speak more on that.

Q. Is it your understanding that a formal complaint was made either to her supervisor or to the office of professional standards so that discipline should have been initiated?

A. I told the sheriff directly about the violation, and Bobby Stafford told the sheriff directly about the violation.

Q. But as far as I understand -- and my understanding of discipline is developing -- is that the way the discipline would be initiated, it would be either through the office of professional standards or through her supervisor.

A. Correct.

Q. So you gave that information to the sheriff?

A. Correct.

Q. And your understanding is that no discipline was initiated; or if there was any discipline, it was informal in the form of a corrective counseling?

A. It was informal in the form of a corrective counseling, but nobody seen that. I'm sure if you pull her file you would either see a corrective counseling or not see a corrective counseling, but she reported directly to the sheriff.

Q. When someone receives corrective counseling, is it discipline?

A. It's considered informal discipline.

Q. But it should remain in the employee file for one year?

A. That's correct. Oftentimes it's not removed. You have to go back in there and say, hey, that needs to come out.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Do you know if Kevin Davis made a complaint about that to OPS or through the sheriff suite?

A. I don't think so because he had already known that it was brought to the attention of the sheriff and Bobby Stafford.

Q. Do you know about any complaint that Kevin Davis took to OPS?

A. I know he made a complaint. I don't remember what it surrounded; but I do remember him taking a complaint, and it was basically like disregarded.

Q. If somebody takes a complaint to OPS, should a case number be drawn?

A. Oh, absolutely, or they say this is really not -- there's a list of standards that OPS will investigate these certain things or as directed by the sheriff.

So they'll look at it, and they'll say we'll take and we're going to pull a case number, or they'll say we're going to defer it back to the division commander and let the employee supervisor handle it.

MR. KRAMER: Any other questions on that particular issue?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Thank you for the clarification. Was there anything else?

A. Did we discuss the bargaining process with the re-openers and the unfair labor practice?

Q. You did. You informed us that one of the reasons why you left the sheriff's office was that you advised them, essentially, that what they were doing was in violation of the National Labor Standards Act.

A. Oh, that's right. I gave you the form. Okay.

So I gave the set of text messages last time between the undersheriff and I.

Q. Yes.

A. The sergeants and lieutenants ratified their contract. The deputies did not ratify their contract. And there was an extended period of time; I don't recall the exact settlement dates, maybe July, August the following year. So we're talking about ten, eleven months later that ultimately we were going to go to a hearing at the sheriff's office.

And right before that began and the sheriff was coming to sit down and testify, if my memory serves me correctly, he wanted to have a discussion. And then that was ultimately settled, and a substantial check was written for attorney's fees. You may want to pull a copy of that.

Q. Who was the attorney that would have received the fees?

A. It would be the PBA.

Q. Would it be the PBA itself, or would it be paid directly to a particular attorney?

MS. WEBSTER: Do you want me to answer?

MR. KRAMER: No, you can tell him.

THE WITNESS: The check was written to the PBA.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. For the attorney's fees?

A. For the attorney's fees.

Q. Incurred because of the actions that you've already described in your previous testimony where the sheriff was essentially acting in violation of the National Labor Standards Act of essentially just refusing to negotiate in good faith.

A. That is correct. And that surrounded the take-home cars, which I believe we talked about last time.

Q. Correct.

A. All those things wrapped up.

Q. He withdrew all the articles. That's the phraseology you used.

A. Everything was TA'd. We were getting ready to go to a vote on Thursday and Friday. On Monday, October 18th, I got a call that he withdrew all the articles.

I said, "Wait a minute. We know this vote is coming. We can't do this."

I brought it to his attention, and the sheriff made the unilateral decision to pull that. I said, "You can't do that. You're going to refuse to sign a contract after it's already been agreed upon."

And in his text messages, which I presented to you last time, I was told that my interpretation was not consistent with the decision of the sheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Next.

A. We talked about the SWAT rifles.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Where are those rifles now, Major?

A. So those rifles were not given to the employee personally. They were issued to the employee that won them with the understanding that when they retire they will be able to keep them. That was the decision that was made, if my memory serves me correctly; but that's probably not in writing anywhere, I promise you that, because nothing hardly ever gets reduced to writing.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Well, they wouldn't have gone to the inventory? Doesn't every officer have an inventory?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And if they're not on the inventory, and they're in the officer's possession --

A. No, they're issued to the officer. They're going to be on the inventory.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. They were taken into the sheriff's office inventory and then issued to the officer that won it.

A. That's correct.

Did I touch on the fact that Watson will make a decision regardless whether it's against policy or procedure?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I think in general that was clear, but are there specific instances that you can reference that you didn't reference last time?

A. No. I just want to make sure I hit that --

Q. You did.

A. It's so frequent, though, that --

Q. What is the effect on the agency when the sheriff doesn't follow the agency's own policy?

A. Well, what it does is, it sets the tone of the only consistency is inconsistency, right? And when the sheriff isn't following his own policies and procedures, what message is that sending down to the troops?

It sends a horrible message down saying I don't have to follow policy and procedure, but I'm going to hold you to it; and when you aren't held to it, when you violate that, I'm going to write you up.

Q. Would it also lead people to the conclusion that -- wouldn't it also lead to the natural conclusion that if you follow a policy, that the sheriff might still discipline you or you might meet criticism or demotion or job problems because you followed policy that the sheriff no longer wants to have be the policy?

A. It's almost as if you're expected to think like him. And if it is any perceived disrespect or embarrassment, you're going to be talked to about it, if not hit with some sort of discipline.

We just had a recent case, the Glen Stanley internal investigation, which is closed -- which I suggest you pull a copy of that -- where the sheriff goes outside the disciplinary matrix.

We have a matrix that says this is Level Two, Level Three, Level Four or Five, and this is -- you know, you got a Level Two, you get this many points. This many points is from A to B, and he'll just add C in there.

Q. And in this particular investigation was it to the officer's detriment?

A. Yes.

Q. Is this recourse for the officer under those circumstances? Can the officer appeal that decision? Do they have -- do they enforce the matrix as it exists, or are they simply subject to the sheriff's rulings?

A. Only if they meet the standards set forth in the sheriff's board, which is greater than a two-day suspension. In this case it was one-day suspension, but they put the guy on 12 months of disciplinary probation. And I believe, if you go back and you look at what a Level Three violation is, 12 months of disciplinary probation is not allowed.

And then what you do when you put somebody on disciplinary probation is, the next time they wear the wrong color socks or doing something that's in violation, then they're not eligible for a career service board.

It's almost like you're setting up them for the next violation, to render them ineffective in a career service board.

Q. And because it's a one-day suspension, it's not appealable?

A. Correct.

We touched on changing past practice without really any discussion with anyone.

Q. Correct. Yes.

A. We touched on Watson and Decoursey routinely holding paperwork and not signing it, essentially neglecting the duties of moving the institution along.

And we -- I know we discussed not reducing things to writing, and we discussed the staffing shortages. So I think that kind of cleans up what I can remember from the last one.

Q. Was there anything additional in response to the question, are you aware of anything immoral, unethical, or illegal, that occurred in the sheriff's office while you were there --

A. Well --

Q. -- that we didn't cover last time?

A. I think that's where we're going to move in to the next section.

Q. Okay.

A. So the sheriff is a steward of the taxpayer's money. Would you agree with that?

Q. Agreed.

A. When he came into office, there were two vehicles that were provided that were left by Darnell and Huckstep. They were not happy with those vehicles even though they were functioning vehicles, and they immediately purchased two black Tahoes; and they were high-end Tahoes to the tune of in the mid 70s. And then, of course, all the equipment and everything had to go in on top of that, so you're talking probably upwards of 90-plus thousand dollars just because they wanted new vehicles. That was kind of like the first thing. Everybody kind of questioned that.

And then he had the badges removed from them that say like "High Country" to make it look like it wasn't, you know, an expensive vehicle as it was, but everybody knew what time of day it was. They saw the badges on there. Everybody knew what was going on. You could see it.

So that was kind of, in my opinion, something that the fleet department should have set back and assessed and advised the sheriff, "Hey, if we want new vehicles, this is where our budget is. This is how much money we have left. If we make this purchase, then we can't purchase these four cars instead of these two Tahoes."

That didn't happen. He immediately ordered the vehicle. I don't think they came off state contract. I think they got one at the local Chevrolet dealership. Or I don't know where they got them form; you'd have to pull that. One was 74. The other one was 77 or somewhere in there. They were both in the mid 70s. So that was one thing that kind of came up.

So there were some Nissans that were purchased, and I believe they were for the drug task force or somebody, I think, after I had left. And there was an allegation they were purchased from Gainesville Nissan, and his son is one of the sales managers at Gainesville Nissan.

Q. Those type of contract purchases would be normally not done through Gainesville Nissan? They'd be done through state contract?

A. Generally, yes, unless there is a specific reason. Like, I know Darnell, when we purchased Harleys, the state contract price was, say -- I'm just throwing a number out there -- 17,000, but Gainesville

Harley said, hey, we'll sell them to you for 15.5. The sheriff felt we should keep our money local, and she was actually saving money and was being a good steward of the taxpayers' money and purchased the Harleys there.

But as far as going outside of that, the only thing I know of going outside was that some vehicles were purchased from Southeast Car Agency, especially when it came to things like the trucks for the aviation unit, where we could get something that was used; we didn't buy them new. They weren't new vehicles. They were used vehicles.

But there was some allegations that the Nissans came purchased from his son; and I don't have any evidence to substantiate that, but you could certainly run that down.

One of the tasks that I was given fairly early on was -- the office of professional standards was housed within the main sheriff's office at 2621 Southeast Hawthorne Road. And the office of professional standards has a door that goes right into the sheriff's suite, and that was so that the captain of OPS could go in and confer with the sheriff because the captain was direct report to the sheriff. It had been set like that since I've been there. That was always OPS. Some years prior to that, it was at the jail.

He had me -- he directed me to have OPS relocated back to the office -- the department of the jail, and he then commanded those offices for himself and had them remodeled where he made a rather large office for himself and spent a significant amount of money remodeling that office and then purchased some furniture to fill that office.

Q. Was the furniture purchased off of state contract?

A. I was told it was purchased offline. He went online and bought it because he got a better deal. To what that was, what that P.O. looked like, I have no idea.

Q. Would that be unusual?

A. That would be unusual.

Q. Outside the standard procedures of the sheriff's office to purchase furniture?

A. Correct, because every time we've purchased furniture -- like we purchased tables like these, chairs like these that sit in the squad room that I'm sure you've been to. All those were purchased through a vendor that we've got. And every time we've had to purchase something, A and B has to come to us with a book like this and said, here's what's available. This is what we can purchase. So to purchase furniture outside that realm, to my knowledge, had never been done.

Q. Okay.

A. There was a lot of controversy surrounding expenditures plastering his name on the building.

Q. Where are those?

A. On one occasion it didn't look right, and he bought it again.

Okay. You're aware of it. We'll move on.

On the back of everybody's vest said "sheriff" just like the cars say "sheriff" on it. It doesn't mean that you are the sheriff. It just indicates like police, sheriff. All those were ordered to be removed and replaced with deputies.

Q. Was it on the cars as well as the uniforms?

A. It was not on the cars. It was just on the uniforms.

Q. Did anybody -- with regard to this, did anybody confer or look at the Florida Statutes to ensure that the officers would be properly marked for the purposes of fleeing or attempting to elude or resisting arrest with or without violence, to ensure that the standards that are set forth in the statutes would be met?

A. I brought that specific statute that you're referring to to the attention of the undersheriff and said, "There's really no reason for this. It doesn't designate them as the sheriff, but, you know, it's for the purposes of authority."

And the response was, "There's only one sheriff, and that's the guy that signs in green ink. Everybody else is a deputy," and that was the reason for the switch.

But again, you have whatever those patches were, ten, eight, twelve dollars times how many, 300 patches. Again, it's just another tick of expenditures that didn't need to happen.

Q. Understood.

A. The sheriff and the undersheriff has continued to disregard Florida Statute 112 on numerous occasions, which obviously stemmed from the lawsuits that are out there pending.

Q. Do you have any information to indicate whether their disregard of 112 procedures and rights that are contained in Florida Statute 112 are based upon ignorance, that they don't understand them? Or is it based on an intentional act that they don't care to provide those rights and meet their responsibilities?

A. Personally, I believe they don't care.

Q. So at the time these violations have occurred, are the rights of the officers and responsibilities of the agency being brought to the attention of the individuals who are doing this and being told we don't care?

A. My understanding was 112 violation was raised; and then when the interview was stopped, that individual was charged with insubordination. And 112 clearly says that that can't happen.

Q. Which officer was charged with insubordination because they refused to be interviewed?

A. I believe it was Frank Williams, but I would have to go back and look. I'd have to do some additional research on that.

Q. I may need you to follow up on that if you can identify any particular officer who was -- I'm saying charged, but that's probably not the right word -- was given -- an OPS investigation was instituted for insubordination or insubordination was added to the current charged violations?

A. I believe if you pull the Glen Stanley case, and you pull a recording of the Loudermill that went along with the Glen Stanley case, the general counsel -- essentially, the argument was being made that truthfulness did not occur, that the officer actually -- it was alleged that the officer did not -- and I don't have first-hand knowledge of it, but from my understanding, is that the officer didn't do something and, in the actual packet, said that they had done it, they had sent an email.

The undersheriff indicated on his recommendation that it was truthfulness, that it didn't occur; and when the disciplinary rep went to make the argument that it was not truthfulness, the general counsel said, "Well, what charge do you think was appropriate?"

So I would encourage you to go back and listen to that audio recording of that Loudermill. In other words, you're going to get charged with something, and we're going to find something to fit.

Q. Okay. Understood.

A. I would encourage you to probably pull his calendar, Watson's calendar, and his gas receipts. On the very early part of his tenure he was there a lot. I know he was there a lot because I was there a lot, and I saw him a lot from very early in the morning, 5:00, 6:00 -- I think we discussed that last time -- until 8:00, 9:00 at night.

It got to the point where we needed the sheriff to approve something or do something, again, because we couldn't approve anything, the sheriff is not here. The sheriff is not here. The sheriff is not here. Where is he? Is he working? Is he not working? It seemed like he was never around.

So I would encourage you to probably pull his calendar for --

Q. What month and years?

A. I would say July '21 and after.

Q. Is there some incident you can point to where his attendance to the office stopped? Was it sudden, or was it gradual?

A. It was gradual. It seemed like he gradually was not there more and more, and he was unavailable, which then just stalemated --

Q. Right, because everything has to go through him.

A. Everything has to go through him, and then everything just slows to a crawl, at best a crawl.

The sheriff's son, Clovis Watson, IV, was the subject of numerous traffic stops and some criminal acts with GPD. This information was forwarded to the sheriff, but he never seemed to rectify it with his son. It continued to happen.

He was stopped a couple of times by our deputies for traffic violations. We did a DUI checkpoint down on South 13th Street where his son was completely irate and completely out of line just coming to pick somebody up that we had dealt with. I called the sheriff and he said, okay, and that was the end of it.

It was like his son could just do whatever he wanted to because his dad was the sheriff. There was no -- it was a very poor reflection on the sheriff, very poor reflection on the sheriff.

We talked about fails to process paperwork.

I think Ed Bennett -- you might want to talk to Ed Bennett about the disapproval of secondary employment at the academy.

Q. With regard to that, are you aware that the academy became short of staff because of the sheriff disapproving secondary employment?

A. I can't swear to that.

Q. We'd have to check with the academy?

A. You'd have to check with the academy. I would imagine it severely impacted it; but to what extent, I can't speculate.

Q. Understood.

A. The sheriff seems to make decisions based on emotion quite a bit rather than, you know, actual facts. The sheriff demoted Mat Yakubsin from lieutenant back to sergeant for essentially liking a Facebook post. Let me back up.

He demoted him, but he ordered me to demote him. So I had to call him and tell him, "Hey, look, you're demoted because you liked a Facebook post."

Q. Was that formal discipline?

A. He was on probation.

Q. So he was already on disciplinarian probation?

A. No, he was on new-hire -- promotional probation.

Q. I see. So he could be demoted back to his prior rank without any discipline occurring?

A. Correct.

Q. And does that cause him to lose pay?

A. It does cause him to lose pay.

Q. How much, roughly?

A. I'd have to go back and look at the scales. I mean, you can make a request for the pay changes in HTE. A minimum of five percent; but Yakubsin was not that tenured of a sergeant, so potentially ten percent more. I don't know the exact numbers on Yakubsin.

Q. And you know the basis for that demotion was liking a Facebook post because you were instructed to tell him why he was being demoted by the sheriff?

A. I was instructed by the sheriff to demote him back to sergeant; and the sheriff had told me that, "He liked that Facebook post, and I'm going to demote him."

Now, keep in mind everybody else that also liked that Facebook post -- it surrounded a lieutenant Facebook post from the jail that was subsequently terminated. Howard, I believe, is his name, received corrective counseling for that, but Yakubsin was demoted.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did that go through an OPS review?

A. Oh, no.

Q. So there's no documentation on any of it?

A. No.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Did Yakubsin get corrective counseling?

A. I believe he may have, but he was hit with a demotion and the corrective counseling where everybody else was just hit with the corrective counseling. In other words, I felt as if the demotion was excessive in comparison to what had been handed out to everybody else. That's kind of where I was going with that.

We discussed the negligent promotions last time.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. While we're on that topic --

A. Which topic?

Q. Negligent promotion. You mentioned Cleveland Cox. Talk about your knowledge about what happened when he tried out for the SWAT team?

A. He tried out for the SWAT team. He wasn't recommended, and then he was appointed by recommendation of the undersheriff.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Also, what the consequence was to the person who did not want him appointed to the SWAT team.

A. Oh, he adamantly opposed it. He was -- I can't remember if it was Josh Crews or Rich Howell at the time.

Q. Josh Crews.

A. Josh Crews absolutely did not want him to the point he wanted to go meet with the undersheriff, and I think he did meet with undersheriff about it; but the decision was made that he did not get his number one and number two picks, and he got Cleveland Cox. And Cleveland Cox was almost promoted at the recommendation of the sheriff.

Q. What happened with Josh Crews with his relationship with the SWAT team after he didn't want Cleveland Cox on there?

A. I'd have to go back and scroll and think about the timeline, but I can tell you, if you're referring to his removal from the SWAT team, his removal from the SWAT team, I do not believe, was tied to that incident.

We had a SWAT call-out in Monteoca, and the sheriff and undersheriff were there. And Josh Crews was insubordinate to me; and the sheriff found out about it, and the sheriff removed him from the SWAT team based on that incident.

Q. Were those two things occurring closely in time, the Cleveland Cox incident and Monteoca incident?

A. I believe the Cleveland Cox thing was a couple months afterwards. It could have been pretty close. It could have been pretty close.

Q. I don't know the answer, but my understanding is that the delivery of the information that Cleveland Cox would be assigned to the SWAT team and the removal of then lieutenant -- captain, sergeant, I'm not sure --

A. Lieutenant Josh Crews.

Q. -- Lieutenant Crews were delivered at the same time.

A. It may have been. It could have been in close proximity, and I can see how maybe he could correlate that if it was in close proximity, but my knowledge of the incident, it was really based on Lieutenant Crews' insubordination. Because I was ordered by the sheriff to conduct -- to basically put gas on the house with the hopes that the guy would come out, and Josh Crews came over to me and said, "I hope it's not a tactic," and he was rather nasty about it.

I'm not on the SWAT team. I've never been on the SWAT team, and I don't pretend to be on the SWAT team. So when it comes to SWAT-related matters, I would defer to Josh. Josh has got the knowledge. He's been on there a long time, along with his brother. His brother is no longer with us. He's retired. But I had a direct order from the sheriff that this is the way we're going to proceed, and Josh didn't agree with it.

Q. Let me make sure I understand the sheriff is directing a tactic to remove an individual from a home that a SWAT team is doing?

A. To put gas in there, yes.

Q. But is the sheriff qualified to make a decision about a tactic to remove a barricaded subject?

A. In my opinion, no, and that just falls on the back of what I just said. I'm a major. And even when I was a captain over those units, if I called you as my SWAT commander, and you said, "This is what we need to do," I'm going to defer to you. As long as we're not violating policy, we're not violating the law, and we're not creating some additional liability for the sheriff, I'm going to defer to you because that's your area of expertise.

Q. But doesn't it create liability if the sheriff, who is not qualified, is directing a tactic to be used in an extremely dangerous situation?

A. Oh, absolutely. The direction should not have come from the sheriff. The sheriff should have let Josh Crews run the incident, is what it comes down to.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. What was the barricaded subject?

A. There was another individual in the house. I think it was domestic.

Q. So the bad guy wasn't the only one in the house?

A. Correct.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. I guess you're probably the wrong person to ask, but do we put gas in the house when there's more than one person in the house?

A. Generally, no, but I would defer to Josh Crews and let him discuss that incident in greater detail.

Q. And the insubordination that Josh demonstrated during that incident, was he ever a subject of formal discipline? Or was it just we're going to discipline him by removing him from the SWAT team?

A. He got a corrective counseling from me for his insubordination, but then the sheriff removed him as the SWAT team commander.

Q. Did they put gas in the house?

A. I don't remember. That was very early on in the tenure of the administration.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did the sheriff give a reason why he wanted the gas? Did he have some place to go?

A. Uh-uh. It was clear he was trying to direct the incident where he didn't have the experience to direct the incident.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:
Q. Was the sheriff at the scene?
A. He was, and the undersheriff. They both showed up. And, you know, to be fair, normally the sheriff and the undersheriff, the major does not show up to SWAT teams. You know, normally we're behind the phone somewhere, and we're letting those people run those operations; but that's not the way the sheriff wanted it run.
The captain was there. I was there. Captain Bella Blizzard was there. I was there. Decoursey was there. The sheriff was there. And I think probably Josh felt like he wasn't being allowed to operate under the parameters that he normally operates because his decision-making was being impeded by us.
BY MR. KRAMER:
Q. And that's what lead to his insubordination.
A. Correct.
Q. That's also consistent with what you've previously testified to, that all the decisions are being made by the sheriff to operational and tactical decisions.
A. That is correct.
BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Were you familiar or did we talk about it last time, about the Cleveland Cox investigation that went through the office of professional standards?

A. I was aware.

Q. Do you know what happened with that eventually, or why it was terminated?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Is there some connection or familial connection between the undersheriff and Cleveland Cox?

A. We speculated that there was, but we -- I don't know of one, but it seemed to be really out of character that he was placed on the SWAT team and he was promoted against the objections of essentially everyone.

Q. Was he also assigned to CID?

A. He was.

Q. Against the objections?

A. He was. It was a pattern existing with Cleveland Cox, but I don't know what the connection is.

MR. KRAMER: I want to talk about time.

We can go off the record.

(An off-the-record discussion was had.)

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. All we were discussing is how much time we have remaining before our other witnesses to need to appear.

A. Eric Hutchison was promoted to the rank of acting lieutenant when he wasn't on the eligibility list. I would suggest you pull the employee profile and the eligibility list. When that was called to the sheriff's attention, that he wasn't eligible for promotion, the sheriff did act and rescinded that; but then here recently Scott Bonafide has been promoted to an active lieutenant, and he's been moved to civil.

As you're aware, civil is a completely different animal than any other part of the sheriff's office. You deal with evicting people and serving papers that can and cannot be served at certain times of day. To my knowledge, Scott has no knowledge of the civil process.

I did mention Rashawn Flanders. I do not have that paperwork that I thought I had.

The last one is Pat Ford Thomas. Michelle Clement was the division manager, and she was removed for seemingly no reason and moved over to the contract monitor at the jail, which she's got zero experience at. She was removed from her role as a division manager, and she was replaced with Pat Ford Thomas.

Pat Ford Thomas is the wife of Dave Thomas, who, interestingly enough, was one of the very core group of people in Watson's campaign.

Q. We're going to speak with Michelle Clement. We just haven't gotten her scheduled yet.

A. Okay. I have for you a copy of one of the personnel orders that went out, and as you can see, the quantity of moves that were made at one time are significant; and that's not one of them, but the reason why that's significant is because I have this to go along with it, which is completely out of character, which has everybody's picture and where they're going, where you can definitely see folks --

MR. KRAMER: All right. We'll make this an exhibit to your statement.

That's all I have. I'm sure if something else comes up, I may think of something or whatever.

(Exhibit 1 was marked for identification.)

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. One last question I've got. When transfers and things were made, were the positions that they went to, were they resumed made for? Or were persons just told, you're going here, and you're going here?

A. Under the Darnell administration, generally, what would happen would be, an open position announcement would come out: Any interested deputy sheriff that wishes to apply to be a detective, please submit your name to ISIS, which is our internal system. Interviews are conducted, and then somebody would be selected from the list.

Under the Watson administration, that pretty much went out the window. He just made moves willie-nillie as he felt necessary with no rhyme or reason is really the short answer.

MR. KRAMER: Thank you. We may be talking to you further.

forward and back in time, and I don't know if I discussed them or not. If I did, I apologize. It would be a duplicate.

Q. That's fine.

A. But if not --

Q. Where would you prefer to start? You want to start with things that you're concerned about that we just skipped over, or do you want to start with more -- the question, I believe, was, is there anything that occurred at the sheriff's office that was illegal, unethical, or immoral that you observed that you could tell us about, and I think that might be the area where there were additional responses.

A. Yeah. I think the other -- the things that I have highlighted here may just clean up my previous notes.

Q. All right. Let's start with that.

A. And again, I don't know if I got these things on the record last time.

One of my notes that I had made that nothing can be decided until the sheriff has made final decision. So it seems as if he is the sole decision maker, and nobody in the chain of command has the ability to make any types of decisions.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Did you get that from him?

A. That's just the perception.

And let me say that we have forms that, obviously, go up to certain levels, and some of the forms go to the sheriff. For instance, if you have a -- if you win a prize, for example -- I'm sure you guys have heard of SWAT Roundup.

We had an incident where a couple of guys won some rifles at SWAT Roundup, and guns, which I'm sure you're familiar always happens. And history has always been when that item comes back, that the sheriff has allowed the person to keep it. We fill out a form that basically says, "Hey, I received this as essentially gratuity. What do you want to do with it?" and history had always been ever since I've been there that the employee was just allowed to keep it.

Those forms sat for months and months and months, and we continuously asked and asked and asked; and the paper was never being processed, which seemed to be the history of things like secondary employment forms.

In other words, I work for Home Depot. I have to fill out a form saying I work for Home Depot, I work five to ten hours a week. You know, it doesn't conflict, I won't be doing any law enforcement action, blah, blah, blah, and it gets approved all the way up to the sheriff. Those type of forms just sit.

It's like there's a neglect to fill those forms out and get them back to people, especially when it comes to the folks that live in reduced rent apartments; because those reduced rent apartments are really considered secondary employment, and now we have people who come back and fill out the form, say, "Hey, I have this secondary employment. I live at ABC Apartment Complex," and those forms never get processed.

Lately -- I've been gone, but lately -- I'm sure you guys can follow up with it -- some secondary employment has been approved, but it's been very sporadic; and then others, it's been straight-up denied. And those denials have come on the backs of years and years and years of approval.

In other words, I might be teaching at the academy. I taught at the academy for 15 years, let's say, and then all of a sudden this year it's a denial for no reason, and there's no reason given.

Q. Is that detrimental to the functioning of the sheriff's office?

A. The academy, absolutely, because we have an agreement with the academy that we're going to provide people to teach the recruits.

Q. Well, maybe I'm being too obtuse. If employees are being mistreated and treated very differently than they have been by prior administrations without any explanation, does that create an environment where employees are likely to remain?

A. Absolutely not. What happens is too often -- I'm sure you guys are aware that law enforcement salaries are not that high, and almost everybody has got some sort of secondary employment whether it be at the academy or whether they have a business. Like we have several folks that have lawn maintain businesses, you know, and they thrive on those businesses, especially during the summer months when grass cutting is frequent. And when those forms aren't being approved, then you get into a situation where am I allowed to continue my business that I invested all this capital in, or what do I need to do? Do I need to quit and just move on?

And I'm sure if you pull the vacancy rate, the FT vacancies on January 5th of 2021, you pull the FT vacancy rate as of today, you'll see that they're vastly different.

Q. Just so I understand, do those supplemental employment forms have to be yearly?

A. They do.

Q. So even if you've had the same position for years and years, it has to be approved every year?

A. Every calendar year.

Q. Is it October 1? January 1?

A. January 1, if my memory recalls. I think it's January 1.

Q. Would your understanding be, there would be individuals who would resubmit after January 1 and would not get an answer for five, six, seven months?

A. Lengthy amounts of times or outright denials with no excuse, or no response, really. And, you know, the academy relies on those folks to teach recruits.

Q. Right.

A. I do believe we discussed that it could be found in one of the audio recordings that the undersheriff said that nothing is final until it's in green ink.

Q. Correct.

A. So that just kind of plays into that.

Q. And, also, I want to follow up on that issue. I want to make sure I understand what you're telling me, which is that -- and I'll use my organization as an example. We have -- I delegate control out to supervisors because I am physically incapable of making timely decisions in 20,000 cases of prosecution per year, and that is necessary for the proper functioning of the agency.

A. That is correct. I felt as if I had less decision-making authority as a major than I did as a lieutenant under the Darnell administration, which chokes the entire operation.

Q. So the same is true at the sheriff's office, and probably on a much larger scale than my organization. I have 135 employees, and the sheriff's office has how many employees?

A. About 960.

Q. Nine hundred sixty employees, and then essentially day-to-day decision making is being made by the sheriff?

A. Essentially.

Q. And that has prevented the sheriff's office's proper functioning because decision-making is delayed, and this -- what you've been talking about, this example of additional employment, is just maybe one example of delay.

A. It is one example, yes.

Q. And there are many others?

A. Right.

Q. And I don't know if you can speak to this, but is one of those examples, would it be assisting other agencies?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you aware during the time you were at the sheriff's office of a change in the decision-making process by which the sheriff's office decided whether or not to assist other agencies?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And if you could clarify. Does the sheriff's office have obligations, contractual and grant-oriented obligations, to provide assistance to regional agencies with equipment and expertise that those agencies would not have?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And could you explain what happened while you were there? What was the change from the prior administration? How did that affect things?

A. So operationally when I was the patrol support lieutenant, which was over all the special teams, Bradford County would call and say, "Hey, we've got an incident up here. We need the SWAT team."

So we're part of a region. The SWAT team is a regional team. There's funding that comes out of --

I can't remember the abbreviation, but it is -- there's funding that comes out. They fund some equipment, and that is really meant so that when Bradford County calls, or Union County folks that don't have a SWAT team, we go up there and we handle it.

And usually the protocol was, they would call. The captain would say, "Hey, Union County has a SWAT call-out." I would notify the SWAT guys, and then they would go.

The captain would then turn around and notify the chain upwards, "Hey, this is what's happened. I'm just kind of letting you know that Bradford County has called, or Union County has called, and they need the SWAT team."

That's been the practice for years. I mean, time was of the essence when you're talking about calling out a SWAT team. If we're not calling them for some preplanned event three days from now, then we don't have time to sit around and talk and have approval. It's go.

That completely changed under the Watson administration. He simply demanded that, in order for any asset to leave this county, that that sheriff that was requesting or that chief that was requesting the equipment called him first, which severely choked the response time.

So it was a complete spin. It was something we weren't used to, but he wanted the sheriff of Bradford County, Union County to call him and ask for the equipment before we were authorized.

Q. And what if he wasn't available?

A. (Shrugs shoulders.)

Q. You're holding up your hands and saying there's no answer for that?

A. There's no answer for that because we weren't authorized to proceed.

Q. So, for instance, just an instance that I was personally involved in was, there was an officer-involved shooting in Levy County, and they only have maybe four deputies on the road at any one time. I don't know if you're aware of this incident.

A. Correct.

Q. And when three of the officers were involved in a shooting, then they had no -- essentially, one deputy remaining on the road. They requested assistance from the Alachua County Sheriff's Office. Would that assistance request have to go through the sheriff himself?

A. It would.

Q. Would you agree that under those circumstances where a county was essentially now --

A. Vacant.

Q. -- had no law enforcement available, that time is of the essence?

A. Yeah, it is essential. And I'll follow up with another example.

The two deputies that were shot in Gilchrist County under the Darnell administration. As soon as that happened, everybody started rolling. We rolled the command -- I mean, we had the mobile command bus. We had schedules done to start covering the county, and then we just started notifying the sheriff, "Hey, this is what we're doing. This is how we're taking care of them." It was almost the information was flowing upward rather than flowing downward.

And under the Watson administration it's completely immerse. It's not allowed to happen in that manner. And the folks who may call 911 in Gilchrist County, now that there's no deputies available, they rely on our assistance. And we have the resources to provide to Gilchrist County or to Union County that Union County or Gilchrist County doesn't otherwise have.

MR. KRAMER: All right. Let's go back to things that you may -- unless you wanted to follow up. I'm sorry.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Has he ever denied one of those requests that you know of?

A. Yes.

Q. Which one?

A. There was an incident where University of Florida had called and requested the use of the jail vans. There was something going on at the Reitz Union. I think Darren Baxley had called and requested the jail vans. Don't quote me. I think it was Darren Baxley, deputy chief. Sheriff Watson refused to let them utilize the jail vans.

All that is, is a transport function. It's not like we were sending personnel. You know, we send in a couple of people to operate the vans, but we weren't sending crowd management. We weren't getting involved with their business on campus. They were just simply asking for assistance because, again, the university, you know, they've only got 80 FTEs, you know, somewhere in there. They don't have the capacity to deal with 15 or 20 arrestees at the same time. It would impact them severely to have to deal with that, and we had the resources. I didn't understand what the purpose of withholding a jail van was.

Q. When you say impact severely, would that mean creating an unsafe environment for the remainder of the students and faculty on campus?

A. Potentially. I mean, it depends on how the incident goes. If you got all your guys on the incident tied up with 10-15, or arrestees, if you will, and then they need to focus their attention somewhere else, next thing you know, you divert your attention to the people that need to go. Now you have an unsafe number of officers with the arrestees; or do the officers stay with the arrestees, and now you've neglected this? You have to make a decision.

You've only got so many personnel. The jail van would have been very quick, easy. You bring the jail vans over, put them in the jail vans, pat them down, get them in there, at least hold them there for a few minutes or get them out of there, whatever they decided to do. It was a relatively simple request.

There was some issues surrounding the drug task force, which I'm sure you're aware of, and the sheriff not wanting anyone to operate in the county.

Q. Were you an employee of the sheriff's office at the time that the sheriff directed the removal of all the equipment from the drug task force?

A. No, but my understanding is it was done in the middle of the night under some covert operation, was the rumor.

Q. Correct. I just didn't know if you were personally involved.

A. I was not.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Were you there when Nassau County requested assistance on an officer-involved shooting, and it was denied?

A. Actually, yes. I believe I was.

Q. Do we know why?

A. I don't know why.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. But that denial would have come from the sheriff?

A. It come from the sheriff. No cop, working cop, like even coming up through the ranks, when they had something like that, would deny that type of assistance. Those are the things -- when things were choked, it chokes to the point where it doesn't -- it doesn't run efficiently.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. And for the record, let me correct that. It may have been an officer-involved shooting, but actually the deputy had been shot; and they had a subject cornered, and they were asking for assistance from SWAT teams.

A. Correct. Correct.

MR. KRAMER: Anything further on what he's said so far?

THE WITNESS: One of the things that -- you know, you talk about assets. The SWAT team is one of them, but more frequently the helicopter is something that -- you know, we have an aviation unit. And folks in Putnam County and Columbia County, you know, they rely on that air support. You know, one helicopter there, arguably, is equivalent of 15 or 20 units on the ground.

Those requests were frequently -- we ran into problems where there would be a pursuit at, say, 2:00 in the morning, and they're calling and asking for our assistance. And then you have to make the decision, do I say, okay, go ahead and go, and then get chewed out the next day because they didn't -- because that sheriff didn't call our sheriff at 2:00 in the morning?

I mean, that's the type of slow-down we're talking about, to the point where you might as well not even send them at that point. It's almost rendering it useless.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. And it's 2:00 in the morning. Is Sheriff Watson available to answer another sheriff's call?

A. I don't know. I never called him at 2:00 in the morning.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. You mentioned earlier about the funding. If I recall from my days with RDS --

A. RDSTF, yeah, that's it.

Q. Regional Domestic Security Task Force. That's where a lot of Alachua's money came from. Or I say a lot. That's basically --

A. A significant amount of money.

Q. They were given a lot of money to create those regional units in case of -- for the region.

A. Right.

Q. And that was the understanding, that the money is given to you, but you need to be available if the region needs you.

A. The BearCat. I believe the BearCat was portioned with RDSTF money; or a portion of it was purchased with it, and you know how expensive those are.

The bomb team is another RDSTF, you know.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Let me ask you this. Are these requests reduced in any way to writing, or would there be any evidence of the request existing at all?

A. Usually -- from my recollection, usually when something breaks off, it's a phone call saying, "We need SWAT."

Q. Let me ask you this --

A. There could be a Teletype follow-up, though. I don't know.

Q. Would there be text messaging? Like, for instance, might you send a text message to the sheriff "We've received request from Scott for SWAT in Union County"?

A. Oh, I'm sure, but I never really directly contacted the sheriff. That was the undersheriff. I would call him, the undersheriff. I mean, he would answer his phone.

Q. But if -- you would agree those communications would be records at the agency?

A. There should be records at the agency.

Q. But if those records were not being -- they may not be preserved.

A. They should be preserved. Because there was a point in time when we all got iPhones -- you get into the debate of the iPhone or the Android, right? The iPhone is a blue, which is MMS; and then you have the Android, which is an SMS message. From my understanding, the SMS messages are recorded through your carrier, but the MMS are not because they're run on data and not run on cellular.

Q. But if the sheriff didn't allow the recording devices on his phone, there would be no record of those requests being made to the sheriff, correct?

A. I know that the phone that I had had recording because that was all enabled by Scott Shelpman, if my memory serves me correctly.

Q. Understood. Let's move on to the next item that you were concerned that we had missed due to our time constraints.

A. We discussed briefly Michelle Shirfield last time. She had posted some items on Facebook that could be seen by some folks as slanted to one racial side, if you will. That was brought to Watson's attention, and our understanding is that she was given a corrective counseling for that. Nobody ever saw the corrective counseling.

And then the order was basically given, you know, for Facebook or for violations of social media, that was -- that was the -- what should be done, give them a corrective counseling and go through progressive discipline.

And I think there's a couple open cases right now -- or I don't know if they're open or closed.

So Frank Williams and Kevin Davis are under investigation, or open at the moment, for things that I think were far less controversial, and they were placed on admin suspension and been sitting at the house for months.

Q. And let me ask you because I don't know the answer to this. This individual -- and you said her name was Michelle?

A. Shirfield.

Q. Shirfield? Is she African American?

A. She is.

Q. And the posts that you're referencing, they were -- I don't know the posts. Were they racially inappropriate?

A. It was more of a supporting a racial position, and I believe Kevin Davis could speak more on that.

Q. Is it your understanding that a formal complaint was made either to her supervisor or to the office of professional standards so that discipline should have been initiated?

A. I told the sheriff directly about the violation, and Bobby Stafford told the sheriff directly about the violation.

Q. But as far as I understand -- and my understanding of discipline is developing -- is that the way the discipline would be initiated, it would be either through the office of professional standards or through her supervisor.

A. Correct.

Q. So you gave that information to the sheriff?

A. Correct.

Q. And your understanding is that no discipline was initiated; or if there was any discipline, it was informal in the form of a corrective counseling?

A. It was informal in the form of a corrective counseling, but nobody seen that. I'm sure if you pull her file you would either see a corrective counseling or not see a corrective counseling, but she reported directly to the sheriff.

Q. When someone receives corrective counseling, is it discipline?

A. It's considered informal discipline.

Q. But it should remain in the employee file for one year?

A. That's correct. Oftentimes it's not removed. You have to go back in there and say, hey, that needs to come out.

BY INSPECTOR SNOWDEN:

Q. Do you know if Kevin Davis made a complaint about that to OPS or through the sheriff suite?

A. I don't think so because he had already known that it was brought to the attention of the sheriff and Bobby Stafford.

Q. Do you know about any complaint that Kevin Davis took to OPS?

A. I know he made a complaint. I don't remember what it surrounded; but I do remember him taking a complaint, and it was basically like disregarded.

Q. If somebody takes a complaint to OPS, should a case number be drawn?

A. Oh, absolutely, or they say this is really not -- there's a list of standards that OPS will investigate these certain things or as directed by the sheriff.

So they'll look at it, and they'll say we'll take and we're going to pull a case number, or they'll say we're going to defer it back to the division commander and let the employee supervisor handle it.

MR. KRAMER: Any other questions on that particular issue?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Thank you for the clarification. Was there anything else?

A. Did we discuss the bargaining process with the re-openers and the unfair labor practice?

Q. You did. You informed us that one of the reasons why you left the sheriff's office was that you advised them, essentially, that what they were doing was in violation of the National Labor Standards Act.

A. Oh, that's right. I gave you the form. Okay.

So I gave the set of text messages last time between the undersheriff and I.

Q. Yes.

A. The sergeants and lieutenants ratified their contract. The deputies did not ratify their contract. And there was an extended period of time; I don't recall the exact settlement dates, maybe July, August the following year. So we're talking about ten, eleven months later that ultimately we were going to go to a hearing at the sheriff's office.

And right before that began and the sheriff was coming to sit down and testify, if my memory serves me correctly, he wanted to have a discussion. And then that was ultimately settled, and a substantial check was written for attorney's fees. You may want to pull a copy of that.

Q. Who was the attorney that would have received the fees?

A. It would be the PBA.

Q. Would it be the PBA itself, or would it be paid directly to a particular attorney?

MS. WEBSTER: Do you want me to answer?

MR. KRAMER: No, you can tell him.

THE WITNESS: The check was written to the PBA.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. For the attorney's fees?

A. For the attorney's fees.

Q. Incurred because of the actions that you've already described in your previous testimony where the sheriff was essentially acting in violation of the National Labor Standards Act of essentially just refusing to negotiate in good faith.

A. That is correct. And that surrounded the take-home cars, which I believe we talked about last time.

Q. Correct.

A. All those things wrapped up.

Q. He withdrew all the articles. That's the phraseology you used.

A. Everything was TA'd. We were getting ready to go to a vote on Thursday and Friday. On Monday, October 18th, I got a call that he withdrew all the articles.

I said, "Wait a minute. We know this vote is coming. We can't do this."

I brought it to his attention, and the sheriff made the unilateral decision to pull that. I said, "You can't do that. You're going to refuse to sign a contract after it's already been agreed upon."

And in his text messages, which I presented to you last time, I was told that my interpretation was not consistent with the decision of the sheriff.

MR. KRAMER: Anything else?

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Next.

A. We talked about the SWAT rifles.

BY INSPECTOR RIDDICK:

Q. Where are those rifles now, Major?

A. So those rifles were not given to the employee personally. They were issued to the employee that won them with the understanding that when they retire they will be able to keep them. That was the decision that was made, if my memory serves me correctly; but that's probably not in writing anywhere, I promise you that, because nothing hardly ever gets reduced to writing.

BY MR. KRAMER:

Q. Well, they wouldn't have gone to the inventory? Doesn't every officer have an inventory?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And if they're not on the inventory, and they're in the officer's possession --
